SENATE BILL No. 159.

A bill for an Act making an appropriation for the necessary expenses of the commission appointed to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the State of Illinois.

SENATE BILL No. 161.

A bill for an Act to amend section 210 of an Act entitled, "An Act for the assessment of property and for the levy and collection of taxes," approved March 30, 1872, in force July 1, 1872, as amended by Act approved June 26, 1895, in force July 1, 1895.

SENATE BILL No. 311.

A bill for an Act to prohibit free lunches in dramshops, and providing penalties for the violation of this Act.

SENATE BILL No. 320.

A bill for an Act making an appropriation for the perpetuation and care of burial place of deceased veterans of civil and other wars.

SENATE BILL No. 407.

A bill for an Act making an appropriation for the continuance of the work of the State Water Survey.

SENATE BILL No. 420.

A bill for an Act to amend section 19 of an Act entitled, "An Act to create sanitary districts and to remove obstructions in the Desplaines and Illinois Rivers." Approved May 29, 1889; in force July 1, 1889; as amended by an Act approved May 25, 1907, in force July 1, 1907.

SENATE BILL No. 473.

A bill for an Act in relation to the equipment of locomotive engines with headlights and providing penalty for violation of same.

SENATE BILL No. 495.

A bill for an Act in regard to stage and omnibus routes.

SENATE BILL No. 544.

A bill for an Act to require common carriers to settle claims for lost or damaged freight within reasonable time, and providing for the assessment of attorneys' fees in certain cases.

SENATE BILL No. 554.

A bill for an Act to revise the law in relation to the Illinois State Museum of Natural History.

SENATE BILL No. 566.

A bill for an Act to provide for the payment of the cost of part of a local improvement, consisting of sewer in the city of Ottawa, Illinois; said improvement being made by special assessment.

SENATE BILL No. 567.

A bill for an Act to provide for the payment of the cost of part of a local improvement of streets in the city of Ottawa, Illinois, by paving; said improvement being abutted to real property owned and controlled by the State of Illinois.

SENATE BILL No. 583.

A bill for an Act to amend section 216 of an Act entitled, "An Act for the assessment of property and for the levy and collection of taxes," approved March 30, 1872, in force July 1, 1872, as amended by subsequent Acts.

SENATE BILL No. 603.

A bill for an Act to protect apparatus, appliances and implements for extinguishing and preventing fires and providing a penalty for the misuse, theft and unlawful purchase of same.

SENATE BILL No. 616.

A bill for an Act to amend section three and four of an Act entitled, "An Act fixing and providing for the payment of the salaries of state's attorneys and their assistants, defining their duties, providing for the appointment of assistants and to provide for the collection and disposition of the fees provided by law to be paid to the state's attorney, and to repeal all Acts in conflict herewith," approved June 11, 1912, in force July 1, 1912, and to amend the title of said Act.

SENATE BILL No. 621.

A bill for an Act to amend section 2 of an Act entitled, "An Act to revise the law in relation to the commitment and detention of lunatics, and to provide for the appointment and removal of conservators, and to repeal certain Acts therein named," approved June 21, 1893, in force July 1, 1893.

SENATE BILL No. 636.

A bill for an Act to amend an Act entitled, "An Act in relation to practice and procedure in courts of record," approved June 3, 1907, in force July 1, 1907, as amended.

Mr. O'Connor, from the Committee on Appropriations, to which was referred bills of the following titles, reported the same back with a substitute therefor, with the recommendation that the original bills lie on the table and that the substitute do pass:

SENATE BILL No. 508.

A bill for an Act making an appropriation to the city of Mound City, Illinois, to widen, raise, strengthen, improve and repair the levees at said city of Mound City.

SENATE BILL No. 608.

A bill for an Act making an appropriation to the Rivers and Lakes Commission of Illinois, for the purpose of building and constructing a levee in the city of Brookport, Massac County, Illinois.

SENATE BILL No. 615.

A bill for an Act making an appropriation to the Rivers and Lakes Commission of Illinois for the purpose of widening, raising, strengthening, improving and repairing the levee at the city of Cairo, Illinois.

SENATE BILL No. 624.

A bill for an Act to appropriate the sum of thirty-nine thousand dollars ($39,000.00), to be used in the repairing and improvement of the levee at Shawneetown, Illinois.

SENATE BILL No. 625.

A bill for an Act to appropriate the sum of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000.00), to be used to aid in building and constructing a levee at Rosiclare, Illinois.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, the bills of the foregoing titles were ordered to lie on the table and the substitute, being Senate Bill No. 666, a bill for "An Act making an appropriation to the Rivers and Lakes Commission of Illinois for the purpose of widening, raising, strengthening, improving, repairing, building and constructing levees in or around certain cities in the State of Illinois," was, under the rules, read at large a first time, ordered to a second reading and to be printed.

Mr. O'Connor, from the Committee on Appropriations, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 366, for "An Act providing for the appointment of commissioners and making an appropriation for the construction of a monument in memory of Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas at Springfield, Ill.,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do not pass.

The report of the committee was concurred in and the bill, on motion of Mr. O'Connor, was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. O'Connor, from the Committee on Appropriations, to which was referred a bill, House Bill No. 297, for "An Act making an appropriation to provide for a deficiency in the appropriation for the purchase of hogs necessary for producing serum, including labor, feed and all other laboratory work and necessary supplies,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. O'Connor, from the Committee on Appropriations, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 333, for "An Act appropriating one thousand dollars for printing the report of the Illinois-Andersonville Monument Commission,"

Reported the same back with amendments thereto, and recommended that the amendments be adopted, and that the bill, as amended, do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time, ordered to a second reading, and to be printed with the amendments.

Mr. Carroll, from the Committee on Fees and Salaries, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 42, for "An Act to amend section 1 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for fees of clerks of probate courts in counties of the second class having a population of seventy thousand or more,' approved June 16, 1909, in force July 1, 1909,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Carroll, from the Committee on Fees and Salaries, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 109, for "An Act to allow per diem fees to clerks of the circuit, county and probate courts in counties of the first and second class and to repeal certain Acts therein named,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Carroll, from the Committee on Fees and Salaries, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 650, for "An Act to amend sections 40 and 41 of an Act entitled, 'An Act concerning fees and salaries and to classify the several counties of this State with reference thereto,' approved March 29, 1872, in force July 1, 1872; title as amended by Act approved March 28, 1874, in force July 1, 1874; as amended by Act approved May 24, 1907, in force July 1, 1907; as amended by Act approved June 8, 1909, in force July 1, 1909,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Carroll, from the Committee on Fees and Salaries, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 221, for "An Act to fix the compensation and salaries of probate judges in all counties having a population of seventy thousand (70,000) or more, and to repeal all Acts and parts of Acts in conflict herewith,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Juul, from the Committee on Judiciary, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 220, for "An Act to authorize the appointment of assistants to probate judges and provide for their compensation,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Juul, from the Committee on Judiciary, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 224, for "An Act to amend sections 1 and 3 of 'An Act concerning Canada thistles,' approved and in force March 15, 1872; as amended by Act approved June 27, 1885, in force July 1, 1885,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Juul, from the Committee on Judiciary, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 563, for "An Act to amend Article III of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for the incorporation of cities and villages,' approved April 10, 1872, in force July 1, 1872, by adding thereto a new section to be known as section 20,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Juul, from the Committee on Judiciary, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 599, for "An Act to amend 'An Act to revise the law in relation to sheriffs,' approved Jan. 27, 1874, in force July 1, 1874, by adding thereto three additional sections, to be known respectively as section 29, section 30 and section 31,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Juul, from the Committee on Judiciary, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 611, for "An Act to amend an Act entitled, 'An Act concerning compensation of trustees,' approved June 17, 1891, in force July 1, 1891,"

Reported the same back with amendments thereto, and recommended that the amendments be adopted, and that the bill, as amended, do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time, ordered to a second reading, and to be printed with the amendments.

Mr. Juul, from the Committee on Judiciary, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 627, for "An Act to amend section 1 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to revise the law in relation to divorce,' approved March 10, 1874, in force July 1, 1874,"

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

REPORTS FROM SELECT COMMITTEES.

Mr. Barr made the following report, which was read, and, on his motion was adopted:

To the Honorable President and Members of the Illinois State Senate:

Your committee appointed under Resolution No. 48 passed by this Senate on the 3rd day of April, A. D., 1913, to investigate the condition of the retaining walls of the Sanitary District Canal in the vicinity of the cities of Joliet and Lockport, with reference to the danger from floods, beg leave to report that on the day following such appointment, we convened in the city of Joliet, and together with such members of the Board of Trustees of the Sanitary District of Chicago as were able to accompany us, we made a preliminary inspection of the portions of the walls, dams and structures of the Sanitary District which it was proposed to investigate.

We anticipated that the Sanitary District Trustees would be willing to assist in any investigation calculated to determine the question of safety of life and property in the Desplaines Valley, as the same might in any way be affected by their works at or near Lockport; and we are pleased to report that we found not only such a willingness to assist us; but we were assured that they would do anything by way of repairs, improvements, or otherwise which might be found necessary to insure absolute safety, and also to relieve any reasonable apprehensions of danger. The same assurances were given by the president and other trustees and officers of the Sanitary District as we afterward met them from time to time. It was apparent to us from the inspection so made, that we would require the aid and advice of expert civil engineers, and we at once conducted extensive inquiry to enable us to select for this work, the best available men, who by training and experience were especially fitted for the character of investigation which was desired.

This resulted in the selection of the firm of Noble & Woodard of New York City, Mr. J. W. Pearl, now located at Chicago, and Mr. J. A. B. Tompkins, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. On account of the importance of the results of their undertaking, it may be proper to say a word about the experience and qualifications of these men. Mr. Alfred Noble, of the firm of Noble & Woodard, is the chairman of the American Society of Consulting Engineers, is consulting engineer for the Public Service Commission in New York City, consulting engineer for the Canadian Government on the new Welland Canal, served for the United States Government on the Panama Canal Commissions, served on the Deep Water Way Commission in New York State, was engineer on the government work at Sault Ste. Marie Locks, was Chief Engineer of the East River Division of the Pennsylvania Terminal in New York City (constructing tunnel under East River and other work), and is recognized as one of the great engineers in America.

His partner, Mr. S. H. Woodard, has also had a wide experience both in designing and constructing large works and as consulting engineer on many projects in this country and in Canada. Mr. James W. Pearl is engineer of the harbor and subway commission of Chicago and is now engaged in designing and preparing standards and estimating cost of one of the greatest engineering projects ever undertaken in that city; he designed the outer harbor construction work now being built at Chicago, also at LaSalle street tunnel in that city; was government engineer on works on the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers, was general manager and engineer of the Massillon Bridge Company, and was for many years engaged in general contracting in water works, bridges, substructures, dredging, etc. Mr. Tompkins is a government engineer stationed at Milwaukee, in which district there are more than twenty lake harbors requiring construction, repairs, inspection and report on breakwaters, docks, piers, bridges, dams and other hydraulic work. His professional experience extends over a period of more than thirty years, devoted largely to government and railway work. We feel that we were fortunate in securing such able men. They were set to work under the following letter of instructions from this committee:

"Messrs. Noble & Woodard, of New York.

Mr. J. W. Pearl, of Chicago,

Mr. J. A. B. Tompkins, of Milwaukee,

"GENTLEMEN—Under authority of Resolution No. 48, copy of which is hereto attached, you are appointed as a Board of Engineers, to be known as the Desplaines Valley Flood Commission, to make investigation of the conditions of the retaining walls erected by the Sanitary District of Chicago, in the construction of its canal in the vicinity of the cities of Joliet and Lockport, including the various structures pertaining to said canal and to determine their strength, stability and efficiency in operation. You are further to recommend what measures, if any, in your opinion, should be taken to protect the people and property of Joliet and vicinity from any dangers on account of said walls and structures.

"You are not empowered as a commission or as individuals, to incur any liabilities; but the commission will be supplied with such assistance, equipment, quarters and supplies as may be necessary for the proper conduct of the work herein directed to be done, upon your requisition for the same on the chairman of the Senate committee.

"Upon your acceptance of this appointment, you will please proceed at once with these duties and report to this committee with all convenient speed.

Very truly yours,

"R. J. BARR,

"Chairman, State Senate Special Committee."

These engineers began their active investigation about April 22nd, last, and continued it industriously until a few days ago, when they submitted a report in writing to this committee. As this report gives a complete account of the manner in which they conducted their work and a detailed statement of the condition of the walls, dams and levees of the Sanitary District Canal, where investigated, together with their recommendations in relation thereto. We herewith submit the same to you in full; which reads as follows:

Richard J. Barr, John Dailey, Raymond D. Meeker, F. A. Hurley, and N. E. Franklin, Illinois State Senate Committee:

"In accordance with your letter of instructions dated April 19, 1913, we herewith submit a report on the investigation conducted by us up to the present time. In our preliminary report of April 26th, it was stated that the problem presented, namely, 'The investigation of the possibility of flood conditions at and near the city of Joliet and particularly the general safety and stability of the structures pertaining to the Chicago Drainage Canal,' could be divided into two parts, the first of which consists of a thorough examination and investigation of existing embankments, walls, controlling works, etc., of the drainage canal, with a view to determining whether or not they are sufficient of themselves so as to offer no menace to the city of Joliet, and if found to be insufficient, to determine what measures should be adopted to strengthen the said works so as to place their safety beyond question. We have made as close and critical an examination of the existing embankments and walls, as time and opportunity would permit, and have reached certain definite conclusions regarding same.

"In addition to these walls and embankments there are a large number of gates, valves, machinery and other structures and appliances involved in the impounding of the water. These gates and valves are designed to be opened to discharge water from the canal. Should any one of these open on account of failure of same, the discharge therefrom would be no greater than if opened by the operator, and such discharge would be no menace to the city of Joliet. The only possible danger, therefore, from these gates and valves would be the practically simultaneous failure of several of them, which would be an extremely unlikely contingency. To examine these structures and appliances in close detail, and to make the computations necessary to determine their margin of safety, would involve more time than has been available.

"For convenience, in discussing the results of our investigations, the report will be divided under two general heads:

"I. A narrative of the explorations and surveys which have been carried on under our direction.

"II. A statement of the conclusions we have reached, as to the strength, stability and efficiency of such portions of the structures, pertaining to the drainage canal, as we have investigated, and our recommendations as to what should be done to strengthen such structures, so as to insure against their failure under the most unfavorable, natural conditions.

"A concise description of the portion of the drainage canal investigated by us, is given in a report of a Board of Consulting Engineers, presented to the common council of the city of Joliet, Nov. 12, 1906, and is as follows:

"The extension of the Drainage Channel under consideration is in general a basin which when filled is almost entirely above the natural surface of the ground. It contains approximately 97,000,000 cubic feet of water at Chicago datum, which is five feet below the top of the walls and embankments. The water is held on the easterly side by a concrete wall backed by loose rock; southerly by a gravity wall, a lock, movable dams and a power house for the generation of electricity; westerly by a concrete wall backed by loose rock, an earth and rock embankment with a concrete core, an earth and rock embankment resting in part on an old rock levee, and lastly an earth and rock embankment resting upon an old scraper-made bank.

"The northerly end of this basin is to be closed in case of disaster by a revolving or "butterfly dam," with its center permanently anchored in the center of the channel, its normal position being in the thread of the stream.'

I. EXPLORATIONS AND SURVEYS.

"In order to examine the condition of the retaining walls below the water, the services of a diver were secured. The examination made by the diver covered the west retaining wall from the north end thereof to the fender wall at the power plant; the wall at the south end of the basin, extending from the lock to the east retaining wall; and the east retaining wall from its southerly end to a point about 500 feet north of 16th street, Lockport.

"The specifications under which the east and west walls were constructed, provided for a wall of natural cement concrete faced on the channel side and top with three inches of Portland cement mortar, this facing to extend down for a distance of about 14 feet from the top of the wall.

WEST WALL.

"In the examination of the west wall the diver reported that at a depth of -9 Chicago city datum, or 14 feet below top of wall, there was a zone from two to four feet in width, of disintegrated concrete extending into the wall to a depth of from three to six inches. At one place, the diver with his fingers pulled out stones from the natural cement concrete to a depth of 6 inches. It was impossible to examine the wall for its entire height on account of the deposit of sediment which the diver reported to be about 10 feet deep along the foot of the wall. This sediment was so soft that the diver sank into it above his knees. It was impossible for him to walk thereon, and in consequence, in the examination made by him he had to be entirely suspended from above.

"For some years past, there has been a leakage under the west wall at a point at or near where the old channel of Deep Run crossed the canal. Two considerable streams of water flow out from the toe of the rock slope. From the best evidence obtainable, it was believed that the streams emanated from a common source, and were divided solely by the dredged material, which had been cast over and deposited on the outside of the rock slope.

"Efforts were made to discover cracks or other defects in the walls, which would account for the flow of water mentioned, but were unsuccessful. Owing to the report of the diver of the quantity of sediment deposited along the foot of the wall, it was believed the leakage could not be under the wall. A later examination by the diver, however, disclosed a low spot in the sedimentary deposit, where the material was much harder and more compact. It was believed that the leakage must occur at or near this spot, and in order to verify such belief, the diver was provided with a bottle containing methylene blue, which he broke at the lowermost point. About six minutes thereafter blue water was running in both streams at the toe of the rock slope, thus proving conclusively that the source of the leak had been determined, and that both streams emanated from a common source.

"The leak is believed to be at the bottom of the wall at an elevation of about -32 C. C. D., and is located about 220 feet from the northerly end of the wall. The diver reported finding a hole at the depth stated, about 8 inches high and 12 inches wide, through which there was a strong current.

SOUTH WALL.

"This wall was designed to act as a gravity wall, but has been provided with a rock backing for about two-thirds of its length, extending from its junction with the east wall. The wall is built of Portland cement concrete, and is the best wall examined by us. The channel face under water is generally smooth and hard. It was impossible to examine the foot of the wall on account of the large deposit of sediment along the same. This sediment reaches from -16.5 at the junction of the south wall with the east wall, to -13.5 at a point 50 feet west therefrom. There is a slight percolation through a portion of the wall immediately east of the lock. This portion is not provided with rock backing. There are occasional small streams to be observed issuing from the rear face of the wall, and the back of the wall is generally moist from seepage through same.

EAST WALL.

"This wall is of the same general type and is built of the same kind of materials as the west wall. The upper surface of the wall shows numerous cracks, especially where it has been patched with Portland cement concrete. Numerous places were found where large areas of Portland cement facing are gone, both above and below water. About opposite transmission pole No. 14, a very bad place was found, extending vertically from -10 to -16 C. C. D. Below -16, the face of the wall is smooth and hard. At elevation -22 the diver reported an offset extending into the channel 18 inches and battered on its channel face. This offset is evidently part of the repairs which were made to the wall subsequent to the examination made by the Board of Consulting Engineers hereinbefore mentioned. The diver reported this offset to be in good condition. An accumulation of sediment, however, prevented an examination of the lower portions of the wall.

"Samples of the natural cement concrete were secured at this place, and found to be very poor quality. In one case, there was a great deficiency of mortar. In another case, while the concrete was fairly dense, and the voids were filled, the mortar was very weak, in fact exhibiting practically no tensile strength. At one point in this vicinity, the diver reported that he dug into the wall to a depth of about four feet from its face. There is a small leak along this wall, water issuing from the toe of the rock slope at a point between pole No. 7 and pole No. 8.

"The Sanitary District is now engaged in making repairs to portions of the concrete walls both above and below the controlling works.

WEST EMBANKMENT.

"Between the retaining wall and a point about 400 feet north of 16th street, this is essentially an earth and clay embankment, with rock fill on each slope, and with a core wall of natural cement concrete, extending longitudinally along approximately the middle of the embankment. The top of the core wall is at elevation -5. The wall is three feet thick at top, and has a batter on each side of one horizontal to twelve vertical. The specifications provided that it should be founded on ledge rock, the upper surface of which was to be excavated to a depth of two feet more or less.

"This embankment has given trouble from time to time on account of leakage through and over the core wall. On April 20th, two of the undersigned, while examining the west embankment, saw water running over the top of the core wall, to a depth of about two feet above the wall. This leak was about 775 feet north of the retaining wall. Repairs were being made at that time by the Sanitary District. An excavation about 6 feet by 12 feet had been made, uncovering the top of the wall. The repairs were completed April 22nd, and leakage had ceased at that time. Since then, however, the leakage has recurred and the filling in the excavation has shown some settlement.

"Arrangements were made with the Sanitary District for sinking test pits along the west embankment. Test pit No. 1 was located about 50 feet north of the above described leak. A pit was sunk on the west side of the core wall down to ledge rock. This pit disclosed a clay bank about 4 feet above the concrete core wall. In this clay bank were imbedded stones, 4 to 6 inches in diameter, estimated at 25 per cent of the volume of the mass. This clay was stiff but plastic and apparently impervious. There were occasional small pockets of loose gravelly stones. Next to the core wall and for a distance of 3 feet below the top of same, there was a loose fill of mixed rock and earth not impervious. From elevation -8 down to rock, the pit passed through clear plastic clay fill. There was no sign of leakage over the wall. At a depth of 30 feet or about -25 Chicago city datum, a leak through the core wall was encountered. At this point the wall is estimated to be about 6½ feet thick. Water flowed through the core wall at a rate of approximately 6 gallons per minute. At a depth of about 38½ feet, or approximately -33.5 Chicago city datum, ledge rock was reached. The rock was apparently channeled to a depth of about 2 feet, into which channel the core wall was placed. The concrete in the upper portion of the core wall for a depth of about one or two feet, is soft and deficient in strength.

"Test pit No. 2 was located at the junction of the core wall with the west retaining wall. This pit was sunk to a depth of about 26 feet or -21 Chicago city datum. When work was suspended at this depth, ledge rock had not been reached. No good puddle clay was encountered on the west side of the core wall. Over the core wall and on the channel side of same as far down as the top of the core wall, good puddle clay was discovered. The material in the pit, adjacent to the west side of the core wall, was a mixture of earth and stone with some clay and is not impervious. The concrete of the core wall so far as disclosed, is of very poor quality, soft and crumbling easily, and has the appearance of being deficient in mortar. There is no leakage however, either over or through the core wall, at this point.

"From a point about 400 feet north of the 16th street bridge, to the concrete retaining wall at the controlling works, the embankment consists of a clay core with rock filling on either side. Seven transverse trenches were dug in the top of this portion of the embankment, in six of which good puddle clay was disclosed at a depth of about two feet. In the trench, about 200 feet north of the 9th street bridge, however, the depth to the clay was about 5 feet, and the remains of a timber trestle were disclosed.

"A line of levels has been run along the west embankment from the controlling works to the north end of the retaining wall near the power house. Numerous cross sections of the top of the embankment and several cross sections extending down to the toe of the rock slope on the outer or west side of the embankment, have been taken. It was found that in some places the average elevation of the top of the embankment was only +3, and there are but few places where the embankment is higher than +5. The top of the embankment is very irregular and there are numerous depressions in which rain water collects.

"As outlined in the preliminary report of April 26th, it had been intended to test the concrete in the retaining walls by core boring, to obtain positive information as to the condition of the concrete in the interior of the walls. Efforts were made to secure the services of a competent driller, but were unsuccessful. Six different parties were communicated with, but no driller was found available who had the necessary experience and apparatus, and who could give satisfactory assurance that the work would be promptly and efficiently done.

CONCLUSIONS.

"The east bank of the canal from the controlling works to the south end and 900 feet of the south end of the west bank, or over 50 per cent of the dams impounding the water in the power canal, are of a composite type consisting of a rock embankment, generally 44 feet wide on top, left at its natural slope on the outer side, and a concrete wall on the channel or inner side of the rock embankment. This wall is six feet wide on top, vertical on the channel face, and on the rear face next the rock fill is vertical for 12 feet, and then is stepped at the rate of 3 horizontal to 8 vertical. The top of the wall is uniformly at elevation +5 Chicago city datum. We find that these walls are of poor construction, the main body of the concrete is not strong, and the Portland cement facing has fallen off in many places and disintegration has taken place. The primary purpose of the walls is to serve as an impervious facing, and no great strength is required of them. We have discovered no condition that we consider a present menace, and we believe that there is no immediate danger to the city of Joliet or vicinity on account of these walls; however, their condition is such that they should be repaired with Portland cement concrete to assure their safety for the future. While we are not prepared to state that there is not a harmful action of sewage on Portland cement, observation has shown that where Portland cement concrete has been in contact with the sewage of the drainage canal, as evidenced by the wall at the south end, there has apparently been no disintegration or injurious effect.

"It is recommended that the present walls be cut down to a plane 3 feet above Chicago datum, and as much lower as may be necessary to remove all soft, porous and disintegrated concrete; that the channel face of the present walls be thoroughly cleaned to such depth as may be necessary to remove all soft, porous and disintegrated concrete and provide a clean, fresh surface; that Portland cement concrete walls be constructed on the channel face of the natural cement concrete walls, carried up over existing walls to a height of five feet above Chicago datum, and down the back to below frost line. The new walls should be built of what is known as 1 - 2 - 4 concrete. In no place should the walls be less than two feet in thickness and should be secured to the face and top of the old walls by suitable steel loops or anchor bolts. In regard to the leaks under the retaining walls hereinbefore mentioned, it is recommended that immediate measures be taken to close them.

"The south wall, extending from the southerly end of the east embankment of the canal to the lock wall, is a gravity dam, built of Portland cement concrete, with some rock filling upon the downstream side. This wall is apparently in very good condition, except that there is a certain amount of percolation. We consider that this wall is stable and safe.

"The west embankment from the north end of the 900 feet of retaining wall section, northward to a point about 400 feet north of the 16th street bridge, is known as the core wall section. This embankment contains a natural cement core wall extending longitudinally along approximately the center of the bank, from bedrock to elevation -5 C. C. datum. This was designated to be banked on either side by an earth or clay fill, with rock fill on both the outer and channel side of the embankment. Inasmuch as there have been leaks in this portion of the embankment and several attempts have been made to repair them, none of which have been entirely successful, thorough repairs should be made.

"We recommend that the material above the core wall be removed to the top of the wall or to a less depth, provided good clay puddle is discovered, by borings or otherwise, extending to -10 Chicago city datum. If good clay puddle is encountered at or above the top of the core wall for a width of 10 feet, it should be stripped and the excavation restored to elevation +8 Chicago city datum, with additional clay puddle bonded to the old by cutting with spades puddling and ramming. If, however, good clay puddle is not discovered at and to the depths and for the width stated, the core wall should be raised to Chicago city datum, the material on each side of the wall excavated to -8 for a width of 5 feet, and good clay puddle carried up from -7 to +8. Before building new concrete on the old, all porous concrete should be removed down to sound, clean concrete.

"From a point about 400 feet north of the 16th street bridge to the wall at the controlling works, the west embankment consists of a clay bank reinforced on both sides by rock fill. No leaks have been discovered in this section, but a certain amount of subsidence at the top has apparently taken place. On February 6th, 1907, the Board of Trustees of the Sanitary District ordered the Chief Engineer to 'raise the height of the earth levees one (1) foot higher than the other walls.' (Proceedings, Board of Trustees, 1907, page 99.) As the top of the 'other walls' is at +5, we assume that the levees were raised to +6. The survey shows that there are places where the bank for its entire width is two feet below elevation +6, and in spots is four feet below such elevation, and for over two hundred feet the average elevation is +3.

"We recommend that the material overlying the earth core be removed down to good impervious clay puddle and that explorations be made into this, sufficient to assure that there are no pervious strata in the clay puddle. A suggested method for making these explorations is as follows: After stripping the clay puddle, borings shall be made at intervals of not exceeding ten feet, both longitudinally and transversely, to a depth of not less than -8, and samples of the material at the various depths be brought to the surface for examination. Upon the surface accepted, after examination by borings a clay puddle wall be brought up to elevation +8 and the rock filling restored.

"Examination has shown that the top of the earth embankment is generally very ragged and uneven, there being numerous depressions. These depressions permit accumulations of rain water, tending to soften the upper portion of the embankment. It is recommended that the top of the earth embankments generally be finished with crushed stone or gravel, with a suitable crown, for drainage, for a width of 20 feet.

"As at present managed, the Butterfly Dam is not to be depended upon to protect the DesPlaines Valley from floods. The sole operator lives at Lockport, some distance away, and the controlling works are left without attendance for considerable periods of time. This dam should be made more efficient as an emergency apparatus, by continuous attendance of an operator at the controlling works and by installing an additional source of electric power. Two of the undersigned, Messrs. Pearl and Tompkins, recommend that a suitable bridge be constructed so that access can be had directly to the operating mechanism of the dam without having to pass through the tunnel, or that the controlling mechanism of the dam be placed on shore.

"We find that the walls and embankments of the drainage canal have suffered deterioration and that certain repairs, as hereinbefore stated, are necessary. While we do not believe that the condition of the walls and embankments is such at the present time as to endanger life and property in the valley of the DesPlaines River below, the recommendations hereinbefore stated should be carried out. We believe that improved service at the Butterfly Dam should be supplied at once; that the reconstruction of the core wall section and the earth embankment north of same should be completed during the present season; and that the reconstruction or repairs to the face and top of the retaining wall section should be undertaken and completed without unnecessary delay.

"Our investigation thus far has been confined to the examination of the walls and embankments of the Drainage Canal. A question has been raised as to the adequacy of the channel provided through the city of Joliet to discharge the flood waters of the DesPlaines River when augmented by that from the Drainage Canal.

"Prior to the construction of this canal, a portion of the waters of the DesPlaines River at flood stages, passed into the Chicago River and thence into Lake Michigan. By far the greater part of the drainage area of the DesPlaines River above Joliet, lies above this point of overflow; the channel through Joliet was thus relieved of a large portion of the natural flood water. In the construction of the Drainage Canal, a barrier was created to this natural overflow, and a spill-way constructed which it is stated provided for the discharge into the canal of only a portion of the natural overflow. In consequence, the volume of water passing down the DesPlaines River above Lockport under flood conditions, may be greatly increased over what it would be in a state of nature. This is further increased below Lockport by the discharge of the Drainage Canal itself. The drainage area of the DesPlaines River may also be subjected to unusual precipitation at a time when very rapid run off would occur and cause a sudden high discharge from that source. Additional channel capacity has been provided by the Sanitary District through and in the vicinity of the city of Joliet, which, it is to be presumed, was regarded as sufficient to care for such additional discharge as might be caused by the construction and operation of the Drainage Canal.

"There have been various modifications affecting the channel and original design, and much doubt has been expressed about the ability of the channel through the city of Joliet, to care for all the water that may come to it in time of unusual flood. In the report of the Board of Consulting Engineers, to which reference has been heretofore made, a warning was given as to what might result to the people of Joliet should unusual flood conditions arise. Recent events in Ohio and Indiana have served to show that by reason of exceptional rainfall, conditions do occur when channels which have heretofore been believed, and have proved to be entirely adequate, have failed to carry the flood, and great loss of life and property has resulted. The question is so grave, and the results which would without doubt occur should the channels prove inadequate in time of unusual flood, would be so disastrous that the adequacy of the channels should be investigated with the utmost care. It is possible to predict with sufficient accuracy the amount of water to be provided for and to investigate the capacity of the channels and determine the changes if any which are necessary to make them adequate; but the time and means required for such investigation are greater than have been at our disposal. We believe that this investigation should be carried out and the real danger, if any, determined, in order that all necessary measures may be taken to protect the people of the DesPlaines Valley against these dangers.

"Respectfully submitted,
"(Signed) Desplaines Valley Flood Commission.

ALFRED NOBLE,
S. H. WOODARD,
J. W. PEARL,
J. A. B. TOMPKINS."

This Senate Committee approves of the work of said engineers as shown by their above report; we have confidence in the accuracy of their findings and we concur in their recommendations.

We therefore adopt and respectfully submit the said findings and recommendations of said engineers as our report to you.

We call attention to the fact that the Senate Resolution under which we are acting, also required the Sanitary District to make a simultaneous investigation and report to this Senate. In our conferences with the Trustees and Officers of said district, we were told that such action on their part was unnecessary as they would accept the findings and recommendations which the Senate Committee might make. We therefore recommend that the Sanitary District be furnished with a copy of this report and directed to comply with its recommendations.

We desire to call especial attention to the final recommendation of said engineers to the effect that the investigation of flood conditions in the DesPlaines River in connection with the flow of the Sanitary District Canal be continued and completed, as the only further means of determining the question of safety of life and property in the DesPlaines Valley.

We therefore further recommend that this committee be authorized to continue its investigations of the entire subject matter of floods and the means of prevention thereof in the DesPlaines Valley at and in the vicinity of the cities of Joliet and Lockport; and that a suitable appropriation be made in the general appropriation bill to cover the expense thereof.

We further report that an itemized account of the expense of conducting this investigation to this time is contained in the various vouchers on file in the office of the State Auditor of Public Accounts.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS.

Mr. Barr, from the Committee on Elections, introduced a bill, Senate Bill No. 667, for "An Act in relation to nominations and elections to judicial offices."

On motion of Mr. Barr, the rules were suspended and the bill was taken up and read at large a first time, ordered printed and ordered to a second reading without reference.

Mr. Denvir introduced a bill, Senate Bill No. 668, for "An Act to provide for a Woman's Reformatory Commission,"

Which was read by title, ordered printed, and, under Rule 42, was referred by the President of the Senate to the Committee on Charitable, Penal and Reformatory Institutions.

Mr. Woodard introduced a bill, Senate Bill No. 669, for "An Act to amend section 41 of an Act entitled, 'An Act concerning fees and salaries and to classify the several counties of this State, with reference thereto,' approved March 29, 1872, in force July 1, 1872; title as amended by an Act approved March 28, 1874, in force July 1, 1874; as amended by an Act approved and in force May 17, 1877; as amended by an Act approved June 8, 1909, in force July 1, 1909,"

Which was read by title, ordered printed, and, under Rule 42, was referred by the President of the Senate to the Committee on Judicial Department and Practice.

READING BILLS FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES THE THIRD TIME BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, House Bill No. 88, for "An Act to make an appropriation for the expenses of veteran soldiers residing in the State of Illinois who were participants in the battle of Gettysburg, July 1, 2, 3, 1863, to enable them to attend the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of that battle to be held on the battlefield at Gettysburg, Pa., July 1, 2, 3 and 4, A. D. 1913,"

Having been printed as received from the House of Representatives, was taken up and read at large a third time,

And the question being, "Shall this bill pass?" it was decided in the affirmative by the following vote: Yeas, 42 [43].

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

Mr. Waage moved that the consideration of Senate Bill No. 203, a bill for "An Act to amend section 1 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to tax gifts, legacies, inheritance, transfers, appointments and interests in certain cases, and to provide for the collection of the same, and repealing certain Acts therein named,' approved June 14, 1909, in force July 1, 1909,"

On the order of third reading, be made the special order for Thursday, May 29, 1913, immediately after the reading of the Journal, which motion was decided in the negative.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

Mr. Jones offered the following resolution, which, under Rule 39, was laid on the table for one day:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 47.

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That when the two houses adjourn on Wednesday, June 18, 1913, a recess be taken until 12:00 o'clock noon on Saturday, June 28, 1913, for the purpose of considering only messages from the Governor on bills passed by the General Assembly and that when the General Assembly adjourns upon June 28, 1913, it stands adjourned sine die; and, be it further

Resolved, That on June 18, 1913, all bills on the order of first or second reading on the calendars of either house, or in committee, lie on the table.

At 1:00 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Senate took a recess until 5:00 o'clock p. m.

5:00 O'CLOCK P. M.— SENATE RECONVENED.

Mr. Hurburgh stated that he had received word from Senator Helm, stating that it would be impossible for him to attend the sessions of the Senate this week, and, on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, leave of absence was granted Senator Helm for the balance of the week.

On motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Senate passed to the consideration of READING BILLS OF THE SENATE THE SECOND TIME.

On motion of Mr. Hearn, Senate Bill No. 654, a bill for "An Act to make provisions for the erection of a statue of Stephen A. Douglas on the Capitol grounds, and to make an appropriation therefor,"

Having been printed, was taken up and read at large a second time,

And the question being, "Shall the bill be ordered engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Landee, Senate Bill No. 640, a bill for "An Act to enable adjoining drainage districts to construct and erect a joint pumping station or joint pumping stations, ditches, levees, or other works, to contract for the proportion of the cost of construction and maintenance of the same to be paid by each, and providing for the approval of the same,"

Having been printed, was taken up and read at large a second time,

And the question being, "Shall the bill be ordered engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Chamberlin, Senate Bill No. 524, a bill for "An Act to amend an Act entitled, 'An Act concerning local improvements,' approved June 14, 1897, in force July 1, 1897; as amended by an Act approved May 14, 1903, in force July 1, 1903,"

Which was read at large a second time May 21, 1913, and amended, was taken up for consideration.

Mr. Chamberlin offered the following amendment to the bill, which was adopted:

In section 74, line 27, of the printed amendments to Senate Bill 524; after the word "improvement" strike out the period (.) and add the following words: "and the maintenance thereof."

The question then being, "Shall the bill, as amended, be engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Magill, Senate Bill No. 447, a bill for "An Act to amend section 13 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for the sale of the Kaskaskia Commons, upon the island of Kaskaskia, in the county of Randolph, and to create a permanent school fund for the inhabitants of said island out of the proceeds of said sale, and to punish any person failing to comply with the provisions thereof,' filed June 16, 1909, in force July 1, 1909,"

Having been printed, was taken up and read at large a second time.

Mr. Magill offered the following amendment to the bill, which was adopted:

In line 29, section 13, page 2, of the printed bill, add the following: "Provided, however, the school directors shall be authorized to purchase from the proceeds derived from the principal of the Kaskaskia commons permanent school fund, suitable text books for all pupils attending the public schools of the Island."

The question then being, "Shall the bill, as amended, be engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Magill moved that the rules be suspended and that Senate Bill No. 570, a bill for "An Act in relation to the approval, adoption, prices, sale, and use of text books in the public schools of the State,"

Be taken from the order of second reading and made a special order for Thursday, May 29, 1913, immediately after the reading of the Journal.

On motion of Mr. Madigan, the motion to make the bill a special order was laid on the table.

To the Honorable President of the Senate and the Senate of the Forty-eighth General Assembly:

Your Committee on Elections, heretofore duly appointed, respectfully submits its report in the matter of the contest of William E. Harwood v. Kent E. Keller, for the office of State Senator from the Forty-sixth Senatorial District of Illinois.

Your committee appointed a sub-committee consisting of Messrs. Barr, Chairman; Ettelson, Olson, Piercy and Denvir, which said sub-committee convened Friday, March 21, 1913, at the Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis, Missouri, at 10:00 o'clock a. m., the full sub-committee being present, and before your sub-committee then appeared Messrs. McElvain and Feirich, attorneys appearing on behalf of the contestant; and Messrs. Cantrell and Gillespie, attorneys appearing on behalf of contestee, to present testimony and arguments as they desired in this cause pursuant to notice filed with the Secretary of State, and in further pursuance of the time set for hearing of said cause.

Your committee further respectively reports that the evidence in said cause was presented on Friday, March 21st, and Saturday, March 22d, and your committee adjourned to meet in Springfield and hear the arguments of counsel; that your committee did meet in Springfield and did hear the arguments of counsel and authorities cited, and at the conclusion of which your sub-committee reported back to the general elections committee of the Senate, and after a full and thorough discussion of your sub-committee's report, the following motion being offered, was duly seconded and unanimously carried, to wit:

"Moved: That a recommendation be made to the Honorable Senate of the Forty-eighth General Assembly of the State of Illinois, that Kent E. Keller is legally elected a State Senator of the State of Illinois, from the Forty-sixth Senatorial District of the State of Illinois, and that said Kent E. Keller shall retain his seat as such State Senator.

"And your Committee on Elections accordingly find that said Kent E. Keller is the duly elected Senator from the Forty-sixth Senatorial District of the State of Illinois, and that he be declared entitled as such to a seat in the Senate and the petition of William E. Harwood be dismissed.

Respectfully submitted,

"R. J. BARR, Chairman."

Insert section 3a to read as follows:

"Section 3a. If at any time it shall be necessary to issue bonds for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act, it shall be lawful for the proper authorities to issue bonds in a sum not exceeding one million five hundred thousand dollars: Provided, however, that if at any time it shall be found necessary to issue bonds for carrying out the provisions of this Act, in a sum in excess of one million five hundred thousand dollars, no such bond issue shall be made by the officials charged with the carrying out of the provisions of this Act until the same shall be submitted by said officials to a vote of the electors in the said Sanitary District of Chicago, and shall receive the affirmative vote of a majority of all the electors voting on the question."

Strike out all following the word "Illinois" in line 15 of section 6 and insert thereafter the two following additional sections:

"Section 6a. The Sanitary District of Chicago may also acquire the land, whether of natural or artificial formation, property and property rights, including riparian rights, of any owner or claimant, whether a person or corporation, private, public or municipal, on the shores of Lake Calumet in, upon or near which it is proposed to construct said harbor or any utility authorized by this Act, and also the title of any such owner or claimant, to the lands lying beneath, adjacent to or adjoining the public waters of said Lake Calumet, without other compensation, by agreeing with any such owner or claimant, upon a boundary line dividing the lands (whether of natural or artificial formation), to be acquired by said Sanitary District of Chicago and the adjacent, adjoining or submerged or other lands (whether of natural or artificial formation) to be taken and acquired by such owner or claimant. The rights and property to be taken and acquired, respectively, by said Sanitary District of Chicago and by any such owner or claimant, shall be specifically described and set forth in the decree to be entered by the court as in this Act provided."

"Sec. 6b. Whenever the Sanitary District of Chicago and such owner or claimant shall have agreed upon a boundary line as aforesaid, such Sanitary District shall file a suit in chancery in the circuit court of the county in which said lands are situated, praying that such boundary line be established and confirmed by the decree of said court. All persons interested as owners or otherwise in said lands, as appearing of record, if known, or if not known, stating that fact, shall be made defendants in said suit. Persons interested, whose names are unknown, may be made parties defendant by the description of the unknown owners; but in all cases an affidavit shall be filed by or on behalf of such Sanitary District, setting forth that the names of such persons are unknown; such Sanitary District shall also give public notice of the filing of each such suit by publication thereof once a week for four consecutive weeks, in a newspaper of general circulation regularly published within said Sanitary District, which notice shall contain the title of the suit and the term of court at which it is made returnable, the last of which notices shall be published not less than ten (10) days or more than twenty (20) days before the first day of the term of court at which said suit is returnable. The defendants who do not enter their appearance shall be served with process in the suit or suits so instituted in the same manner as in suits in chancery, and the proceedings in said cause shall be conducted in the same manner as other suits in chancery. If upon a hearing the court shall find that the rights and interest of the public have been duly conserved in and by such agreement, then the court shall confirm said agreement and establish such boundary line; otherwise the court shall, in its discretion, dismiss such suit. If the boundary line agreed upon shall be so established and confirmed by the decree of said court, it shall thereafter be the permanent dividing and boundary line of said lands, and shall not be affected or changed thereafter, either by accretions or erosions.

"The establishment of such boundary line as aforesaid shall operate as a conveyance and release to such Sanitary District of Chicago of all the right, title and interest of such owner or owners to any and all lands, property and property rights, including riparian rights, lying upon the outer or water side of said boundary line when so established. Said Sanitary District is hereby granted by the State of Illinois the title to any and all lands, property and property rights, including riparian rights, lying upon the outer or water side of said boundary line when so established. Such owner or owners of said shore lands are hereby granted by the State of Illinois the title to the adjacent, adjoining or submerged or other lands, whether of natural or artificial formation, as specifically and particularly described in said decree, lying upon the inner or land side of said boundary line when so established, and such owner or owners shall have the right to fill in, improve, protect and use, sell and convey said submerged or other lands lying upon the inner or land side of said boundary line free from any adverse claim in any way arising out of any question as to where the shore line was at any time in the past, or as to the title to any existing accretions."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Add to printed House Bill No. 38, the following section to be known and designated as section 6c:

"Sec. 6c. At any time subsequent to July 1, 1918, the city of Chicago shall have the right to acquire and take over the lands and public utilities acquired by the Sanitary District pursuant to this Act, upon the passage of an ordinance by said city of Chicago to that effect, and the payment to the Sanitary District of Chicago of the amount invested and paid by the said Sanitary District for such lands and utilities with legal interest on the said amount to the time of the transfer of the said lands and utilities. The city of Chicago shall thereupon become vested with the title and all rights and interest in said lands and utilities and shall become possessed of all powers, rights and privileges then possessed by the Sanitary District of Chicago pursuant to this Act, and shall be subject to all duties and obligations imposed upon said Sanitary District of Chicago by this Act."

AMENDMENT No. 4.

In section 8, line 5, after the word "bidding" insert the following words: "on such terms and conditions as shall be prescribed by the Sanitary District of Chicago, and to fix and regulate the rates and charges for the use of such utilities: Provided, however, that the valuation of said land and said utilities shall be taken and made at intervals or periods of either fifteen, twenty or twenty-five years, as the Sanitary District may decide and the rentals of said lands and utilities shall be fixed and made according to the valuation or re-valuation at the periods fixed; and."

AMENDMENT No. 5.

In section 8, lines 24 and 25, erase:

"Occurring not less than thirty days thereafter."

AMENDMENT No. 6.

In section 14, line 1 erase: "the passage of this Act" and insert "July 1, A. D., 1913."

AMENDMENT No. 7.

In section 14, line 8 and 9 erase: "election next following the filing of said petition, not less than thirty (30) days after said filing," and insert, "next regular or special election at which electors of the Sanitary District of Chicago are entitled to vote following the filing of said petition."

Concurred in by the House, May 28, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

The title of said Act shall read as follows:

"An Act to prevent fraud in the sale of dairy products, their imitation or substitute, to prohibit and prevent the manufacture and sale of unhealthful, adulterated or misbranded food, drugs, liquors or dairy products, to define the terms "food" and "drugs" as used herein, to provide for the appointment of a State Food Commissioner and his assistants, to define their powers and duties and to repeal all Acts relating to the production, manufacture and sale of dairy, food and drug products and liquors in conflict herewith."

Section 1. That the Governor shall appoint a commissioner who shall be known as the State Food Commissioner, who shall be a citizen of the State of Illinois, and who shall hold his office for a term of four years and until his successor is appointed and qualified, and who shall receive a salary of thirty-six hundred dollars per annum, and his necessary expenses incurred by him in the discharge of his official duties, and who shall be charged with the enforcement of all laws that now exist or that hereafter may be enacted in this State regarding the production, manufacture, sale and labeling of food and drugs as herein defined, and such other laws as he may be charged with the enforcement of, and to prosecute or cause to be prosecuted any person, firm or corporation, or agent thereof, engaged in the manufacture or sale of any article manufactured or sold in violation of the provisions of any such law or laws. The Governor shall also appoint from time to time, as required, a food standard commission, for the purpose of determining and adopting standards of quality, purity or strength, for food and drug products, for the State of Illinois, to consist of three members, one of whom shall be the State Food Commissioner or his representative, who shall serve without extra pay, one of whom shall be a representative of the Illinois food manufacturing industries, and one of whom shall be an expert food chemist of known reputation; all to be citizens of the State of Illinois, who shall receive fifteen dollars ($15.00) per day for a period not exceeding thirty (30) days in one year, and necessary expenses incurred during the time employed in the discharge of their duties: Provided, that said food standard commission, in determining and adopting a standard of quality, purity or strength, of milk or cream, shall fix such standard as may be determined solely by the examination and test of milk or cream and the can or receptacle in which it is placed.

The said commissioner is hereby authorized to appoint, with the advice and consent of the Governor, one assistant commissioner, who shall be a practical dairyman, whose salary shall be three thousand dollars ($3,000.00) per annum and expenses incurred in the discharge of official duties; one chief chemist who shall be known as State Analyst, whose salary shall be three thousand dollars ($3,000.00) per annum and expenses incurred in the discharge of official duties; one attorney whose salary shall be twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00) per annum, and expenses incurred in the discharge of official duties; one chief clerk, whose salary shall be twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00) per annum and expenses incurred in the discharge of official duties; one assistant clerk, whose salary shall be eighteen hundred dollars ($1,800.00) per annum, and one second assistant clerk whose salary shall be twelve hundred dollars ($1,200.00) per annum, and expenses incurred in the discharge of their official duties; three stenographers at twelve hundred dollars ($1,200.00) per annum, and expenses incurred in the discharge of official duties; twenty-four inspectors whose salaries shall be as follows: For the first two years of service, twelve hundred dollars each, annually; for the third year of service, fourteen hundred dollars each, annually; and for each succeeding year of service an additional increase of one hundred dollars per year each, until the maximum of eighteen hundred dollars ($1,800.00) a year is attained, and expenses incurred in the discharge of their official duties. Said commissioner shall also have authority to appoint one bacteriologist at two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) per annum and expenses incurred in the discharge of his official duties, and one bacteriologist helper at seven hundred and twenty dollars ($720.00) per annum; twelve analytical chemists whose salaries shall be as follows: For the first two years of service, twelve hundred dollars each, annually; for the third year of service, fourteen hundred dollars each, annually; for the fourth year of service, fifteen hundred dollars each, annually, and for each succeeding year of service an additional increase of one hundred dollars per year each, until the maximum of eighteen hundred dollars per year is attained, and expenses incurred in the discharge of their official duties; and two laboratory janitors at seven hundred and twenty dollars ($720) each per annum: Provided, that all inspectors and chemists now employed in the office of the State Food Commissioner in pursuance of law, shall be included within the provisions of this Act, and shall be given credit for their time of service in the department as herein provided.

The said commissioner shall make annual reports to the Governor not later than the 15th of January, of his work and proceedings, and shall report in detail the number of inspectors he has appointed and employed, with their expenses and disbursements and the amount of salary paid the same, and he may from time to time issue bulletins of information, when in his judgment the interests of the State would be promoted thereby.

The said commissioner shall maintain an office and laboratory, where the business of said department may be conducted. This section shall not affect the term of office of the present commissioner, and he shall be regarded as having been appointed under the provisions of this Act.

The food commissioner shall make analyses and examinations for the State charitable institutions, of foods, drugs, and such other supplies as the laboratory of the State Food Commission is equipped and prepared to examine and analyze.

SEC. 2. POWER OF COMMISSION AND INSPECTORS MAKING INSPECTION.] The State Food Commissioner and such inspectors and agents as shall be duly authorized for the purpose, when and as often as they may deem it necessary for the purpose of determining whether any manufactured food or drug complies with the law, shall examine the raw materials used in the manufacture of food and drug products and determine whether any filthy, decomposed or putrid substance is used in their preparation. They may also examine all premises, carriages or cars where food or drugs are manufactured, transported, stored or served to patrons, for the purpose only of ascertaining their sanitary condition and examining and taking samples of the raw material and finished products found therein; but nothing in this Act shall be construed as permitting such officers to inquire into, or examine methods, or processes of manufacture, or requiring or compelling manufacturers or packers of proprietary or other food or drug products, to disclose trade rights, or secret processes, or methods of manufacture. Said commissioner, inspectors and agents shall also have power and authority to open any package, can or vessel, containing or supposed to contain, any article manufactured, sold or exposed for sale, or held in possession with intent to sell, in violation of the provisions of this Act, or laws that now exist, or that may hereafter be enacted in this State, and may inspect the contents thereof, and may take samples therefrom for analysis. The employees of railroads, express companies, or other common carriers, shall render to them all the assistance in their power, when so requested, in tracing, finding or disclosing the presence of any article prohibited by law, and in securing samples thereof as herein provided for.

SEC. 3. REFUSAL TO ASSIST INSPECTOR A MISDEMEANOR.] Whoever by himself, his agent, employee, or servant, hinders, obstructs, or in any way interferes with any inspector, analyst, or officer appointed hereunder, in the performance of his duty, or in the exercise of his powers as defined in this Act, or whoever being or fails upon request to assist the State Food Commissioner, the assistant commissioner, the State Analyst, or any inspector appointed hereunder in tracing, finding or disclosing the presence of any article of food or drug prohibited by law and in securing samples thereof as provided for in section 2 of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as hereinafter provided for.

SEC. 5. MANUFACTURING ADULTERATED OR MISBRANDED FOOD OR DRUGS MISDEMEANOR.] It shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture for sale within the State of Illinois any article of food or drugs which is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act and any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished according to the provisions of this Act:

Provided, that no article shall be deemed misbranded or adulterated within the provisions of this Act when intended for export to any foreign country or purchaser, and prepared or packed according to the specifications or directions of the foreign country to which said article is intended to be shipped; but if said article shall be in fact sold or offered for sale for domestic use or consumption, then this proviso shall not except said article from the operation of any of the other provisions of this Act.

SEC. 6. POSSESSION OR SALE OF MISBRANDED OR ADULTERATED ARTICLES PROHIBITED.] The having in possession of any article of food or drug which is misbranded or adulterated with intent to sell the same, is hereby prohibited, and whoever shall have in his possession with intent to sell, sell or offer for sale any article of food or drugs which is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished as hereinafter provided. Proof that any person, firm or corporation has or had possession of any article which is adulterated or misbranded shall be prima facie evidence that the possession thereof is in violation of this section.

Sec. 7. TERMS FOOD AND DRUGS DEFINED.] The term "drug," as used herein, shall include all medicines and preparations recognized in the United States Pharmacopœia or National Formulary for internal or external use, and any substance or mixture of substances intended to be used for the cure, mitigation or prevention of diseases of either man or other animals. The term "food," as used herein, shall include all articles used for food, drink, confectionery or condiment by man or other animals, whether simple, mixed or compound, and any substance used as a constituent in the manufacture thereof.

Sec. 8. DEFINES ADULTERATION.] That for the purpose of this Act, an article shall be deemed to be adulterated:

In case of drugs:

First—If, when a drug is sold under or by name recognized in the United States Pharmacopœia or National Formulary, it differs from the standard of strength, quality or purity, as determined by the test laid down in the United States Pharmacopœia or National Formulary official at the time of investigation: Provided, that no drug defined in the United States Pharmacopœia or National Formulary shall be deemed to be adulterated under this provision if the standard of strength, quality or purity be plainly stated upon the bottle, box or other container thereof, although the standard may differ from that determined by the test laid down in the United States Pharmacopœia or National Formulary.

Second—If its strength or purity fall below the professed standard or quality under which it is sold.

In the case of confectionery:

First—If it contains terra alba, barytes, talc, chrome yellow, paraffin, mineral fillers, or poisonous mineral substances, or poisonous color or flavor.

Second—If it contains any ingredient deleterious or detrimental to health, or any vinous, malt or spirituous liquor or compound, or narcotic drug.

In the case of food:

First—If any substance has been mixed or packed with it so as to reduce or lower or injuriously affect its quality, strength or purity.

Second—If any substance has been substituted wholly or in part for the article.

Third—If any valuable constituent of the article has been wholly or in part abstracted: Provided, that in the manufacture of skim or separated cheese the whole or a part of the butter fats in the milk may be abstracted.

Fourth—If it be mixed, colored, powdered, coated, polished or stained in any manner whereby damage or inferiority is concealed, or it is made to appear better or of greater value than it really is.

Fifth—If it contains any added poisonous or other added deleterious ingredient which may render such article injurious to health: Provided, that when, in the preparation of food products for shipment they are preserved by an external application, applied in such a manner that the preservative is necessarily removed mechanically, or by maceration in water, or otherwise, and direction for the removal of said preservative shall be printed on the covering of the package, the provisions of this Act shall be construed as applying only when such products are ready for consumption; and formaldehyde, hydrofluoric acid, boric acid, salicylic acid and compounds and derivatives thereof are hereby declared unwholesome and injurious.

Sixth—If it consists in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed, putrid, infected, tainted, or rotten animal or vegetable substance or article, or any portion of an animal unfit for food, whether manufactured or not, or if it is the product of a diseased animal, or one that has died otherwise than by slaughter.

Sec. 9. MISBRANDED DEFINED.] The term "misbranded," as used herein, shall apply to all articles of food or drugs, or articles which enter into the composition sign, or device regarding such article, or the ingredients or substance contained therein which shall be false or misleading in any particular; and to any such products which are falsely branded as to manufacture, packer or dealer who sells the same, or as to the State, territory or country in which it is manufactured or produced.

That for the purpose of this Act an article shall also be deemed to be misbranded:

In case of drugs:

First—If it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the name of another article.

Second—If the contents of the package as originally put up shall have been removed in whole or in part, and other contents shall have been placed in such package, or if the package fail to bear a statement on the label of the quantity or proportion of any alcohol, morphine, opium, cocaine, heroin, alpha or beta eucaine, chloroform, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate, or acetanilid, or other derivative or preparation of any such substance contained therein.

Third—If the package or label shall bear or contain any statement, design or device regarding the curative or therapeutic effect of any such article or any of the ingredients or substances contained therein which is false and fraudulent.

In case of food:

First—If it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article.

Second—If it be labeled or branded so as to deceive or mislead the purchaser, or purports to be a foreign product when not so, or if the contents of a package as originally put up shall have been removed in whole or in part and other contents shall have been placed in such package, or if it shall fail to bear a statement on the label of the quantity or proportion of any morphine, opium, cocaine, heroin, alpha or beta eucaine, chloroform, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate, or acetanilid, or any derivative or preparation of any such substances contained therein.

Third—If, in package form, the quantity of the contents be not plainly and conspicuously marked on the outside of the package in terms of weight, measure or numerical count: Provided, however, that reasonable variations shall be permitted and tolerances and also exemptions as to small packages shall be established by rules and regulations made in accordance with the provisions of this Act: And, provided, further, that no penalty shall be enforceable until on and after Jan. 1, 1915, for a violation of paragraph 3 of this section against any manufacturer, jobber, distributor or retailer.

Fourth—If it be a manufactured article of food or food sold in package form, and is not distinctly labeled, marked or branded with the true name of the article, and with either the name of the manufacturer and place of manufacture, or the name and address of the packer or dealer who sells the same.

Fifth—If the package containing it or its label shall bear any statement, design or device regarding the ingredients or the substance contained therein, which statement, design or device shall be false or misleading in any particular: Provided, that an article of food which does not contain any added poisonous or deleterious ingredients shall not be deemed to be adulterated or misbranded in following cases:

First—In case of mixtures or compounds which may be now or from time to time hereafter known as articles of food under their own distinctive names, and not an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article, if the name be accompanied on the same label or brand with a statement of the place where the article has been manufactured or produced.

Second—In case of articles labeled, branded or tagged so as to plainly indicate that they are compounds, imitations or blends, and the word "compound," "imitation" or "blend," as the case may be, is plainly stated on the package in which it is offered for sale: Provided, that the term "blend," as used herein, shall be construed to mean a mixture of like substances not excluding harmless coloring or flavoring ingredients used for the purpose of coloring and flavoring only; and as applied to alcoholic beverages, only those distilled spirits shall be regarded as "like substances" which are distilled from the fermented mash of grain and are of the same alcoholic strength: And, provided, further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed as requiring or compelling proprietors or manufacturers of proprietary foods, which contain no unwholesome added ingredients to disclose their trade formulas, except in so far as the provisions of this Act may require to secure freedom from adulteration or misbranding.

Third—In the case of mixtures of corn syrup (glucose) or corn sugar (dextrose) or corn sugar syrup, with cane or beet sugar (sucrose) or cane or beet sugar syrup, in food, if the maximum percentage of corn syrup (glucose), or corn sugar (dextrose), or corn sugar syrup, in such article of food be plainly stated on the label.

Sec. 10. CONDEMNATION AND CONFISCATION OF MISBRANDED OR ADULTERATED FOODS OR DRUGS.] Any article of food or drugs that is adulterated or misbranded [within] the meaning of this Act, or that is made, labeled or branded contrary to the provisions of this Act, or that does not conform to the definition or analytical requirements provided in this Act, and is being sold or offered for sale or exposed for sale without the State of Illinois, shall be liable to be proceeded against in any court of record or before any judge thereof, or before any justice of the peace within whose jurisdiction the same may be found, and seized for condemnation and confiscation; and authority and jurisdiction are hereby vested in the several courts of record, the judges thereof in vacation, and the several justices of the peace, to issue the warrant and to hear and determine the proceedings herein provided for. Such proceedings shall be by complaint, verified by affidavit, and in the name of the People of the State of Illinois against the article or articles proceeded against, particularly describing the same, the place where they are located, the name of the person, firm or corporation in whose possession they are found, and wherein they violate the provisions of this Act. Thereupon said court, judge or justice of the peace shall issue a warrant directed to the sheriff, bailiff or any constable of the county, commending such officer to seize and take into his possession the article or articles described in the complaint, and bring the same before the court, judge or justice of the peace who issued the warrant, and to summon the person, firm or corporation named in the warrant, and any other person who may be found in possession of the said articles to appear at the time and place therein specified, which service shall be made in the same manner as service of process in civil cases in such court or before such justice of the peace. The warrant shall be returnable not less than five (5) days nor more than fifteen (15) days from the date of issuing the same, and may be executed and served at any time before the return day thereof; and the hearing shall be at the time and place therein specified unless good cause is shown for a continuance. Upon the hearing the complaint may be amended, and any person, firm or corporation that appears and claims the said article or articles shall be required to file its claim in writing. The hearing shall be summary in its nature, and except as herein otherwise provided, shall conform, as near as may be, to the proceedings in civil cases before such court, judge or justice of the peace: Provided, that either party may demand a trial by jury, and an appeal or writ of error shall lie at the instance of either party to the proper court, and no bond shall be required of the people. And if such article is condemned as being adulterated or misbranded, or of a poisonous or deleterious character within the meaning of this Act, or as made, labeled, or branded contrary to the provisions of this Act, or as not conforming to the definition or analytical requirements provided in this Act, the same shall be confiscated and disposed of by destruction or sale, as the court, judge or justice of the peace may direct, and the proceeds thereof, if sold, less the legal costs and charges, shall be paid into the treasury of the State of Illinois, but such article shall in no instance be sold contrary to the provisions of this Act: Provided, however, that upon the payment of the costs of such proceedings and the execution and delivery of a good and sufficient bond to the State Food Commissioner for the use of the People of the State of Illinois, to the effect that such articles shall not be sold or otherwise disposed of contrary to the provisions of this Act, the court may, by order, direct that such articles be delivered to the owner thereof.

Sec. 21. FALSE READING OF BABCOCK TEST PROHIBITED.] It shall be unlawful for the owner, manager, agent or any employee of a creamery or cheese factory to manipulate, under-read or over-read the babcock test, or any other contrivance used for determining the quality or value of milk or cream or to falsify the record thereof, or to pay for such milk or cream on the basis of any measurement except the true measurement as thereby determined.

Sec. 29. ILLEGAL FOODS AND DRUGS TO BE SEIZED.] Whenever the commissioner or his agent shall have ground for suspicion that any article of food or drugs, found in possession of any person, firm or corporation, is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act, he may seize such article of food or drugs and make an inventory thereof, and shall leave a copy of such inventory with the party holding such suspected goods, and tag the same "suspected;" and he shall notify in writing the person, firm or corporation in whose possession it may be found, not to offer the same for sale or sell or otherwise dispose of the same until further notice in writing from the commissioner. Whereupon the commissioner shall forthwith cause a sample of said article of food or drugs to be examined or analyzed, and if the same shall be found to be adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Act, the commissioner shall proceed with a hearing and subsequent proceedings as provided in this Act. If, however, such examination or analysis shall show that such article of food or drugs complies with the provisions of this Act, the person, firm or corporation in whose possession such article of food or drugs is found shall forthwith be notified in writing that said seizure is released, and authority given to dispose of such article of food or drugs. Such seizure may be had without a warrant and said commissioner, and all inspectors and agents appointed pursuant to law, are hereby given full power and authority of "policemen." Any court having jurisdiction, upon receiving proof of probable cause for believing in the concealment of any food or drugs or dairy product or substitutes therefor, or imitation thereof, kept for sale or for a purpose, or had in possession or under control, contrary to the provisions of this Act, or other laws which now exist or may be hereafter enacted, shall issue a search warrant and cause a search to be made in any place therefor, and to that end may cause any buildings, enclosure, wagon or car to be entered, and any apartment, chest, box, locker, tub, jar, crate, basket or package to be broken open and the contents thereof examined.

Sec. 30. SEARCH WARRANTS TO BE USED FOR ILLEGAL FOOD AND DRUGS.] All warrants issued pursuant to section 29 hereof shall be directed to the sheriff, bailiff or some constable of the county where such food or drugs may be supposed to be concealed, commanding such officer to search the house or place where such food, or drugs, or substitute therefor, or imitation thereof, for which he is required to search, is believed to be concealed, which place and the property to be searched for shall be designated in the warrant, and to bring such food or drug or substitute therefor or imitation thereof, when found, and the person in whose possession the same is found, before the magistrate who issued the warrant, or before some other court or magistrate having jurisdiction of the case to be proceeded against as hereinbefore provided for in section 10 of this Act.

Sec. 32. ANALYSIS FOR STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.] The State Board of Health may submit to the commissioner or any of his assistants samples of food or drugs for examination or analysis, and shall receive special reports showing the results of such examination or analysis.

Sec. 33. STATE ANALYST SHALL NOT FURNISH CERTIFICATE OF PURITY.] It shall be unlawful for the State Analyst or any assistant State Analyst to furnish to any individual, firm or corporation any certificate as to the purity or excellence of any article manufactured or sold by them to be used as food or drugs, or in the preparation of food or drugs.

Sec. 37. LABEL—SIZE OF TYPE.] The principal label on any package of food or drugs, as defined by this Act, shall be printed plainly and legibly in English with or without the foreign label in the language of the country where the product is produced or manufactured and the size of type, if not otherwise described in this Act, shall be not smaller than eight point (brevier) caps: Provided, that in case the size of the package will not permit the use of eight point cap type, the size of the type may be reduced proportionately.

Sec. 38. FOOD COMMISSIONER TO MAKE RULES AND REGULATIONS.] The State Food Commissioner shall make rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of this Act, and shall have power to make rules and regulations for the analyzing and reporting the results thereof, of articles submitted for analysis by the State Board of Health, and regulating the analyzing and reporting thereon of samples taken under any law or laws of the United States by any person hereunder, or furnished by any officer or employee charged with the enforcement of the laws of the United States relative to the manufacture, sale or transportation of adulterated, misbranded, poisonous or deleterious foods, drugs, dairy products or articles manufactured from dairy products, or liquors.

The question being, "Shall the report of, and the amendments reported from, said committee be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

The question then being, "Shall the bill, as amended, be engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Manny, Senate Bill No. 651, a bill for "An Act entitled, 'An Act relating to professional nurses providing for their examination and registration,' and repealing an Act therein named,"

Having been printed, was taken up and read at large a second time,

And the question being, "Shall the bill be ordered engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

Mr. Manny offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 70.

WHEREAS, The Honorable Robert Brown, a member of the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth General Assemblies, from Schuyler County, departed this life on the twenty-seventh day of May, A. D., nineteen hundred thirteen; and,

WHEREAS, The said Honorable Robert Brown was an honored citizen of this State, a man thoroughly representative of that great class of our citizenship, the farmer; one who always took a prominent part in all movements for the public good, doing all in his power to protect and advance the interests of this State; a man, who, as a member of this Senate was ever watchful of the welfare of the people of his district and of the State at large; one who served the people of his community in different official capacities with credit to himself, and a man whose every act, both as a public officer and as a private citizen was in behalf of the people; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of the Honorable Robert Brown, the State of Illinois has lost one whose every act and vote as a member of this Senate was in the interest of, and for the good, of the people of his district that he represented, a faithful and hard working member of the Senate; his wife, a loving husband; his children, a kind and indulgent father; and the community in which he resided, an honored and distinguished citizen; and, be it further

Resolved, That in respect to his memory, this preamble and resolution be entered upon the Journal of this Senate, and a copy thereof, suitably engrossed and signed by the President and the Secretary of this Senate, be forwarded to the family of the deceased, and that as a further mark of respect, this Senate do now stand adjourned.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Manny, the rules were suspended and the resolution was taken up for immediate consideration, and was unanimously adopted on motion of Mr. Manny, by a rising vote.

The President of the Senate declared that the Senate stood adjourned until Tuesday, June 3, 1913, at 10:00 o'clock a. m., as provided for by resolution adopted this day by both Houses.

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1913, 10:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate, presiding.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

The President of the Senate announced that he had examined the Journal of Thursday, May 29, 1913, and found no corrections or changes to be made, and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered, the Journal was ordered to stand approved.

Was taken up and read at large a second time, together with the following amendments thereto (which have been printed), reported from the Committee on Appropriations, May 29, 1913:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend Senate Bill No. 25 as follows: In the title to said bill strike out the following words, "and making an appropriation therefor."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 25. Write out all words and figures after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following words and figures: That there is hereby created and established a bureau to be known as the Legislative and Administrative Reference Bureau, which shall be under the direction of a board to be composed of the President of the University of Illinois and of two other persons to be appointed by the Governor, who shall hold office for the term of four years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. The first appointments shall be made within thirty days after this Act goes into effect. Any vacancy shall be filled by an appointment for the remainder of the term. The members of said board shall serve without compensation, but shall be reimbursed for actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their official duties.

Sec. 2. The said board of trustees shall have general charge of such bureau, and shall appoint a director of the bureau, who may, with the approval of the board appoint such assistants and employees as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act. The director appointed under the provisions of this Act and the assistants and employees appointed by him shall receive such salaries or compensation as may be determined by the board.

Sec. 3. During the sessions of the General Assembly the headquarters of the bureau shall be in Springfield, with such part of the catalogs and collections of materials as may be needed for use by the members of the General Assembly. The Secretary of State shall provide said bureau with adequate and suitably furnished offices in the State Capitol, convenient to the place of meeting of the General Assembly, during the legislative session and for a sufficient time before and after the closing of each legislative session, to enable the director to make adequate preparation for opening and closing the headquarters; and the Secretary of State shall further provide the bureau with necessary stationery and supplies.

The board of commissioners for the management of the State Library shall coöperate with said bureau and shall make accessible the facilities of said library for the use of the bureau.

The said bureau shall maintain a permanent office at the University of Illinois; and the trustees of the university shall provide suitable and adequate quarters for the work of the bureau.

Sec. 4. The said Legislative and Administrative Reference Bureau shall collect, classify, index, list and catalogue:

(a) The laws of Illinois, all bills and resolutions introduced in either branch of the General Assembly, and all reports issued by State officers, departments, boards and commissions;

(b) Bills, laws, official reports and judicial decisions of other states and of the United States, and of other countries; and books, pamphlets, periodicals and other data relating to public law and administration and to recent, current and proposed legislation.

From time to time the bureau shall prepare and publish bulletins of bibliography, and digests, summaries or reports of information on subjects of special interest, especially those that are matters of legislative inquiry or proposed legislation. The said bureau shall also furnish to the members of the General Assembly, upon request and under their instructions, such assistance as may be necessary and proper in the preparation, drafting, amendment or revision of bills, resolutions or orders.

Sec. 5. The said bureaus shall also collect, classify, index, list and catalogue, laws, charters, ordinances, reports and other documents and data relating to municipal government in this and other states and countries; and shall prepare and publish from time to time bulletins of information in regard to municipal problems, including full and pertinent statistics as to taxation, revenues and expenditures of municipalities in this State; and shall also be prepared to furnish information on specific municipal questions as may be requested by municipal or State officials or members of the General Assembly.

Sec. 6. All State institutions, boards, commissions and officers are hereby directed promptly to deliver to the director of the bureau, as printed, three copies of each message, report, journal, legislative bill, bulletin, circular or set of bound public documents of whatever character, printed at the expense of the State or of any institution or office. All county and municipal officers are hereby directed to forward promptly to the bureau, as published, three copies of each ordinance, message, report, bulletin or set of bound documents issued by them; and it shall be the duty of all county and municipal officers to furnish the bureau with such financial, statistical and other information as it may require of them.

Sec. 7. All proper expenses incurred by the bureau shall be paid out of any appropriation for the bureau upon warrants signed by the chairman of the board and approved by the Governor.

The question being, "Shall the report of, and the amendments reported from, said committee be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Bailey, the foregoing amendments were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. Waage offered the following amendments to the bill:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend House Bill No. 388 in Senate by striking out all that part of the title following the word "State" and by inserting in lieu thereof the following, "And to make them official."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend House Bill No. 388 in Senate by striking out in section 1 in lines 3 and 4 the words "Appellate Court Reports of Illinois" and by inserting in lieu thereof the following, "the Illinois Appellate Court Reports."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Amend House Bill No. 388 in Senate by striking out all after section 1 and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

Sec 2. "The series of reports herein provided for shall be the official reports of said courts, and may be published by any person, partnership, company or corporation which shall have and maintain an office and place of business in the State of Illinois, and which shall comply with the provisions of this Act, and any person, partnership, company or corporation so complying with the provisions of this Act and publishing the reports under the terms thereof shall be known as an official publisher. Any person, company or corporation desiring to receive the benefits of this Act shall file with the Secretary of State a good and sufficient bond to be approved by him in the sum of not less than fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000.00) as liquidated damages payable to the people of the State of Illinois, conditioned for the faithful performance of the provisions of this Act in the publication of such reports under the conditions and under the terms thereof, and if any person, partnership, company or corporation receiving any of the benefits of this Act shall fail or refuse to give bond as required or when given to keep the same in full force and effect, or shall fail or refuse to comply with the provisions of this Act in other respects, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State upon the request of any appellate court of this State to notify the Attorney General who shall at once bring suit on the bond of said publisher against him and his sureties and prosecute the same to judgment and final execution."

Sec. 3. The clerks of the appellate courts shall promptly furnish to any person, company or corporation desiring the same, within ten days from the date of the expiration of the time for a rehearing, the opinion of the judges of such appellate courts at a price not to exceed twenty-five cents per page: Provided, that, however, the clerks of such courts shall furnish, within ten days after the period for such rehearing has expired, to any official publisher as herein defined, the opinions of the judges of the appellate courts, without cost, mailing the same within such period of ten days to the office or place of business designated by such publisher in a written request, filed with the appellate court clerk; and it shall be the duty of any such official publisher so furnished said opinions without cost to receive all said opinions unpublished at the time this Act goes into effect and which may be decided thereafter so long as said opinions are received under the terms of this Act and to publish the same within a period of not more than ninety days after the receipt of corrected proof from judges and after a sufficient number of opinions to constitute a volume shall have been delivered to such publisher.

Sec. 4. The clerks of the appellate courts shall also furnish to any official publisher all abstracts, briefs and other papers filed in their respective offices and which are or may be necessary for the purpose of preparing the reports within the same time and upon the same terms as herein provided for the opinions, which shall be returned to such clerk by the publisher receiving same upon the publication of the volume containing the opinion in such matter.

Sec. 5. Every final decision of each appellate court shall be reduced to writing by the court, and it shall be the duty of the court to designate which of such written decisions shall be published in full and which published by including an adequate abstract of such written decision, but if any appellate court of this State shall fail to so designate within ten days from the date of expiration of the time for rehearing, then such decisions shall be published only in condensed form or by abstract: Provided, that should any appellate court fail to so designate then any such decisions may be published in full by any official publisher, if the total number of volumes of Appellate Court Reports published or to be published in any calendar year shall not exceed six volumes.

Sec. 6. Any official publisher shall carefully prepare and cause to be printed in connection with each decision so ordered to be published a full syllabus of the points decided by said decisions and shall also prepare and cause to be printed in each volume a full alphabetical index of cases therein reported, preliminary announcement of similar character and extent to those now included in the reports known as Illinois Appellate Court Reports and a full and complete topical index of all points of law covered by decisions therein reported.

Sec. 7. Each volume of reports to be hereafter published shall contain not less than seven hundred pages and shall be of the same general character as the volumes of reports heretofore known as the Illinois Appellate Court Reports, the paper upon which the reports are to be printed shall be clear white paper, super-sized and calendared, not less than fifty pounds to the ream, size 24x38 inches and binding shall be of standard law sheep or buckram without blemish or patches and the boards used in binding shall be good binders boards, and shall be similar in size and appearance to volumes of this series heretofore published.

Sec. 8. It shall be the duty of any publisher receiving the benefits of this Act to publish continuously under the terms thereof volumes of said reports in accordance with the terms of this Act and to make stereotype or electrotype plates of each and every volume of said Illinois Appellate Court Reports, and if at any time for a period of one year any publisher shall fail so to do the copyright and stereotype or electrotype plates made for volumes published under the provisions of this Act shall be and become the property of the State of Illinois upon payment to the said publisher of the cost thereof to be determined by any appellate court of this State and, upon the determination thereof it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to certify said account to the Auditor of Public Accounts, whereupon the same shall become payable out of the State treasury and it shall be the duty of said publisher to assign said copyright and deliver the plates of said volumes to the Secretary of State for the use of the State of Illinois. Said publisher shall thereupon cease to have any interest in or control over said copyright or plates. The Secretary of State shall thereupon cause such number of copies to be bound and printed at the expense of the State, as may, from time to time, be needed to supply the demands and shall sell the same at a price not to exceed one dollar and fifty cents per volume, accounting to the State for the proceeds. Such books, as printed and bound by the Secretary of State, shall be of the same quality as those theretofore published under the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 9. Any publisher receiving the benefits of this Act shall sell to residents of this State the current volumes of said reports published under the provisions of this Act, the first volume of which shall contain the decisions filed subsequent to July 1, 1913, at a price not to exceed one dollar and fifty cents per volume, not including the transportation charges. Any publisher so receiving the benefits of this Act shall sell to residents of this State [any such volumes published under the provisions of this Act] at a price of one dollar and fifty cents per volume at any time hereafter: Provided, all the volumes so published under the provisions of this Act up to and including the then current volume are purchased. Any such publisher shall also sell to residents of this State single back volumes or broken sets commencing with the first volume published under the provisions of this Act, at a price not to exceed two dollars per volume, not including transportation charges.

Sec. 10. Any publisher taking advantage of this Act, who shall be a publisher of or who shall have published any volumes of the Illinois Appellate Court Reports, or the decisions of the appellate courts other than the volumes published under the terms and conditions of this Act, in addition to furnishing the current volumes at the price and under the terms herein provided, shall furnish such other volumes to the residents of this State in complete sets at a price not to exceed two dollars per volume, or for single back volumes or broken sets not to exceed two dollars and fifty cents per volume, not including transportation charges.

Sec. 11. Upon publication of each volume of said reports, the Secretary of State shall secure from any official publisher for free distribution by him as follows, viz: five copies to the Library of Congress, one copy to the President of the United States, one copy to each State and territorial library, one copy to each judge of the Supreme Court of this State, one copy to each judge of the circuit courts of this State, one copy to the judge of the Superior court of Cook County, one copy to each judge of the county courts of this State, one copy to each judge of the city courts of this State, one copy to each municipal court judge in the city of Chicago, one copy to each State officer required to reside at the seat of the government, five copies to be deposited in the library of the Supreme Court and one copy shall be deposited in the State Library. The Secretary of State is also hereby authorized to purchase as aforesaid single volumes to replace lost or destroyed volumes in the State or Supreme Court Library. For the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions the Secretary of State is hereby authorized and required to purchase a sufficient number of copies of said official Illinois Appellate Court Reports and of each and every volume from time to time as the same may be hereafter published at a price not to exceed one dollar and fifty cents per volume for the purposes provided as aforesaid. Said books shall be paid for when certified by the Secretary of State upon warrant of the Auditor of Public Accounts.

The foregoing amendments were ordered printed, and, pending the consideration of the same, at seven o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Keller, the Senate adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1913, 10:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate, presiding.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

The President of the Senate announced that he had examined the Journal of yesterday and found no corrections or changes to be made, and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered, the Journal was ordered to stand approved.

Mr. Shaw offered the following amendments to the bill:

No. 1.

Strike out the title of the bill and insert the following:

A bill for an Act to create a State School Book Commission and prescribing and defining its powers and duties.

No. 2.

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

That there is hereby created a State School Book Commission to be composed of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the president of the Illinois State University, the superintendent of the city schools of the city of Chicago and eight (8) members to be appointed by the Governor, within thirty (30) days after this Act goes into effect, two of whom shall be county superintendents of schools of counties in the State of Illinois, two of whom shall represent the agricultural interests of this State, two of whom shall be employers of labor and two of whom shall be employees or are known to represent the interest of workmen. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of this commission who is not a citizen of Illinois, or who has any interest, direct or indirect, in any book publishing house, or in any book proposed for adoption, or who has been in the employ of any book publishing house within five (5) years previous to the passage of this Act, or who is under any obligation to any school book company. If any member of the commission shall cease to have the qualifications as herein provided, his office shall thereby immediately become vacant and such vacancy shall thereupon be filled as hereinafter provided. The term of office of the appointed members shall be three years from July first in the year in which they are appointed, unless sooner removed by the Governor; but appointments to fill vacancies shall be for the residue of the term only and any person to be eligible to be appointed to fill a vacancy must have the same qualifications as the person whose vacancy he is appointed to fill. Regular meetings of the commission shall be held on the first Monday of October, February and June of each year, and such regular meetings shall be held at the city of Springfield, Illinois, at the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Notice of the time and place of the first meeting shall be given each member of the commission by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who shall call the meeting to order and preside until a chairman is elected.

The commission shall elect a chairman and secretary, who shall be members of the commission and shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected and qualified, unless sooner removed. The chairman or secretary shall be subject to removal by a majority vote of said commission at any regular or special meeting thereof.

Special meetings may be held on the call of the chairman of the commission or on the call of a majority of the members thereof and such meetings may be held in any city in the State. Notice of the time and place of such special meetings shall be given to each member of the commission. The secretary of the commission shall keep a faithful record of all proceedings of the commission, in books provided by the commission, which record books and all other papers and effects, shall be deposited in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, when said commission is not in session, and shall be open for inspection. All votes in the commission shall be taken by yeas and nays and shall be entered on the record of the proceedings of the commission. A majority of the commission shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business and a majority vote of the commission shall be required on all questions involving the expenditure of money, selection of any book or books, or the adoption of any contract. The commission shall have power to employ and appoint such clerks, assistants and officers as it shall deem necessary, and shall prescribe their duties, compensation and terms of office, and the commission may incur such other expenses as are properly incidental to the work of the commission. The Attorney General shall assign an attorney who shall be present at all meetings of the commission and whose duty it shall be to do and perform all necessary legal work for the commission and subject to its instructions. Each member of the commission shall receive his actual expenses in going to and returning from each regular or special meeting and in addition thereto as his sole compensation for his services as a member of the commission the sum of ten dollars for each day actually served at any regular or special meeting including the necessary time going to and returning from such meeting. The secretary shall receive additional compensation at the same rate for all additional necessary time required for making up his record.

Sec. 2. The said commission shall have power and it shall be its duty to prescribe the school books to be used in the public schools of this State; to purchase or lease, in the name of the State of Illinois for the use of the public schools, school books, manuscript, plates and other material used in compiling school books and copyright the same; to compile or cause to be compiled school books to be used in the public schools of this State and to copyright same in the name of the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State of Illinois; to provide for the publishing and furnishing and prescribe the method of distribution of school books to be used in the public schools of this State; to fix the maximum prices at which such school books shall be sold; and to make such rules and regulations as are necessary for the discharge of the duties hereby imposed upon such commission, and to carry into effect the intention of this Act.

Sec. 3. The said commission shall immediately following the first meeting after the taking effect of this Act, and as often thereafter as the commission may deem necessary, give public notice, that at the time and place to be fixed by said notice said commission will receive sealed proposals as follows:

First—From publishers of school books for furnishing school books to the public schools of the State of Illinois for the term of four (4) years, stating specifically in such bid the price or prices at which such book or books will be furnished and sold, and accompanying such bid with three specimen copies of each book proposed to be furnished, which said specimen copies shall be retained by the commission.

Second—From authors or owners of school books for prices for which they will sell such book or books, together with the copyright thereof, for use in the public schools of the State of Illinois, accompanying such bid with three specimen copies of each book offered for sale, which said specimen copies shall be retained by the commission.

Third—From authors or owners for prices for which they will sell manuscript, plates and material to be used in the compiling of text books for use in the public schools of this State.

Fourth—For proposals to compile school books for use in the public schools of this State.

Fifth—For proposals from printers and publishers, for prices for which they will print, publish and distribute school books for use in the public schools of this State, to be prepared and published from manuscript, plates and other material to be furnished by the commission.

All such public notices shall be given by publishing for ten (10) consecutive days in one newspaper of general circulation in the city of Chicago, Illinois, and city of Springfield, Illinois, and in such other publications and places as the commission may deem necessary.

The bids from publishers and printers herein provided for must be accompanied by a bond in such penal sum as the commission may provide, and which shall be stated in said notice, which bond shall be payable to the State of Illinois and be conditioned that if any contract be awarded to any bidder thereunder, such bidder will enter into a contract to perform the conditions of his bid to the satisfaction of said commission: And, provided, further, that no bid shall be considered unless the same be accompanied by the affidavit of the bidder that he is in no way, directly or indirectly, connected with any publisher, firm or party to any contract or scheme, whereby the benefits of competition are denied to the people of this State: And, provided, further, that no bid shall be considered unless the same be accompanied by the affidavit of the bidder that the prices at which said book or books, manuscript, plates or material are offered are as low as the prices at which said book or books, manuscript, plates or material have been sold or offered for sale elsewhere: And, provided, further, that no bid from a publisher shall be considered unless the same be accompanied by the written offer of the bidder that in the event said book shall be sold or offered for sale at any lower price elsewhere, that the price at which the same is sold in the State of Illinois shall be immediately reduced accordingly, to such lower price, and that if the said bidder shall publish another book, to be sold at a lower price than the one selected by the commission, and which other book is, in the judgment of the commission, suitable for use as a school book in place of the one selected that the commission shall have the right to substitute same for the book that is selected, and that the lower price at which said new book is sold shall be incorporated as a part of the contract: And, provided, further, the commission may reject any and all bids or any part thereof.

Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of the aforesaid commission to meet at the time and place mentioned in such notice, provided for in this Act, and to open and make full and complete investigation of such bids; and to ascertain under which of said bids or proposals school books will be furnished to the people of this State for use in the public schools of this State, at the lowest price, taking into consideration size and quality of matter, material, style of binding and mechanical execution of such book; to select such book or books as in its judgment are best suited for use in the public schools of this State: Provided, that said commission shall not in any case select and contract for the furnishing of any book or books to be sold for use in the public schools of this State at a price above or in excess of the lowest price at which such book has been sold or offered for sale elsewhere, which price shall include all costs and charges for packing, transportation and delivery to the several places where such books may be purchased for use of the pupils. It shall be a part of the conditions and terms of every contract in pursuance of this Act with publishers or printers for the furnishing of school books, that the State of Illinois shall not be liable to any such contractor for any sum whatever but that all such contractors shall receive their pay and compensation, solely and exclusively from the proceeds of the sale of the books as provided for in this Act.

Sec. 5. As soon as the said commission shall have entered into any contract for the furnishing of school books, it shall be the duty of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to notify the county superintendent of schools of each county of this State, and the superintendent of schools and board of education of each city and village of this State, and the board of directors of each school district of this State, of the terms of said contract, and to furnish printed lists of the book or books adopted, the price or prices to be paid therefor, the publisher or publishers thereof, and the place or places in the county, city, village or school district where such books may be purchased.

Sec. 6. It shall be the duty of any person, firm or corporation having contracted for the publishing of school books for use in the public schools of this State to arrange within thirty (30) days after making the contract, any person or persons, company, corporation or firm having contracted for the furnishing of school books for use in the public schools of this State, shall arrange with a sufficient number of dealers or agents at the county seat of each county of this State and in each city and incorporated village of this State, for the handling and sale of such school books. Such dealer or agent shall be allowed to charge the purchasers of said books a commission not exceeding twenty per cent on the contract price as provided for under this Act, for the handling and sale of said books: Provided, that any person or persons, company, corporation or firm having a contract under the provisions of this Act, shall be required to furnish any book or books to any citizen, board of education or school district of this State in cash orders of not less than five dollars each, at the same price and on the same terms as provided for the furnishing of such book or books to dealers or agents, and deliver the same to the address in the State of Illinois named in such order. No contract with any person, company, corporation or firm, publisher or publishers of school books, to furnish school books for the use of the public schools of this State, shall be for more than four years from the date thereof.

Sec. 7. Upon the filing of a written complaint with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction of this State, by any county superintendent of schools of any county of this State, or by any superintendent of city schools of any city or village of this State, or by any other person of this State, charging any publisher or publishers, person, company, corporation or firm with violating the conditions of any contract made as provided for in this Act, the Attorney General of this State is hereby instructed and it shall be his duty to investigate or cause to be investigated such complaint, and if in his judgment there is just and reasonable grounds for such complaint, to prosecute the offender, and to immediately begin proceedings in the name of the State of Illinois, in a court of competent jurisdiction, to recover the penalty or penalties provided in the bond or bonds of such publisher or publishers, person, company, corporation or firm, furnished as provided under this Act.

Sec. 8. The intention of this Act is that the said commission shall select school books to be used in the public schools of this State in the giving of instruction in those studies that are required by the school law of this State and such other studies as have been or may be from time to time lawfully added to such required studies by any school authority in this State. In selecting school books the commission may select books, for one or more studies at a time. After the commission shall have selected a book or books for any study and notice of such selection has been given to the local school authorities, by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, as heretofore provided, it shall be the duty of such school district, board of education and other local school authorities, to use or cause to be used, only such book or books as have been selected by said commission in the study or studies for which said commission has selected books; and it shall be unlawful for such school district, board of education or other local school authorities to use or permit to be used, any other book or books in the study or studies for which the commission has made selection of school books other than the books selected by such commission. Any board of directors of schools of any school district, or board of education of any city or village, or other local school authorities, which shall use or knowingly permit to be used in any public school within its jurisdiction, in any study for which the said commission has selected a school book or school books, any other school book or school books than the book or books selected by the commission, or shall require the purchase of any other school book or school books in such study or studies shall have deducted from the money allowed by the State from the State school fund to such school district, board of education or other local school authority, an amount equal to the purchase price of such book or books, and a sufficient amount of such deducted money shall be delivered to the commission to be held by the commission and used to reimburse those who have, by order of such school district, board of education or other local school authority, purchased such books. Claims for reimbursement must be made to the commission within one year after purchase and all claims must be properly verified. The commission shall have power to reject any and all claims. It shall be the duty of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to make the deduction herein provided for on the presentation to him of a resolution adopted by the commission and signed by its officers: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent teachers and pupils of any public school in this State from using other school books than those selected by the commission, as reference books in such schools: And, provided, further, that any school district or board of education or other local school authority now under contract for school books shall, until such contract shall have expired, be permitted to use the school books provided for in such contract: And, provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to apply to the use of school books in studies where no selection has been made by said commission, until a selection has been made by the commission and notice of such action given as heretofore provided.

Sec. 9. Any person or persons, corporation or firm who shall directly or indirectly demand or receive any money, promise or anything of value, for any book or books selected by this commission, in excess of the contract maximum price, together with twenty per cent as in this Act hereinbefore provided for dealers or agents, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction shall be fined in a sum not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not to exceed ninety days in the common jail of the county in which such misdemeanor is committed, or both. It shall be the duty of the Attorney General to conduct all prosecutions under this Act.

The question then being, "Shall the amendment be adopted?" and the yeas and nays being called, it was decided in the negative by the following vote: Yeas, 12; nays, 18.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

No. 2.

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

That for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act there is hereby created a School Text-Book Commission, consisting of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the president of the Illinois State Normal School at Charleston, Illinois, the president of the Illinois State Normal School at Normal, Illinois, the president of the Illinois State Normal School at Carbondale, Illinois, the president of the Illinois State Normal School at DeKalb, Illinois, the president of the Illinois State Normal School at Macomb, Illinois, and the superintendent of the city schools of the city of Chicago, Illinois, and of which the State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio chairman, with the right to vote on any and all propositions: Provided, that each member of said committee shall receive as their only compensation the sum of five dollars for each day's actual service at any regular or at special session, and actual expense in going to and coming from the meeting herein provided for.

Sec. 2. The regular meetings of said Text-Book Commission shall be on the first Monday of May of each year hereafter, in the city of Springfield, Ill., except the first regular meeting, which first regular meeting shall be on the first Monday after the going into effect of this Act. Special meetings shall be held at any time on the call of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The regular sessions of said School Text-Book Commission shall not continue longer than ten days for any one session, and the special sessions thereof shall not continue longer than ten days for any one session, and the special session thereof shall not continue longer than four days for any one session.

Sec. 3. At the first meeting of said School Text-Book Commission the members thereof shall elect one secretary, whose duty it shall be to keep a correct record of all proceedings of said commission, said record shall be deposited in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction at all times when said commission is not in session. All votes upon any proposition before this commission shall be taken by the yeas and nays and shall be recorded in the record of its proceedings. The secretary shall be paid five dollars per day for his services, while said commission is in session and he is making up its record, and he shall be subject to removal at any time by a majority vote of all members of said commission at any regular or special session thereof.

Sec. 4. The School Text-Book Commission herein provided for shall be empowered and is hereby authorized and directed and it is hereby made its duty to select and adopt a uniform series of school text-books for use in the public schools of the State of Illinois, for the following named branches, or any of them, to wit:

Primer, spelling, reading, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, physiology and hygiene, history of the United States, civil government, elements of algebra, physical geography, elements of natural philosophy, bookkeeping, graded series of writing books: Provided, no text-book shall be adopted by said Text-Book Commission that do not equal in quality of matter, material, binding and mechanical execution, and approximately equal in size to those text-books now in general use throughout this State: Provided, further, said text-books shall contain no partisan or sectarian matter.

Sec. 5. Said Text-Book Commission shall immediately following their first meeting after the taking effect of this Act, advertise for ten consecutive days in one daily newspaper of general circulation where said newspaper is published respectively, in cities of Philadelphia, Pa.; New York, N. Y.; Chicago, Ill.; Cincinnati, O., and St. Louis, Mo.; that at the time and place to be fixed by said notice said Text-Book Commission will receive sealed proposals as follows:

First—From publishers of school text-books for furnishing books for use in the public schools of the State of Illinois, as provided in this Act, for the term of five years, stating specifically in such bid the price at which books will be furnished, accompanying such bid with enough copies to supply each member of the board with a specimen copy of each book proposed to be furnished.

Second—From authors of school text-books for prices for which they will sell or lease their manuscript plates, illustrations, notes and appendixes, together with copyright of such books for use in the public schools of the State of Illinois: Provided, all bids by publishers herein provided for must be accompanied by a bond in the penal sum of five thousand dollars for each book, to the acceptance, approval and satisfaction of the Governor of this State, conditioned that if any contract be awarded to any bidder hereunder, such bidder will enter into a contract to perform the conditions of his bid to the satisfaction of said Text-Book Commission: And, provided, further, that no bids shall be considered unless the same be accompanied by the affidavit of the bidder that he is in no wise, directly or indirectly, connected with any publisher, firm or party to any contract or scheme whereby the benefits of competition are denied to the people of this State: And, provided, further, said School Text-Book Commission may, for good cause, reject any and all bids or any part thereof.

Sec. 6. It shall be the duty of the aforesaid School Text-Book Commission to meet at the time and place mentioned in such notice provided for in section 5 of this Act, and to make a full and complete investigation of such bids, and to ascertain under which of said bids or proposals the school books will be furnished to the people of this State for use in public schools of this State, at the lowest price, taking into consideration size and quality of matter, material, style of binding, and mechanical execution of such books: Provided, that said commission shall not in any case contract with any author or publisher for the furnishing of any book, manuscript or copyright of book which are to be sold to the people of this State for use in the public schools of this State, at a price above or in excess of the following, which price shall include all costs and charges for packing, transportation and delivery of the several places where railroad stations are located in this State: Primer, 15 cents; spelling, 15 cents; for first reader, 18 cents; second reader, 23 cents; for third reader, 30 cents; fourth reader, 35 cents; fifth reader, 40 cents; mental arithmetic, 25 cents; intermediate arithmetic, 35 cents; for complete arithmetic, 45 cents; for elementary geography, 45 cents; for complete geography, 85 cents; elementary English grammar, 25 cents; for complete English, 40 cents; for physiology and hygiene, 45 cents; for history of United States, 70 cents; for elements of natural philosophy, 60 cents; for civil government, 50 cents; for elementary algebra, 65 cents; for physical geography, 80 cents; for bookkeeping, 45 cents; for writing books, 5 cents.

And any school book company, person or firm, who shall contract to furnish the public schools of this State with school books under the provisions of this Act, shall, upon the application of any school district or city, within one year after the acceptance of the bid, take up the books now in use, and they shall exchange the new books at not more than 50 per cent of the maximum price fixed by the provisions of this Act: Provided, that any school district or city that is now operating under the contract for books shall have the right to exchange on the same terms books for one year from the expiration of said contract.

Sec. 7. If, upon the inspection of bids, no publisher or publishers of school text-books shall have bid within the provisions of this Act for furnishing the school text-books for use in the public schools of this State as provided for in this Act or for any other good and sufficient reason, then the school text-book commission is hereby authorized and directed and it shall be its duty to secure such manuscripts, copyrights and propositions for the compilation of school text-books as provided for in this Act as will supply the schools of this State, and advertise for sealed bids for publishing the same and supply them under the terms herein described; and said contract may let for the publication of all such books, or for one or more text-books separately; and it shall further be the duty of said school book commission to provide in the contract for the publication any manuscript for the payment by the publisher, of any compensation agreed upon by said commission and author or owner of any such manuscript for such manuscript.

Sec. 8. It shall be a part of the condition and terms of every contract made in pursuance of this Act, that the State of Illinois shall not be liable to any contractor hereunder for any sum whatever, but that all such contractors shall receive their pay and compensation solely and exclusively from the proceeds of the sales of the books as provided for in this Act.

Sec. 9. As soon as said school text-book commission shall have entered into any contract, it shall be the duty of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to notify the county superintendent of schools of the several counties of this State as said contract, and to furnish them with printed list of the books, and the prices to be paid thereof.

Sec. 10. Within thirty days after making the contract any person or persons, company, corporation or firm having contracted for the sale of school text-books, to the people of this State for use in the public schools of this State, shall arrange with at least one dealer or agent or at the county seat of each county in this State, and in each city and incorporated village of this State, for the handling and sale of school text-books and provided for in this Act. Such dealer or agent shall be allowed to charge the people of this State a commission not exceeding fifteen (15) per cent on contract price provided for under this Act, for the handling and sale of said books: Provided, that any person, company, corporation or firm having a contract under the provisions of this Act shall be required to furnish books or any citizen or school district of the State of Illinois, at the same price and on the same terms, as provided for the furnishing of such books to dealers or agents in cash orders, of not less than ten dollars each, and deliver the same at any railroad station in the State of Illinois mentioned in such order.

Sec. 11. Upon the filing of a written complaint with the State Superintendent of Public Instructions in this State, by any county superintendent of schools of any county in this State, or by any superintendent of city schools, of any city of this State, charging any publisher or publishers, person, company, corporation or firm, with violating the conditions of any contract made as provided for in this Act, the Attorney General of this State is hereby instructed, and it shall be his duty to prosecute the same, and to immediately begin proceedings in the name of the State of Illinois to recover the penalty or penalties provided in the bond or bonds of such publisher or publishers, person, company, corporation or firm, furnished as provided under this Act.

Sec. 12. Every contract with any person, company, corporation or firm, publisher or publishers, of school text-books of public schools of this State, shall be for five years from the date thereof and no school district or board of directors of any school district or board of education of any city or village of this State shall adopt, use or permit to be used, any other school text-books than those contracted for in this Act: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the teachers and pupils of this State from using any school text-books other than those provided for in this Act, as reference books, in such schools: And, provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to apply to the use of school text-books in branches other than those mentioned in this Act. Nor shall anything in this Act contained be construed to apply to any school district or city, now under contract, for school text-books until such contract shall have expired.

Sec. 13. An person or persons who shall, directly or indirectly, demand or receive any money, promises or anything of value for any books or book provided for in this Act, in excess of the contract price, together with fifteen per cent, as in this Act hereinbefore provided for dealers or agents, or any teacher of school who shall adopt, use or permit to be used in any public school of this State, any other text-books or text-book than those provided for in this Act, shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, in any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five (25) dollars nor more than one hundred (100) dollars, or imprisonment in the common jail of the county in which such misdemeanor is committed not less than ten days or more than ninety days for each offense, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 14. For the purpose of paying mileage and per diem to the members of the school text-book commission, created by this Act, and its secretary, printer's fees, advertising, postage, stationery and expense of meetings, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury of this State not otherwise appropriated the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act. The Auditor of the State is hereby authorized to draw his warrant on the State Treasurer for the amount of per diem and compensation due to each member of said school text-book commission, or to parties performing service under the provisions of this Act. And for the purpose of leasing or buying manuscripts, illustrations and copyrights, electrotype plates or other necessary appurtenances to the successful operation of this Act, as provided for in this Act, the sum of ten thousand dollars, or so much thereof as shall become necessary to lease or buy manuscripts, illustrations and copyrights, electrotype plates or other necessary appurtenances as in this Act provided for is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury of this State not otherwise appropriated, and the Auditor of State is directed to draw his warrant on the treasurer of this State for such sum or sums, the total not to exceed ten thousand dollars, as herein provided, for the purpose of leasing or buying manuscripts, illustrations and copyrights, electrotype plates or other necessary appurtenances, when thereunto directed by the said school text-book commission, in writing, and the treasurer of this State is hereby directed to pay such warrant.

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend House Bill No. 388 in Senate, by striking out all that part of the title following the word "State," and by inserting in lieu thereof the following: "and to make them official."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend House bill No. 388 in Senate, by striking out in section 1, in line 3 and 4, the words, "Appellate Court Reports of Illinois" and by inserting in lieu thereof the following: "the Illinois Appellate Court Reports."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Amend House Bill No. 388 in Senate, by striking out all after section 1 and by inserting in lieu thereof the following:

Sec. 2. "The series of reports herein provided for shall be the official reports of said courts, and may be published by any person, partnership, company or corporation which shall have and maintain an office and place of business in the State of Illinois, and which shall comply with the provisions of this Act and any person, partnership, company or corporation so complying with the provisions of this Act and publishing the reports under the terms thereof shall be known as an official publisher. Any person, partnership, company or corporation desiring to receive the benefits of this Act shall file with the Secretary of State a good and sufficient bond to be approved by him in the sum of not less than fifteen thousand ($15,000.00) dollars as liquidated damages payable to the People of the State of Illinois, conditioned for the faithful performance of the provisions of this Act in the publication of such reports under the conditions and under the terms hereof, and if any person, partnership, company or corporation receiving any of the benefits of this Act shall fail or refuse to give bond as required or when given to keep the same in full force and effect, or shall fail or refuse to comply with the provisions of this Act in other respects, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State upon the request of any Appellate Court of this State to notify the Attorney General who shall at once bring suit on the bond of said publisher against him and the sureties and prosecute the same to judgment and final execution."

Sec. 3. The clerks of the Appellate courts shall promptly furnish to any person, company or corporation desiring the same, within ten days from the date of the expiration of the time for a rehearing, the opinion of the judges of such Appellate Courts at a price not to exceed 25 cents per page: Provided, that, however, the clerks of such courts shall furnish, within ten days after the period for such rehearing has expired, to any official publisher as herein defined, the opinions of the judges of the Appellate Courts, without cost, mailing the same within such period of ten days to the office or place of business designated by such publisher in a written request, filed with the Appellate Court clerk; and it shall be the duty of any such official publisher so furnished said opinions without cost to receive all said opinions unpublished at the time this Act goes into effect and which may be decided thereafter so long as said opinions are received under the terms of this Act and to publish the same within a period of not more than ninety days after the receipt of corrected proof from judges and after a sufficient number of opinions to constitute a volume shall have been delivered to such publisher.

Sec. 4. The clerk of the Appellate courts shall also furnish to any official publisher all abstracts, briefs and other papers filed in their respective offices and which are or may be necessary for the purpose of preparing the reports within the same time and upon the same terms as herein provided for the opinions, which shall be returned to such clerk by the publisher receiving same upon the publication of the volume containing the opinion in such matter.

Sec. 5. Every final decision of each Appellate Court shall be reduced to writing by the court and it shall be the duty of the court to designate which of such written decisions shall be published in full and which published by including an adequate abstract of such written decision, but if any Appellate Court of this State shall fail to so designate within ten days from the date of expiration of the time for rehearing then such decision shall be published only in condensed form or by abstract: Provided, that should any Appellate Court fail to so designate them, any such decision may be published in full by any official publisher if the total number of volumes of Appellate Court reports published or to be published in any calendar year shall not exceed six volumes.

Sec. 6. Any official publisher shall carefully prepare and cause to be printed in connection with each decision so ordered to be published a full syllabus of the points decided by said decision and shall also prepare and cause to be printed in each volume, a full alphabetical index of the cases therein reported, preliminary announcement of similar character and extent to those now included in the reports known as Illinois Appellate Court Reports and a full complete topical index of all points of law covered by decisions therein reported.

Sec. 7. Each volume of reports to be hereafter published shall contain not less than seven hundred pages and shall be of the same general character as the volumes of reports heretofore known as the Illinois Appellate Court Reports, the paper upon which the reports are to be printed shall be clear white paper, supersized and calendered, not less than fifty pounds to the ream, size 24x38 inches and binding shall be of standard law sheep or buckram without blemish or patches and the boards used in binding shall be good binder's boards, and shall be similar in size and appearance to volumes of this series heretofore published.

Sec. 8. It shall be the duty of any publisher receiving the benefits of this Act to publish continuously under the terms thereof volumes of said reports in accordance with the terms of this Act and to make stereotype or electrotype plates of each and every volume of said Illinois Appellate Court Reports, and if at any time for a period of one year any publisher shall fail so to do the copyright and stereotype or electrotype plates made for volumes published under the provisions of this Act shall be and become the property of the State of Illinois upon payment to the said publisher of the cost thereof to be determined by any Appellate Court of this State and upon the determination thereof it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to certify said account to the Auditor of Public Accounts, whereupon the same shall become payable out of the State treasury and it shall be the duty of said publisher to assign said copyright and deliver the plates of said volumes to the Secretary of State for the use of the State of Illinois. Said publisher shall thereupon cease to have any interest in or control over said copyright or plates. The Secretary of State shall thereupon cause such number of copies to be bound and printed at the expense of the State as may from time to time be needed to supply the demand and shall sell the same at a price not to exceed $1.50 per volume, accounting to the State for the proceeds. Such books as printed and bound by the Secretary of State shall be of the same quality as those theretofore published under the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 9. Any publisher receiving the benefits of this Act shall sell to residents of this State the current volumes of said report published under the provisions of this Act, the first volume of which shall contain the decisions filed subsequent to July 1, 1913, at a price not to exceed $1.50 per volume, not including transportation charges. Any publisher so receiving the benefits of this Act shall sell to residents of this State, any such volumes published under the provisions of this Act at a price of $1.50 per volume at any time hereafter, provided all the volumes so published under the provisions of this Act up to and including the then current volume are purchased. Any such publisher shall also sell to residents of this State single back volumes or broken sets commencing with the first volume published under the provisions of this Act, at a price not to exceed $2.00 per volume, not including transportation charges.

Sec. 10. Any publisher taking advantage of this Act who shall be a publisher of or who shall have published any volumes of the Illinois Appellate Court Reports, or the decisions of the Appellate Courts other than the volumes published under the terms and conditions of this Act, in addition to furnishing the current volumes at the price and under the terms herein provided shall furnish such other volumes to the residents of this State in complete sets at a price not to exceed $2.00 per volume, or for single back volumes or broken sets not to exceed $2.50 per volume, not including transportation charges.

Sec 11. Upon publication of each volume of said reports the Secretary of State shall secure from any official publisher for free distribution by him as follows, viz.—five copies to the Library of Congress, one copy to the President of the United States, one copy to each State and Territorial Library, one copy to each judge of the Supreme Court of this State, one copy to each judge of the circuit courts of this State, one copy to the judge of the superior court of Cook County, one copy to each judge of the county courts of this State, one copy to each judge of the city courts of this State, one copy to each municipal court judge in the city of Chicago, one copy to each State officer required to reside at the seat of the government, five copies to be deposited in the library of the Supreme Court and one copy shall be deposited in the State Library. The Secretary of State is also hereby authorized to purchase as aforesaid single volumes to replace lost or destroyed volumes in the State or Supreme Court Library. For the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions the Secretary of State is hereby authorized and required to purchase a sufficient number of copies of said official Illinois Appellate Court Reports and of each and every volume from time to time as the same may be hereafter published at a price not to exceed $1.50 per volume for the purposes provided as aforesaid. Said books shall be paid for when certified by the Secretary of State upon warrant of the Auditor of Public Accounts.

The question then being, "Shall the bill, as amended, be ordered to a third reading, and the amendments printed?" it was decided in the affirmative.

At 7:10 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 9:30 o'clock a. m.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Magill offered the following resolution:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 48.

WHEREAS, November 19, 1913, will be the fiftieth anniversary of the delivery by Abraham Lincoln of his Gettysburg address, and,

WHEREAS, This address is universally recognized as one of the world's greatest masterpieces, reflecting the lofty character of its author, and the highest ideals of American patriotism, and,

WHEREAS, It is the privilege and the duty of every nation to impress upon the hearts of its people the unselfish devotion and sacrifice of its heroes, and the lofty sentiments of its statesmen, therefore,

Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives of Illinois, assembled in Springfield, the home of Abraham Lincoln. That in the name of the people of this State we respectfully petition His Excellency, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, to set apart by proclamation Wednesday, November 19, 1913, as a day of national Thanksgiving and Dedication, to the end that we as a nation may dedicate ourselves more wholly to the great tasks remaining before us, and to the American principals of Liberty and Equality; that we may highly resolve that all who have nobly died in support of these principals shall not have died in vain; that this nation under God may even now have a new birth of freedom; that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Resolved, That the Secretary of State be and is hereby directed to transmit a copy of this resolution, approved by the Governor, to His Excellency, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States; and,

Resolved, further, That a copy thereof be transmitted to each of the governors of the several states of the Union, and that their coöperation in the setting apart of November 19, of this year as a national and state holiday be and is hereby requested.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Magill, the rules were suspended, and the foregoing resolution was taken up and, on his motion, the consideration of the same was postponed to and made the special order for Tuesday, June 10, 1913, immediately after the reading of the Journal.

Mr. Harris offered the following resolution:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 49.

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That a commission be constituted to be known as The Minimum Wage Investigation Commission consisting of two representatives of employers, two representatives of employees, and one disinterested person to represent the public. Said members to be appointed by the Governor with power and authority to investigate and ascertain the wages, hours of labor and conditions of labor of women and of minors (that is, persons under the age of eighteen years) employed in the various occupations, trades and industries of the State and to ascertain whether or not the wages of any such employees are inadequate to meet the necessary cost of living and maintain the worker in health. Said commission shall meet, within ten days after notice of appointment, in Springfield, Illinois, on receipt of a call signed by three members of the commission and shall immediately elect a chairman and a secretary who shall cause a record to be made and kept of all its proceedings. Three members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business and said commission may hold sessions at such places as it may deem proper within the State of Illinois.

It shall be the duty of every firm, corporation or person employing women or minors to furnish to the commission at its request any reports or information which the commission may desire in the performance of its duties and to allow members of the commission, its secretary or any of its duly authorized agents, to have free access to and inspection of all books, reports, contracts, payrolls or other documents or papers of such person, firm or corporation relating to the employment and wages of women and minors. Said commission shall take into consideration the needs of the employees, the financial condition of the occupation and the probable effect thereon of any increase in the minimum wages paid, and shall endeavor to ascertain the minimum living wage, whether by time, rate or piece rate, for a female employee of ordinary ability in the occupation, trade or industry in question or for all the branches thereof, and also suitable minimum living wages for learners and apprentices and for minors. Where the rate of wages is affected by methods of competition, by prices charged for material, by deduction by way of fines or otherwise, or by other methods or contrivances having a tendency to reduce the earnings of employees, the ascertainment of the minimum living wage may be accompanied by a statement of a standard method of calculating the same; or different standards may be fixed according to different methods of calculation.

Said commission shall have power to subpoena witnesses, administer oaths and take testimony and to examine such parts of the books and records of employers as relate to the wages paid to women and minors. Such witnesses shall be summoned in the same manner and be paid the same fees as witnesses in court. Any employer or other person who shall refuse or fail to obey any such subpoena or who shall fail to comply with the orders of said commission shall be deemed guilty of contempt, and any circuit court of this State or any judge thereof, either in term time or in vacation, upon application of said commission may, in its, or his, discretion, compel the attendance of witnesses, the production of books and papers and giving of testimony before the commission by an attachment for contempt or otherwise, in the same manner as the production of evidence may be compelled before said court.

Said commission shall report prior to January first, 1915, to the Governor, and to the General Assembly at its next regular session, submitting a report, together with such recommendations as to the commission shall seem fit and proper relating to the subject of minimum wages of women and minors in the State of Illinois. The members of said commission shall receive no compensation for their services, but they shall be reimbursed for their actual expenses incurred in and about the actual work of said commission.

Said commission may appoint a stenographer or clerk and such other employees as are necessary and shall fix their compensation and may incur such other expenses as are properly incident to the work of the commission.

The Auditor of Public Accounts is hereby authorized to draw his warrant in payment of any expenses, charges, or disbursements authorized by this resolution on order of said commission, signed by its chairman, attested by its secretary and approved by the Governor.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Jones, the rules were suspended and the foregoing resolution was taken up, and, on motion of Mr. Jones, the consideration of the same was postponed to and made the special order for Tuesday, June 10, 1913, immediately after the preceding special order.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Jones, bills of the following titles were made a special order for Tuesday, June 10, 1913, immediately after the preceding special order:

SENATE BILL No. 237.

A bill for an Act to establish the minimum wage commission and to provide for the creation of wage boards and for the determination of minimum wages for women and minors and apprentices and for the publication of the findings of said commission and of said wage boards.

SENATE BILL No. 619.

A bill for an Act to establish an industrial welfare commission and to define its powers and duties, to provide for the creation of wage boards, and for the determination of minimum living wages for women and minors in the various occupations, trades and industries in which women and minors are employed, and for putting into effect the findings of said commission and for the punishment for any violation of the provisions of the Act.

SENATE BILL No. 637.

A bill for an Act to provide for a minimum wage for women and minors in the various occupations, trades and industries in which such women and minors are employed. To create a commission to be known as the Illinois Industrial Commission, and to define its powers and duties. To provide for the putting into effect the findings of said commission and for the punishment of any violations of the provisions of this Act.

Mr. Clark offered the following resolution, which under Rule 39, was laid on the table for one day:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 50.

WHEREAS, In the session of the Forty-eighth General Assembly, there have been introduced in the Senate about seven hundred bills, in the House more than nine hundred bills;

WHEREAS, Hundreds of bills are on the calendars of both Senate and House for action and hundreds of bills are in committees unacted upon;

WHEREAS, These bills are of vital importance in the interest of good government to the People of Illinois, and in view of Senate Joint Resolution adopted by Senate May 29, 1913, providing for a sine die adjournment June 28, 1913, it would be practically impossible to enact legislation, which is demanded by the public and imperative in the conduct of good government;

WHEREAS, In as much as the General Assembly has now been in session for more than one hundred forty days at an enormous expense, not only to the government, but to the members as well, and needed legislation cannot be accomplished, if adjournment is insisted on June 28, 1913;

WHEREAS, It is believed that the members of the General Assembly have in good faith endeavored to give their best efforts in the furtherance and fulfillment of their duties and obligations as legislators, but because of contingencies that have arisen, could not have avoided the delays occasioned;

WHEREAS, It is the sense of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives that each of them should be accorded opportunity on behalf of the public, to accomplish such legislation which is deemed essential; therefore,

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That when the two houses adjourn Monday, June 18, 1913, a recess be taken until 12:00 o'clock noon on Saturday, June 28, 1913, for the purpose of considering only messages from the Governor, and that when the General Assembly adjourns on June 28, 1913, a recess be taken to Tuesday, November 11, 1913; further,

Resolved, That a respective message be sent to the House requesting the recall of Senate Joint Resolution No. 47, and that this resolution stand in its stead.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Clark, the rules were suspended and the foregoing resolution was taken up, and on motion of Mr. Clark, the consideration of the same was postponed to and made the special order for Wednesday, June 11, 1913, immediately after the reading of the Journal.

SPECIAL ORDERS.

The President of the Senate announced the special order for this hour to be the consideration on third reading of

Mr. Tossey offered the following amendments to the bill:

No. 1.

Amend by striking out in line 11 of said bill, the following: "One million six hundred thousand dollars ($1,600,000.00)" and insert in lieu thereof "one million four hundred thousand dollars ($1,400,000.00)."

No. 2.

After the words "per annum" in line 11 of section 1 of said bill, add the following: "1-a. That there is hereby appropriated for equipment, maintenance and extension of the college of medicine of the University of Illinois the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) per annum."

On motion of Mr. Clark, the foregoing amendments were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. Keller moved that the bill be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations, with instructions to report the same back itemized.

On motion of Mr. Clark, the motion to recommit was laid on the table.

The question then being, "Shall the bill be engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Magill, Senate Bill No. 570, a bill for "An Act in relation to the approval, adoption, prices, sale and use of text books in the public schools of the State,"

Which was read at large a second time, June 4, 1913, and amended, was taken up for consideration, and the pending question being "Shall the bill, as amended, be engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Ettelson asked permission to be allowed to introduce a bill, demand being made that the bill be read by the Secretary, and which he proceeded to do, when Senator Cleary raised the point of order that under the rules when bills are introduced that it is only to read them by the title and refer them or advance as the Senate may direct and that the bill proposed to be introduced could not be read by the title until permission had been allowed by the Senate to introduce the bill.

The President of the Senate decided the point of order well taken and stated that the question before the Senate was, whether Senator Ettelson should be allowed to introduce a bill, pending the discussion of which question, at 12:30 o'clock p. m., the Senate, on motion of Mr. Bailey, adjourned.

FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1913, 10:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Walter I. Manny, President pro tempore, presiding.

The President pro tempore of the Senate announced that he had examined the Journal of yesterday, and found no corrections or changes to be made, and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered, the Journal was ordered to stand approved.

At 10:05 o'clock a. m., on motion of Mr. Hearn, the Senate adjourned until Monday, June 9, 1913, at 5:00 o'clock p. m.

MONDAY, JUNE 9, 1913, 5:00 O'CLOCK P. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

In the absence of the President and President pro tempore of the Senate, the Senate was called to order by the Secretary.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

A message from the House, by Mr. Gullick, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has adopted the following preamble and joint resolution, in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 35.

WHEREAS, Two score and ten years ago, there was dedicated a portion of a field as a final resting place in Gettysburg, for those who gave their lives that this great nation may live; and,

WHEREAS, There will be commemorated the semi-centennial of such dedication in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in consecration of the brave who struggled on the battlefield to advance a cause as their principles dictated; and,

WHEREAS, The line of demarcation, which caused the conflict, has been forever obliterated and the north and the south and the east and the west are a unity under one flag of freedom; and,

WHEREAS, Among the brave who in the days of war, carried arms for the nation, there are surviving in the House of Representatives in the State of Illinois, the Hon. James H. Farrell, the Hon. Joseph Carter, the Hon. R. D. Kirkpatrick and the Hon. Thomas Campbell; and,

WHEREAS, In the Senate there are surviving two veterans now linked by the strong tie of brotherhood, and associates, but former rivals on the battlefield, the Hon. Campbell S. Hearn and the Hon. Edmond Beall; and,

WHEREAS, It is commensurate that the State of Illinois, the home of the martyred Lincoln, at that time President of the United States, should be fittingly represented at such commemoration to show our sincere devotion for those who sacrificed their lives for our country; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a committee of six, composed of the aforesaid Hon. James H. Farrell, Hon. Joseph Carter, Hon. R. D. Kirkpatrick, Hon. Thomas Campbell, Hon. Campbell S. Hearn and Hon. Edmond Beall, be appointed to represent the State of Illinois at the said semi-centennial in Philadelphia, in July, 1913; and, be it further

Resolved, That all necessary expenses incurred by such committee be paid out of the contingent fund of the House and Senate, respectively, upon proper vouchers certified to by the respective presiding officer of either branch of the General Assembly and the chairman of the respective Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Adopted by the House, June 4, 1913.

B. H. McCANN.
Clerk of the House.

The foregoing message was taken up and read, and, on motion of Mr. Hurburgh was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

A message from the House, by Mr. Gullick, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has adopted the following preamble and joint resolution, in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 36.

WHEREAS, On April 3, 1913, the House of Representatives adopted House Resolution No. 46 pursuant to the request of the Governor of the State of Illinois, and because of other good and substantial reasons set forth in said resolution, that certain charitable organizations licensed to handle wards of the State were organized for financial gain, and not to carry out the charitable purposes for which they were organized and have been found guilty of obtaining surrender acts from parents of children and deporting them beyond the jurisdiction of the court and even into foreign lands; and,

WHEREAS, The committee appointed under such House resolution entered upon the discharge of their duties and have made a tentative report of their acts and doings; and,

WHEREAS, The committee believe that it is essential and expedient in the interests of the public and in the furtherance of the good government of this State to continue a most researching, scrutinizing and careful examination and investigation, and that the same be conducted by a committee of both the House of Representatives and the Senate of the State of Illinois; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a joint committee of five Representatives and three Senators be appointed, respectively, by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Executive Committee of the Senate to continue the investigation and inquiry into the methods and actions of such charitable institutions and organizations licensed by the State of Illinois, and of all societies and organizations licensed by the State to handle and dispose of children under the juvenile law, and to investigate their accounts of receipts and expenditures for the purpose of determining whether all moneys received by them are dispensed with proper regards for the authority given by the State to such institutions and societies, and to ascertain if these societies and institutions and organizations incorporated, not for profit, are engaged in the name of charity and by virtue of standing of the organization to traffic or commerce for gain; and, be it further

Resolved, That the said committee be, and it hereby is, empowered and fully authorized, to take any and all steps that may be necessary to make full and complete investigation of the above specified matters; and in the doing of this, said committee is specially authorized and empowered, to summons before said committee as witnesses any and all persons who may, in the judgment of the committee be possessed of any information deemed valuable by said committee, this to include the power to summons by subpoena duces tecum all persons possessed of, or in any way in charge of books, documents and papers desired as evidence by said committee; and said committee shall have, and it hereby has, the same power or powers possessed by the General Assembly, to enforce its orders, and to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, documents and papers; and, be it further

Resolved, That the said committee shall continue its inquiry and investigation and report to the Forty-ninth General Assembly, and that the said committee shall receive no compensation, but shall be paid its actual expenses and that an appropriation be made for the sum of seven thousand dollars ($7,000.00) to meet the actual expenses of the said committee, as well as such assistants that may be necessarily employed by it, and that an appropriation in said sum be made by the General Assembly, and that all expenses necessarily incurred shall be paid on voucher certified to by the chairman of the said committee and approved by either the Speaker of the House or the Lieutenant Governor.

Adopted by the House, June 4, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

The foregoing message was taken up and read, and, on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

A message from the House, by Mr. Hill, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the adoption of the following preamble and joint resolution, to wit:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 7.

WHEREAS, The number of divorces throughout the United States has been increasing during the past fifty years at an alarming rate and under the present system there is no uniform law covering this subject in the several states; and,

WHEREAS, At the present time the several states are operating under laws so entirely divergent that the legitimacy of children is often made a serious question, and property rights are frequently uncertain; and,

WHEREAS, The question is one that strikes at the very foundation of our social organization and we deem it necessary and proper that the law in relation thereto should be uniform throughout the United States and that such law should be so safeguarded that fraudulent divorces cannot be secured; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring herein, That we instruct our Senators in Congress and request our Representatives at Washington to use their best endeavors to have Congress propose an amendment to the constitution of the United States, whereby the Congress may pass laws regulating the subject of marriage and divorce throughout the United States.

Concurred in by the House, June 5, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

Mr. O'Connor, from the Committee on Appropriations, to which was referred a bill, House Bill No. 788, for "An Act to provide for the emergency expenses of the Illinois National Guard and the Illinois Naval Reserve incurred in the protection of life and property in the flooded territories of the State,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time, and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. O'Connor, from the Committee on Appropriations, to which was referred a bill, House Bill No. 789, for "An Act to provide appropriation for the purpose of defraying the indebtedness incurred on the part of the State in furnishing relief to the people living in those sections of the State recently visited by the devastating floods,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do pass and that it be ordered to a first reading.

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading, and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time, and ordered to a second reading.

Mr. Dailey, from the Committee on Engrossed and Enrolled Bills reported that bills of the following titles have been correctly engrossed and are returned herewith:

SENATE BILL No. 570.

A bill for an Act in relation to the approval, adoption, prices, sale, and use of text books in the public schools of the State.

SENATE BILL No. 659.

A bill for an Act to define "prohibition territory" and to provide for the more effective suppression of the traffic in intoxicating liquor within such territory.

SENATE BILL No. 675.

A bill for an Act making appropriations for the University of Illinois.

POINT OF ORDER.

Senator Manny—Mr. President, one day last week I raised a point of order which was not decided by the President at that time. The point of order was raised at the time of the introduction of bills one of which I raised a special objection to since it was apparently the same as a bill that was already in committee. I made the point of order that the second bill could not be introduced in the Senate and asked for a ruling by the President upon the point.

Governor O'Hara—The Chair will inform the gentleman from Brown that he is ready to rule upon the point of order.

Senator Jones—Did we not grant leave by vote of this Senate that the bill be introduced and sent to a committee? There is then nothing before this Senate, and I object to a ruling being made on that question at this time because the question has been disposed of.

Governor O'Hara—The gentleman from Cook, Mr. Jones, raises an objection on the ruling upon the point of order at this time on the ground that it is not in order.

Senator Manny—I think it is in order.

Senator Jones—The Canaday bill was introduced by leave of the Senate and the bill sent to the Manufacturing Committee where it now is.

Senator Manny—This same point of order is called to my attention by reason of the fact that the Senator from Cook, Mr. Ettelson, is to introduce a bill the same as one previously introduced. The matter is a special order at this time.

Senator Jones—Then if a new point of order is raised we should have an opportunity to be heard on that before the Chair makes his decision.

Governor O'Hara—The Chair will make his ruling now and the ruling is that under Rule 54 of the Senate Rules, Cushing's Parliamentary Law is designated as an authority on all matters not covered by the Rules.

Cushing's Parliamentary Law, Chapter 19, Section 3, Paragraph 2317 states: "When a bill has been introduced, and is pending, no other of the same substance can be moved for or introduced." And under that ruling the Chair rules the point of order well taken and no bill can be introduced twice.

Senator Canaday—What affect will that ruling now have on the bill I have in the Manufacturing Committee and the License Committee?

Governor O'Hara—That raises another point of order upon which the Chair will ask time for consideration.

Senator Jones—Point of order, Mr. President! My point of order is according to the rules of this Senate when a bill is introduced before the time limit expires for the introduction of bills, it is to be referred to the committee designated by the Chair, or if the majority of the Senate otherwise direct it, it will go to some other committee. I understand the majority of this body have the power to determine its proceedings and if a motion is made as Senator Canaday or Senator Ettelson made a motion for leave to introduce a bill and a majority grant that leave then the point of order that the Senator from Brown has referred to is not raised and even if the Chair should so hold an appeal could be taken from the decision of the Chair and a majority over-rule the Chair. If a motion is made for leave to introduce a bill and a majority support the motion that grants permission and the question never arises for the Chair to decide and as I understand it, it is only where a bill has been introduced and received action by the body, where it has been passed or rejected by the body, or where it has been placed upon the calendar by the body, but in this case the bill has been referred to a committee and is still in the committee and I understand the authorities, even the House of Lords or Congress do not go that far; none of the authorities hold that the House may not by its own vote grant leave to introduce a bill and I understand that is what the gentleman from Cumberland moved, moved for leave and leave was granted.

Governor O'Hara—In reply to the Senator the Chair will again read the rule from Cushing:

"When a bill is introduced and is pending no other of the same substance can be moved for or introduced." A bill is pending until it has been rejected and furthermore as to the power of appeal from the Chair's rule, where the appeal from the rule of the Chair is in conflict with the rules it requires a two-thirds vote.

A ruling on that established in a precedent in Michigan is: "The rules further provide that the president shall decide all questions arising under the rules and practice subject to an appeal, but as stated in the decision, an appeal will not lie when a refusal to sustain the chair will result in abrogating or changing the plain reading of the rules." This is simply read for information.

Mr. Ettelson moved that the rules be suspended for the purpose of allowing him to introduce a bill, and the yeas and nays being demanded, it was decided in the negative by the following vote: Yeas, 29; nays, 19. Two-thirds not voting in the affirmative.

REPORTS FROM STANDING COMMITTEES BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

Mr. Piercy, from the Committee on Constitutional Amendments, to whom was referred the following:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 13.

WHEREAS, The provisions of the Constitution of this State are in many respects inadequate to the present and prospective needs of the people; and,

WHEREAS, The rapid increase in the wealth and population of our large cities and the vast amount of capital invested in commercial enterprises demand legislation which cannot be secured under the present Constitution; and,

WHEREAS, It has been demonstrated that it is impossible to secure a satisfactory revenue system with the present constitutional limitations; and,

WHEREAS, By its provisions it is not possible to submit to the people a proposition to amend more than one article of the Constitution at the same time; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring herein. That a convention is necessary to revise, alter or amend the Constitution of this State, and that the question of the calling of such convention shall be submitted to the electors of this State at the next general election, as provided for in Article XIV of the present Constitution.

Reported the same back with the recommendation that it be adopted.

On motion of Mr. Piercy, the consideration of the resolution was postponed to and made a special order for Thursday, June 12, 1913, immediately after the reading of the Journal.

Mr. Denvir, from the Committee on Charitable, Penal and Reformatory Institutions, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 493, for "An Act to protect the rights and interests of children and of parents, and to designate, prescribe and regulate the means for securing these rights; also to insure the care, guardianship, education and sustenance by the State of all children bereft of parental care, guardianship and sustenance,"

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the bill do not pass.

The report of the committee was concurred in and the bill, on motion of Mr. Denvir, was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. Denvir, from the Committee on Charitable, Penal and Reformatory Institutions, to which was referred a bill, Senate Bill No. 681, for "An Act to regulate the practice of osteopathy in the State of Illinois,"

Under the rules, the bill was ordered to a first reading and was immediately taken up and read at large a first time and ordered to a second reading.

CONSIDERATION OF RESOLUTIONS BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

On motion of Mr. Magill the following resolution offered by him June 5, 1913, was taken up for consideration :

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 48.

WHEREAS, November 19, 1913, will be the fiftieth anniversary of the delivery by Abraham Lincoln of his Gettysburg address; and,

WHEREAS, This address is universally recognized as one of the world's greatest masterpieces, reflecting the lofty character of its author, and the highest ideals of American patriotism; and,

WHEREAS, It is the privilege and the duty of every nation to impress upon the hearts of its people the unselfish devotion and sacrifice of its heroes, and the lofty sentiments of its statesmen; therefore,

Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives of Illinois, assembled in Springfield, the home of Abraham Lincoln, that in the name of the people of this State we respectfully petition His Excellency, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, to set apart by proclamation, Wednesday, November 19, 1913, as a day of national thanksgiving and dedication, to the end that we as a nation may dedicate ourselves more wholly to the great tasks remaining before us, and to the American principles of liberty and equality; that we may highly resolve that all who have nobly died in support of these principles shall not have died in vain; that this nation under God may even now have a new birth of freedom; that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth;

Resolved, That the Secretary of State be and is hereby directed to transmit a copy of this resolution, approved by the Governor, to His Excellency, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States; and,

Resolved, further, That a copy thereof be transmitted to each of the Governors of the several states of the Union, and that their coöperation in the setting apart of November 19, of this year, as a national and State holiday be, and is, hereby requested.

The question being, "Shall the foregoing resolution be adopted?" it was decided unanimously in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Manny the Senate proceeded to the order of Mr. Waage, at this juncture, filed the following protest, which was ordered spread upon the Journal.

We, the undersigned members of the Senate do hereby respectfully protest against the action of the Senate in refusing to recall Senate Bill No. 162, as amended, to second reading, for the purpose of amendment, as follows:

Amend Senate Bill No. 162, as amended, by striking out all in section 3b, line 8, after the word "provided" and adding thereto the following: "that all persons who on a date four months immediately prior to the time when this Act takes effect, or shall have become applicable, held offices or places of employment, by reason of having passed a civil service examination, which this Act provides shall be classified, and who shall not within said period of four months have been removed for cause, shall be eligible, without the examination herein provided for, for the positions so held by them, respectively: Provided, that no person appointed after the passage of this Act shall be included in the classified service without examination."

And we do hereby assert for the reason stated, that we shall refuse to vote for the bill without the said bill being recalled and said amendment added.

STATE OF ILLINOIS.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

P. J. Lucey,
Attorney General.

SPRINGFIELD, June 4, 1913.

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 69.

To the Honorable Senate, Springfield, Illinois:

GENTLEMEN—Your Honorable Body has transmitted to me Senate Resolution No. 69, in which I am requested to furnish the Senate with an opinion with respect to Senate Bill No. 131, on the following points:

"One—Would the passage of this bill give the railroads of the State any undue or unfair advantage in the obtaining of new charters?

"Two—Could it be so amended so as to annul the attempted action taken by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad for re-incorporation, without paying the full amount of fees required in case of original incorporation?"

In reply thereto, I would say, relative to the first inquiry, that upon a consideration of this bill, I am unable to see wherein any undue or any unfair advantage is given to the railroads of the State in the obtaining of new charters.

Replying to your second question, I would say that the General Assembly, in 1911, amended section 5 of what is commonly referred to as the "Railroad Act" in such a way that any railroad previously incorporated under a special Act of the Legislature might have its charter renewed and extended by complying with the terms of the enactment.

It is my understanding that, acting under the provisions of the amendatory Act of 1911, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company filed with the Secretary of State a certificate of its compliance with said Act, and paid to the Secretary of State, under protest, the fees required of a new corporation. Before the fees so paid to the Secretary of State were covered into the State treasury, an injunction was procured against the paying of such fees into the State treasury, which suit for injunction is now pending and undetermined in the Supreme Court of this State. The main question in the suit for injunction is as to whether or not the State is entitled to the fee, which was demanded by the Secretary of State and was paid under protest by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company. The amendatory Act of 1911, provided that after a compliance with the terms of the Act relative to the meeting of the stockholders, a certificate, under the seal of the corporation,

"shall be filed with the Secretary of State within thirty days after the meeting and upon the filing of such certificate, the duration of such corporation shall thereby be extended in accordance with the vote of the stockholders, for an additional period not longer than fifty years."

If the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company has complied with the terms of the amendatory Act of 1911 and if such amendatory Act is valid and constitutional, the amendatory Act of 1911 would constitute a contract between the railroad company and the State, which under the Constitution of the United States, cannot be impaired by any subsequent legislative enactment.

My conclusion, therefore, is that Senate Bill No. 131 cannot be so amended. "as to annul the attempted action taken by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company for re-incorporation, without paying the full amount of fees required in case of original incorporation."

Very respectfully,

P. J. LUCEY,
Attorney General.

On motion of Mr. Magill, Senate Bill No. 570, for "An Act in relation to the approval, adoption, prices, sale, and use of text books in the public schools of the State,"

READING BILLS FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES THE SECOND TIME.

On motion of Mr. Manny, House Bill No. 416, a bill for "An Act in relation to the Municipal Court of the City of Chicago,"

Was taken up and read at large a second time.

Mr. Manny offered the following amendments to the bill, which were adopted:

Amendments to House Bill 416 in Senate:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate, by striking from the title to said bill the words "the city of" where they appear immediately before the word "Chicago" in said title, and by striking out the same words "the city of" in both places where they appear in section 89 on page 84 of said bill as printed, between lines 5 and 6 of said bill as printed, so that said matter between lines 5 and 6 shall read as follows:

For consenting to the Act entitled, "An Act in relation to the municipal court of Chicago."

Against consenting to the Act entitled, "An Act in relation to the municipal court of Chicago."
---	--

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate, by striking from section 36 the first line thereof of the bill as printed, and the words "in this section" in the second line thereof, and inserting in lieu thereof, the following, to wit:

"If the plaintiff, his agent or attorney shall file in any attachment, replevin, distress for rent or forcible detainer suit an affidavit stating," and by inserting after the word "him" in line 4 of said section 36 of the bill as printed, the following, to wit: "and also stating the place of residence of the defendant, if known, and if not known, that upon diligent inquiry the affiant has not been able to ascertain the same."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate by inserting after section 48 on page 35 of said bill as printed, a section to be known as section 48a, as follows:

Sec. 48a. Whenever any writ of execution or attachment issued out of any court of record or any distress warrant shall be levied upon personal property within the city of Chicago, proceedings for the trial of the right of property therein may be instituted by the officer having such writ of execution or attachment in his possession, by the plaintiff in any such writ of execution, attachment or distress warrant, or by any person having any interest in said property, other than the defendant in such writ, or by such defendant when he claims that the property is exempt from execution, attachment or distress for rent, by virtue of the exemption laws of this State. The plaintiff in any such writ and the officer having the same in his possession, a claimant of ownership and lien holder or other person claiming under the same title, may join as plaintiffs in such proceedings, if they so desire. Said proceedings shall be instituted by the filing in the municipal court of a praecipe and statement of claim describing the property claimed and setting forth the names of all parties having any interest in or claim to said property, including the plaintiff in said writ and the officer having the same in his possession, all of whom shall be parties defendant to such cause if they be not joined as plaintiffs, and if there be persons interested in said property whose names are unknown, they shall be made parties defendant to said suit by the description of unknown owners of said property. If such proceedings be instituted by the plaintiff in said writ or the officer having the same in his possession, said statement of claim shall further state that the plaintiff has reasonable doubt as to the ownership of the property levied upon, or as to such officer's or other person's right to seize such property by virtue of said writ. Said statement of claim shall also state the places of residence of all defendants, if known, and if not known, that upon diligent inquiry the person that makes affidavit to said statement of claim has not been able to ascertain the same. Said statement of claim shall be verified by the affidavit of plaintiff, his agent or attorney. Upon the filing of such praecipe and statement of claim the clerk of said court shall issue a summons for service upon such defendants whose places of residence are stated in said statement of claim to be in the city of Chicago, which summons shall describe the property claimed and shall be made returnable within the same time and served upon the defendants in the same manner as in other cases, or if, in the opinion of the court, the emergency of the case requires it, and the interests of the parties will not be prejudiced, the court may order the parties to appear before the court for trial within such shorter time and upon such reasonable personal notice as to the court shall appear in accordance with justice. Unknown owners, defendants beyond the limits of the city of Chicago, and defendants whose places of residence cannot be ascertained, shall be given such notice of said proceedings as shall be ordered by the court. No pleadings shall be required on the part of the defendant. The proceedings in such case shall be conducted as emergency proceedings and shall be the same, as near as may be, as in cases of replevin, excepting that no bond shall be required of the plaintiff, nor shall there be any delivery of property to him in any case until after final judgment; but if said property be in the hands of the plaintiff as officer, by virtue of a levy thereon, the same shall be retained by him until final judgment. But the court may order said property to be sold by virtue of said writ if said property be perishable or the retaining of the same until final judgment would be unduly expensive to any of the parties to the cause, and in such case the proceeds of such sale shall abide the result of the court's judgment. Upon the trial the rights of all the parties shall be determined and judgment shall be rendered accordingly, awarding the possession of the property according to the right. The court may compel the delivery of said property pursuant to such judgment by proceedings in contempt of court against any party before the court refusing to comply with the judgment thereof, or execution may be awarded for said property. The judgment in such case shall be a complete indemnity to such officer in selling or restoring such property. In case said cause be removed to a court of review the officer having such writ shall retain the property, unless the party claiming the same shall give bond with sufficient surety, to be approved by a judge of the municipal court, payable to the people of the State of Illinois, for the use of any party interested, for the delivery of such property, pursuant to the judgment of the court that shall finally pass upon said matter. The costs of said proceedings shall be taxed by the court according to the equities of the case.

AMENDMENT NO. 4.

Amend House Bill 416 in Senate by striking out all of section 52a (described as section 32a on page 39 of the bill as printed) and inserting in lieu thereof a section to be known as section 52a, as follows:

Sec. 52a. Whenever any person having an established residence or place of business within the city of Chicago shall be arrested in the city of Chicago for a violation within said city of any law in this State, or any ordinance of the city of Chicago, or of any Board of Public Park Commissioners whose territory is situated in whole or in part within said city, and the only offense charged or to be brought against said person shall be one growing out of the improper use of any motor or other vehicle, or animal attached to any vehicle, on any of the streets, boulevards or alleys within said city, if the person so arrested shall thereupon exhibit for inspection to the officer making such arrest his certificate of registration, or license to operate such vehicle, or in case he has no such certificate of registration, or chauffeur's or other license, he shall give his name and address and the name and address of the owner of such vehicle or animal, if the person so arrested is not the owner, the officer shall thereupon inspect the number plates or vehicle tax plates, or other means of identification submitted by the owner or driver of such vehicle and shall also take the name and address of the owner and driver of such vehicle, making proper note thereof, as well as of the number, if any, of the vehicle, and such officer shall thereupon give to the person so arrested (provided such person has an established residence or place of business within said city of Chicago) a written notice to be signed by such officer notifying said person arrested that a complaint or information for said offense will be filed against him in the municipal court of Chicago, and that said officer will have said complaint or information set for hearing before a certain branch of said court in the district where said arrest is made and where cases of like character are heard, naming the branch court and the hour and day of such hearing (which shall be at the hour of opening of court on the next succeeding court day after said arrest), and said officer shall, after the giving of said notice, release said person from custody and shall file a complaint or information in said court for said offense. Said court shall in such case take jurisdiction of said cause without the issuing of any warrant or capias against the defendant in such complaint or information. No warrant or capias shall issue against said defendant unless said defendant shall fail or refuse to appear in court at the time set for hearing. And in case said defendant shall fail or refuse to so appear, warrant, capias or summons shall issue against said defendant according to law. The officer making such complaint shall state under oath, in said complaint or information the facts as to the giving of said notice, stating the time and place when said defendant was notified to appear as aforesaid: Provided, this section shall not apply to any case of an arrest growing out of the driving of any such motor or other vehicle or animal attached thereto whereby any person is killed or injured.

AMENDMENT No. 5.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate, on page 40 of the bill as printed, by striking from line 7 on said page, the number "53" and inserting in lieu thereof, the number "52."

AMENDMENT No. 6.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate, on page 46 of the bill as printed, by striking from line 19 on said page, the word "entry," and substitute in lieu thereof, the word "rendition."

AMENDMENT No. 7.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate by inserting after the words "Municipal court," in line 3 of section 81 of the bill as printed, the following:

"The expense of dieting prisoners in the custody of the bailiff shall be paid out of the city treasury of the city of Chicago, upon the certificate of the bailiff. The bailiff shall convey all persons convicted by the municipal court to the places of confinement specified in the judgments of the court, and for so doing shall receive such fees from the State as compensation therefor as is now fixed and designated for sheriffs in counties of the third class, which compensation, less the actual expense of conveying said convicts, shall be turned over by the bailiff to the city of Chicago."

The question then being, "Shall the bill be ordered to a third reading and the amendments printed?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, House Bill No. 335, a bill for "An Act to amend an Act entitled, 'An Act concerning corporations,' approved April 18, 1872, in force July 1, 1872; as amended by Acts amendatory thereof, by adding thereto eleven sections, to be numbered and known as section 46a, section 46b, section 46c, section 46d, section 46e, section 46f, section 46g, section 46h, section 46i, section 46j and section 46k, respectively,"

Was taken up and read at large a second time,

And the question being, "Shall the bill be ordered to a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Clark, House Bill No. 356, a bill for "An Act to legalize certain elections held under and by virtue of 'An Act to provide for the organization of park districts and the transfer of submerged lands to those bordering on navigable bodies of water,' approved June 24, 1895, and in force July 1, 1895; as amended by an Act approved April 22, 1899, in force July 1, 1899; and as amended by an Act approved June 9, 1909, in force July 1, 1909,"

Was taken up and read at large a second time,

And the question being, "Shall the bill be ordered to a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

Mr. Barr offered the following resolution:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 52.

WHEREAS, The Sanitary District of Chicago, in the construction of its channel erected retaining walls at and near and in the vicinity of the city of Lockport and the city of Joliet, in Will County; and,

WHEREAS, Some of the walls thus constructed bear and exhibit marked evidences of weakness; and,

WHEREAS, There is contained within said walls, a large volume of water, which, if liberated by the giving way of the walls, would undoubtedly result in the destruction of life and property in and about the cities of Joliet and Lockport; and,

WHEREAS, The Sanitary District of Chicago, in the construction of the channel erected retaining walls at and near and in the vicinity of Lockport and city of Joliet, in Will County; and,

WHEREAS, Some of the walls thus constructed exhibit marked evidences of weakness; and,

WHEREAS, In the construction of said channel the course of the Chicago River was changed so that flood waters that formerly went to Lake Michigan through the Chicago River are now sent down the DesPlaines River through said city of Joliet, which said flood waters together with the waters from the main channel of said Sanitary District increases greatly the flow of water in the DesPlaines River through said city of Joliet; and,

WHEREAS, Eminent engineers have given warning that there is an impending danger which menaces the safety of life and property in said city; and,

WHEREAS, Because of the recent floods in the various parts of the country, and in the State of Illinois, the people of the vicinities herein mentioned, have become very much exercised and alarmed on account of the obvious dangers from the breaking of any of said retaining walls; and,

WHEREAS, A preliminary investigation has been made by a committee of Senators, who made a tentative report in respect to the subject matter herein contained; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That a committee of five Senators and five members of the House of Representatives, be appointed from the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, of the State of Illinois, to investigate the condition of the said retaining walls, and the probable dangers from said flood waters and report their findings to the General Assembly with all convenient speed; and, be it further

Resolved, That such committee shall have the power to administer oaths, take evidence, subpoena witnesses and compel them to testify, compel the production of books, papers and documents, and to do any and all other lawful acts to carry out the foregoing purposes; and, be it further

Resolved, That said committee may appoint and employ such engineers and other assistants in the premises as it may deem necessary; and, be it further

Resolved, That such expenses connected with this investigation as shall be necessary, shall be certified to by the chairman of said committee, and shall be payable out of the fund for committee expenses, or out of an appropriation to be made therefor.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Barr, the rules were suspended and the resolution was taken up for immediate consideration and, on his motion, was adopted.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr. O'Connor, from the Committee on Appropriations, to which was referred the following:

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 35.

WHEREAS, Two score and ten years ago, there was dedicated a portion of a field as a final resting place in Gettysburg, for those who gave their lives that this great nation may live; and,

WHEREAS, There will be commemorated the semi-centennial of such dedication in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in consecration of the brave who struggled on the battlefield to advance a cause as their principles dictated; and,

WHEREAS, The line of demarcation, which caused the conflict, has been forever obliterated and the north and the south and the east and the west are a unity under one flag of freedom; and,

WHEREAS, Among the brave who in the days of war, carried arms for the nation, there are surviving in the House of Representatives in the State of Illinois, the Hon. James H. Farrell, the Hon. Joseph Carter, the Hon. R. D. Kirkpatrick and the Hon. Thomas Campbell; and,

WHEREAS, In the Senate there are surviving two veterans now linked by the strong tie of brotherhood, and associated but former rivals on the battlefield, the Hon. Campbell S. Hearn and the Hon. Edmond Beall; and,

WHEREAS, It is commensurate that the State of Illinois, the home of the martyred Lincoln, at that time President of the United States, should be fittingly represented at such commemoration to show our sincere devotion for those who sacrificed their lives for our country; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a committee of six, composed of the aforesaid Hon. James H. Farrell, Hon. Joseph Carter, Hon. R. D. Kirkpatrick, Hon. Thomas Campbell, Hon. Campbell S. Hearn and Hon. Edmond Beall, be appointed to represent the State of Illinois at the said semi-centennial in Philadelphia, in July, 1913; and, be it further

Resolved, That all necessary expenses incurred by such committee be paid out of the contingent fund of the House and Senate, respectively, upon proper vouchers certified to by the respective presiding officer of either branch of the General Assembly and the chairman of the respective Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Reported the same back with the recommendation that the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of the resolution,

And the question being, "Shall the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of the resolution?" it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. O'Connor, for the Committee on Appropriations, to which was referred the following:

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 36.

WHEREAS, On April 3, 1913, the House of Representatives adopted House Resolution No. 46 pursuant to the request of the Governor of the State of Illinois, and because of other good and substantial reasons set forth in said resolution, that certain charitable organizations licensed to handle wards of the State were organized for financial gain, and not to carry out the charitable purposes for which they were organized and have been found guilty of obtaining surrender acts from parents of children and deporting them beyond the jurisdiction of the court and even into foreign lands; and,

WHEREAS, The committee appointed under such House resolution entered upon the discharge of their duties and have made a tentative report of their acts and doings; and,

WHEREAS, The committee believe that it is essential and expedient in the interests of the public and in the furtherance of the good government of this State to continue a most researching, scrutinizing and careful examination and investigation, and that the same be conducted by a committee of both the House of Representatives and the Senate of the State of Illinois; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a joint committee of five Representatives and three Senators be appointed, respectively, by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Executive Committee of the Senate to continue the investigation and inquiry into the methods and actions of such charitable institutions and organizations licensed by the State of Illinois, and of all societies and organizations licensed by the State to handle and dispose of children under the juvenile law, and to investigate their accounts of receipts and expenditures for the purpose of determining whether all moneys received by them are dispensed with proper regard for the authority given by the State to such institutions and societies, and to ascertain if these societies and institutions and organizations incorporated, not for profit, are engaged in the name of charity and by virtue of standing of the organization to traffic or commerce for gain; and, be it further

Resolved, That the said committee be, and it hereby is, empowered and fully authorized, to take any and all steps that may be necessary to make full and complete investigation of the above specified matters; and in the doing of this, said committee is specially authorized and empowered, to summons before said committee as witnesses any and all persons who may, in the judgment of the committee be possessed of any information deemed valuable by said committee, this to include the power to summons by sub-

pœna duces tecum all persons possessed of, or in any way in charge of books, documents and papers desired as evidence by said committee; and said committee shall have, and it hereby has the same power or powers possessed by the General Assembly, to enforce its orders, and to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, documents and papers; and, be it further

Resolved, That the said committee shall have the power to employ any assistants, a stenographer and clerks; and, be it further

Resolved, That the said committee shall continue its inquiry and investigation and report to the Forty-ninth General Assembly, and that the said committee shall receive no compensation, but shall be paid its actual expenses and that an appropriation be made for the sum of seven thousand dollars ($7,000.00) to meet the actual expenses of the said committee, as well as such assistants that may be necessarily employed by it, and that an appropriation in said sum be made by the General Assembly, and that all expenses necessarily incurred shall be paid on voucher certified to by the chairman of the said committee and approved by either the Speaker of the House or the Lieutenant Governor.

Reported the same back with the following amendments thereto:

The bill was taken up and read at large a second time, and Mr. Juul offered the following amendment to the bill, which was adopted:

No. 1.

Amend Senate Bill No. 237 by striking out of the printed bill the present section 21 and substituting the following:

"Section 21. For the purpose of advising the Minimum Wage Commission it shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners in counties having such board or the board of supervisors in counties governed by such board, as the case may be, to meet on the first Monday in August in the year 1913 and on the same day each year thereafter to ascertain the minimum cost of living of any female worker or minor. Said board of county commissioners or board of supervisors, as the case may be, shall base its findings upon current cost of board for such female worker or minor, such board to consist of twenty-one (21) meals per week. Also the cost of decent lodging per week and the average cost of clothing, car fare and other indispensable necessities for the decent housing and living of such female workers or minors. Having ascertained the cost of living as aforesaid, said board of county commissioners or board of supervisors, as the case may be, shall forward a certified copy of its findings to the commission herein provided for and shall file with the Secretary of State one copy of such finding and shall file a further copy with the county clerk of the county of said board or county commissioners or supervisors, as the case may be. Failure or neglect by such county board or board of supervisors, as the case may be, to comply with the provisions of this section shall subject the members of such board of county commissioners or board of supervisors, as the case may be, to the penalties of section seventeen (17) of this Act."

No. 2.

Mr. Curtis called up for consideration the special order for this hour, being the consideration of the following resolution, offered by him January 30, 1913:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 13.

WHEREAS, The provisions of the Constitution of this State are in many respects inadequate to the present and prospective needs of the people; and,

WHEREAS, The rapid increase in the wealth and population of our large cities and the vast amount of capital invested in commercial enterprises demand legislation which cannot be secured under the present Constitution; and,

WHEREAS, It has been demonstrated that it is impossible to secure a satisfactory revenue system with the present constitutional limitations; and,

WHEREAS, By its provisions it is not possible to submit to the people a proposition to amend more than one article of the Constitution at the same time; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring herein, That a convention is necessary to revise, alter or amend the Constitution of this State, and that the question of the calling of such convention shall be submitted to the electors of this State at the next general election, as provided for in Article XIV of the present Constitution.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 50.

WHEREAS, In the session of the Forty-eighth General Assembly there have been introduced in the Senate about seven hundred bills and in the House more than nine hundred bills.

WHEREAS, Hundreds of bills are on the calendars of both Senate and House for action and hundreds of bills are in committees unacted upon.

WHEREAS, These bills are of vital importance in the interest of good government to the people of Illinois, and in view of Senate Joint Resolution adopted by Senate, May 29, 1913, providing for a sine die adjournment June 28, 1913, it would be practically impossible to enact legislation which is demanded by the public and imperative in the conduct of good government;

WHEREAS, Inasmuch as the General Assembly has now been in session for more than one hundred forty days at an enormous expense, not only to the government, but to the members as well, and needed legislation cannot be accomplished, if adjournment is insisted on June 28, 1913;

WHEREAS, It is believed that the members of the General Assembly have in good faith endeavored to give their best efforts in the furtherance and fulfillment of their duties and obligations as legislators, but because of contingencies that have arisen, could not have avoided the delays occasioned;

WHEREAS, It is the sense of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives that each of them should be accorded opportunity on behalf of the public to accomplish such legislation which is deemed essential, therefore,

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein. That when the two Houses adjourn Monday, June 18, 1913, a recess be taken until 12:00 o'clock noon on Saturday, June 28,

1913, for the purpose of considering only messages from the Governor, and that when the General Assembly adjourns on June 28, 1913, a recess be taken to Tuesday, November 11, 1913; further

Resolved, That a respective message be sent to the House requesting the recall of Senate Joint Resolution No. 47, and that this resolution stand in its stead.

On motion of Mr. Clark, the further consideration of the resolution was postponed to and made a special order for Tuesday, June 17, 1913, immediately after the reading of the Journal.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

A message from the House by Mr. Hill, assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 15.

A bill for "An Act to enlarge the power of cities and villages in relation to harbors, canals, slips, wharves, docks, levees, piers, quay walls, breakwaters and all harbor structures, facilities, connections, improvements and utilities constructed or operated in connection therewith and for the purpose of carrying out such power to authorize the acquisition and condemnation of property and to authorize the use, occupation, recovery and acquisition of artificially made or reclaimed lands of the State, and the reclamation and acquisition of the submerged lands of the State, and to repeal an Act entitled, 'An Act to enlarge the power of cities in relation to harbors, canals, wharves, docks, piers, slips and other harbor structures, facilities, improvements and utilities constructed or operated in connection therewith, to authorize the acquisition and condemnation of property and the use, occupation, reclamation and acquisition of the submerged lands of the State in carrying out such power, and to repeal all Acts or parts of Acts in conflict therewith,' approved June 10, 1911, and to repeal all other Acts or parts of Acts in conflict therewith."

Together with the following amendments, in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend Senate Bill No. 15 in House, on page 4 of the printed bill, by inserting in line 15, section 5, after the comma following the word "village," the following words, "except as in this Act or under the terms of any other law of this State may be provided."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 15 in the House by striking out all of section 23 of said bill.

Passed the House, as amended, June 12, 1913, by a two-thirds vote.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, the amendment contained in the foregoing message was ordered printed.

READING BILLS OF THE SENATE THE SECOND TIME BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

On motion of Mr. Woodard, Senate Bill No. 506, a bill for "An Act to enable cities, villages and incorporated towns subject to or threatened with overflow or inundation to construct, widen, raise, strengthen, improve, repair and maintain levees, protective embankments and structures, to levy and collect an annual tax therefor and to acquire real estate and materials for such purposes,"

Was taken up and read at large a second time, together with the following amendments thereto (which have been printed), reported from the Committee on Municipalities, June 5, 1913:

Amend Senate Bill No. 506, by inserting after section 3 of the printed bill, a new section, as follows:

"Section 4. Provided, however, that the said levee tax herein provided for shall not be levied and collected for any year until the question of levying the tax for such year shall be submitted to a vote of the electors of the city council at either a regular or special election and shall receive the affirmative vote of a majority of the electors voting on the question. At least twenty days' notice shall be given of the submission of the question at a regular city election, and at least thirty days' notice of any special election for submitting said question, which notice shall be given by publication for the time mentioned herein in a newspaper published in the city, and if there is no newspaper published in such city, then by posting the notices required by this Act in five prominent places in the city."

Renumber sections to correspond with this amendment.

The question being, "Shall the report of, and the amendments reported from, said committee be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

The question then being, "Shall the bill, as amended, be engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Barr, Senate Bill No. 695, a bill for "An Act making an appropriation for the building of a new Illinois State Penitentiary and a new Illinois Asylum for the Insane Criminals and matters incidental and pertaining thereto, at or near the city of Joliet,"

Having been printed, was taken up and read at large a second time,

And the question being, "Shall the bill be ordered engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

READING BILLS FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES THE THIRD TIME BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

On motion of Mr. Waage, House Bill No. 388, for "An Act to provide for and regulate the publication and distribution of the decisions of the appellate courts of this State, to provide for a reporter thereof, and to fix his compensation,"

Having been printed as received from the House of Representatives, together with the Senate amendments adopted thereto, was taken up and read at large a third time,

And the question being, "Shall this bill pass together with the Senate amendments thereto?" it was decided in the affirmative by the following vote: Yeas, 42; nays, 1.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

Bailey,	Cleary,	Gorman,	Hurley,	Manny,
Barr,	Compton,	Gray,	Johnson,	Meeker,
Beall,	Curtis,	Haase,	Keller,	O'Connor,
Brady,	Dailey,	Hamilton,	Landee,	Olson,
Broderick,	Denvir,	Harris,	Lundberg,	Stewart,
Campbell,	Ettelson,	Hearn,	Maclean,	Waage,
Carroll,	Forst,	Helm,	Madigan,	Womack,
Chamberlin,	Franklin,	Hurburgh,	Magill,	Woodard,
Clark,	Glackin,

Yeas—42.

Those voting in the negative are: Mr.

Cornwell,

Nays—1.

Ordered that the title be as aforesaid, and that the Secretary inform the House of Representatives thereof and ask their concurrence in the adoption of the Senate amendments to the bill.

When his name was called, Mr. Jones of Cook asked unanimous consent to explain his vote and leave having been granted said:

"I am personally interested in the subject matter of this bill. For some years I was, but am not now, one of the editors of the Appellate Court Reports of Illinois. A bill similar to this has been before the Senate in previous sessions. I have always taken the view that my position was similar to that of a judge upon the bench before whom should come a case in which the judge had been an attorney or a party, or had an interest in the subject matter in litigation. In such a case the judge is disqualified to Act, and I have held that for like reason I should take no part in the consideration of a bill in which I was personally interested. Accordingly in this and former sessions I have assumed a position of non-interference with respect to this and similar bills and have requested members of the General Assembly not to discuss these bills with me or in my presence, and this request has been uniformly respected.

"Some statement or insinuation has been made that in the last or some former session I throttled or helped defeat one of these bills. Such statement is contrary to the facts and is based either upon inexcusable ignorance of the facts or is a deliberate falsification of the facts. I have never exerted any influence whatever to defeat any such bill. My attitude has continuously and consistently been one of non-interference and absolute refusal to have anything whatever to do with the subject matter either in committee or otherwise. I therefore request that the record may show that I am present and not voting."

Mr. Juul, of Cook, and Mr. Bailey of Vermilion, then made statements corroborative of the statements of Mr. Jones, whereupon, Mr. Waage of Cook made the following statement:

"Mr. President—In view of the statement of the Senator from Cook, Mr. Jones, I think it only fair to him, upon the situation, that an expression be had from the Senate.

"I therefore move you, Mr. President, that the Senate express a vote of confidence in Senator Jones upon this subject and in that connection I call for a rising vote."

The motion was thereupon put by the President and was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

At 7:30 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Senate took a recess until 9:00 o'clock p. m.

9:00 O'CLOCK P. M.

Senate reconvened.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Was taken up and read at large a first time, ordered printed, and on motion of Mr. Gorman, was ordered to a second reading without reference.

READING BILLS OF THE SENATE THE SECOND TIME BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

On motion of Mr. Curtis, Senate Bill No. 127, a bill for "An Act to amend sections 1 and 6 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for the holding of primary elections by political parties,' approved March 9, 1910, in force July 1, 1910,"

Was taken up and read at large a second time, together with the following amendments thereto (which have been printed), reported from the Committee on Elections, May 15, 1913:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Strike out all after words "A bill" in the title and insert in lieu thereof, the following: "For an Act to amend sections 1, 6, 9, 10 and 29 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for the holding of primary elections by political parties,' approved March 9, 1910, and Acts amendatory thereto."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Strike out all of said bill after the enacting clause thereof and insert in lieu thereof, the following: "That sections 1, 6, 9, 10 and 29 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for the holding of primary elections by political parties,' approved March 9, 1910, in force July 1, 1910, and Acts amendatory thereto, be and the same are hereby amended to read as follows:

SECTION 1. The nomination of all candidates for all elective State, congressional, county, city and village (including officers of the municipal court of Chicago), town and judicial officers, members of the State Board of Equalization, clerks of the appellate courts, trustees of sanitary districts, United States Senators, and for the election of precinct and State central committeemen, by all political parties, as defined by section 2 of this Act, shall be made in the manner provided in this Act, and not otherwise: Provided, this Act shall not apply to the nomination of candidates for electors of President and Vice President of the United States, and trustees of the University of Illinois: And, provided, further, that this Act shall not apply to township and school elections.

The name of no person, nominated by a party required hereunder to make nominations of candidates, shall be placed upon the official ballot to be voted at the election to be held the first Tuesday after the first Monday in the month of November, A. D. 1914, as a candidate for any office, when provision is made herein for nominating candidates for such office, except President and Vice President of the United States, unless such person shall have been nominated for such office under the provisions of this Act, and all nominations made prior to July 1, A. D. 1913, of candidates for any such office to be voted for at said election are hereby declared of no effect and no nomination for any such office made prior to July 1, A. D. 1913, shall entitle any person, so nominated, to have his name placed upon the official ballot to be voted at said election.

Sec. 6. A primary shall be held on the third Tuesday in August in every year in which officers are to be voted for on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of such year for the nomination of candidates for such offices as are to be voted for at such November election: Provided, however, that in any year in which delegates and alternates are to be selected to nominate candidates for President and Vice President of the United States, there shall be held a primary for the election of such delegates and alternates to such national convention on the second Tuesday in April in any such year, such primary shall be held and conducted in the manner provided for in this Act, relative to congressional offices and State offices.

A primary shall be held on the second Tuesday in April in any year in which judges of the Supreme Court, judges of the circuit court, and judges of the superior court of Cook County, or any of them, are to be elected at an election to be held on the first Monday of June of such year for the nomination of candidates for such offices respectively.

A primary shall be held on the last Tuesday in February in each year for the nomination of such offices as are to be voted for on the first Tuesday in April of such year.

A primary shall be held on the second Tuesday in March in each year for the nomination of such offices as are to be voted for on the third Tuesday in April of such year.

A primary for the nomination for all other officers, nominations for which are required to be made under the provisions of this Act, shall be held three weeks preceding the date of the general election for such offices respectively.

The polls shall be open from 6:00 o'clock a. m. to 5:00 o'clock p. m.

Sec. 9. (1) The State Central Committee shall be composed of one member from each congressional district in the State and shall be elected as follows:

At the August primary held in the year A. D. 1914, and at the August primary held every two years thereafter, each primary elector may vote for one candidate of his party for member of the State Central Committee for the congressional district in which he resides. The State Central Committee of each political party shall be composed of members elected from the several congressional districts of the State as herein provided, and of no other person or persons whomsoever. The members of the State Central Committee shall, within thirty days after their election, meet in the city of Springfield and organize by electing from among their number a chairman, and may at such time elect such other officers from among their own number, or otherwise, as they may deem necessary or expedient. The outgoing chairman of the State Central Committee of the party shall, ten days before the meeting, notify each member of the State Central Committee elected at the primary of the time and place of such meeting.

(2) At the August primary held in August, A. D. 1914, and at the primary held every two years thereafter, each primary elector may write or attach in the space left on the primary ballot for that purpose the name of one qualified primary elector of his party in the precinct for member of his political party precinct committee. The one having the highest number of votes shall be such committeeman of such party for such precinct. In case of a tie the primary judges shall cast lots. The official returns of the primary judges shall show the name and address of the committeeman of each political party.

(3) The county central committee of each political party shall consist of the members of the various precinct committees of such party in the county.

(4) The congressional committee of each political party shall be composed of the chairman of the county central committee of the counties composing the congressional district, excepting that in congressional districts wholly within the territorial limits of one county, or partly within the territorial limits of one county, and partly within the territorial limits of another county, then the members of the precinct committees of the party residing within the limits of the congressional district shall compose the congressional committee.

(5) The city central committee of each political party shall be composed of the precinct committeemen of such party residing in such city.

(6) Each committee and its officers shall have the powers usually exercised by such committees and by the officers thereof, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act. The several committees herein provided for shall not have power to delegate any of their powers or functions to any other person, officer or committee, but this shall not be construed to prevent a committee from appointing from its own membership, proper and necessary sub-committees, and particularly defining, by resolution, the duties of such sub-committees.

(7) The various political party committees now in existence are hereby recognized and shall exercise the powers and perform the duties herein prescribed until committeemen are chosen, in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 10. (a) On the first Monday next succeeding the August primary, the county central committee of each political party shall meet at the county seat of the proper county and proceed to organize by electing from among its own number a chairman, and either from among its own number, or otherwise, such other officers as said committee may deem necessary or expedient. Such meeting of the county central committee shall be known as the county convention. The county convention of each political party shall choose delegates to the congressional and State convention of its party: Provided, only precinct committeemen residing within the limits of a congressional district shall participate in the selection of delegates to a congressional convention: And, provided, further, that in the county convention that each delegate to the county convention shall have one vote and one additional vote for each fifty or major fraction thereof of his party as cast in his precinct at the last general election.

(b) All congressional conventions shall be held on the first Wednesday after the first Monday next succeeding the August primary.

Except in such years when delegates and alternates are to be selected to nominate candidates for President and Vice President of the United States, for the selection of such delegates and alternates only, the primary shall be held on the second Tuesday in April. The congressional convention of each political party shall have power to choose and select delegates and alternate delegates to national nominating conventions and to recommend to the State convention of its party the nomination of candidate or candidates from such congressional district for elector or electors of President and Vice President of the United States.

(c) All State conventions shall be held on the first Friday after the first Monday next succeeding the August primary. The State convention of each political party shall have power to make nominations of candidates for the electors of President and Vice President of the United States, and for trustees of the University of Illinois, and to adopt any party platform, and to choose and select in accordance with the rules and regulations of its party delegates and alternate delegates to national nominating conventions.

(d) Each convention may perform all other functions inherent to such political organization and not inconsistent with this Act.

(e) At least thirty-three (33) days before the August primary the State and congressional committee respectively of each political party shall file in the office of the county clerk in each county of the State, or in each county of the congressional district a call for the State and congressional conventions. Said call shall state, among other things, the time and place (designating the building or hall) for holding the State and congressional conventions, respectively, the total number of the delegates which shall compose each of said conventions, and the call for State conventions shall state, among other things, the number of delegates to which each county is entitled in the State convention; and the call for the congressional convention shall state, among other things, the number of delegates to which each county or political subdivision of any county, as the case may be, is entitled in the congressional convention. Such call shall be signed by the chairman and attested by the secretary of the respective committees.

Sec. 29. Any candidate for President of the United States may have his name printed upon the primary ballot of his political party by filing in the office of [the] Secretary of State, not less than thirty (30) days prior to the date of the April primary, provided for in section 6 of this Act, a petition signed by not less than three thousand (3,000) primary electors, nor more than five thousand (5,000) members of and affiliated with the party of which he is a candidate, and no candidate for President of the United States who fails to comply with the provisions of this Act shall have his name printed upon any primary ballot: Provided, that the vote for President of the United States as herein provided for, shall be for the sole purpose of securing an expression of the sentiment and will of the party voters with respect to candidates for nomination for said office, and the vote of the State at large shall be taken and considered as advisory to the delegates and alternates at large to the national conventions of the respective political parties; and the vote of the respective congressional district shall be taken and considered as advisory to the delegates and alternates of said congressional districts to the national convention of the respective political parties.

The question being, "Shall the report of, and the amendments reported from, said committee be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Curtis offered the following amendments to the bill, which were adopted:

No. 1.

Strike out in line 20 of the printed amendments after the word "office" the words "except President and Vice President of the United States."

"For an Act to amend sections 4 and 5 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for the holding of primary elections by political parties for the nomination of members of the General Assembly and the election of Senatorial committeemen,' approved March 9, 1910, in force July 1, 1910."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Strike out all of said bill after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"That sections 4 and 5 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for the holding of primary elections by political parties for the nomination of members of the General Assembly and the election of Senatorial committeemen,' approved March 9, 1910, in force July 1, 1910, be and the same are hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 4. A primary shall be held on the third Tuesday in August in every year, in which officers are to be voted for on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of such year, for the nomination of candidates for members of the General Assembly, and shall be known as the April primary.

"Section 5. There shall be constituted a Senatorial committee for each Senatorial District: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent a political party from electing or appointing in accordance with its practice any other committees.

"The Senatorial committee of each political party shall be elected as follows:

"(a) In Senatorial Districts comprised of three or more counties, the Senatorial committee shall be composed of one member elected from each county of such Senatorial District.

"At the August primary held in the year A. D. 1914, and at the August primary held every two years thereafter, each primary elector may vote for one candidate of his party residing in his county for member of the Senatorial committee of his party.

"(b) In Senatorial Districts comprised of two counties the Senatorial committee shall be composed of three members, two of whom shall be elected from the county in which such political party, at the general election for State and county officers then next preceding a primary, polled the larger number of votes in such Senatorial district, and one of whom shall be elected from the other county of such Senatorial District.

"At the August primary held in the year A. D. 1914, and at the August primary held every two years thereafter, each primary elector, residing in a county in which such political party at the general election for State and county officers then next preceding a primary polled the larger number of votes in such Senatorial District, may vote for two candidates of his party, residing in his county, for members of the Senatorial committee of his party (and at such primary in the other county of such Senatorial District, each primary elector may vote for one candidate of his party) residing in his county for member of the Senatorial committee of his party.

"(c) In Senatorial Districts composed of one county, and in Senatorial Districts wholly within the territorial limits of one county, or partly within the territorial limits of one county and partly within the territorial limits of another county, the Senatorial committee shall be composed of three members elected from such Senatorial District.

"At the August primary held in the year A. D. 1914, and at the August primary held every two years thereafter, each primary elector may vote for three candidates of his party, residing in such Senatorial District, for members of the Senatorial committee of his party.

"Within thirty days after its election the Senatorial committee shall meet and proceed to organize by electing from among its own number a chairman, and either from its own number, or otherwise, such other officers as said committee may deem necessary or expedient. The outgoing chairman of the Senatorial committee of the party shall notify the members elected of the time and place (which shall be in the limits of such Senatorial District) of such meeting."

The question being, "Shall the report of, and the amendments reported from, said committees be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 63.

A bill for "An Act granting women the right to vote for presidential electors and certain other officers, and to participate and vote in certain matters and elections."

Passed the House June 11, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the adoption of their amendments to the following resolution, to wit:

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 36.

WHEREAS, On April 3, 1913, the House of Representatives adopted House Resolution No. 46 pursuant to the request of the Governor of the State of Illinois, and because of other good and substantial reasons set forth in said resolution, that certain charitable organizations licensed to handle wards of the State were organized for financial gain, and not to carry out the charitable purposes for which they were organized and have been found guilty of obtaining surrender acts from parents of children and deporting them beyond the jurisdiction of the court and even into foreign lands; and,

WHEREAS, The committee appointed under such House resolution entered upon the discharge of their duties and have made a tentative report of their acts and doings; and,

WHEREAS, The committee believe that it is essential and expedient in the interests of the public and in the furtherance of the good government of this State to continue a most researching, scrutinizing and careful examination and investigation, and that the same be conducted by a committee of both the House of Representatives and the Senate of the State of Illinois; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a joint committee of five Representatives and three Senators be appointed, respectively, by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Executive Committee of the Senate to continue the investigation and inquiry into the methods and actions of such charitable institutions and organizations licensed by the State of Illinois, and of all societies and organizations licensed by the State to handle and dispose of children under the juvenile law, and to investigate their accounts of receipts and expenditures for the purpose of determining whether all moneys received by them are dispensed with proper regards for the authority given by the State to such institutions and societies, and to ascertain if these societies and institutions and organizations incorporated, not for profit, are engaged in the name of charity and by virtue of standing of the organization to traffic or commerce for gain; and, be it further

Resolved, That the said committee be, and it hereby is, empowered and fully authorized, to take any and all steps that may be necessary to make full and complete investigation of the above specified matters; and in the doing of this, said committee is specially authorized and empowered, to summons before said committee as witnesses any and all persons who may, in the judgment of the committee be possessed of any information deemed valuable by said committee, this to include the power to summons by subpoena duces tecum all persons possessed of, or in any way in charge of books, documents and papers desired as evidence by said committee; and said committee shall have, and it hereby has, the same power or powers possessed by the General Assembly, to enforce its orders, and to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, documents and papers; and, be it further

Resolved, That the said committee shall continue its inquiry and investigation and report to the Forty-ninth General Assembly, and that the said committee shall receive no compensation, but shall be paid its actual expenses and that an appropriation be made for the sum of seven thousand dollars ($7,000.00) to meet the actual expenses of the said committee, as well as such assistants that may be necessarily employed by it, and that an appropriation in said sum be made by the General Assembly, and that all expenses necessarily incurred shall be paid on voucher certified to by the chairman of the said committee and approved by either the Speaker of the House or the Lieutenant Governor.

Which amendments are as follows:

Amend House Joint Resolution No. 36 by striking out all after the word "organized" in line 7, except the word "and" and all of lines 8 and 9 except the word "and" in line 9 of the first whereas.

Also amend line 20 by striking out "three" and insert in lieu thereof "five."

Concurred in by the House June 13, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 274.

A bill for "An Act to establish a joint legislative commission, and to define the powers and duties thereof."

Together with the following amendments in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend Senate Bill No. 274 in the House by striking out in section 7, lines 20, 21, 22, page 4, of the printed bill:

"Re-letter sub-section 'E' in section 7, as sub-section 'D.'"

"Re-letter sub-section 'F' in section 7, as sub-section 'E.'"

And insert at the end of line (8), section (7), the following:

"The State Legislative Reference Bureau shall afford to any member of the General Assembly, upon his request, such legal assistance and information as may be practicable in the preparation of bills proposed to be introduced into the General Assembly by such member."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 274 by striking out all after the word "commission" in line 3 of section 1 of the printed bill, and insert in lieu thereof, the following: "composed of the Governor, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore of the Senate, the chairmen of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and House, the chairmen of the Committees on Judiciary of the Senate and House, four other Senators and four other members of the House of Representatives. The Governor shall be ex officio chairman of said commission."

Sec. 2. Immediately after the passage and approval of this Act, and thereafter at the beginning of each regular session of the General Assembly, the Governor shall designate four Senators and four members of the House of Representatives as members of said commission.

Sec. 3. The Governor shall serve as a member of the commission during the term of office for which he shall have been elected, and the members from either House, including those serving on said commission by virtue of being chairmen of committees of either House or as Speaker of the House of Representatives or President pro tempore of the Senate, shall serve until the convening of the next General Assembly after their appointment.

Sec. 4. The commission shall meet during the regular and special sessions of the General Assembly, and during the intervals between the regular sessions, and at such times and places as it may determine. The members of the commission shall receive no compensation for their services as members thereof, but shall be allowed their actual and necessary expenses, incurred in the performance of their official duties, out of any money appropriated for the use of the commission.

Sec. 5. The commission shall appoint a secretary, who shall devote his entire time to the duties of his office, and shall follow no other gainful profession, occupation or employment. The commission shall also appoint such other officers, agents and employees as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, and shall fix the compensation of each of its appointees: Provided, the salary of the secretary be fixed at a sum not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) per annum.

Sec. 6. The commission shall have power, when requested by the Governor, the General Assembly, or either House thereof:

(a) To examine and report upon the operation of laws of this and other states and countries.

(b) To investigate the expenditure of any appropriation made by the General Assembly.

(c) To prepare drafts of bills.

Sec. 7. It shall be the duty of said commission:

(a) To establish in the State Capitol a legislative reference bureau which shall be open daily, excepting Sundays and legal holidays, in which shall be collected and kept in such manner as may make the same readily accessible, such laws, reports, books, periodicals, documents, catalogues, check lists, digests, summaries of the laws of other states upon current legislation and such other printed or written matter as may aid the members of the General Assembly in the performance of their official duties.

The Legislative Reference Bureau shall collect, catalogue, classify, index, completely digest, topically index, check list, and summarize all bills, memorials, resolutions and orders, as well as substitutes and amendments and changes, if any, introduced in each branch of the General Assembly, as soon as practicable after the same shall have been printed, and shall furnish copies of the digest, indexed and topically indexed, to each member of the General Assembly on Monday of each week during the session of the General Assembly.

The said Legislative Reference Bureau shall afford to any member of the General Assembly upon his request such legal assistance and information as may be practicable in the preparation of bills, memorials, resolutions and orders and amendments, alterations, changes thereto, and revisions and substitutes thereof, proposed to be introduced into the General Assembly by such member.

(b) To cause to be prepared, printed and distributed for the use of the members of the General Assembly, before the convening of the regular session of the General Assembly, a detailed budget of the appropriations which the officers of the several departments of the State government report to it are required of the several departments for the biennium for which appropriations are to be made by the next General Assembly, together with a comparative statement of the sums appropriated by the preceding General Assembly for the same purposes.

(c) To investigate and report upon such matters as it may have been directed so to do by the Governor, by the General Assembly or either House thereof.

(d) To keep a full and correct record of its proceedings and of all investigations conducted by it, to afford public access to the record of its proceedings and investigations and to report the same or parts thereof to the General Assembly at its convening.

(e) To furnish to either House of the General Assembly, upon request of such House, any file or record in the possession of said commission, or a copy thereof.

Sec. 8. Every department of the State government or officer thereof when so requested by said commission, shall cooperate with said commission in any inquiry being conducted by said commission.

Sec. 9. The officers of the several departments of the State government shall make duplicate reports by the first day of November next preceding the convening of the regular session of the General Assembly of the appropriations which are required for their several departments for the biennium for which appropriations are to be made by such General Assembly. One of the said duplicate reports shall be filed with the Governor and the other with the secretary of the commission.

Sec. 10. The Secretary of State shall provide said commission with suitable offices in the State Capitol convenient to the place of meeting of the General Assembly, and shall further provide said commission with the necessary furniture, stationery and supplies.

Sec. 11. The board of commissioners for the management of the State Library shall cooperate with the said commission and shall make the facilities of said library accessible, so far as practicable, for the use of said commission, and are hereby authorized to loan to said commission any books, periodicals, documents, reports or other printed or written matter belonging to said library.

Sec. 12. All proper expenses incurred by said commission shall be paid out of the appropriations made for its use upon itemized vouchers drawn by the secretary and approved by the Governor.

Passed the House as amended June 13, 1913.

A message from the House, by Mr. Hill, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 22.

A bill for "An Act relating to hotels, inns and public lodging houses in cities, villages and incorporated towns in the State of Illinois, having a population of not more than one hundred thousand inhabitants, creating the office of State Hotel Inspector, and providing penalties for the violation thereof."

Together with the following amendments in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend Senate Bill No. 22, by striking out in the title thereof, all after the word "Illinois" in the second line.

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 22, by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting in lieu thereof, the following: "Every building or structure kept, used or maintained as, or advertised as, or held out to the public to be an inn, hotel or public lodging house or place where sleeping accommodations are furnished for hire to transient guests, whether with or without meals in which ten (10) or more rooms are used for the accommodation of guests shall, for the purpose of this Act, be defined to be a hotel and whenever the word hotel shall occur in this Act it shall be construed to mean every such structure as is described in this section.

Sec. 2. All beds for the accommodation of guests in any hotel shall be provided with a sufficient supply of clean bedding and with clean sheets, each of which shall be at least eighty-one inches wide and ninety-nine inches long. All beds shall be provided with clean sheets as often as the same shall be assigned to different persons.

Sec. 3. Each and every hotel having a public washroom shall keep therein at all times a sufficient supply of individual clean towels in a place in sight of, and easy of access to guests. Also, at least two clean towels in each room, each day.

Sec. 4. Whenever any room in any hotel shall have been occupied by any person having a contagious or infectious disease, the said room shall be thoroughly fumigated and all bedding therein thoroughly disinfected before said room shall be occupied by any other person, but in any event, such room shall not be let to any person for at least forty-eight hours after such fumigation or disinfection.

Sec. 5. Every hotel shall be well drained, constructed and plumbed, according to sanitary rules to be established by the State Board of Health and shall be kept clean and in a sanitary condition and free from effluvia arising from any sewer, drain, privy or other source within the control of the owner, manager, agent or other person in charge; and shall be provided with water closets or privies properly screened for the separate use of males and females, which water closets or privies shall be disinfected as often as may be necessary to keep them, at all times, in a sanitary condition.

Sec. 6. Every owner, manager, agent or person in charge of a hotel, who shall fail to comply with any of the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00), nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00), or shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than ten days, nor more than three months, or both, and every day that such hotel is carried on in violation of this Act, shall constitute a separate offense.

Sec. 7. The State Board of Health shall cause to be printed and shall forward to each hotel, inn and public lodging house coming under the provisions of this Act, a sufficient number of copies of this Act, so as to enable the management of the said hotel, inn or public lodging house to post one notice in a conspicuous place in each room used for lodging purposes, and the said management shall cause the said notices so sent to be posted as provided for in this section.

Sec. 8. All Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

Mr. Beall offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 71.

WHEREAS, The rapid growth of East St. Louis and vicinity will soon encroach upon these tracts of land whereon are situated the famous monuments of the prehistoric mound-builders' work; and,

WHEREAS, The world-famed Cahokia Mound, covering 16 acres and 100 feet in height, constituting the greatest archaeological monument of its kind in the world, is one of the group; and,

WHEREAS, The preservation of these mounds to posterity is assuredly a public duty, from an educational and historical standpoint, and is being strongly urged by leading authorities throughout the United States; and,

WHEREAS, The destruction of these mounds, in the onward march of commerce, or their exploitation at the hands of private parties, would be a disgrace to the State; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Illinois Park Commission is hereby authorized and directed to conduct negotiations with the owners of the tracts whereon these mounds are situated, in St. Clair and Madison counties, and to report their findings to the Forty-eighth General Assembly, on or before February 1, 1915, stating the opinion of said commission as to the adaptability of portions of this territory for State Park purposes, the price at which the State can acquire the property, and giving such other information, suggestions and recommendations as said commission may deem advisable.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Beall, the rules were suspended and the foregoing resolution was taken up for immediate consideration and on his motion was adopted.

"For an Act to secure for the municipal court of Chicago the benefit of the provisions of the law regulating the civil service of the city of Chicago."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

That all offices and places of employment, except the offices which are filled by election and those offices and places of employment hereinafter specifically exempted, in the municipal court of the city of Chicago, shall be deemed to be offices and places of employment in such city within the meaning of section 3 of the Act entitled, "An Act to regulate the civil service of cities," approved and in force March 20, 1895, hereinafter called the city civil service Act, and subject to the provisions of such city civil service Act so far as the same can be made applicable and to all future amendments thereof, and for the purpose of applying said city civil service Act to the service of the municipal court hereby intended to be covered, its provisions, whenever not literally applicable to such service, shall be applied to such service by analogy according to the spirit and purpose thereof, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained: Provided, that the clerk and bailiff of the municipal court of Chicago shall not be liable for any misfeasance or malfeasance in office of any deputy clerk or deputy bailiff who shall become such under the provisions of this Act."

Sec. 2. That within ninety days after the adoption of this Act in the manner hereinafter provided, the civil service commissioners of the city of Chicago shall classify all the offices and places of employment in the service of the municipal court, other than the offices which are filled by election, and all persons who on the date when this Act shall have been adopted shall hold office or employment in the services so directed to be classified shall be deemed to be members of such classified service as though they had been appointed in accordance with the provisions of said city Civil Service Act and after examination. The chief justice, the clerk and the bailiff of the municipal court shall be deemed to be heads of the departments within the meaning of said city civil service Act.

Sec. 3. That for positions requiring similar duties and responsibilities, as determined by the classification of the civil service commission of the city of Chicago, salaries shall be uniform.

Sec. 4. All offices of the municipal court of Chicago which are filled by election and the offices and places of employment of; one chief deputy clerk; five assistant deputy clerks, one of whom shall act as auditor to the clerk, one as secretary to the clerk, and one as stenographer to the clerk; one chief deputy bailiff; two assistant chief deputy bailiffs; four deputy bailiffs, one of whom shall act as secretary to the bailiff; and the positions of attorney for the clerk and for the bailiff; shall be exempt from the provisions of said city civil service Act.

Sec. 5. That this Act shall be submitted to a vote of the legal voters of the city of Chicago at the first regular municipal, judicial, general or special election which shall occur in said city of Chicago after the first day of July, A. D., 1913. The ballots to be used in said election in voting upon this Act shall be substantially the following form:

For consenting to an Act, entitled "An Act to secure for the Municipal Court of Chicago the benefit of the provisions of law regulating the civil service of the city of Chicago."
Against consenting to an Act, entitled "An Act to secure for the Municipal Court of Chicago the benefit of the provisions of law regulating the civil service of the city of Chicago."

If a majority of the legal voters of said city voting on the question of said election shall vote in favor of consenting to this Act, the same shall thereupon take effect and become operative.

Was taken up and read at large a second time, together with the following amendments thereto (which have been printed), reported from the Committee on Civil Service, June 12, 1913:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly: That section four (4) of an Act entitled, "An Act to create sanitary districts and to remove obstructions in the Des Plaines and Illinois Rivers," approved May 29, 1889, in force July 1, 1889; as amended by an Act approved June 10, 1895, in force July 1, 1895; as amended by an Act approved May 13, 1897, in force July 1, 1897; as amended by an Act approved May 10, 1901, in force July 1, 1901; as amended by an Act approved May 11, 1905, in force July 1, 1905; as amended by an Act approved and in force Feb. 27, 1907; as amended by an Act approved May 25, 1907, in force July 1, 1907; as amended by an Act approved June 14, 1909, in force July 1, 1909; as amended by an Act approved May 27, 1911, in force July 1, 1911, be and the same is hereby amended, and that said Act be and it is hereby further amended by adding thereto twelve new additional sections to be known as section 4a, section 4b, section 4c, section 4d, section 4e, section 4f, section 4g, section 4h, section 4i, section 4j, section 4k, section 4l, which said section as amended and said additional sections shall read as follows:

Sec. 4. The trustees elected in pursuance of the foregoing provisions of this Act shall constitute a board of trustees for the district by which they are elected, which board of trustees is hereby declared to be the corporate authorities of such sanitary district, and shall exercise all the powers and manage and control all the affairs and property of such district, subject to the provisions of this Act. Such board of trustees shall, pursuant to the terms of this Act, have the right to appoint a clerk, treasurer, chief engineer and attorney for such municipality, who shall hold their respective offices during the pleasure of the board, who shall give bond as may be required by said board. Said board may prescribe the duties and fix the compensation of all the officers and employees of said sanitary district: Provided, however, that the salary of the president of said board of trustees, who shall be elected at any election held subsequent to the year 1910, shall in no case exceed seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500.00) per annum and the salary of each of the other trustees elected subsequent to the year 1910 shall not exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) per annum. Any incumbent of the office of trustee (excepting said president) whose term is now running and does not expire until after the passage of this Act, may appoint a private secretary, and such appointment shall remain in force until revoked by the trustee making the same, and such secretary shall receive a salary at the rate of two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) per annum, payable monthly. No trustee (excepting the president) shall be entitled to appoint such private secretary during such time as he shall receive the maximum salary herein authorized. Any incumbent of the office of president heretofore or hereafter elected may appoint a private secretary, which secretary shall receive a salary not to exceed three thousand five hundred dollars ($3,500.00) per annum, payable monthly. Any such appointment, made by the president, shall remain in force until revoked by such president or until the expiration of his term of office.

Said board of trustees shall have full power to pass all necessary ordinances, order, rules, resolutions and regulations for the proper management and conduct of the business of said board of trustees and of said corporation and for carrying into effect the object for which such sanitary district is formed. All ordinances, orders, rules, resolutions and regulations passed by said board of trustees shall, before they take effect, be approved by the president of said board of trustees, and if he shall approve thereof he shall sign the same, and such as he shall not approve, he shall return to the board of trustees with his objections thereto in writing at the next regular meeting of said board of trustees occurring after the passage thereof. Such veto may extend to any one or more items or appropriations contained in any ordinance making appropriations, or to the entire ordinance; and in case the veto extends to a part of such ordinance, the residue thereof shall take effect and be in force, but in case the president of such board of trustees shall fail to return any ordinance, order, rule, resolution or regulation, with his objections thereto by the time aforesaid, he shall be deemed to have approved the same, and the same shall take effect accordingly. Upon the return of any ordinance, order, rule, resolution or regulation by the president, the vote by which the same was passed shall be reconsidered by the board of trustees, and if upon such reconsideration two-thirds of all the members-elect shall agree by the yeas and nays to pass the same, it shall go into effect notwithstanding the president may refuse to approve thereof.

Sec. 4a. In all sanitary districts, organized under this Act, there is hereby created and established a civil service commission, hereinafter called the commission, to consist of three persons to be selected and appointed in the manner following:

Within thirty days after this Act becomes a law the trustees of such sanitary district shall, by ordinance, appoint two of their number and one other person, who shall hold no other office whatever, as civil service commissioners of such sanitary district. The commissioners thus appointed shall hold their respective offices until December 1, 1914, and until their successors are selected and qualified. At the first meeting of the board of trustees, of such sanitary district, held in December, 1914, and biennially thereafter, there shall be appointed, by ordinance, two of such trustees and one other person, as aforesaid, who shall hold office for the term of two years and until their successors are selected and qualified: Provided, however, that no more than two members of such commission shall belong to the same political party: And, provided, further, that whenever practicable, the trustees so selected as commissioners shall not belong to the same political party.

Each civil service commissioner, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take the oath prescribed by the Constitution; two members of the commissioners shall constitute a quorum. The board of trustees of such sanitary district may remove any member of said commission; but no member of such commission shall be removed, except for cause and upon notice. Such commissioners, who are also trustees of such sanitary district shall serve without pay as members of such civil service commission, and the third commissioner shall receive a salary of not to exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000.00) per annum.

As soon as may be, after their appointment and qualifications, the civil service commissioners shall organize by selecting one of their number chairman and one as secretary of such commission, and such chairman and secretary shall serve until their successors are selected.

Sec. 4b. For the purpose of this Act all provisions, conditions and restrictions of "An Act to regulate the civil service of the State of Illinois," approved May 11, 1905, in force July 1, 1905, as amended by an Act approved April 19, 1907, in force July 1, 1907; as amended by an Act approved May 25, 1907, in force July 1, 1907, and as further amended by an Act approved June 10, 1911, in force July 1, 1911, except wherein the same are inconsistent herewith, are hereby adopted and wherever not literally applicable to the service hereby intended to be covered, shall be applied to such service by analogy according to the spirit and purposes thereof: And, provided, further, that the commission hereby created shall so far as the administration of this Act is concerned, take the place and be in lieu of the State Civil Service Commission, provided for in such Act, and all officers and employees in the service of such sanitary district organized under this Act, except members of the board of trustees, heads of departments, namely, engineering department, electrical department, sewerage department, and Illinois valley department, also the comptroller, chief clerk, purchasing agent, private secretaries of the president and trustees, lawyers engaged in active law work, except law clerks, the assistants and consulting engineer and employees in the operating division of the electrical department, shall be appointed and employed under and subject to the provisions hereof. The commission provided for hereunder shall classify all the offices and places of employment in the service of any such sanitary district, with the above exceptions, and the offices and places of employment so classified shall, for the purpose of apply the provisions of this Act, be deemed the classified civil service of any such sanitary district.

Sec. 4c. The commission shall have power to employ, in accordance with the provisions hereof, an examiner for such sanitary district and define his duties, which shall be performed under the direction of the commission. They may also employ such assistants and employees as may be specially needed for the application of the law to such sanitary district. Such examiner assistants and employees shall receive salaries to be fixed by the board of trustees of such sanitary district and to be paid out of the funds of such sanitary district. The said commission may incur necessary expenses for stationery, printing and other incidental expenses in the discharge of said duties, and the said expenses shall be provided for and paid by the trustees of any such district as ordinary expenses of such district.

Sec. 4d. The commission shall certify to the auditing officer of any such sanitary district all appointments to offices and places in the classified service of said sanitary district and all vacancies occurring therein, whether by dismissal, resignation or death, and all findings, made or approved by the commission, that a person shall be discharged from the classified service under the provisions hereof.

Sec. 4e. No voucher shall be approved for any claim for the service of any person employed in the classified service of such sanitary district in violation of this Act or of the provisions of the civil service Act of this State, in so far as the same are applicable hereto.

Sec. 4f. No auditing officer of any sanitary district shall approve the payment of or be in any manner concerned in paying any salary or wages to any person for services as an officer or employee in the service of any sanitary district unless such person is occupying an office or place of employment according to the provisions of law and is actually performing the duties thereof, and is entitled to payment therefor.

Sec. 4g. No paymaster, treasurer, or other officer or agent of any sanitary district shall wilfully pay or be in any manner concerned in paying any person any salary or wages for such services as an officer or employee of any sanitary district unless such person is occupying an office, or place of employment according to the provisions of law and is actually performing the duties thereof and is entitled to payment therefor.

Sec. 4h. It shall be unlawful for the auditing or any other official or officer for any sanitary district to draw, sign, or issue, or authorize the drawing, signing or issuing of, any warrant on the treasurer or any disbursing officer of any sanitary district for the payment of, or for the treasurer or other disbursing officer of any sanitary district to pay, any salary or compensation to any officer, clerk or other person in the classified service of any sanitary district, unless an estimate, payroll or account for such salary or compensation containing the names of the persons to be paid and a statement of the amount to be paid out and the matter on account of which the same is to be paid, shall be filed with him bearing the certificate of the commission, that the person named in such estimate, payroll or account have been appointed or employed or promoted in pursuance of law and of the rules made in pursuance of this Act.

Sec. 4i. No officer or employee of any sanitary district shall discharge or degrade or promote, or in any manner change the official rank or compensation of any officer or employee in the classified service of the district, or promise or threaten to do so, for giving or withholding or neglecting to make any contribution or money or other valuable thing, for any party or political purpose, or for refusal or neglect to render any party or political service.

Sec. 4j. Any person who shall wilfully or through culpable negligence, violate any of the provisions of this Act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding six months, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 4k. If any person shall be convicted under the last preceding section, any public office or place of public employment which such person may hold shall, by force of such conviction, be rendered vacant.

Sec. 4l. Prosecution for violation of this Act may be instituted either by the Attorney General or by the state's attorney for the county in which the offense is alleged to have been committed, or by the commission acting through counsel. Such suits shall be conducted and controlled by the prosecuting officers who institute them unless they request the aid of other prosecuting officers.

The question being, "Shall the report of, and the amendments reported from, said committee be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

The question then being, "Shall the bill, as amended, be engrossed and printed for a third reading?" it was decided in the affirmative.

REPORTS FROM SELECT COMMITTEES.

Mr. Hay, from the joint legislative committee appointed by the Forty-seventh General Assembly to take up the matter of making a revision of laws relating to county and township organization and to roads, highways and bridges, made the following report, which, on his motion, was ordered spread upon the Journal:

REPORT OF THE SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE TO TAKE UP THE MATTER OF MAKING A GENERAL REVISION OF THE LAWS PERTAINING TO COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION AND THOSE RELATING TO ROADS, HIGHWAYS AND BRIDGES, CREATED BY SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 17, OF THE FORTY-SEVENTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY. PRESENTED BY HON. HOMER J. TICE, CHAIRMAN JOINT COMMITTEE.

To the Hon. Edward F. Dunne, Governor, and the Senate and House of Representatives of the Forty-eighth General Assembly:

IN THE MATTER OF SPECIAL JOINT COMMITTEE TO TAKE UP THE MATTER OF MAKING A GENERAL REVISION OF THE LAWS PERTAINING TO COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION AND THOSE RELATING TO ROADS, HIGHWAYS AND BRIDGES.

CREATED BY SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 17 OF THE FORTY-SEVENTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The following resolution was adopted at a regular session of the Forty-seventh General Assembly by the Senate and House of Representatives thereof:

"WHEREAS, The laws relating to county and township organization and those relating to roads, highways and bridges have not been revised for a great many years, and in a great many respects are defective and do not meet the requirements of modern conditions; and,

"WHEREAS, Said laws are so intimately connected and interwoven that it is almost impossible to make a complete revision of one without revising all of them; and,

"WHEREAS, Said laws cannot be revised by piece meal as judiciously as by a general revision of all of them at the same time by a competent committee; therefore, be it

"Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring herein, That a joint committee of ten be appointed, five to be named by the Senate and five to be named by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, to take up the matter of making a general revision of the laws pertaining to county and township organization, and those relating to roads, highways and bridges; that said committee be given full power to amend, revise and recodify said laws and make a full report to the present Legislature, or if that be impractical, then to the Forty-eighth General Assembly, in the form of a bill or bills to be introduced either at the present session or at the Forty-eighth General Assembly, for the purpose of enacting said revision into laws; and for such purpose, the said committee is authorized to employ such assistance (other than legal service) as may be necessary to carry out the provisions hereof."

The said committee and the members thereof shall be entitled to their actual expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions hereof; the expenses of the members of said committee and the pay of stenographers, clerks and other employees of said committee shall be paid out of the contingent funds of the Senate and House of Representatives, or out of any appropriation made therefor, on vouchers properly signed and approved by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives and filed with the Auditor of Public Accounts; the Attorney General of Illinois is respectfully requested to furnish said committee with such legal assistance as may be required; and all other departments of the State are requested to furnish any assistance to said committee as may be required; and that said committee make its report to the present session of the Legislature, or if that be impracticable, then to the Forty-eighth General Assembly.

REPORTS FROM HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS AND CLERKS.

The following letter and list of inquiries were sent by the committee to the 4800 Highway Commissioners and the 1600 Town Clerks of the State. In each instance an addressed and stamped envelope was enclosed for the reply.

DEAR SIR—We are mailing you and every other highway commissioner and clerk in the State the inclosed list of interrogatories.

The Joint Committee of the Senate and House, appointed by the last Legislature and clothed with authority to secure information for the purpose of "recodifying, rewriting and amending the road laws of the State," ask the earnest coöperation of every road official.

We feel that we are seeking information from the most competent and reliable source when we go to men who, like yourself, have both the confidence of their neighbors and the actual practical experience.

We wish to work in harmony with you, and while you are helping us we hope to be of service to you.

We wish to particularly emphasize two points:

First—The information sought is solely for the purpose of enabling the committee to arrive at intelligent conclusions. Every question asked is of the utmost importance in securing necessary and accurate information to guide the committee and guard against error in any conclusion reached.

Second—This committee, as a whole or as individuals, is not working for any one interest above another, but for all interests equally.

Not another state in the whole United States has undertaken so exhaustive a study of road laws and systems of construction and maintenance as Illinois is now attempting.

The value of the work will depend upon the completeness and accuracy of the information secured.

We most earnestly urge upon you the importance of being accurate and complete in detail in your answers to all questions.

Your personal knowledge of your township or district will enable you to figure in a short time, the number of miles of roads and the number of bridges of all kinds and culverts under your supervision. Your books of record should and will show the receipts of all moneys, from what sources received, and for what purposes expended in detail.

Your answers should apply to the last fiscal year.

Please write plainly or use typewriter if possible.

All questions and answers must be returned by March 1, 1912.

We would recommend that you have a meeting of your board at the earliest possible date for the compiling of your answers.

Please answer promptly, accurately and complete in detail.

Sincerely yours,

HOMER J. TICE,
Chairman.

REPLIES TO INQUIRIES SENT TO HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS AND CLERKS.

Replies to the series of inquiries sent to the highway commissioners and clerks throughout the State furnish a considerable mass of data relating to road conditions and methods of road work in Illinois. But the information received from these sources is far from complete, and the reports are often in the form of rough estimates; while at the same time there is an uncertain amount of duplication, in cases where several commissioners each sent a distinct set of replies covering the same township or road district. Under these conditions, the statistical totals and averages compiled from these replies cannot be accepted as accurate. Nevertheless, it is possible from them to base some general statements as to the present highway system.

NUMBER OF REPLIES.

From the 6,400 township and road district highway officials in Illinois, a total of 1,416 replies were received. But these represented a good deal more than this proportion (less than a fourth) of the highway officials. In many cases the three highway commissioners and clerk of a township or road district united in a single report for the whole district. In other cases only one official reported, and in others, two, three or four reports were submitted; and it is not always clear whether such reports cover a whole township or road district, or only the sub-district of a single highway commissioner.

In the aggregate the replies received were signed by 2,016 commissioners and clerks, representing 880 townships and road districts, out of the 1,610 in the State. The mileage of highways covered by these reports amounted to 55,349—about three-fifths of the total highway mileage of 94,141, as compiled by the State Highway Commission in 1904. Making allowances for duplicate figures, where two or more reports may cover the same district, it may be roughly estimated that the replies cover about one-half of the highways in Illinois.

GENERAL CHARACTER OF THE SOIL.

Replies as to the character of the soil show that through a large part of the State, the soil is black loam, with more or less clay. From forty-four counties most of the replies reported black and clay soil; from thirteen others, black, clay and sand were reported; and from six more, the soil was reported as mixed. These counties cover most of the northern and central sections of the State. From ten counties in the east central section, the soil was reported as mostly black or gumbo. From twenty-five counties, the soil was reported as mostly clay; and from four others as clay and sand or hardpan. The latter counties are mostly in the southern third of the State; but include also Brown, Peoria and Rock Island counties.

WIDTH OF HIGHWAYS.

Reports of the total width of highways, averaged by counties, ranged from 25 feet in Calhoun County and 31 feet in Hardin County, to 62 feet in Kankakee, Ogle and Winnebago counties and 63 feet in Boone County. The general average for all the reports was 47 feet.

Reports as to the width of grade varied from 12 feet in Union County to 31 feet in Knox County, with a general average of 23 feet.

ROAD DRAGS AND GRADERS.

The most common forms of road work reported are dragging and grading. From eighty-nine counties, most or all of the replies reported road drags in use; from ten counties there were both affirmative and negative reports; while from three counties (Alexander, Hardin and DuPage) all the reports received stated that no drags were used. From all the counties except Hardin, the replies reported that road graders were used. The aggregate mileage reported of roads dragged was 29,676, and of roads graded was 20,555—about 53 per cent and 36 per cent of the total highway mileage reported. But as some reports gave no answer to this inquiry, the proportion of roads dragged and graded is probably larger than is indicated.

An aggregate of 8,926 drags were reported; but many of the replies gave no data on this inquiry. Answers to the inquiry as to the number of times roads were dragged each year showed a wide variation, from one or two in many cases to nine or ten in other instances. The general average of the replies was five times. On the other hand, the great preponderance of replies reported that the same roads were not graded more than once a year. From seventy-eight counties, substantially all the replies were to this effect; from twenty-one counties the replies reported some cases where roads were graded more than once; while from only three counties (Cook, Bureau and Lawrence) did the replies indicate that regrading was usual. The cost of grading reported also showed large variations. The averages by counties ranged from $2.96 per mile for grading a mile one time, to $55.00. The general average of the costs reported was $14.03 per mile.

Nearly all the replies expressed favorable opinions of road drags and graders. In some cases no opinion was given; and in a few instances (twenty-one in the case of road drags and thirty-seven for road graders) the opinions were unfavorable. The unfavorable opinions were isolated cases, not more than one or two from any county.

SEASONS FOR ROAD WORK.

Throughout the State work on the roads is reported to be largely done in the spring; while the reports indicate a good deal of variation in the amount of work done at other seasons. It is difficult, however, to reconcile the replies to the general inquiry as to road work as whole with those to the more specific inquiries as to the use of road drags and graders. From thirty counties most of the replies reported that road drags were used mainly in the spring; and from thirty-one counties road graders were also reported to be used mostly during the spring. But only from nine counties, do the replies report the spring alone as the time for the largest amount of road work as a whole. From forty-two counties, most of the replies report that road work is done mainly in the spring and summer; and from forty-three counties road graders are reported to be used largely in the same seasons. From forty-two counties the fall months are included as one of the periods of active road work; from twenty-two counties road drags are reported to be used in the fall; and from twenty-five counties, road graders are reported to be used at this season. From twenty-one counties the reports showed that road drags were used in the winter; and from twenty-two counties, drags were reported in use at all seasons. These were mostly in the central and southern sections of the State; but winter work was reported from counties as far north as Marshall, LaSalle and Bureau. From these reports road work appears to be most active and most general in the spring (after corn planting); in many parts of the state a good deal is done in the summer months; fall work is less common; and road work in winter is still more limited. These statements, however, contrast sharply with the reports from rural carriers, nearly two-thirds of whom report that road work is to a large extent done in the fall months, while less than a third report much work done in the spring or summer.

PLOWS AND SCRAPERS.

The use of the plow and scraper for road work is much less general than the use of road drags and graders. In eleven counties, the plow and scraper were said to be used extensively; in twenty-nine counties, they were reported to be used considerably or a good deal; while in sixty-two counties, the reports indicated but little use of these implements. The counties reporting the largest use of the plow and scraper included most of the southern counties where clay soil predominates, and some of the central counties where the soil is partly clay.

TILING.

Reports as to the extent of roads tiled aggregated a total of 5,223 miles, less than a tenth of the highway mileage reported. But many of the replies gave no data on this inquiry. Less than a third of the replies answered the inquiry as to where tiling is laid. Of these nearly three-fifths replied on one side of the road; most of the others replied on both sides; and seventeen replied that tiling was laid in the center of the road.

Reports as to the average size of tile varied from a minimum county average of $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches to a maximum county average of eighteen inches. The general average for the State was $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

The average depth of tile reported ranged from a minimum county average of six inches to a maximum county average of $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet. The general average for the State was 2.89 feet.

Reports as to the average cost of tiling showed a wider variation, the county averages ranging from a minimum of 44 cents per rod to a maximum of $4.50. For the State as a whole, the amounts reported averaged $1.09 per rod.

IMPROVED ROADS.

From thirty counties continuous stretches of gravel roads were reported; and from thirty-two counties continuous stretches of hard or rock roads. In twenty-five counties there were such stretches of both classes of improved roads; and altogether from thirty-seven counties continuous stretches of one or the other class were reported. Of the thirty-seven counties, nineteen were in the northern section of the State, ten in the central section and eight in the southern section. From forty counties short sections of gravel or rock roads were reported. From twenty-five counties no improved roads were reported, fifteen of these being in the central section and ten in the southern section.

A total of 4,173 miles of gravel roads and 2,249 miles of rock or hard roads were reported by the highway commissioners. But many of the replies gave no data on this point; and the total mileage of gravel and improved roads reported by the highway commissioners is less than that reported by the rural carriers.

The width of grade reported for improved roads ranges from ten to twenty-eight feet. The general average of the widths reported was fifteen feet for both classes of roads.

Reports as to the cost per mile of gravel roads ranged from $125 in Hardin County to $3,250 per mile in Crawford County for gravel roads. The general average of the reports was $1,048 per mile. The cost of hard or rock roads was reported at from $610 per mile in DuPage County to $3,700 in Saline County. The general average of the reports was $2,663 per mile.

Only about half of the replies expressed any opinion either in favor or against improved roads. Of the opinions expressed three-fourths were favorable, and one-fourth unfavorable.

BRIDGES.

The total number of bridges reported in the replies from highway commissioners and clerks aggregated 45,069. A considerable number of replies gave no data as to the number of bridges of different kinds. The replies giving this information reported 21,183 wooden bridges—a little more than half—12,564 iron, 3,907 cement or concrete, and 1,377 iron or wood with cement or concrete floor.

Information as to the average dimensions and average cost of bridges in most cases must have been only vague guesses, and the statistics furnished showed such whimsical variations that no conclusions of value can be drawn. The average span of bridges was reported as ranging from 5 feet to 95 feet; but the general average of the replies for the entire State showed some conformity to what might be expected. The span of wooden bridges averaged 20 feet, of cement or concrete bridges 17 feet, of iron bridges and iron or wooden bridges with concrete floor 39 feet.

The average cost reported for wooden bridges ranged from $9.00 to more than $400; for cement or concrete bridges from $12.00 to $1,000; and for iron bridges from $120 to over $3,000. The general averages for the entire State were: For wooden bridges, $129; for cement or concrete bridges, $335; for iron bridges, $835 and for iron or wooden bridges with cement or concrete floor $870.

Opinions as to the most practicable and economical bridge showed a preponderance in favor of cement or concrete. The material was given the preference in forty-nine counties, and was favored by some commissioners in nine other counties. Iron and concrete was preferred in thirty-nine counties, and iron was favored by some replies in thirteen counties.

CULVERTS.

The total number of culverts reported was 89,857. The dimensions reported were no less varied than those for bridges, the average diameter or cross section ranging from 15 inches in one county to 88 inches in another. The general average of the reports for the State was 31 inches in diameter by 17 feet length.

Reports as to the average cost of culverts ranged from $3.00 to $150 for wooden culverts, from $4.00 to $125 for tile culverts, and from $5.00 to $200 for iron culverts. The general average for the State was $13.42 for wooden culverts, $20.00 for tile and $34.00 for iron.

Iron and wood appear to be the most used materials for culverts. Wood was reported as most used in thirty-two counties and by some replies from seventeen other counties; iron was reported as most used from twenty-nine counties and by some of the replies from twenty-four other counties. Concrete appears to be used to a considerable extent in sixteen counties, and tile in about the same number of counties.

Opinions as to the best material for culverts showed a decided preponderance in favor of concrete. This material was preferred in the replies from fifty-one counties, and by some replies from twenty-three other counties. Iron was preferred in twenty-six counties, and by some replies from twenty other counties.

ROAD TAXES AND EXPENDITURES.

Somewhat more than half of the replies reported that the road work was done under the cash or paid labor system; somewhat less than half reporting the labor system or both cash and labor systems. Most of the replies from fifty-three counties reported the cash system; and those from forty-nine counties reported the labor system or both methods in use.¹ Nearly all of the counties where the labor system seems to be more common are in the southern half of the State; but exceptions may be noted in the cases of Ford, JoDaviess, Kankakee, Macoupin, Peoria, Rock Island and Stephenson counties.

The total number of days labor reported aggregated 65,098. But a large proportion of the replies gave no information on this point.

Information in regard to the amount of road taxes and expenditures was also far from complete. The aggregate of the amounts reported thus by no means represent the total amounts received and expended; but they may indicate very roughly something of the relative proportions of various items of receipts and expenditures. The aggregate road and bridge tax reported is only about 40 per cent of the amount levied as shown by the reports to the Auditor of Public Accounts.

SERVICES OF HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS.

Reports as to the number of days each commissioner was engaged in attending board meetings averaged by counties showed a range from 4 to 88 days. The general average was 26 days. The reports as to the number of days each commissioner was employed in overseeing road work averaged by counties from 7 to 118 days, with a general average of 35 days. The lowest county average was from Ford County—13 days at board meetings and 7 days overseeing road work. The highest county average was in Crawford County—88 days at board meetings and 118 days overseeing road work. The commissioners of one township in Crawford County reported 145 days each for attendance at board meetings; and a commissioner in another township of this county reported 50 days attendance at board meetings and 200 days overseeing road work. In 17 counties, the number of days reported for attending board meetings was larger than number of days for overseeing road work.

The general average of these reports indicates that from one-third to one-half of the total number of days service of highway commissioners is for attending board meetings; and but little more than a half for overseeing work on the roads.

REPORTS FROM RURAL MAIL CARRIERS.

INQUIRIES SENT TO RURAL CARRIERS.

The committee sent a series of thirty-four questions on road conditions to the rural letter carriers throughout the State; and the replies from these form the most extensive and most satisfactory body of definite information that has been collected concerning the highways and bridges of Illinois.

As noted in connection with a similar inquiry by the State Highway Commission, the rural carriers, from the nature of their work, are probably better acquainted with the conditions in their respective neighborhoods than anyone else. They travel the roads, when usable, almost daily throughout the year, and know from actual experience the conditions at all times and seasons. In no other way, could such comprehensive and reliable data be secured.

In collecting this information, the active assistance of the letter carriers was secured through the coöperation of the National Postoffice Department. The committee sought and obtained permission from Postmaster General Hitchcock to submit to the rural mail carriers of the State the list of questions herein shown. The department furnished the committee a list of the rural delivery postoffices in the State, showing the number of routes from each office, and also issued instructions to the postmasters to have the carriers reply to the questions. To the postmaster of each rural delivery postoffice, there was sent the following letter, with a sufficient number of the lists of questions to cover all the routes from each office:

Mr. Postmaster:

DEAR SIR—We are sending you a series of questions which we will ask you to kindly give to your different rural route men and ask them to make reply just as promptly as possible.

In the investigation being made by this committee, it is desirous of obtaining actual facts and we would suggest that you say to your men that it is accuracy we desire. It may be that some have very decided views relative to the public road question. We hope that no prejudice will be permitted to enter into the replies made. We want the honest and earnest coöperation of every man who is interested in the public road question, and to that end we are asking that this matter meet with prompt and accurate attention.

Very respectfully yours,

HOMER J. TICE,
Chairman.

- No. 6. Do you use one or two horse or power vehicle?
- No. 7. State general character of the soil of the roadway of your route.
- No. 8. Give a detailed description of the entire traveled portion of the roadway of your route, specifying in particular the number and general character of hills or elevations; number and general character of swags or water basins; number and general character of levies, and number and general character of cuts.
- No. 9. What is the average width of the traveled portion of the road on your route?
- No. 10. Could the hills or elevations in the road on your route be reduced so as to materially lessen the incline, at a reasonable cost?
- No. 11. Could the swags or water basins, in the road on your route, be filled or drained, at a reasonable cost?
- No. 12. At what season of the year is the work mostly done on the roads of your route?
- No. 13. What is the general character of the work done on the roads of your route?
- No. 14. What road tools are chiefly used in the work on the roads of your route?
- No. 15. To what extent and how often are the roads of your route dragged?
- No. 16. Is the work of dragging done by the farmers of the neighborhood or by regularly employed labor?
- No. 17. At what times, in your opinion, is a road most benefited by dragging?
- No. 18. After a road is once constructed, can it be maintained in good condition and brought to practically a permanently good road by dragging?
- No. 19. State the general character of drainage, surface and sub-surface, of the roadway, of your route. Good, bad or indifferent?
- No. 20. Is any part of the roadway of your route tiled, and if so, can you estimate the number of rods?
- No. 21. What per cent of improvement, if any, in general condition, do the roads of your route now show as compared with their general condition when you entered the service?
- No. 22. What per cent of the labor and money expended upon the roads of your route, do you estimate, secure results of a permanent character?
- No. 23. How many days of the year and in what season of the year are you unable to make your route on account of road conditions?
- No. 24. How many days of the year and in what season of the year, is it a very great hardship both on horses and yourself to make your route on account of road conditions?
- No. 25. How many days of the year and at what season of the year are the roads of your route practically unusable for hauling loads; a load meaning from a ton to a ton and one-half in weight?
- No. 26. What per cent of gain in efficiency of your service would result from improved road conditions?
- No. 27. State number of bridges of all kinds on your route.
(a) Iron.
(b) Wooden.
(c) Cement or concrete.
(d) Iron or wooden bridges having cement or concrete flooring.

- No. 28. State average dimensions, length, width, and height, so far as possible, of all bridges on your route.
 (a) Iron.
 (b) Wooden.
 (c) Cement or concrete.
 (d) Iron or wooden bridges having cement or concrete flooring.
- No. 29. What is your observation as to life of a bridge?
 (a) Iron.
 (b) Wooden.
 (c) Cement or concrete.
 (d) Iron or wooden bridges having cement or concrete flooring.
- No. 30. What is your observation as to the life of the flooring of a bridge?
 (a) Wooden flooring.
 (b) Cement or concrete flooring.
- No. 31. State number of culverts on your route.
 (a) Iron.
 (b) Wooden.
 (c) Tile.
- No. 32. What is the occupation of the Road Commissioner or Commissioners having in charge the roads of your route, other than that of supervising the roads?
- No. 33. How long have the Commissioners who have charge of the roads of your route held office?
- No. 34. State in detail, based upon your personal experience and observation, suggestions for the permanent improvement and maintenance of the roads of your route.

REPLIES RECEIVED.

Of the 2,856 rural carrier routes in the State, replies were received from the letter carriers on 2,724 routes. These routes aggregated a total of 66,628 miles; and while the routes overlap to some extent the reports cover about two-thirds of the 94,141 miles of public roads in the State, as estimated by the State Highway Commission for 1905.

Tables IV, V, VI and VII give an abstract by counties of the replies received from the rural letter carriers.

DATA CONCERNING RURAL CARRIERS.

Some information was asked as to the age former occupation and length of service of the rural carriers, which throws some light on the value of their replies. For the State as a whole, the average age of rural carriers reporting was 38.3 years, ranging from a maximum average of 45.7 years in DuPage County to a minimum average of 29.8 in Pulaski County. More than a half of those reporting their former occupations were farmers, the number for this and other occupations being shown below:

Farmers.....	1,458
Teamsters and laborers.....	184
Clerks.....	147
Teachers.....	83
Merchants.....	45
Other occupations.....	629
Total.....	2,546

The average length of service for the entire state was 6.1 years; and in most of the counties the average was between five and seven years.

MILEAGE OF RURAL ROUTES AND PUBLIC ROADS.

As noted above the mileage of rural routes covered by the reports is about two-thirds of the total mileage of public roads in the State. In most of the counties the mileage of rural routes is from 60 to 80 per cent of the total mileage of public roads. In four counties, the rural routes aggregate more than the miles of public roads as follows:

County.	Miles of rural routes.	Total miles of public roads.
Knox.....	775	743
Sangamon.....	1,371	1,220
Stark.....	450	443
White.....	689	600

The larger mileage of rural routes is probably due to the overlapping of routes; but it would appear that in these counties nearly all the public roads are covered by rural carriers.

On the other hand, in ten counties the mileage of rural routes reported is less than half of the total mileage of public roads, as follows:

County.	Miles of rural routes reported.	Total miles of public roads.
Alexander.....	59.8	427
Calhoun.....	94	288
Clinton.....	335	704
Henderson.....	226	607
Marshall.....	285	634
Massac.....	136	403
Monroe.....	262	763
Pope.....	165.7	405
Pulaski.....	155.1	346
Schuyler.....	124	736

In the case of Schuyler County no reports were received from ten rural routes; and as the average route covers 24.5 miles, these would bring the total for that county to about 370 miles, or just about one-half of the mileage of public roads. In none of the other counties in the above list is there more than one route missing.

Six of these ten counties are small counties not under township organization. Henderson county has next to the smallest rural population per square mile of any county in the State (25.9, compared with an average of 38.6 for the State).

None of these counties have any considerable amount of improved roads; and most of them have no improved roads; but in these respects they are equalled by a good many other counties where the rural routes cover a much larger proportion of the total mileage of roads.

ROAD CONDITIONS AT DIFFERENT SEASONS

Replies to the inquiry as to the condition of different classes of roads at different seasons of the year are summarized in the following table:

	Earth roads.	Gravel roads.	Rock or macadam.
Spring—
Good.....	223	458	385
Bad.....	2,221	240	57
Fair or mixed.....	225	94	20
Summer—
Good.....	2,385	713	427
Bad.....	42	15	12
Fair or mixed.....	211	28	13
Autumn—
Good.....	2,145	699	425
Bad.....	325	29	15
Fair or mixed.....	264	54	14
Winter—
Good.....	318	495	397
Bad.....	1,964	156	32
Fair or mixed.....	344	108	26

It will be noted that nearly all the carriers reported all classes of roads in good condition in the summer and autumn; and most of the carriers reporting on gravel and rock roads reported that they were in good condition at all seasons. More than three-fourths of the carriers reported that earth roads were in bad condition during both spring and winter months; and more than 10 per cent reported such roads bad in autumn. About one-third of the carriers reporting on gravel roads stated that they were in bad condition in the spring, such replies coming most largely from counties in the northern part of the State—Cook, DeKalb, DuPage, Kane, LaSalle, Peoria and McHenry. About one-fifth of these carriers also reported gravel roads in bad condition during the autumn months.

HOURS REQUIRED TO MAKE ROUTES.

The effect of the road conditions at different seasons of the year are clearly indicated by the reports of the number of hours required to make the rural routes. For the State as a whole, the average time in summer and autumn is 5.8 hours, and for the winter and spring 7.3 hours, a difference of one and one-half hours or approximately one-fourth longer during the bad seasons. In thirty counties (in the central and southern sections) the average time to make the route in spring or winter is two hours or more longer than in the summer; in Bureau, Putnam, Shelby, Calhoun, Monroe and Richland counties the increase reported averaged two hours and a half; and in Henderson County the average increase was over three hours.

In the northern half of the State the spring appears to be the worst season for the rural carriers; while in the southern half the winter is the time of most difficulty, judged by the time required to make the routes.

VEHICLES USED BY RURAL CARRIERS.

A rough indication of the character of the roads on the rural routes is furnished by the types of vehicles used by the rural carriers. The replies to the questions on the subject aggregated as follows:

	Number.	Per cent.
Two horse vehicles.....	1,310	53.2
One and two horse vehicles.....	586	23.8
One horse vehicles.....	284	11.5
Power vehicles.....	282	11.5
Total.....	2,462	100.0

More than one-half of the carriers used two horse vehicles, and nearly a fourth used two horse vehicles part of the time. Less than one-eighth used only one horse vehicles, and about the same proportion used power vehicles. The largest number of power vehicles were used in Bureau, Iroquois, Livingston, McLean and Whiteside counties.

CHARACTER OF THE SOIL.

The number and percentage of carriers reporting the general character of the soil on their routes is shown below:

	Number.	Per cent.
Black and clay.....	1,056	42.87
Clay.....	508	20.62
Black.....	462	18.75
Black, clay and sand.....	149	6.04
Light or gray and clay.....	104	4.22
Clay and sand.....	95	3.85
Black and sand or gravel.....	89	3.61
Total.....	2,463	99.96

The figures, however, do not give any definite idea of the relative amount of the different kinds of soil. At first sight, they indicate that clay is the predominant type of soil in Illinois; but where both black and clay soil is reported, it is probable that in many cases the greater part of the district covered is black soil, with some clay. From a dozen counties in the southern part of the State (extending from Crawford County to Johnson County) most of the carriers report clay soil; and from about the same number of counties in the east central section, most of the carriers report only black soil.

The small number of carriers reporting sandy or gravel soils emphasize the absence of this type in Illinois. Only 437 of the 2,463 carriers reporting on this topic report sand, gravel or light or gray soil.

IMPROVED ROADS,

The reports from the rural carriers as to the mileage of improved roads in 1912 may be compared with reports collected by the State Engineer for the years 1905 and 1909; and a summary of the data for the three years is presented in the table below, showing totals by certain groups of counties.

For the State as a whole, the data showed 7,865 miles of improved road in 1905, and 8,914 miles in 1909, the total for the latter year forming 9.47 per cent of the total mileage of public roads in the State. The reports of the rural carriers aggregate 8,425.4 miles of improved roads on their routes, forming 12.7 per cent of the total mileage of routes reported. This, however, does not indicate that the proportion of improved roads in the State has increased to the extent of the percentage figures; since much the greater part of the improved roads are undoubtedly used by the rural carriers.

The data reported by the rural carriers for 1912 separates the gravel roads from macadam roads; and indicates that approximately one-fifth of the improved roads are macadamized and about four-fifths are gravel roads.

These totals and percentages for the entire State combine a wide variety of different conditions; and it is important to understand the distribution of the improved roads in different parts of the State. In five contiguous counties in the northeastern corner, over one-half of the public roads are improved—Kane (82.38 per cent), McHenry, DuPage, Cook and Kendall. Seven other neighboring counties—Boone, Winnebago, DeKalb, Lake, Bureau, LaSalle, and Will—each have from 25 to 48 per cent of their roads improved. These twelve northeastern counties contain two-thirds of all the improved roads in the State; and nearly one-half of all the public roads in this group of counties are improved.

A second main group of counties includes those with from 10 to 25 per cent of improved roads. This includes fourteen counties, Peoria, Edgar, Whiteside, Ogle, Kankakee, Grundy, Vermilion, Putnam, Lee, Massac, Ford, Adams, Stephenson and McLean. Several of these are north of the Illinois river, and near the counties in the first group; but others are counties in the central part of the State, usually containing a city of some size. These fourteen counties contain more than a fifth of the improved roads in Illinois.

The twenty-six counties in these two groups, with about 30 per cent of the total public roads in the State contain nearly 90 per cent of all the improved roads.

The remaining seventy-six counties, comprising five-sevenths of the total area, and with 70 per cent of the total mileage of public roads had in 1909 less than 900 miles of improved roads, but little more than 1 per cent of the total mileage of public roads in these counties. The reports of the rural carriers for these counties for 1912 show a total of 1,400 miles of improved roads for these counties in 1912, which is more than 50 per cent larger than the data for 1909. But even these figures amount to little more than 3 per cent of the mileage of rural routes reported, and barely 2 per cent of the total mileage of public roads in these counties.

In the attached table, the data for the counties with less than 10 per cent of improved roads has been given separately for counties with and without township organization. This grouping shows that the counties with township organization have a slightly larger mileage of roads in proportion to area, and in 1909 a slightly larger percentage of improved roads than the counties not under township organization. But the difference between these two groups is very slight and of no special significance.

POSSIBLE IMPROVEMENTS.

Two general questions were asked as to the possibility of improving road conditions, and to both the great preponderance of replies was in the affirmative, as shown below:

	Yes.	Some.	No.
Could the hills or elevations be reduced so as to materially lessen the incline at a reasonable cost?.....	1,725	203	284
Could the swags or water basins be filled or drained at a reasonable cost?.....	2,263	45	59

From almost every county most of the replies to both questions were in the affirmative. But from Livingston County, only nine carriers replied yes to the first of these questions, and eleven answered no. There were also a number of negative replies to this question from LaSalle and Ogle counties.

WIDTH OF TRAVELED ROADWAY.

Replies to the inquiry as to the width of the traveled roadway showed a wide variation ranging from 8 or 10 feet to the full width of four rods reserved for the road. In a number of cases, the replies stated that the width of the traveled roadway varied according to the condition of the road, from a wagon track when the road was good up to the full width of the roadway when the ground was soft.

The average width by counties of traveled road as reported, showed a range from an average of 12.5 feet in Hardin County to 42.2 feet in Livingston County. The average for many of the northern and central counties was over 30 feet. The average of these county averages for the entire state was 26.4 feet.

SEASON WHEN ROADS ARE WORKED.

Replies to the question as to the season when most work is done on the roads may be summarized as follows:

Spring.	Summer.	Fall.
384	322	942
252	-----	252
-----	349	349
795	830	1,543

Nine hundred forty-two carriers, more than a third of the total of 2,408, reported that the principal road work is done in the fall. Six hundred one other carriers reported the fall as one of two seasons when road work was done. Altogether 1,543 carriers, nearly two-thirds of the carriers, reported that road work was to a large extent done in the fall months. Less than one-third of the carriers reported much road work done in the spring; and about the same number reported the summer as a time for road work.

The general situation was reported from the great majority of the counties. But in twelve counties, most of the road work appears to be done in the spring,—including Champaign, Cook, Livingston, McLean, St. Clair and Vermilion counties.

CHARACTER OF ROAD WORK AND ROAD TOOLS.

Replies to the questions as to the character of road work done and the road tools used showed less agreement than might be expected; and the replies to both questions should be considered together. The table below gives the aggregate figures on these two questions.

NUMBER OF CARRIERS REPORTING.

Total.....	1,905	Total.....	2,368
Grading.....	1,611	Use of grader.....	2,083
Dragging.....	736	Use of drags.....	1,101
Scraping.....	330	Use of scraper.....	998
Ploughing.....	105	Use of plow.....	414
Graveling.....	163
Repairing.....	138

While the numbers for the corresponding items show a good deal of variation, the relative importance of the several methods and tools is much the same. Over 80 per cent of the carriers report grading and the use of graders; nearly 50 per cent report the use of road drags, and over 40 per cent report the use of scrapers. Less than 20 per cent report the use of plows on road work; and less than 15 per cent report graveling or repairing on the roads.

Dragging and the use of road drags are reported most largely from the counties in the central part of the State, such as Champaign, Iroquois, Livingston, McLean, Sangamon, Tazewell and Vermilion. Scraping is reported most largely from counties in the southern part of the State, such as Clark, Clay, Fayette, Johnson, Randolph, Wayne and Williamson. Graveling is reported most often from some counties north of the Illinois river,—DuPage, Kane, LaSalle, McHenry, Will and Winnebago—where there is a considerable amount of gravel roads.

Replies to the inquiry whether road dragging is done by farmers, by employed labor or by both were as follows:

	Number.	Per cent.
Farmers.....	1,734	72.55
Employed labor.....	367	15.35
Both.....	289	12.10

In nearly every county the preponderance of replies were that this work is done by farmers. But from Kane, Madison, Sangamon and Williamson counties, a majority of the replies reported employed labor; and from Champaign, McLean and Vermilion counties nearly half the replies reported employed labor or both.

BEST TIME FOR ROAD WORK.

The replies to the question as to the time when roads are most benefited by dragging, were:

	Number.	Per cent.
After rain or thaw.....	1,407	57.47
Spring.....	647	26.40
Winter and spring.....	158	6.45
Before freeze and after rain.....	126	5.14
Spring and fall.....	110	4.50

Rains and thaws are most characteristic of the spring months; so it may be said that 2,054, or more than 80 per cent of the carriers replying considered the spring as the best time for road dragging. All the other replies also include the spring as one of the best times; but consider that some work may be done in the fall or winter.

VALUE OF ROAD DRAGGING.

More than 80 per cent of the carriers replying stated that after a road was once constructed it can be maintained in good condition and brought to a reasonably permanently good road by dragging. The number of affirmative answers was 2,169; and the negative 236. The largest proportion of negative replies was from Vermilion County,—sixteen out of twenty-four.

DRAINAGE.

Replies as to the general character of the drainage along the public roads may be summarized as follows:

	Number.	Percent.
Good.....	720	30.3
Bad.....	780	32.8
Indifferent.....	669	28.2
Good and bad.....	203	8.5

The largest proportion of good drainage was reported from counties in the northern and central sections, notably from Iroquois, Livingston, LaSalle, McHenry, Vermilion and Winnebago counties. The largest proportion of bad drainage was reported from counties in the southern part of the state. Nearly two-thirds of the carriers (1,487) reported that the roadway was tiled to some extent. The total number of rods of tiled roadway reported was 465,361, equal to 1,454 miles; but a large proportion of the carriers gave no data on this point. The counties from which the largest amounts of tiled roadway were reported were:

	Rods.		Rods.
Iroquois.....	72,300	Vermilion.....	15,010
Champaign.....	54,620	Ford.....	14,500
Livingston.....	30,940	Will.....	14,490

ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

In reply to the question as to the per cent of the labor and money expended upon the roads which secures results of a permanent character, 541 carriers reported very little or none, while those reporting in percentage figures averaged 36.3 per cent.

The counties from which the percentage averaged over 50 per cent were:

	Per cent.		Per cent.
Alexander.....	80.0	Will.....	53.7
Boone.....	73.3	DeKalb.....	53.1
Cook.....	64.3	McDonough.....	51.7
Putman.....	58.3	Henry.....	51.6
Kane.....	57.0	McHenry.....	51.0
Lake.....	54.7	Kendall.....	50.1

All of these except Alexander are in the northern part of the State. The counties from which the smallest percentages were reported were:

	Per cent.		Per cent.
Hardin.....	16.6	Perry.....	16.6
Calhoun.....	5.0	Massac.....	17.0
Monroe.....	10.0	Jasper.....	17.6

Definite replies to the question as to the percentage of improvement now shown in the roads as compared with their general conditions when the carriers entered the service averaged 28.2 per cent for the State; but 1,414 carriers or almost one-half reported very little or no improvement. The counties from which the highest and lowest average percentages of improvement were reported were as follows:

	Highest per cent.		Lowest per cent.
McHenry.....	61.0	Peoria.....	19.4

INFLUENCE OF ROAD CONDITIONS ON TRAVEL.

Replies to the questions as to the influence of road conditions in adding to the difficulties of travel may be summarized as follows:

	Number replying.	Number Fall.	Number reporting. Winter.	Spring.	Average number of days.
When unable to make route.....	1,899	22	1,373	1,292	8.9
When it is a very great hardship to both horses and carrier to make route.....	2,399	135	1,828	2,225	69.9
When roads are practically unusable for hauling a load (i. e. a ton to a ton and a half).....	1,971	156	1,323	1,904	76.6

More than one-third (760) of the replies reported that it is impossible to make the route on some days in both winter and spring; about one-third (607) reported such days in winter; and nearly one-third (516) reported such days in the spring months. At the same time nearly two-thirds of the replies (1,599 out of 2,399 and 1,172 out of 1,971) reported that days of great hardship and days when the roads were unusable for full loads came both in winter and spring; and most of the others (499 and 576) reported such days as especially characteristic of the spring months.

Analyzing by counties, the reports as to the number of days on which travel is seriously handicapped shows a wide range of variation. The following lists show the counties from which the greatest and least interruption to travel is reported.

GREATEST AMOUNT OF INTERRUPTION—AVERAGE NUMBER OF DAYS REPORTED.

County.	Un- able to make route.	Great hard- ship.	Un- able for loads.
Adams.....	21.1	66.6	92.0
Alexander.....		120.0	120.0
Franklin.....	9.1	94.5	109.0

LEAST AMOUNT OF INTERRUPTION—AVERAGE NUMBER OF DAYS REPORTED.

County.	Unable to make route.	Great hard- ship.	Unus- able for loads.
DuPage.....	3.0	50.0	53.3
Hamilton.....	3.6	49.0	80.0
Henderson.....	4.8	16.3	45.0
Kane.....	10.2	46.9	35.0
Kendall.....	1.3	41.8	64.1
Lee.....	3.6	43.7	57.0
Marshall.....	2.2	62.5	51.6
Putnam.....	1.0	68.1	58.5
Union.....	3.3	54.6	63.6
Whiteside.....	4.2	37.4	39.6
Winnebago.....	3.0	62.1	55.7

The most extensive interference with travel on account of road conditions is reported from Perry County. The least interruption of all kinds is reported from Henderson and Whiteside counties, although reports from a number of other counties show fewer days when the carriers are unable to make their routes; and the reports from Kane County give the fewest days when the roads are unusable for loads.

It will be noticed that for several counties in the southern part of the State (Alexander, Hardin, Massac and White) there are few or no days when carriers are unable to make their route; but the number of days when it is a great hardship or when the roads are unusable for loads is more than 100.

RESULTS FROM ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

As a rough estimate of the advantages of road improvement, the carriers were asked to state the percentage of gain in efficiency of their service which would result from improved road conditions. The replies to this question for the entire state averaged 35.1 per cent. From 63 counties the average of the replies were between 30 and 40 per cent. From 21 counties, the replies averaged over 50 per cent, the largest estimates coming from Clinton (52 per cent), Calhoun (54.4 per cent) and Wabash (55 per cent) counties. From 18 counties, the replies averaged less than 30 per cent, the lowest estimates coming from Franklin (20.8 per cent) and Kendall (20.4 per cent) counties.

BRIDGES AND CULVERTS.

The data reported in regard to bridges and culverts are summarized in the following table:

Tile.....	20,817
Others.....	1,415
Total.....	74,429	50,850

About one-half of the 74,429 culverts and 50,850 bridges covered by the carriers' reports were of wood. About three-tenths of the culverts were of tile, and one-fifth of iron. About one-third of the bridges were of iron, and about one-eighth were cement or concrete. In twenty-eight counties in the northern and central sections of the State, more iron bridges were reported than any other kind. Iron bridges were least common in some of the most southerly counties—e. g., Hardin, Massac, Pope and Pulaski.

The data in regard to the dimensions of bridges showed a wide range of variation, which made the calculation of averages extremely difficult. The statements as to the length of bridges appeared to show the most definite tendencies. Excluding cases where average lengths of over 100 feet were reported, iron bridges are indicated to be on the average about twice as long as wooden, cement or concrete bridges; while the average length of iron and wooden bridges with cement or concrete floors occupies an intermediate position.

The widths reported varied from 7 feet in the very small bridges to 25 feet in the longer bridges. Twelve to 16 feet seems to be the average width in the great majority of bridges.

In many cases the height of bridges was not given; and where replies were made there were clear indications of lack of agreement as to what is meant by the "height" of a bridge. In some cases the height of the girders above the floor of the bridge seems to have been given; in other cases the height of the bridge floor above the water or surface over which the bridge was built. No general statements of value could be deduced from the data on this point.

According to the estimates of the rural carriers, iron bridges last about three times as long as wooden bridges; and cement or concrete bridges about four times as long as wooden bridges. Concrete or cement flooring is estimated to last about five times as long as wooden flooring.

OCCUPATION OF ROAD COMMISSIONERS.

In reply to the inquiry as to the occupation of road commissioners, 2,423 out of 2,573 carriers reported that these officials were farmers, and only 154 carriers (less than 6 per cent) reported road commissioners with other occupations.

HISTORY OF ROAD TAXES IN ILLINOIS.¹

(BY ELMER JAY BROWN, A. M.)

ROAD LAWS, 1818-1849.

The Ordinance of 1787 made no denitfie provision for roads, but the inhabitants were allowed to vote taxes to meet the general expenses. The first step toward providing a system of roads for Illinois was made by Congress in the enabling Act of April, 1818. In this Act provision was made for the establishment of roads leading to the State. Two-thirds of the net proceeds resulting from 5 per cent of the sales of government land was to be expended for this purpose under the direction of Congress.²

The Constitution of 1818 provided that each county should elect a body of three commissioners, their term of office and duties being determined by law, and whose duty it should be to attend to the affairs of the county.³

The county commissioners court, along with the other duties, had absolute control of all public roads, levying taxes for the construction of new roads and the maintenance of the old. The details of their powers were regulated by various laws.

In 1825, a road law was passed by the Legislature. Besides the usual poll tax, provision was made for a general property road tax. The maximum rate of levy was $1.50 for every $100.00 worth of taxable property in the county as determined from the assessors list of the previous year. The tax was to be levied at the March session of the board of the county commissioners. When the rate of levy had been determined, it became the county clerk's duty to set down in an additional column in the tax records: (1) The name of the persons in a given road district, (2) the amount of tax assessed against each person. Copies giving these facts were to be provided by the clerk for each supervisor. The tax was supposed to be paid in labor, the wages for each day's work to be determined by the county.

For purposes of working out the tax the commissioners divided the county into road districts and appointed a supervisor for each district. The position of supervisor was made compulsory, and refusal to accept made the appointee liable to a ten dollar fine. It was the duty of the supervisor to take the list prepared by the county clerk, and warn the taxpayers to work out their tax at a fixed time and place, credit those who worked, and by the first Monday in December turn over all funds collected, with a written statement to the county commissioners. The payment of the road tax was made compulsory and any delinquent taxpayer could be fined, or committed to jail for not less than twenty-four hours, if he possessed no property.⁴

This first road law proved a model for many succeeding years; the chief administrative features meeting with few changes prior to 1848, the organization of the districts, the appointment of the supervisors and their duties remaining much the same. But in many respects this Act was in advance of its time. Indeed it seems that the Legislature of 1825 was remarkably farsighted and progressive. At this same session an Act was passed providing for local taxation in support of schools.

The Legislature of 1827, however, took a backward step in withdrawing the right of the county commissioners to levy a property tax for roads, thus leaving only the poll tax. Perhaps one reason for this change was the remarkably high rate of levy allowed, which was considered dangerous in view of the unsettled conditions of the county and the scarcity of money. The powers of the supervisors were limited, and any expenditures above ten dollars were to be reported to the county commissioners and the funds would be provided from the treasurer's office.¹

Population was too small and wealth too insignificant to enable the various counties to construct the necessary improvements, so special appropriations were made by the State to enable the counties to build certain bridges. It was the duty of the county commissioners of the counties receiving aid to select the site and let out the contract to the lowest bidder. After their construction, the bridges were kept in repair out of the county road tax.² In many cases, particularly in the laying out of state roads, a special commission was appointed by act of the Legislature, and the entire expense of laying out the road and paying the wages of the commissioners was often borne by the counties through which the road passed, while in many cases State aid was given each county.

In 1829 the county court was allowed to lay a tax on all ferries in the county, the proceeds from which could be spent upon the improvement of any roads within a radius of ten miles. The tax was, however, limited to three hundred dollars as the maximum amount which could be collected in one year.

The road law of 1827 proved very unsatisfactory. It was found practically impossible to keep the roads in a passable condition with only the poll tax.³ So in 1831 the law of 1827 was amended so as to permit, in addition to the poll tax, a general property tax of one day's labor for every one hundred dollars worth of property. The tax was intended primarily to be paid in labor, a cash payment of fifty cents to be accepted by the supervisor as equivalent to a day's work. From the passage of this amendment to the present, the law has provided for some property tax for roads, to be paid either in cash or in labor. This act shows an awakening interest in the importance of roads, while the rate provided for was less than the one dollar and fifty cents per one hundred dollars worth of property permitted under the act of 1825.

In 1835 a new act was passed repealing all previous road laws. However the only important changes were as follows:

(1) The commissioners were permitted to levy a road tax on all real estate of the county equal to one-half the State tax collected in the county, or a tax not greater than twenty-five cents on every one hundred dollars' worth of personal property. But only one of these provisions could be used in a given year.

(2) For the first time provision was made for the collection of the road tax from the delinquent taxpayer. The names of all taxpayers who had been duly warned and given an opportunity to work out their tax at the fixed rate of seventy-five cents per day, but had neglected to do so, were to be handed to the county commissioners before the first of December of the current year. The delinquent tax thus reported by the supervisors was to be collected by the regular county collector, as entered in the collector's books by the county clerk. The sums thus collected were to be paid over to the county treasurer to be held by him as a special fund for road purposes.⁴ Previous to this, a civil suit instituted by the supervisor in the name of the county was the only means of forcing the payment of the tax.

⁴ Laws of Illinois, 1835, p. 129.

The following year, 1836, the act of 1835 was amended to provide that the sum expended by the county on its roads during any year was not to exceed one-third of the county receipts of the previous year. It further provided that the delinquent list should be returned by the supervisors by the first day of November instead of December as the law of 1835 had provided.¹

The law of 1835 was again amended in 1837 and the daily rates for discharge of road tax was raised to one dollar per day. All supervisors were required to furnish the county commissioners with a list of the taxable persons and the property owned by each person in their district, said list to be used by the county clerks in entering the road tax on the collectors books. Provision was made for a special commission to be appointed by the county board to locate any new roads or to change old ones.²

In 1841 all previous acts were repealed and a new road law placed on the statute books, which allowed the county board to impose at its March session a much higher poll tax (one to five days). At the same time the act reduced the tax on property to ten cents on one hundred dollars as a maximum rate, payable in cash or labor at the option of the taxpayer. All delinquent taxes were to be collected as under former laws but the supervisors were given two months longer to collect the taxes before handing in the delinquent list. A written report was also required from all supervisors which must be handed in to the county board along with the funds collected. These funds along with the delinquent tax was kept by the county treasurer as a special road fund.³ This law, with amendments which did not materially change its effect, remained in force until the great change in the road law in 1872.

In 1843 the amount which the county board could assess for county purposes was limited to fifty cents on the one hundred dollars, and not over one-half of this amount could be appropriated for roads. This tax was payable in cash or in labor, under the same regulations provided for in previous acts.⁴

In 1845 the maximum rate of levy on all taxable property was lowered to twenty cents on the one hundred dollars, while more exact provisions were made for entering the levy in the collector's books. After the county commissioners had determined the rate, their clerk was to make out a list of the property owners from the assessor's list of the previous year, collecting together all property owned in one district and listing it opposite the name of each property owner, and also the amount of road tax assessed against him. The sheriff was to hand a copy of this to each of the supervisors, who notified the taxpayers to work out their taxes at seventy-five cents per day. Any person who willfully tried to evade doing a full day's labor could be sued by the supervisor and the value of the work collected with a twenty-five per cent increase.⁵

In 1847 the act of 1841 was amended for the third time. But one important change was made. All cities and incorporated towns were relieved of the road tax, in case their charters provided for a special tax for roads. But no exception was made of unincorporated villages. Such, then in brief, is the history of road taxation up to the adoption of the Constitution in 1848.

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS, 1848 AND 1870.

The principal provisions of the Constitution of 1848 affecting taxation for road support may be summarized as follows: (1) All powers which had formerly belonged to the county commissioners were transferred to a body known as the county court. This body was composed of a county judge and two justices of the peace elected by the voters of the county for a term of four years; a clerk of the county court who was ex officio recorder in lieu of the county clerk, was also to be elected quadrennially.⁶

2. Laws were to be passed by the General Assembly providing for levying taxes by valuation so that every person or corporation should pay a tax in proportion to the value of his or her property.¹

3. Provision was made for the passage, by the assembly, of a general law providing for township organization under which a county might organize whenever a majority of the voters so decided.²

4. The corporate authorities of townships were vested with power to assess and collect taxes for corporate purposes, such taxes to be uniform with respect to persons and property within the jurisdiction of the body imposing the same.³

The changes made in the Constitution of 1870, differing from the provisions of 1848 in relation to road taxation are as follows:

"1. The county authority was given to a board of county commissioners, three in number who were to be elected for a term of three years, one retiring each year.⁴ The county affairs of Cook County, however, were to be managed by a board of commissioners of fifteen persons, ten of whom should be elected from the city of Chicago, five from the townships outside of said city, and in such manner as should be provided by law.⁵

"2. Seventy-five cents per one hundred dollars valuation was made the limit of the levy of taxes in a county for one year, unless more is permitted by special vote of the people.⁶

"3. The amount of indebtedness permitted to any municipal corporation, is 5 per cent of the value of the taxable property therein as determined by the last assessment for the State and county taxes. Provision must also be made for the payment of the interest and the principal of the debt.⁷

"4. The contracting of convict labor was made unconstitutional by an amendment passed in 1886, which prevents the possibility of using convict labor under contract for road construction."⁸

· COUNTIES UNDER TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

The system of township organization had its origin in the New England States, and as the people of those states migrated westward it was carried along with them. Its practical object is to bring the local affairs of the county into immediate control of the people so that every voter can assume a direct responsibility. Previous to the Constitution of 1848 the greater proportion of the local affairs of the county were regulated by three commissioners who constituted the county board. But during the period ending with the convention of 1847 a large proportion of the population of Illinois, particularly in the northern part, were either settlers from New England or their descendants. As a result of this fact, agitation was begun for a greater degree of self government, under the influence of this spirit the Constitutional provision was passed, and in the following year the General Assembly passed an Act providing for township organization.⁹

The township organization act of 1849 provided for three highway commissioners, who were to have charge of all road affairs in the township. These highway commissioners were to assume the control of all roads which had been vested in the county board. They were to be elected at the regular town meeting with the other town officers. Prior to 1861 the tenure of office was one year, three new commissioners being elected annually. The Township Organization Act of that year (1861) provided "that at the first meeting in each town after the township system had been adopted, three commissioners of highways shall be elected, one for one year, one for two and one for three years."¹ This provision has remained in force to the present.

The law declares "no person can be eligible to the office of highway commissioner, unless he shall have been one year a resident in such town."² After the returns of the town election, the town clerk must notify the person elected as commissioner; such notice to be within ten days after the election. In case of refusal to serve, a fine of twenty-five dollars must be paid. Before entering the duties of his office the usual oath is required.³ Any vacancies occurring were filled by the town auditors prior to 1851. But from that date to the present, the remaining highway commissioners appoint some one to hold the office until the next general election.⁴

In 1854 definite arrangements were made for organizing the commissioners of highways. One of their number was to be chosen treasurer and was to handle all their funds. In guarantee for the faithful discharge of his duties as treasurer, "and that he will honestly and faithfully pay over to the order of the commissioners of highways all money that may come into his hands," he was required to file a bond. The bond was to be made payable to the supervisor—its amount and approval being left to the supervisor and the town clerk.

After the bond has been approved it is to be filed in the town clerk's office.⁵ In 1872 the amount of the treasurer's bond was fixed at double the amount that would probably come into his hands during the year, and was made payable to the people of the State of Illinois, with sufficient security to be fixed by the county clerk.⁶ In 1883 still further changes were made—the law providing for the choice of one of the commissioners as president and one as treasurer; the latter's bond must have two or more land holders as security. The town clerk was made ex officio clerk and required to keep a record of all transfers in a special book.⁷

The treasurer of the Commissioners of Highways was allowed to retain not over 2 per cent of all funds that passed through his hands, according to the law of 1872. The law of 1873 did not provide for a commission, but the act of 1875 again permitted a commission on all money passing through the treasurer's hands.⁸ The present law provides that the exact percentage of the fees be determined by the Highway Commissioners, but the amount is limited to 2 per cent.

Each township in the State is divided into three sub-districts, from each of which a highway commissioner is elected. This division is made annually, if necessary, by the supervisor and the commissioners of highways together with the town clerk. A plat must be made of the divisions and filed with the town clerk ten days previous to the annual town meeting. "The purpose of such division is to have the different parts of each township represented by a commissioner of highways who is a resident of such district."⁹ Each district is known as road commissioners' district number one, two or three. "The road work in a district is under the particular commissioner of that district, so that aside from the allotment of funds to the districts the highway commissioners usually have little to do with road interests outside of their own districts. Although a corporate unit, the commissioners carry on the work as three units."¹⁰

Whenever the labor system is adopted by a township, it is the duty of the highway commissioners to divide the town into road districts. The law provided that they "shall divide the town as they may deem convenient by writing under their hands to be lodged with the town clerk, and by him entered in the town book."¹ Such division is to be made annually, if they shall think necessary, but in all cases it must be made at least ten days before the annual town meeting. The law of 1883 makes no provision for the formation of road districts, but recognizes their existence.²

The Highway Commissioners are a quasi-corporate body and in the sixty years of its history a number of supreme court decisions, have been made limiting and defining their powers. The following are a few of the more important rulings. The commissioners are a quasi-corporation,³ and their official acts must be recorded and proved by record alone.⁴ A majority is sufficient to act unless otherwise provided by law.⁵ They must be sued in their official names⁶ and execution cannot be awarded against them.⁷ Highway commissioners have no powers except those conferred on them by statute.⁸ Failure to organize as a board of commissioners is equivalent to the creation of a vacancy.⁹

After completing their organization the law provides that the Highway Commissioners should proceed to estimate the funds necessary for road improvement, considering all expenses prior to 1873, and from that period for making and repairing roads. The funds necessary to meet these demands are raised by means of two distinct taxes.¹⁰ The road tax and the poll tax, although the rates of both are usually determined at the same meeting. The poll tax has always been a possible source of revenue for road purposes with the exception of the two years from 1877 to 1879, when a poll tax was not lawful. At present the law provides that the poll tax may be omitted by popular vote, where the cash system is adopted.¹¹

Under the different road laws the dates of the first meeting have been changed. The following table gives the dates of the first meeting.

Years.	Time of meeting.	Place.
1849-1851.....	Not fixed.....	Not fixed.....
1851-1872.....	Within eighteen days after election.....	Town clerk's office.....

From 1848 to the present time all property, both personal and real has been taxed for roads, with the exception of the period from 1851 to 1861 when only real estate was taxable.¹² In 1883 all railroad property known as "railroad track" and "rolling stock" was included.¹³

The valuation of property as listed in the assessor's roll of the previous year was used by the Highway Commissioners in determining the rate of levy prior to 1883, since then the equalized valuation is used.¹⁴ The Supreme Court has decided in several cases, however, that the Highway Commissioners cannot levy a tax for road purposes inside the corporate limits of any town whose charter forbids such tax to be assessed.¹⁵

In determining the annual funds required to maintain the roads, various expenses have been included by different laws. From 1848 to 1873 all possible expenses for repair work, construction of new roads and bridges, payment of all damages for ditching and drainage and all other expenses were included in this first general levy. But in 1873 road expenses were divided into two parts and met by two distinct annual property taxes: one the "road tax" for making and repairing roads only, payable in labor; the other, the "road and bridge tax" to meet all remaining expenses, and made payable in cash only. The reason for this change was to provide a means of payment for all bills demanding a cash settlement, as well as to provide a means for paying the salaries of road officials, damages and purchase of material for road construction. The dual tax was intended primarily to be used under the labor system. The adoption of the cash system as provided for in each act did not change the determination of the levy. The law of 1883, however, provided primarily for a cash system, with a special determination of the levy, while if the labor system was adopted, the old form of the two distinct taxes—the "road tax" and the "road and bridge tax"—was continued much as before.

LABOR SYSTEM.

The determination of the levy, as provided by the first Township Organization Act, is particularly interesting. The support for the roads was to come from a combination of the poll tax and general property labor tax. The number of days' work required from each person being estimated in the following manner:

"1. The entire number of days' work required was not to exceed three times the number of taxable inhabitants.

"2. Every male citizen above twenty-one years of age was to be required to work two days.

"3. The tax on non-residents' lands was not to be less than one day's labor for each three hundred dollars worth of property owned, the valuation to be determined by the highway commission from the assessor's report of the previous year.

"4. The remainder of the work was to be apportioned upon the real and personal estate of each inhabitant, the valuation to be determined as in the case of non-residents."¹

But the assessment of statute labor cannot be considered as a regular tax.² So in reality the road tax did not properly begin until after 1861, when the Township Organization Act changed the tax to a levy of money, instead of statute labor. The annual rate of levy which the highway commissioners were allowed to use has always been limited. The following table gives the maximum rates of levy for the "road tax" under the different road laws:

Year.	Maximum rate

The method of preparing and filing the tax lists has frequently been changed by the various road laws. The law of 1849 provided that after the rate of levy had been determined, the commissioners were to prepare the necessary lists, giving: (1) A description of the non-resident lands and the number of days' labor assessed against each; (2) the name of the taxpayers in each district and the number of days' work assessed against each.

The poll tax and the general property tax were not to be kept separate. The lists thus prepared were signed by the commissioners and filed with the town clerk. The town clerk was required to make a sufficient number of copies and cause one to be delivered to each of the overseers. He was also required to post a notice on the door of the building where the commissioners met, giving the number of days' labor assessed on each three hundred dollars worth of non-resident property.¹

The road law of 1851 provided that the property road tax be listed separately from the poll tax—the list giving a description of each tract of land, the name of the owner, if known, with the valuation thereof as taken from the assessor's roll of the previous year, and the amount of the road tax assessed thereon in a separate column.² In 1879 the law provided that in listing the property in the town the property contained in each road district to be grouped together and that the names of the personal property tax payers be arranged in alphabetical order.³ The lists were to be filed in the town clerk's office as before, and copies were to be made by the clerk for the use of the overseers. In 1883 railroad property was included in the lists. The method of filing described above is adopted whenever the labor system is used, and was used in all cases prior to 1872 even if the cash system had been adopted.

The benefit a township may receive from its road tax depends very largely upon the system of collection followed. If the labor system is followed, the tax is expended as fast as collected, under the supervision of the untrained overseers, and it is safe to say that one-half of the tax is lost,⁴ to say nothing of the poor roads which result. In case the cash system is followed a trained road engineer may be hired, who will be able to make use of the tax in an economic and systematic manner.

Since 1873 the law has made the road tax a purely rural tax. The law of 1873 provided that the road tax collected on "property lying within any incorporated village, town or city in which the streets and alleys are under the care of the corporation, shall be paid over to the treasurer of such village, town or city to be appropriated for the improvement of roads, streets and bridges under the direction of the corporate authorities.⁵ In 1877 the further provision was added that "when any of said tax is expended beyond the limits of said village, town or city, it shall be with the consent of the road commissioners of the township,"⁶ while the law of 1879 provided that "the authorities of such incorporated town, city or village may at any time direct the collector not to collect the tax, so levied within the limits of such incorporated town, city or village."⁷

Whenever the labor system is used in a township, the town is divided into road districts. Prior to 1883, at the annual town meeting an overseer was elected for each road district, the tenure of office being one year. Refusal to serve resulted in a penalty of $10. In 1883 the office was made appointive. Any vacancy is filled by the Commissioners of Highways.

The duties of the overseers of each town were as follows:

First: To repair and keep in order all the highways in their district.

Second: To warn all persons from whom road labor is due to work on the highways at such times and places within their respective districts as they may think proper. The overseers may contract with persons to perform a certain amount of labor on any road or bridge in their town or road district in payment of their tax. And if the work be done within the time when the money should have been paid, the overseer shall give such person a receipt for such labor done or performed.

Third: To collect all fines and commutation money.

Fourth: To deliver to the supervisor of his town, and in Cook County to the county board, a list containing the land and personal property road tax, with the word "paid" written after the description of property on which the tax has been paid, and sworn to before the supervisors of the town. The courts have held that the taxpayer must be given due warning of the time and place at which he can work out his road tax before he can be returned as a delinquent taxpayer. The law of 1849 provided that in all cases where the addresses of owners or agents of non-resident lands were unknown the posting of the general notice was held to be due notification.¹

The following is a table giving the amounts credited to a taxpayer for a days' work during the different years:

1849-1851.....	.62½ cents.....	8
1851-1872.....	.75 cents.....	8
1872-1873.....	Cash system.....
1873-1877.....	$.150.....	8
1877-1879.....	Cash system.....
1879-1909.....	$.125.....	8

The law of 1849 required the delinquent list to be returned by the overseer to the supervisor of the town before the first day of October.² The laws from 1851 to the present have provided that the list be returned five days before the annual meeting of the board of supervisors.

The supervisors of each town are to lay these lists before the board of supervisors of the county—in Cook County before the county board—who levy the delinquent tax on the lands returned and cause it to be collected the same as other county taxes. When collected it is paid over to the commissioners of highways of the town except such portions of the tax as the law provides to be paid to the authorities of incorporated cities. It is the duty of the county board to enter the tax exactly as returned. When there is no record, if the clerk has entered the tax, the presumption is that the board has acted,³ for the validity of the tax depends alone on the act of the commissioners of highways.

CASH SYSTEM.

The labor system was the only system of road improvement used prior to 1869. Taxpayers had always been given the right to pay the overseer in cash or work out the tax at the rate of wages fixed by law. But in 1869, a law was passed providing that any township could adopt the cash system by a majority vote. The money so collected was to be expended by the highway commissioners or by such agents as they might see fit to hire.⁴ From that date to the present the voters of any township have possessed the option of paying their road tax either in labor or in cash, with the exception of the three years from 1872-1873 and from 1877-1879, when only payment in cash was lawful.

Prior to 1883 the property assessed and the determination of the rate of levy remained the same whether the cash system was adopted or not, the chief difference being in the filing of the lists and the collection of the tax. In that year beside the regular levy of sixty cents on the one hundred dollars worth of property valuation in the town, an additional levy could be made, if in the opinion of the commissioners some contingency demanded it. The additional sum needed was to be certified to the board of the town auditors and assessor in joint session with the highway commissioners and if in the opinion of a majority of this entire board given in writing an additional "levy was needed," it could be made to any sum not exceeding forty cents on each one hundred dollars of taxable property in the town.⁵ In 1901 this was amended so as to provide that the additional levy could be made for certain specified purposes only and should the commissioners use any of the funds for purposes not specified, they were to be deemed to have illegally appropriated the same and were to be liable accordingly.¹ But in 1903 this amendment was repealed and the law at present stands as it did in 1883.²

The law of 1883 also provided a special tax for the payment of "damages agreed upon for laying, widening, altering or vacating roads or for ditching to drain roads."³ This tax was to be included with the road tax, but was in addition to it, and when collected was held as a special fund by the treasurer of the highway commissioners.

The system of filing under the cash system remained the same as when labor was used until 1872. From 1872 to the present time whenever the cash plan is adopted the tax is entered on the collector's book with the other township taxes. The law of 1872 provided that after the highway commissioners had annually ascertained the amount of money to be raised on all property for highway purposes they should give to the "supervisor of the township and in Cook County to the county board a statement of the amount necessary to be raised, signed by a majority of said commissioners on or before the Tuesday preceding the annual September meeting of the board of supervisors, who shall cause the same to be submitted to their action of such September meeting of said board," and that "according to the amount certified as aforesaid the county clerk, when making out the tax books of state and county taxes for the collector, shall extend the necessary tax in a separate column against each taxpayer's name or taxable property as other taxes are extended."⁴

It is the duty of the county board to cause to be tendered the amounts as returned by the highway commissioners,⁵ as the validity of the tax depends upon their act alone.⁶ The taxes are levied by the highway commissioners and not by the supervisors, under either the cash or labor system.⁷ If there is no record showing that the supervisors have ordered the county clerk to enter the tax, the presumption is that the board has acted, if the clerk has entered the tax.⁸

It is also the duty of the county clerk to make out and deliver on demand to the treasurer of the highway commissioners, a certificate of the aggregate amount of the tax levied and the amounts in each district as entered on the tax books.⁹ As the laws of 1872 made no provision for road districts, taxes were not grouped by districts. The provisions in the road law of 1877 are almost identical with those of 1872.¹⁰

When the cash system was adopted by popular vote as made possible in the acts of 1873¹¹ and 1879¹² very nearly the same plan of filing was used, the exception being that the county clerk in entering the taxes upon the tax book designated to what districts the tax belonged.¹³ The payment of the tax on railroad property provided for under the laws of 1879 and 1883, is not distributed by the county clerk in each road district, but only among the towns of the county. It is the duty of the highway commissioners to apportion the tax to each district in proportion to the number of feet of track in said district.¹⁴

The road tax when collected under the road laws of 1872 and 1877 was paid to the treasurer of the highway commissioners with no stipulation as to the part of the township in which the funds should be expended. The road laws of 1873 and 1879 provided that the tax should be paid in as fast as it was collected, by the collector. The funds from each district were to be used for the payment of all bills presented from that district. The above, however, only holds true where the tax has been collected outside the corporate limits of towns and cities. Where it is collected inside the corporate limits, the law provides, that the tax be paid over to the county treasurer, to be expended by the city in the improvement of its streets. In 1889 this provision was changed so that one-half of the tax went to the city treasurer of incorporated towns and when any of the funds were expended beyond the corporate limits it must be with the consent of the "road commissioners of the town;" and in all cities above 35,000 inhabitants the entire sum collected was paid to the city treasurer.¹ In 1909, the latter provision was applied to all cities of 20,000 and upwards.²

ROAD AND BRIDGE TAX. 1873-1909.

The road and bridge tax is determined by the highway commissioner "on or before the Tuesday next preceding the annual meeting of the county board in September," and is assessed on all real, personal and railroad property in the town. Property in the corporate limits of cities whose charter forbids such tax is alone exempted from the levy.³ Only one levy of the road and bridge tax may be made in each year⁴ and that must be made at the time required by statute.⁵ The determination of the rate of levy is based on the valuation according to the assessor's list of the previous year.⁶

The purpose of the tax is to provide funds for the following purposes: 1. For making and repairing bridges; 2. Payment of damages by reason of the opening, altering and laying out of new roads and ditches; 3. Purchase of necessary tools, implements and machinery for working roads; 4. The purchase of the necessary material for building and repairing roads and bridges; 5. The pay of the overseers of highways during the ensuing year; 6. For the payment of all outstanding orders drawn by the commissioners on their treasurer commencing on Tuesday next preceding the annual meeting of the county board in September.⁷

The rate of levy was limited to forty cents on the one hundred dollars, until 1909, when the basis of assessment was changed and the limit reduced to 25 cents. All the laws providing for a road and bridge tax have made provision for an additional tax, when a larger sum is needed than can be raised by the ordinary levy. If it is decided that the additional tax will be needed, three public notices must be posted ten days before the annual meeting, stating that "a larger sum of money will be required for the purpose of constructing roads or bridges than can be realized from the real, personal and railroad tax authorized by law to be assessed by the commissioners. The town meeting may then authorize an additional amount to be raised,"⁸ limited by the various laws as follows:

1873.....	$0 60 on $100 00
1877.....	None
1879.....	40 on 100 00

After the highway commissioners have determined the rate of assessment, it becomes their duty to give a statement to the supervisor of the township—in Cook County to the county board—"of the amount necessary to be raised and the rate per cent of taxation, signed by said commissioners or a majority of them, on or before the Tuesday next preceding the annual September meeting of the board of supervisors, or the county board of Cook county, who shall cause the same to be submitted to the said board for their action." The board of supervisors "cause the same to be extended by the county clerk as one tax on the collector's book of said town."¹

The supreme court has decided that if the supervisors make no order against the extension of the tax, it is held to be sufficient to show their approval,² unless it appears that the statement was never properly before them.³ Their filing the lists with the county clerk obligates him to extend the tax;⁴ but he cannot extend the tax without their order, merely as a ministerial act.⁵ The supervisors may order the amounts not correctly levied not to be extended by the clerk, but to be returned to the commissioners for correction.⁶ If no objection is made until after the collection, the collector's return is taken as prima facie evidence of the legality of the tax and of its assessment and levy.⁷

The county clerk in extending the road and bridge tax on the collector's books uses the assessment list of the current year.⁸ The laws of 1873, 1879 and 1883 provide that the county clerk in extending the district road tax upon the tax books shall designate to what district the tax belongs.⁹ In the law of 1877 the district is not designated in the extension of the tax.

The road and bridge tax is collected by the town collector in the same manner as other town and county taxes. The "road and bridge" tax and the "road tax" of 1877 were collected together as one tax.

The law of 1873 further provided that all taxes collected inside the corporate limits of a city were to be paid to the city treasurer, to be expended by the city authorities.¹⁰ Under the provisions of the acts of 1879 and 1883, all the road and bridge tax was to be paid to the highway commissioners,¹² only one-half of the amount levied within the corporate limits being paid over to the city treasurer. In 1903, however, this clause was amended to provide that in all cities of thirty-five thousand inhabitants or upward, all road and bridge taxes collected in the corporate limits were to be paid over to the city treasurer;¹³ and in 1909 this rule was extended to all cities of 15,000 and upwards.¹⁴ The laws from 1879 have provided that when any tax collected within the city limits is expended beyond the limits of the village or town it shall be with the consent of the road commissioners of the town.

COUNTY AID.

From 1854 to the present time there have always been provisions made for county action in building a township bridge, the cost of which was greater than could be met by the ordinary levy. The law of 1854 declares that when the highway commissioners decide that a higher levy will be required to build a bridge, which they may deem necessary, they shall lay the facts before the town auditors, whose duty it becomes to present the matter to the county board, and it shall be the duty of the said board to levy a tax on the taxable property of the town, to be collected with the other town taxes. No limit was made to this additional levy,¹⁵ except that the additional tax could not be levied to build a bridge in an incorporated village.¹⁶

In 1872 the law was changed to provide that when the highway commissioners petition the county board for aid in building a township bridge, the county board may appropriate as much as they see fit from the county treasury to be expended under the direction of officers, whom they may appoint.¹ The road law of 1873 provided that the commissioners might petition for county aid when the cost of the proposed bridge exceeded what could be raised by ordinary road taxes. The action of the board was, however, optional.² In 1877 the law gave the board no discretion, but provided that they should furnish one-half the funds of the proposed bridge. The law of 1879 made the county aid of one-half compulsory, after it had been proved that the town had provided for the other half.³ The construction of the bridge was to be under the joint control of the highway commissioners and two representatives for the county board. In 1883 the provisions governing county aid were again changed. The law of that year provided that when the cost of any proposed bridge should exceed the sum which could be raised by a tax of "twenty cents on the one hundred dollars, and the levy of the road and bridge tax for two years last past said town was for each year for the full amount of forty cents on each one hundred dollars allowed by law, and the major part is needed for the ordinary repair of roads and bridges, the commissioners can petition the county board for aid" and if the foregoing facts shall appear, the county board shall appropriate from the county treasury a sum sufficient to meet one-half the expenses, on condition that the town asking aid shall furnish the other half of the required amount.⁴ In 1909, when the basis of assessing property was changed from one-fifth to one-third, the above rates were altered to correspond, the 20 cent rate being reduced to 12 cents, and the 40 cent rate to 25 cents.⁵

COUNTIES NOT UNDER TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION FROM 1849-1909.

In counties not adopting township organization the road law of 1845 remained in force with but few amendments until 1872. In that year the control of the roads in all counties was placed under supervision of highway commissioners. The county board was to appoint three temporary road commissioners who were to act until highway commissioners could be elected by the people of the road district. The road district was to have the same limits as the congressional township or the district established for the election of school trustees. The powers of the commissioners and the assessment and collection of the tax did not differ materially from the conditions in counties under township organization.⁶ The law of 1872 remained in force for one year, when the control of roads in all counties not adopting township organization was again given to the county board, and the old road law of 1845 was practically reenacted, with but one important exception. The road tax levied by the county board was collected with the other county taxes. No provision was made for working out the tax. If the labor system was used in working out the poll tax, the cash road tax was limited to a levy of 40 cents on every one hundred dollars' valuation of all taxable property, but if the poll taxes were collected in cash the road levy was limited to twenty cents on the hundred dollars. This law of 1873 remained in force until the present road law of 1887 was adopted.

The law of 1887 provided for the division of the county into road districts to be composed where practicable of not less than a congressional township. Each district was to be designated by a number and was to be a corporate unit. Three commissioners and a district clerk, who is ex officio treasurer of the board, are elected on the first Tuesday in March, their terms of office being so arranged that one commissioner shall thereafter be elected annually for a term of three years. But one general property tax can be annually assessed. The tax must be levied on the first Tuesday in September, and was limited to one dollar on the one hundred dollars; two years later the maximum rate was placed at fifty cents on the one hundred dollars;¹ and in 1909 the rate was not to exceed thirty cents.² All taxes to pay for damages which have been agreed upon are included in this levy. A statement of the rate of levy determined upon by the commissioners is given to the district clerk, whose duty it becomes to extend the tax upon the collector's books of each district. No mention is made of approval by the county board in order to make the tax legal.

As fast as the tax is collected by the regular collector, it is to be turned over to the district clerk. One-half of the tax collected in incorporated villages is to be paid to the treasurer of the city to be used for road purposes in the town or road district as the city authorities may direct. But if any is expended beyond the limits of the city it must be with the consent of the road commissioners of the district.³

COUNTY AID.

The law of 1887 provided that whenever the commissioners may deem it necessary to build a bridge, the expense of which exceeds one hundred dollars, and when the maximum rate has been assessed, the county board has the option of aiding the district.⁴ In 1891 the law was amended to provide that whenever any repair or construction work, the cost of which exceeds one hundred dollars, is needed in a district, on petition the county board is to estimate the cost and appropriate one-half the cost.⁵

SUMMARY OF PRESENT SYSTEM.

Under township organization the work on roads is paid for under two systems—the cash system and the labor system. When all the road taxes are collected in cash the highway commissioners estimate the amount of money required and the rate of tax necessary, which shall not exceed 36 cents on the one hundred dollars, except in cases of special emergency when the highway commissioners may levy an additional 25 cents with the consent of the town assessor and the board of auditors. All taxes for highway purposes are paid by the collector to the treasurer of the highway commissioners, and are in turn paid out by the treasurer on the order of the board. A poll tax of not less than $1 and not to exceed $2 may also be assessed for highway purposes.

If the labor system is adopted, two levies of taxes can be annually assessed by the highway commissioners; a labor tax of 25 cents may be assessed against all property and also a cash road and bridge tax not to exceed 25 cents on the one hundred dollars. The township is then divided into road districts, overseers are appointed, and the persons assessed labor tax, may at their option, work out the road tax, or pay the same in money to the overseer. In addition to these taxes, on notice the town meeting may authorize a further tax of 25 cents on the $100 and county aid is permitted.

In counties which have not adopted township organization, but one cash tax can be annually assessed by the highway commissioners of the road district, and this tax is limited to 30 cents on the one hundred dollars. If the optional act of 1901 is adopted, the voters of the county may elect to place the road administration of the whole county under the board of county commissioners, doing away with the separate corporate districts, with highway commissioners in each. This law at present offers the only possible opportunity to place the road work on an economical basis, although it is more or less nullified in that it provides for the establishment of the labor system. But two counties adopted the system, and it is now in force only in Union County.

Beside the above regular taxes, additional funds for the building of macadam and gravel roads may be raised as follows by the townships and road districts. If the majority of the voters of a township or road district have so voted, a special tax may be levied, not to exceed one dollar on the one hundred dollars of all taxable property. The revenue thus secured can be spent only on one or two specified roads. The vote on the tax shall state for how many years it is to be levied, but in no case can it exceed five years.

The following table gives the total road and bridge tax collected in Illinois each year from 1879 to 1884 and from 1898 to 1905, with the average rate of levy each year based on the equalized valuation of all property in the State. If the valuation of property in Chicago and other cities where no road and bridge tax is levied were taken into account, the average rates on property subject to the road and bridge tax would be much larger.

The first comprehensive statement concerning roads and road taxation in Illinois is found in the first annual report of the Illinois Highway Commission, published in 1907. The commission secured the data by sending circular letters to the 1,379 townships in counties under township organization and to the 234 road districts in counties not under township organization.¹ The report shows that during the year 1905, $4,625,365 was spent by the people of Illinois on roads and bridges. The State contains a total road mileage of 94,141, which gives an average of about fifty dollars for each mile of road in Illinois. The report shows that the money value of the labor tax amounted to but $490,563 of the total $4,625,365, or a little over one-tenth.

COMPARISON WITH OTHER STATES.

In order to compare the progress made by the State of Illinois in taxing methods with the progress in other states and determine the possibility of any beneficial changes of the present system, it may be well at this point to examine briefly some of the recent road legislation in a few of the other states.

In 1904 the total expenditures for roads from all sources of revenue in the United States was $79,771,417. The following table shows the relative expenditures of the different states, giving the amounts received from taxes payable in cash and in labor, and the expense per mile and per inhabitant.

Of the $53,815,387.98 credited to the property and poll taxes perhaps one-half was actually paid in labor, as in many states the option is given of working the tax or paying it in labor.² This choice of means greatly weakens the efficiency of the tax, for it is found that a large proportion of the time is wasted, the work being done by unskilled workers, and no fund is available to hire skilled workers. Many states are beginning to realize that to obtain the best results from a given levy of taxes, the work must be placed in the hands of persons whose duty it is to spend their entire time in the work, and to accomplish this, collection in cash is necessary. With this end in view the legislatures of New York and Pennsylvania have passed laws providing that when any town or township shall abolish the working out of taxes and shall require payment in cash, it shall receive from the state a certain per cent of the taxes so collected.

In New York the amount so paid by the state is 50 per cent, and in Pennsylvania is 15 per cent.³

One of the earliest forms of road maintenance followed was that of the statute labor, a survival perhaps of the old feudal system of Europe. Indeed as late as 1899 there were eight states in which no cash or property taxes were levied, but by 1904 all of the states had adopted some form of property or labor tax payable in cash. The importance of the labor tax is still evident when it is remembered that the cash value of the labor tax for the United States as a whole in 1904 was $19,818,236 (see table). This tax is still in operation in twenty-five states; but inasmuch as in eleven other states the poll tax may be paid in labor it means that statute labor is really in force in thirty-six states. Texas ranks first as a statute labor state, the estimated cash value of the labor tax in 1904 being $1,594,545. Mississippi ranks second with $1,185,936; Alabama third with $1,198,394; Georgia fourth with $1,185,936. Kentucky and Ohio expended over $900,000 in this way; Tennessee and Indiana over $800,000; Arkansas, Missouri and North Carolina $700,000 each.

It is an interesting commentary on the efficiency of statute labor to note that in the states where it is used but 6.15 per cent of the roads in the state are improved, while the average percentage in the states in which no such tax is levied is 18.39. This would seem to indicate that the best results are obtainable in states where the road taxes are paid chiefly in cash. In no states, however, have laws been passed making all the road taxes payable in cash. New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois have passed optional laws providing for an entire cash system, but it is being adopted by the towns and counties very slowly. The plan of New York offering state encouragement for the adoption of the cash system seems to be working well.

In 1891 the first state aid law was enacted by the State of New Jersey. The plan proposes the coöperation of the state with the counties, townships and in some cases with the property owners, in the improvement of roads. The plan worked so well that similar laws were afterwards enacted in Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania and other states.¹ New York voted a constitutional amendment to provide for an expenditure of $50,000,000 in ten years for state aid. The amount appropriated by the various states for road construction has continually grown. Pennsylvania starting with $150,000 per year is now expending over $1,000,000 each year for state aid.² In 1895 a law was passed in Pennsylvania³ providing that in the improvement of the principal highways, the State is to pay 75 per cent of the cost, the counties 12½ per cent and the township 12½ per cent. The state also contributes one-half toward the expense of maintaining roads built under this act. In Massachusetts the state aid becomes more of a loan at a low rate of interest. The entire cost of the roads is paid by the state, but one-fourth of this must be paid back to the state within six years with 3 per cent interest. The sum along with that necessary for the state's share is assessed on the towns by the counties.

The method of state aid employed by New York is used in connection with special assessments on the adjacent property. It seems to work well, having most of the arguments for special assessments in its favor, and giving the persons most interested an opportunity to secure the needed improvement. The law provides that 50 per cent of the cost is to be paid by the State, 35 per cent by the county and 15 per cent by the property owner benefitted. The state's share is paid from the general treasury, while the county tax is paid by a special tax levied for the purpose and collected in cash.⁴

In Colorado, Utah and California the state pays the entire cost of the construction of certain specified state roads. In the thirteen states $2,607,322.66 was expended from state aid funds for construction and repair in 1904.

The largest expenditure was in New York—$1,056,460; the next in Massachusetts, which spent $575,605.99; the third was New Jersey which spent $250,000.¹

There is another method of state aid which is practiced in a good many of the states; convict labor, either in actual work upon the roads, as in Georgia and Mississippi, or in the preparation of road materials as in California. The first system is attended with so much risk, cruelty and expense that but few of the states have adopted it. But the second system avoids these defects and gives cheap road material at but little additional expense to the state.

There are many arguments in favor of state aid which make it a very practical method of road support in certain sections. It is only just, it is claimed, that the corporations and business of the towns should pay for the construction of the roads which count so much for the general value of their property.²

All questions of taxation for road support, however, necessarily rest ultimately upon the rate of the tax levy. "Unquestionably the bitterest controversies in counties and in townships in connection with the subject of road improvements are over the proposed increases in the tax rate"³ either for local improvement or increased state taxes. An examination of the rates levied in various counties in the United States shows that for the year 1904 the lowest rate was one and three-tenths cents on the one hundred dollars of property valuation, in Maryland, while the highest rate was one and six-tenths cents in Washington; the average for all counties being twenty-five and seven-tenths cents. Mr. Eldridge says that a careful comparison of the various rates shows that the greater the progress and wealth of the county the higher is the tax rate.

In some of the states the road tax is levied by the towns or townships and in others the road funds are appropriated out of the general fund levied for all purposes. In several New England states the town meetings appropriate such amounts as are considered necessary out of the general funds. In many of the northern states such as Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, taxes are levied by counties as well as by townships.

An examination of the foregoing road laws in operation in the various states, shows that in twenty-nine states the tax for maintenance of roads is levied by the county commissioners. In eleven states the tax is levied by independent boards; in six states by town meetings; in one state there is no road tax; and in one state the road^a tax on property is limited to fifteen dollars per year.

PROPOSED REMEDIES.

A far more economical system of road administration could be devised than the one now in operation. The State at present is divided into some sixteen hundred road districts or townships, each one acting independently of the other, levying such taxes as the public sentiment of the locality favors, and each acting as it sees fit. In each of these districts there are three commissioners, making a total of forty-eight hundred road officials to be paid from the road tax. As the office is constantly changing hands, no systematic plan can be followed from year to year. Each farmer wishes to have the road opposite his property improved and the result is a thin veneer of attempted improvements spread over the 95,000 miles of roads in the State. Indeed "over one-half of the five million dollars," yearly expended for roads, "is spent to no practical purpose, in fact it is conservative to say that one-half of it is spent to no advantage."⁴

A change in the present system would necessitate, first, a reduction of the present number of road officials, and second, enlarging the units of administration.

Some steps have already been taken in this direction for counties not under township organization: in the optional county administration act of 1901, in accordance with which the road tax is levied by the counties and the expenditure undertaken by a supervisor appointed by the board.⁵ But no provision of this sort is made for counties under township organization. An Act providing for such an administration in all counties would be a step in the direction of centralization of control. The nullifying feature of the present law allowing the adoption of the labor system could be amended and a cash tax made compulsory.

The county unit would be large enough to warrant the employment of a competent highway engineer who could have immediate control of all road work. This would permit of the possibility of good substantial work being done and of a progressive system of road improvement being adopted. Such a policy in time would provide the county with better roads at but very slight increase in the tax rate. But experience in our own and other states shows that for any immediate benefit to result from the adoption of this system its adoption must be made compulsory.

But this is hardly sufficient, inasmuch as a certain amount of the State control is necessary. A law might also be passed providing for an annual conference in each county of the state commissioners and the county authorities, thus insuring a more uniform policy of road construction throughout the State.

Proposals for a reform of the taxing system may be classified as follows:

"1. Substitution of county taxing power for taxation by the highway commissioners.

"2. Requirement that all taxes be paid in cash—both property and poll tax.

"3. Provisions for a system of road improvement either by State aid and local assessments, or for a system of county aid modeled to a certain extent on the present law providing for county aid for bridge work.

"4. A separation of the local and State tax, with a reduction of the rate of levy and an assessment of the actual valuation of the property."

ROAD LAWS IN ENGLAND.

EARLY LEGISLATION.

At common law in England it was the duty of the inhabitants of each parish to maintain and repair all the highways within it. By Act of 1555 provision was made for the selection of surveyors of highways in each parish by the constable and churchwardens with more or less participation by some of the other parishioners. This Act also provided for working the roads by a labor tax.

Under an amending Act of 1691, the parish surveyors were appointed by the justices of the peace, from a list of names submitted by the parish officers and inhabitants. From this time the surveyors acted mainly under the supervision and direction of the justices, to whom they reported and who could order a highway rate to be levied. To the inhabitants of the parish the surveyor was rather in the position of a director and superintendent than in that of a subordinator.

Each county was legally responsible for keeping up public bridges; and towards the end of the eighteenth century the justices in a few counties employed a salaried professional engineer to take charge of this work. The greatest of these early professional advisers was Thomas Telford, engaged about 1787 by the Shropshire justices as "Surveyor of Public Works for the county of Salop;" in which position he built no less than 42 new bridges, 5 of iron and 37 of stone.¹

TOLL ROADS AND TURNPIKES.

As early as 1346 Edward III had granted a commission to lay a toll on carriages passing from one point to another in the city of London. In 1663 an Act was passed granting the right of levying tolls. Beginning early in the eighteenth century (1706) a long series of Turnpike Acts transferred the management of the more important roads from the parish authorities to special trustees, who were empowered to defray their expenses by levying tolls. By 1840 there were 104,772 miles of turnpike roads in England and Wales.¹ Since that time the turnpikes have been again transferred to the public authorities and tolls have been abolished. In 1864 there were 1048 trusts comprising 20,000 miles of road; in 1882 there were only 105 trusts including 3,000 miles of road; and by 1893 the last turnpike toll had been collected.²

MODERN ROAD LAWS.

A new Highway Act of 1835 marked the beginning of modern road legislation in England. This required the appointment of a surveyor by the parish vestry, or in case the vestry failed to appoint, by the justices of the peace. This Act also made provision for uniting several parishes into one highway district, with a district board and a district surveyor. Acts of 1862 and 1864 extended the powers of the justices of the peace to unite parishes into highway districts; and some 400 of these highway districts were created, comprising about 9,000 highway parishes.

The Highways and Locomotives (amendment) Act of 1878 made further steps towards greater centralization of road administration. This provided for the consolidation of highway and rural sanitary district boards. It also provided that disturnpiked roads and other important highways should be classed as main roads, and one half of the cost of repairs on such roads should be paid by the county.

Beginning in 1882 one half of the county expenses were repaid by a parliamentary grant from the national exchequer. In 1887-8 a similar grant was made to the district highway authorities, placing one-half of the cost of highway maintenance on main roads on the State, one-fourth on the county and one-fourth on the local authority.

By the Local Government Act of 1888, establishing elected county councils, the main roads must be wholly maintained by the councils of the county in which they are situated, except such as urban district council elects to retain under its own control. The responsibility for the main roads is thus definitely vested in the county authorities.

Up to 1894 there still remained about 5,000 highway parishes not combined into highway districts, which maintained their local roads. But by the Local Government Act of that year, provision was made for doing away with the ancient parish surveyors of highways and other special highway boards. Under this act the reorganized parish authorities were given some power to intervene in the opening and closing of roads and were authorized to maintain public footways; but the parish ceased to be responsible for the maintenance of roads. This Act of 1894 made the rural and urban districts the usual highway authority, except for the main roads under the control of the county. There are about 700 rural districts and over 1,000 urban districts in England and Wales.³

The following table, compiled from the report of the Local Government Board, shows for the year 1900 the different classes of roads in England and Wales, and the expenditure for maintenance, repair and improvement.⁴

ROAD LEGISLATION IN THE UNITED STATES.

I HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT—COLONIAL PERIOD.

The road laws of the English colonies in America, as might be expected, were based on the same principles as the highway legislation of England existing at the same time. They provided for localized systems of road administration, and depended for the most part on labor taxes. Thus a Virginia act of 1662 provided for the appointment of surveyors, who were authorized to call on the landowners to furnish labor for road work; while the surveyors were subject to the supervision of the county court of justices of the peace.¹ In some cases, however, the central government of the colony directly established a few main roads. The road building of this period, like the laws, were primitive and crude. The principal work was that of clearing the way of trees and underbrush, and sometimes building bridges over small streams. A description of the wretched condition of the highways about 1784, notes that "on the best lines of communication the ruts were deep, the descents precipitous. Travelers by coach were often compelled to alight and assist the driver to pull the vehicle out of the slough."²

TOLL ROADS AND TURNPIKES.

The first movement for road improvement in the United States, like the earlier road laws, also followed the English precedent by providing for toll roads, often called turnpikes, built by private companies. The first toll road constructed in the United States was the Philadelphia and Lancaster Turnpike begun in 1792, said to be the finest piece of highway in the United States.³ Another notable instance of the early toll roads was the Wilderness Turnpike, extending from the Shenandoah Valley, in Virginia westward by way of Cumberland Gap to central Kentucky.⁴

"Before the end of the first decade of the nineteenth century closed, most of the landed and well settled states were voting money, setting apart the proceeds of land sales, or establishing lotteries to open roads on the frontiers, while their citizens were forming stock companies to do the same thing between the old towns and the seaboard."⁵ By 1810 upward of 180 turnpike corporations had been chartered in New England. By 1811, New York had chartered 137, with a combined capital of $7,500,000, and aggregating 4,500 miles of road. New Jersey had chartered 30 roads. Pennsylvania had given letters patent to 35; and by 1828 had incorporated 168 companies for building 3,110 miles of turnpike roads, of which 2,380 miles were completed at a cost of nearly $8,500,000.⁶

In the early stages of settlement, this method of building roads was undoubtedly beneficial. By this means capital was induced to forerun the needs of the population, and furnished highways which promoted the development of the land before the settlers were able of their own means to make such provision. But with the advent of railroads about 1832, the building of turnpikes was gradually discontinued. Even the roads established found it almost impossible to maintain the roads properly and yield a sufficient return to pay dividends on the capital stock. In most of the states, the turnpike companies have disappeared, either by the expiration of their franchises or by the purchase of their rights by the states or counties; and the turnpike roads have been opened to the free use of the public.

NATIONAL ROADS.

Contemporaneous with the building of toll roads came a movement for the construction of highways by the national government. As early as 1798 a post road was authorized across the Northwest Territory, from Wheeling, Va., to Limestone, Ky., to be paid by a grant of a section of land where the "trace" crossed the three great rivers.¹ In 1802 the enabling Act for the admission of Ohio provided that 5 per cent of the proceeds from the sale of public lands in the state should be applied to the construction of roads. Similar provisions were made in subsequent Acts for the admission of other public land states.

The first money appropriation by congress was made in 1806, for the construction of what became known as the Cumberland Road, from Cumberland, Md., to a westerly terminus, gradually moved forward to the Mississippi river near St. Louis. Further appropriations for this and other roads followed; and in the face of vetoes by Presidents Madison and Monroe, a total of $14,000,000 was expended by the national government for the construction of national highways up to 1860.² In deference to constitutional objections, these roads were built in the territories or with the consent of the states. The Cumberland road was completed as far as Indiana.

In 1841 the State Selection Act granted to each state named and to each new state afterwards admitted to the Union, 500,000 acres of land for internal improvements. Under these and similar Acts over 12,000,000 acres of land have been granted to the states, for roads, railroads and canals.³

ROAD SYSTEMS IN 1888.

Following the civil war, road improvement seems to have almost come to a standstill in the United States. The national government directed its efforts towards aiding the building of railroads and improving rivers and harbors, and ceased its participation in road building. The building of state roads was discontinued; and even the local districts turned their attention mainly towards aiding the construction of railroads. The construction and maintenance of public highways was left to the local authorities, the towns in the north and east and to the counties in the south and west. Labor taxes continued to be the main source for work on the roads; though this was being supplemented in some places by local money taxes. With the settlement of the country, thousands of miles of new roads were laid out and opened; but few of these were substantially or permanently constructed.

A tabular digest of the leading provisions of the road laws of the several states in 1888 was prepared and printed, in connection with a monograph on Road Legislation, by J. W. Jenks, then professor of Political Science in Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois.⁴ From this a summary may be made of the methods of road administration just before the beginning of the recent movement for good roads.

In New England, the Middle Atlantic States and the North Central States as far west as Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, road management was mainly or entirely in the hands of town officers, usually elected. In a number of these states, the county boards could lay out certain roads, and spend county funds to a limited extent, mainly to aid in the construction of bridges (e. g., in Maine, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio and Wisconsin). In the southern and western states, the county boards usually laid out roads and appointed local road officers; but in some counties of North Carolina and in Colorado, Washington and Nevada, local officers were elected by road districts. Even where the county had most authority, the principal source of supply for road work was from the local taxes. In a few states (New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Delaware) the labor tax had been abolished. But in most of the states the labor system was still in force, or at least taxes levied in money could be worked out. Most of the states, however, now authorized the levy of local money taxes.⁵ More than half the states authorized a limited use of county funds; and in a few southern states (Maryland, Florida, Louisiana and Texas) the county was primarily responsible for road conditions.

The only state roads then in existence appear to have been part of the Cumberland Road in West Virginia, and the Saluda Mountain Road in South Carolina.

ROAD LAWS SINCE 1890.

In 1891 the state of New Jersey inaugurated what has proven to be, a new general movement for building improved roads in the United States, with the aid of state appropriations and more centralized methods of administration. The New Jersey Act of this year made an annual appropriation of $75,000, to be used in road work, under the supervision of the State Board of Agriculture.

Two years later (1893), a Massachusetts law created a state highway commission, and provided for the establishment and construction of state roads. In the same year an Indiana law provided for the building of free gravel roads by the county authorities; and laws authorizing county roads were also passed in New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Missouri, Oregon and Washington.¹ In 1895 Connecticut and California enacted new road laws, for state roads to be built under the supervision of state highway officials. In 1898, two important state aid laws were enacted in New York State; and Maryland established a highway division of the state geological survey, to investigate road conditions and methods of improvement.

Since 1900 new road laws have been passed in most of the other states, and additional legislation in a number of the states already mentioned, establishing or extending the powers of state highway officials and making or increasing state appropriations for road purposes; while in New York, California and several other states large issues of state bonds have been authorized for road purposes.

Thus in 1901, a state aid law was enacted in Maine, In 1903 state appropriations were made in Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and Delaware; and State highway authorities with investigating and advisory powers were established in Ohio and Illinois. In 1904 an Iowa law provided that the Iowa State College should act as a state highway commission. In 1905, state appropriations for roads improvement were begun in New Hampshire, Michigan, Illinois and Washington; and the same policy was inaugurated by Virginia in 1906 and Minnesota in 1907.

This recent legislation presents a complex variety of provisions exhibiting a wide range of differences in the forms and amount of state aid and in the organization and powers of state and local officials. The general results of the development of the past two decades can best be indicated by a comparative summary of the existing road laws and systems of road administration in the several states.

II. COMPARISON OF PRESENT ROAD LAWS.

LOCAL ADMINISTRATION.

A comparison of the local administration of roads and bridges in the several states must be based on some idea of the general systems of local government, and especially of the relative importance of the county and town government. In the southern states and the states west of the arid plains, the county is the main unit of local government. On the other hand, in the New England states, the towns are the principal districts, although even in these states there is an organized county government, with some supervision over highways. In the important group of the Middle-Atlantic and North Central states, comprising half the population of the country, both counties and townships are local districts of importance. In several states there are optional systems of local government. Under this latter arrangement, while most of the counties in Illinois have adopted township organization, there are seventeen counties without township organization; and in Missouri and Nebraska, some counties have adopted the township system, but most of the counties have no general system of township government.

With special reference to road administration, however, important modifications from the general scheme of local government have been made in many states, especially in those where the county is the main unit of local government. While in such states, the laying out of highways and the levy of taxes for road purposes is usually a county matter, the direct management of road work is often delegated to district officers. In fact, the general rule has been to divide counties into road districts, for which road overseers are elected or appointed; so that the road administration in states under the county system is almost as decentralized as under the township system. Thus Illinois counties not under township organization, are divided into road districts, in each of which there is elected three highway commissioners and a district clerk, who in turn may appoint road overseers. In Alabama the courts of county commissioners may divide their counties into road precincts and appoint apportioners, who in turn appoint an overseer for each district; and in most of the southern states some modification of this general plan of road administration is in force.

The more recent road legislation shows a distinct tendency towards more efficient local administration in two ways: first, by doing away with one of the dual sets of town or district officials below the county authority; and, second, by providing a county road engineer, superintendent, supervisor or commissioner.

Such county road officers are now authorized or required in no less than thirty-four states. These include New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and Vermont in the northeastern group; Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and North and South Dakota in the central west; Virginia, West Virginia, South Carolina, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas in the south; and Colorado, Montana, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, California, Oregon and Washington in the western group.

In two-thirds of these states, including New Jersey, Ohio, Kansas and Nebraska, these county officers are required, or are provided as a general rule. They are authorized, or provided only in certain counties in eleven states, including New York, Michigan and Wisconsin.

In twenty-six of these states, county road officers are appointed, usually by the county board. In eight states, they are elective officers—Ohio, Michigan, South Carolina, Arizona, Montana, Nevada, California and Washington.

Ten states provide definitely for road engineers—Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Washington. In Nebraska, the county highway commissioner must be an experienced road builder. Of these eleven states, only Washington has an elective official.

In four states, the county surveyor is the county road officer—Ohio, Montana, Nevada and California. In Ohio, the surveyor is an elective officer; in the other three states he is appointed.

In sixteen states, the county road officials are called commissioners, superintendents, road masters, supervisors or overseers.¹

Special attention may be called to the arrangements in New York and Nebraska. New York appears to have established the most efficient organization of road administration in any of the states.

The board of supervisors of any county may appoint a county superintendent of roads and fix his salary. His term of office shall be four years unless sooner removed by said board.

If the board fails to appoint a county superintendent, the (state highway) commission shall appoint a county superintendent from the eligible list of the county and fix his salary, or, in its discretion, place such county in a district with other counties and appoint a district superintendent therefor. No district shall contain more than 3,000 miles of public highways. The commission may remove a county or district superintendent upon written charges and hearing.

The district or county superintendent, subject to the regulations of the commission and the state superintendent of highways, has general charge of all highways and bridges in his district or county.¹

In Nebraska the county board of each county may appoint a county highway commissioner. Such county highway commissioner shall be a practical and experienced road builder, and the county board may designate and appoint the county surveyor or any other person deemed qualified for the office, provided that in counties having 50,000 population or over the county surveyor shall perform all the duties and possess all the functions of the said office of county highway commissioner. Said county highway commissioner, in the event the county board shall appoint such an officer, and the county board shall have exclusive control and supervision of all the public roads of the county, in accordance with the provisions of the Act. The district road overseer shall work under the direction of the county highway commissioner, where such commissioner shall be appointed. The county highway commissioner shall be the superintendent of the construction of all roads and bridges and their maintenance, and shall make plans and specifications when requested by the county board for such improvements.²

COUNTY ROAD OFFICERS.

Alabama—County supervisor of roads may be appointed by county commissioners.

Arizona—County superintendents of roads elected by the people.

Arkansas—Where a county road tax is voted, the county court may employ a road commissioner.

California—County surveyor appointed by county supervisors.

Colorado—General road overseer for county may be appointed by county commissioners.

Delaware—State highway commissioner for each county; road engineers in two counties.

Indiana—County boards appoint engineers for gravel roads.

Iowa—Has an optional system of supervision by a county road engineer.

Kansas—County engineer appointed by county commissioners.

Kentucky—County road overseer appointed by county fiscal court.

Maryland—County commissioners may appoint supervisors, engineers, etc.

Michigan—In counties having county road system, a board of three commissioners elected.

Mississippi—County boards of supervisors appoint three road commissioners.

Missouri—In ninety-two counties, a county engineer is appointed by the county court.

Montana—County commissioners appoint supervisors and a county surveyor.

Nebraska—County commissioners appoint a county highway commissioner, who must be an experienced road builder.

Nevada—County commissioners appoint a county surveyor, and appoint district road overseers.

New Jersey—County boards appoint county engineers, and county supervisor for construction work.

New Mexico—County commissioners appoint three road supervisors.

New York—County superintendents may be appointed by county board or state commission.

North Dakota—County commissioners appoint county superintendents of highways.

Ohio—County surveyor, elected, has direction of county road work.

Oklahoma—County commissioners may appoint a county engineer.

Oregon—County commissioners may annually appoint a road master or masters. County road master, surveyor and one free holder from board of county road viewers.

Pennsylvania—County commissioners authorized to employ or appoint proper persons for preparing plans and carrying out work on county roads. County engineers in some counties.

South Carolina—In most of the counties a county supervisor of roads is elected. In some counties the county commissioners appoint county engineers.

South Dakota—In counties of considerable area which are mountainous, county commissioners shall employ a practical engineer. , Texas—The commissioners court of any county may appoint one road superintendent for such county or one superintendent for each commissioner precinct.

Utah—County commissioners appoint a county road commissioner.

Vermont—State highway commissioner appoints a supervisor of roads in each county.

Virginia—County boards of supervisors may appoint a county road superintendent.

Washington—A county engineer is elected biennially.

West Virginia—County commissioners may appoint a county engineer.

Wisconsin—Where state aid is obtained the county board must appoint a county highway commissioner.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENTS.

Forty states have now provided for a state highway department, a state highway commissioner or board, a state engineer, or some other official or board with some power and authority in highway matters. The only exceptions are Indiana, West Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas. All of these are in the south, except Indiana, where a large amount of road improvement has been carried out by the boards of county commissioners.

The organization of these state highway offices show a wide variety; and hardly two states have precisely the same system of state highway administration. A number of states have a single state highway commissioner or engineer, usually appointed by the governor (in most cases with the consent of the senate) at the head of this service. This arrangement is established in Maine, Vermont, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Oklahoma. More often a board or commission of three or more members is appointed by the governor and senate; and this board appoints an engineer. This plan is adopted in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maryland, Tennessee, Illinois, Minnesota and Colorado.

In other states there is a board composed in whole or in part of ex officio members, as in New York, New Jersey, Virginia, North Carolina, Alabama, Wisconsin, Idaho, Utah, New Mexico, California and Washington. Thus in New York, the state commission of highways is composed of the state superintendent of highways, the state engineer and surveyor and the state superintendent of public works. In New Jersey, the state highway commission consists of the governor, president of the senate, speaker of the house and commissioner of public roads. In Missouri, the state highway engineer is appointed by the state board of agriculture; and in Iowa and Kansas, the state highway engineers are appointed by the state agricultural colleges. In North Carolina, the office is connected with the state geological and economic survey; and in Louisiana, the highway department is one division of the state board of engineers.

In most cases members of state highway boards receive no compensation as such, other than the payment of their expenses, except where the state engineer or commissioner is a member. But the members of the Massachusetts commission have a salary of $4,000 a year, and the chairman $5,000 a year; the Rhode Island commissioners receive $1,000 a year each; and in Colorado, the chairman is paid $1,200 a year and the other members have $600 each. States with a single highway commissioner pay salaries, as other states pay the state engineers, from $1,800 a year in New Hampshire and Vermont to $8,000 a year in New York and Pennsylvania. In New Jersey, California and Washington, the state engineers receive $5,000 a year.

The powers and jurisdiction of these state highway offices cover a wide range of variation, and in no two states is the scope of activity precisely the same. In some states, the highway bureaus simply collect and distribute statistical data and other information in regard to road improvement and administration. Other powers added in various states include, the direction of experiments in road improvement, the preparation of plans and specifications for bridges and permanent roads, the supervision over the construction of local roads and bridges (built by counties and in New York also by townships) aided by state funds, and the construction and maintenance of a state system of main roads. In a general way, the authority of the state highway officials varies with the amount of state aid.

In about twenty states, the state highway officials, not only collect and distribute information and prepare plans and specifications, but also exercise a substantial amount of supervision or direct control over the construction of improved roads and bridges aided to some extent by state funds. These states include: Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania in the northeast; Virginia, West Virginia, Alabama and Louisiana in the south; Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and to some extent Illinois, in the middle west; and Colorado, Idaho and California in the farther west. The state departments with the most power are in those states where the state appropriations have been the most important—viz: Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and California.

The Massachusetts Highway Commission, of three salaried members, appointed by the governor and council collects and publishes statistics as to roads, makes road maps, gives advice to local road authorities, and has full control over the system of state highways—including their location, plans and specifications, the acceptance of bids and the work of construction. The commission also registers motor vehicles, licenses operators and makes regulations for their operation; and further has general supervision over telephone and telegraph companies.

The New York Highway Commission consists of the state superintendent of highways and the state superintendent of public works, appointed by the governor and senate, and the state engineer and surveyor, an elective officer. This commission has an extensive scope of authority. It compiles and publishes highway statistics, investigates methods of road construction and maintenance, and holds annual public meetings in each county or district in the state; it has general supervision over all highways and bridges constructed or maintained, in whole or in part, by the aid of state funds; it prescribes rules relating to the duties of division engineers, district, county or town superintendents of highways in respect to state and county roads; it aids local road officials in establishing grades and drainage systems; it prepares plans, specifications and estimates on the request of local officials; and it approves and determines the final plans and specifications for state and county highways and lets contracts for such improvements. The staff of the commission includes two deputy state superintendents, not more than six division engineers, with other resident engineers, inspectors, clerks and other employees, appointed subject to civil service regulations.

In New Jersey the state highway commission consists of the governor, president of the senate, speaker of the house of assembly and the commissioner of public roads. The commissioner of public roads is appointed by the governor and senate; and his staff, appointed under civil service rules, includes one supervisor of public roads, two assistant supervisors, assistant engineers and local supervisors or inspectors.

The commissioner of public roads collects data relating to highway construction and improvement and makes an annual report to the legislature. After conferring with the county boards of freeholders and other local authorities, he decides on the roads to be built, improved and maintained with the aid of state money. He must approve the surveys, including plans, profiles, cross-sections, calculations and specifications, before bids are advertised; and later must approve contracts and bonds before work is begun. After the work is completed, he satisfies himself by personal observation or otherwise that the work is properly done, and then accepts it on behalf of the state, after which the state's portion of the cost is sent to the county.

The Pennsylvania State Highway Department includes a state highway commissioner, two deputies, a chief engineer and an auditor, appointed by the governor. The state commissioner appoints additional engineers, fifty superintendents of highways and other assistants. The state commissioner is required to have made a road survey and general highway plan of the state and road maps of each county, to compile statistics and other information relating to roads, and may be consulted by local highway authorities. He makes surveys and estimates for road work, proposes plans and specifications, and enters into contracts for the construction, maintenance and repair of state highways, and apportions the state aid fund.

In California, the state highway administration is vested in the department of engineering, with an advisory board composed of the governor, the state engineer, the general superintendent of state hospitals; the chairman of the state board of harbor commissioners of San Francisco and three appointed members. The department of engineering is authorized to examine highway conditions, to select the routes of the state highway system, and to have charge of the construction and maintenance of state highways.

ROAD TAXES AND REVENUES.

LOCAL ROAD TAXES.

To describe in a brief statement the complex variety of methods for raising road funds in the United States presents even more difficulty than to outline the systems of road administration. Besides considering the financial powers of the various county, town and district authorities, there must be noted the distinction between property and poll or per capita taxes, and the extent to which either of these classes of taxes may be worked out in labor. Moreover, in addition to the ordinary tax levy for general road purposes, there are numerous provisions authorizing additional levies for specific purposes, often requiring a different procedure from the ordinary levy. Thus special levies may be authorized for bridges, for opening new roads, and for constructing improved roads; and besides the annual tax levies there are provisions for the issue of bonds, which carry a continuing tax for interest and the repayment of principal.

Both with regard to taxes and bond issues, it is often difficult, if not impossible, to differentiate clearly between county, township and district action. Taxes levied by the county authorities may be strictly limited in their disbursement to the towns or districts in which they are collected. County bonds may be issued for the improvement of roads in a particular township or district, and be paid in whole or part by taxes in the smaller area.

Even in a single state, the financial provisions of the road laws are sometimes so complex and confusing that local officials and at times the courts have trouble in their interpretation. Any general statements can therefore deal only with the most salient facts; and no account of the actual administration of the various laws can be given.

PROPERTY TAXES.

Viewing the county as a whole, the county is the most important unit of road finances; but in many states the towns and in some the road districts are the principal local area for road taxes. In about half the states, the town or township has at least some control over road funds. As might be expected, this is especially true in New England, where local road taxes are regularly levied by the town meetings. But, even in this section, county road taxes are authorized in Maine, and in Massachusetts the county authorities are required to assess on the town their share for the construction of state roads.

In the Middle Atlantic and North Central States, both county and town taxes for road purposes are authorized; and in most of these states both county and town levies form an important part of the road funds. Thus in Iowa, the township is authorized to levy a road tax and a special road drag tax of one mill, while the county also levies taxes for some roads and for substantially all the bridges. During the last decade, the county funds for roads and bridges in Iowa have been larger than the township road taxes. The recent tendency in these states is to increase the financial powers of the county; and notably in Ohio and Indiana, road improvement has been brought about largely through the action of the county authorities. In Illinois, however, the use of county funds for highway purposes has been very small; and has been mainly in the form of small appropriations to aid in the construction of the more important bridges.

In the southern and western states, road taxes are mainly levied by the county authorities, the only exception being in Oklahoma. But in a number of these states district road taxes are also authorized, as in Virginia, South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Oregon and Washington. In these states, too, the poll or labor tax is expended within the respective road districts.

The maximum rate of property taxation for road purposes authorized shows a wide range of variation. The smallest rate of local taxation appears to be in Arizona, where the maximum is 25 cents on the $100 assessed valuation, in addition to a state tax of the same amount. In a number of states, the aggregate of the county and town or district road tax rates authorized is more than 1 per cent—as in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Nebraska, North Dakota and Oregon; while in Wisconsin the total is over 2 per cent of the assessed valuation.

To accurately compare the significance of the authorized local tax rates would require an analysis of the relation between the assessed and true valuation of property in the various states. This cannot be discussed here; but it should be noted that in Illinois the authorized tax rates are levied on a taxable value, which by law is only one-third of the supposed full value of the property assessed. With this situation in mind, it appears that the local road taxes authorized in Illinois are much below those levied in all the more important eastern and north central states, and class this State with those which levy the smallest rates.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS.

A special feature of the Indiana road law is that providing for the construction of free gravel roads to be paid for by special assessments on the property benefited. Upon petition of a majority of the resident land owners, whose lands lie within one mile of the proposed improvement, and representing a majority of the acres owned by such residents, the board of county commissioners appoints three disinterested freeholders as viewers and a competent engineer to lay out the highway and assess the cost, not exceeding the amount of benefits, on lands within two miles of the improved road. Special assessments for gravel roads are not assessed on lands within incorporated towns and cities; but the corporate authorities may agree to levy a tax for not more than one-fifth of the cost of such road improvement. Bonds may be issued to pay for such gravel roads, payable annually over a period of ten years.

LOCAL BONDS.

Most of the states now authorize the issue of bonds by the local authorities for road improvement. Such bonds may be issued on behalf of counties, towns and road districts; and as noted above, it is almost impossible to distinguish accurately between bonds which impose an obligation on the whole county, and those issued by the county authorities on behalf of particular towns, road districts or (in Indiana) special assessment districts.

Such local bond issues form a large and increasing proportion of the revenues for road improvement. The data collected by the United States office of road inquiries showed in 1904 road expenditures from local bond issues of $3,530,470 in five states—Ohio, Indiana, Minnesota, Tennessee and Texas. In 1911, the expenditures for roads from bond issues in fourteen states amounted to $18,503,356; while in the same year road bonds were reported to have been voted by counties and townships in thirty-five states, aggregating $38,686,575. The largest amounts were in the state of Texas, where the total of road bonds voted in 1911 was $8,915,500. Other states where more than $2,000,000 of local bonds were voted in 1911 were Ohio, Michigan, Virginia, Tennessee and California.

POLL AND LABOR TAXES.

About two-thirds of the states retain some form of personal road tax. This form of road tax has disappeared in the North Atlantic States and a few others; but is still found in most of the states of the south, middle west and far west. In most of these states this tax may either be paid in money, or may be worked out in labor; but in some states including those on the Pacific coast and also West Virginia, it must be paid in money. The money tax in the north and west ranges from $1.00 in West Virginia to $3.00 as the maximum, and may be met by from one to three days' labor.

In the southern states, the labor tax is not only more general but in many states involves much heavier burdens. This system has been abolished in Virginia and Maryland; but in the other southern states the labor tax ranges from four or five days (in Florida, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas) to from ten to fifteen days in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. Usually the labor tax may be commuted at the rate of $1.00 a day; but in South Carolina, $3.00 is considered the equivalent of eight days' labor, and in Mississippi a poll tax of $5.00 is considered equal to ten days' labor.

The system of working out property taxes in labor is disappearing. In many states which permit poll taxes to be worked out in labor, all property road taxes must be paid in money. In some states, however, as in Illinois, the counties or towns may authorize the payment of property road taxes in labor; and in a few states the labor system is still freely used for property road taxes.

STATE APPROPRIATIONS.

Prior to the building of railroads, the States and Territories took an active part in the construction of public highways. This was especially important in opening up the newer sections of the country, as public roads were not merely of local interest, but were needed as a means of long distance transportation for districts not accessible to transportation by water. But with the development of railroads, the whole question of highways was left to the local authorities.

As already noted, the present movement for state aid began about twenty years ago in New Jersey. The first appropriation in that state was followed by further annual appropriations, the amounts gradually increasing from $75,000 a year to $750,000 in 1912. From 1891 to 1912, the state appropriations for roads in New Jersey amounted to $4,245,000.

Massachusetts in 1894 appropriated $300,000 for state roads; and this has been followed by further appropriations each year, aggregating $9,500,000 up to 1912. In New York small appropriations were followed by larger amounts, and after a few years, the people of the state authorized a bond issue of $50,000,000, for the construction of a comprehensive system of improved highways throughout the state. In Pennsylvania the state expenditures and appropriations for roads from 1904 to 1912 have amounted to more than $13,000,000. California has authorized bond issues of $18,000,000 for state roads, Connecticut $4,500,000 and Maryland $6,000,000.

For the year 1912, state road appropriations of more than $100,000 each were made by more than twenty states; and more than $500,000 of state funds was available for road building in each of the following states: Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Washington. The table below summarizes the extent of state aid in various states:

	State appropriations or amount available 1912.	Total State appropriations to 1913.	Total State funds authorized.

State appropriations for roads are regularly accompanied by other forms of state aid and supervision. Indeed some states furnish assistance to the local road authorities in the form of engineering advice and convict labor, where there has been little or no money appropriations, as in Illinois, Oklahoma and Wyoming. Where state appropriations are made, engineering assistance and supervision is more important; and in the states which make large appropriations there is a corresponding increase in the degree of state control over the expenditure. Thus in such states as New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and California, the state highway departments must approve plans and specifications and make contracts for roads to be built with the aid of state funds. In Massachusetts, the administration of the state road system is still more completely centralized. The entire work of constructing state highways is carried out by the state highway commission; and the local contribution toward the cost is repaid to the state.

MOTOR VEHICLE LICENSES.

About one-half of the states now provide for a special license tax for motor vehicles, the proceeds of which are used for road purposes, and in nearly every state for the construction and maintenance of permanent highways. In many states the revenue from this source is retained in the state treasury, as a part of the state fund for improved roads. In Massachusetts the net amount of automobile fees and fines, after paying the costs of administration, is expended for the construction and improvement of roads—20 per cent may be spent on the construction or repair of main roads connecting one town with another, and 80 per cent is used on the state highways. In Maryland, the revenue from the automobile tax is paid into the state treasury, four-fifths being used for oiling, maintenance and repair of the improved roads now being built by the state and counties, and one-fifth being transferred to the city of Baltimore for use in its roads and streets. Other states which place the revenue from motor vehicle licenses in the state highway fund include Ohio, New Hampshire, Vermont and Utah.

In some states the proceeds of the automobile licenses are distributed to the counties or local authorities, for use on improved roads. Thus in Nebraska this revenue is given to the counties with the proviso that it be used for the building of permanent roads. Iowa stands almost in a class by itself in distributing this fund to the counties without requiring that it shall be used for permanent improvements rather than for temporary work.

FARMERS, AGRICULTURAL AND LIVE STOCK ASSOCIATIONS, FARMERS' INSTITUTES AND CHAIRMEN OF COUNTY BOARDS.

In an endeavor to ascertain the views of all interests, the farmers were found the most difficult to reach because of the very limited organization existing among them. In order to come in contact with as large a number of farmers as possible, we sought the friendly offices of the press of the State by addressing each newspaper, regardless of its political or religious complexion, asking their voluntary aid. Replies were received from approximately five hundred, offering space in their columns free of charge. To this list of five hundred newspapers the following questions, addressed particularly to farmers, were sent:

1. Do you favor the continuation of the present system of road management in your county? What changes would you suggest?

2. Do you favor the construction of permanent roads in your county with State aid?

3. Do you favor the election of one highway commissioner in each township instead of three?

4. Do you favor the creation of a State highway commission to have general supervision over the highways and the selection by the county board of a county road superintendent to coöperate with the State highway commission?

5. Do the farmers in your county favor a change in the law providing for the improvement of highways in accordance with modern demands? And do you think that the majority of the farmers of your county would concur in your answers to the above questions?

So far as we are able to ascertain, each newspaper of the entire number published the questions and urged the farmers to reply. Replies were received representing 79 per cent of the counties of the State. Not all of those replying answered the full list of questions, but those of the greatest interest and importance. Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, were very largely answered. To question No. 1, 67 per cent replied "No." To question No. 2, 61 per cent replied "Yes." To question No. 3, 59 per cent answered "Yes." To question No. 4, 91 per cent replied "Yes." Questions Nos. 5 and 6 were answered in line with the views of the respondent in almost every instance, it apparently being the thought of each to not only express his personal views but to reply to the best of his judgment for the entire community.

Along this same line the following questions were addressed to the president of each county farmers' institute of the State:

1. Do you favor the continuation of the present system of road management in your county? What changes would you suggest?

2. Do you favor the construction of permanent roads in your county with State aid?

3. Do you favor the election of one highway commissioner in each township instead of three?

4. Do you favor the creation of a State highway commission to have general supervision over the highways and the selection by the county board of a county road superintendent to coöperate with the State Highway Commission?

5. Do the farmers in your county favor a change in the law providing for the improvement of highways in accordance with modern demands? And do you think that the majority of the farmers of your county would concur in your answers to the above questions?

Forty-four per cent of the presidents of the county farmers' institutes made replies. Of these, question No. 1 was answered "No" by 85 per cent; question No. 2 "Yes" by 78 per cent; question No. 3 "Yes" by 78 per cent; question No. 4 "Yes" by 81 per cent; and they, like the individual farmers, answered questions Nos. 5 and 6 in line with their opinion as to the other questions.

Another representative element of the farmers, the presidents of the various agricultural associations and societies of the State, were sent the same questions. The great majority made reply. Of those responding, to question No. 1, 78 per cent answered "No"; to question No. 2, 80 per cent answered "Yes"; to question No. 3, 63 per cent answered "Yes"; to question No. 4, 80 per cent "Yes".

The committee also addressed the same list of questions to the chairmen of the county boards of each county in the State. To these inquiries we received replies from but twenty-eight counties, being in about the same ratio of replies as were received from the highway commissioners. Of the answers returned, to question No. 1, 62 per cent answered "No"; to question No. 2, 73 per cent "Yes"; to question No. 3, 40 per cent "Yes"; to question No. 4, 16 per cent "Yes".

CONVICT LABOR.

Early in the work of the committee it was found that a considerable sentiment existed throughout the State favoring the use of the State convicts in building public highways.

About half of the states make definite provisions for employing convict labor in the work of road improvement. This system is most extensively used in the states of the south and far west. In many of the southern states, prisoners are required to work on the roads in "chain gangs" under the supervision of the local authorities; and in a few states convict labor is employed under the contract system. In Georgia nearly 5,000 convicts are at work on the roads. There is, however, a good deal of difference of opinion as to the wisdom or safety of the "chain gang" system; and there is special objection to the plan of leasing convicts to private individuals or corporations under the contract system.

Another method of utilizing convict labor in some of the northern and western states is in crushing stone and manufacturing road materials in the state penitentiaries. This method is followed in Massachusetts, Illinois and California.

To get information first hand on this question, the committee visited both Joliet and Chester State Prisons. We were accorded every opportunity to inspect the quarries and stone-crushing plants and witness the method, in detail, of preparing road material.

After explaining fully the system of operating the stone quarry and stone-crushing plants, both Warden Murphy of Joliet and Warden Smith of Chester appeared before the committee and gave exhaustive statements of their views relative to the most practical and economical use of the State convicts with reference to the public road question.

STATEMENT FROM E. J. MURPHY, WARDEN ILLINOIS STATE PENITENTIARY, JOLIET, ILLINOIS, BEFORE ILLINOIS ROAD AND BRIDGE COMMITTEE.

Warden E. J. Murphy, interrogated by Mr. Tice:

Q.—How many male prisoners have you?

A.—Fifteen hundred and fifty.

Q.—How many of this number are able-bodied?

A.—Able-bodied for road purposes?

Q.—Able-bodied for heavy work, such as would be required in preparing and handling the material and applying it in the work of public road construction.

A.—About three hundred fifty.

Q.—Then out of the total number of male prisoners that would be the maximum number that you could put at hard labor?

A.—Not to exceed four hundred. I think three hundred fifty would be nearer. We have now out there two hundred sixty five, I believe, and about one hundred seventy-five of those are able-bodied. I think that on the outside that probably seventy-five men would do as much work as all those. In fact I know they would. There are several reasons for that. The first reason, you don't get as much work out of convicts as out of ordinary labor. Another reason, running men in and out to their work. At half-past eleven we run them in to dinner. We run them out at half-past one, to work, and we run in this time of year about a quarter to five. In the winter we run in as early as three o'clock. It begins to get dark and we can't keep them out. We don't average more than four and one-half hours a day actual work, taking it the year around. We do better than that inside, but on the outside it takes time to run in and back. Then, another thing, if a storm comes up, or a cloudy prospect of storm, we run them in, unless it comes on before we know it; but we always run them in when a storm is probable. This difficulty you don't have in ordinary labor.

Q.—How long have you operated the crushing plant, producing road material?

A.—Well, five years since we commenced it. The first year it didn't amount to anything. That is four years that we have worked at it steady.

Q.—This crusher was built under your instructions and supervision?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What was the cost?

A.—It originally cost fifteen thousand dollars. We have in it now about twenty-one thousand dollars. We originally started with one crusher and afterwards we put in a small crusher, that is, to take care of—to break the stone that would go through certain screen and re-crush it.

Q.—Would the number now employed in the quarry operate your crusher to the full capacity?

A.—Yes. We have a difficulty now about getting the full capacity of the crusher, and that is the distance is so far to bring it to the crusher that we don't get the capacity of the crusher; when we started, the stone was close to the crusher. Now it consumes so much time taking it from the far end of the yard up to the crusher that the capacity of the crusher is not taxed.

Q.—About what is the average output of the crusher per day?

A.—We usually run about 450 yards a day.

Q.—Can you give us approximately the cost of this material ready for shipment?

A.—I will have to give that in two ways. We estimate the cost of it to be about 15 cents per yard, but it would amount to 25 cents per yard with all the fixed charges. That means guards, keepers, foremen and fuel, everything of that kind, also repairs.

Q.—That is loaded on cars?

A.—Loaded on cars. We could produce it, if we were starting again, cheaper than that. At the time we went into it we were inexperienced, but with the experience we have now we can prepare it cheaper.

Q.—About what is the average cost of repairs on your crushing plant per month?

A.—I will have to get you the figures on that. It varies so greatly. Probably some months it would amount to five hundred, some months three hundred dollars.

Q.—What does it cost to operate the plant per year?

A.—Approximately twenty-five to twenty-eight thousand dollars per year.

Q.—Have you a demand for all your output?

A.—Yes, ten times more than we can get out.

Q.—From what part of the State do you have the greatest demand for your output?

A.—The northern part, because of the freight rate. We ship as far south as Springfield; not a great deal to Springfield; more to McLean County.

Q.—Does this output all go to road work?

A.—Practically all. Some state institutions get some but it doesn't amount to a great deal. The law provided for that, it puts them first. At Pontiac we furnish stone for concrete work, and some to the asylums. We furnished a great deal of stone at Bartonville. Those two places got the most of the stone distributed to State institutions.

Q.—There are only two crushers operated by the State, the one under your supervision and the one at Chester?

A.—Yes, I think they have two at Chester.

Q.—Do you know about the output of the entire plants?

A.—I do not. I am not familiar with that. We produced one hundred ten thousand yards last year here. This year we are doing just about the same up to this time.

Q.—How many men could you work if you had machinery and equipment?

A.—We couldn't work more than three hundred fifty, or four hundred, at the outside.

Q.—That would be the limit of your physical ability?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Would you in your judgment, Warden, consider it a practicable proposition to establish crushers at various points in the State where we might find an outcropping of suitable stone and have these crushers operated by convict labor?

A.—I don't think it practicable from a financial standpoint, and I don't think it is good from a moral standpoint. There are some states that show from a financial standpoint it is all right, while there are others show it would cost more. In Washington it costs them more to produce road material than for free labor. Local conditions have much to do with the financial part of it. If you take these men and distribute them over the State, say four hundred from here and four hundred from Chester, you take them away from something I regard as practical. You have them in an institution where you produce this material. You produce it to a greater advantage here. My idea is this: As long as there is a demand from the road districts that will take at least ten times more than we can produce, the practical thing to do is to go on and produce it. Understand there are certain parts of this State, owing to the freight rate they cannot reach it.

Mr. Tice—That was the point I had in view when I asked the question. Isn't it better to reach what you can, then establish if you wish quarries along different parts of the State and hire free labor?

A.—That would be my idea about it.

Mr. Tice—I had in view that very thing when I asked the question. We know that there are in various parts of the State outcroppings of stone suitable for road construction. Then the natural question comes up, could we profitably use these convicts in a State plant at these different localities, or would it be more economical to establish and operate them by free labor?

A.—I think that could be answered in this way: Whatever you are doing along the line of good roads is not going to be limited to the amount of material gotten out by the convicts. If that be the case, then why not take the practical part of this prison and let the convicts reach what you can? It must be admitted if good roads is going to be a success in Illinois, you must employ free labor. If you limited the good road proposition to convict labor you would not get very far on the good road proposition. If that be the case then let Chester work out as far as they can, and we work out as far as we can, and in the middle establish free labor plants. Take the man that lives in the district that cannot pay the freight rate. Then that is a discrimination. These fellows live close enough to get the big end.

Q.—Isn't that overcome in this manner, the counties near the prison get the benefit of convict labor. Isn't the free labor paid by taxation?

A.—You will excuse me for making a suggestion along the line of your suggestion. The State does not appropriate any money to run the crusher. We have never received a dollar from the State for crusher expenses. The law provided that we work the prisoners producing goods to be used by State institutions. That was a failure; so we then got the law amended so we could work not to exceed forty per cent of the prisoners producing goods to be sold on the open market. The expense of running the crusher comes from the profit we make on goods sold on the open market. Up to a year ago in January we could have spent two hundred thousand dollars a year on good roads, but they took one industry out we made the most money on—the work shirts. The garment workers' union got after it. That was the best moneymaker we had up to this time. We are making money enough to carry our crusher along, and we have money enough to put in another plant here, but after a while if we use this money now to put in this plant as we contemplate doing, then we will have to go to the legislature to get money enough to defray the expense of the crusher. If we get another crusher the expense is added to it, it will eventually eat up our funds. It is the intention of the Board now to increase the present plant by putting in another crusher below where these are, that will take in a stone twenty-seven inches square, then carry it on up, and put in a motor that will carry the cars around to the crusher, at a cost of about fifteen thousand five hundred dollars. It is the intention to commence at that right away. That would increase our present plant forty per cent, that is the plant we have now. We intend to put in a new plant back of that at an estimated cost of twenty-five thousand dollars. If these two things are made then we could get out at least a thousand yards a day.

Q.—With the present force of men?

A.—We wouldn't have to increase the men at all on forty per cent. We have men enough to run both of the plants. The amount of stone we produced since we have been actually running, estimated on four years, would make one hundred seventy miles of road sixteen feet wide. That is under the direction of the State laws.

Mr. Hill—That would make a road from Chicago to Springfield.

A.—It is two hundred eighty-five miles to Springfield. You know a sixteen foot road is a good wide road.

By Mr. Tice:

Q.—You are using now all the available labor in your institution, under the present system, for this purpose.

A.—Under the present system. Not all the available labor if we had more capacity.

Q.—If you had a greater capacity, as I understand it, you could increase your output about forty per cent.

A.—Yes. This is estimated. It is estimated on our experience. You see in making the blast we blast up in small pieces. I should judge about a quarter we have to break now, then we have a crusher that takes in a fifteen inch square, the other crusher contemplated would take a twenty-seven inch square. You can see the amount of saving it would make in breaking. It consumes a great deal of time to break these. You have to drill, you couldn't do it with a hammer, so it is a slow process.

Q.—If it were considered practicable to employ convict labor in constructing and maintaining public roads, the number of men that could be supplied from your institution would not be sufficient to be of any appreciable service?

A.—I don't think so, gentlemen. Then, another thing in connection with that, if this new prison goes on there are a certain number of men required at that. Most all the work you do on a building would require almost able-bodied men. That would reduce your working capacity. I don't know what their plans are.

Q.—Is it the intention to use convict labor in the construction?

A.—Yes, it is in the bill. You have to use convict labor.

Q.—Now, Warden, will you favor this committee with your advice and your opinion as to the use of convict labor in the actual construction of public roads?

A.—I have had no experience along that line. I can only base my reply on my observation and experience here. There is no question but what the present plan of producing road material is practicable. I think it is a matter of speculation what you could do with these men on the road. In Washington, District of Columbia, they used the city prisoners on the streets. It was so objectionable on account of the children at recess and before and after school, that they stopped it. You put those men out on the road, no matter where it is, and they seem to be an irresistible attraction for children. I don't know what it is, but there is something about criminals that not only children but grown people wish to see. A child will go where they are at work just to see them if they know they are on the street, but I think from a moral standpoint the example is bad. You might try the experiment and the financial part might be satisfactory; I hardly believe so. You have to put up a stockade, and you have to erect temporary buildings. You have to house and feed these men, then you have to guard them. You can feed fifteen hundred men in a permanently equipped plant, properly administered, a good deal cheaper than you can feed two or three hundred under temporary and makeshift conditions, besides the amount of escapes you have. It costs you lots of money every time a man gets away. The statute provides fifty dollars for capture. If you get him back you have fifty dollars to pay, besides the expense of your men going out to look for him for three or four days. When you have taken all these things into consideration, from my experience here, and I haven't had any along the line you suggested, I think it would be a far more expensive proposition to take them out of here and put them along the roads. We have to watch them and they get away from the quarry right along. We catch them, but it is the expense of catching them. Last week we had one get away, three weeks ago we had two. They don't get very far. The minute a man gets away we start out guards and officers after him, then expense takes place. Anybody knows a stockade, no matter where it is, does not afford the protection that is afforded inside the inclosure. I am satisfied if you figure all the cost you will find that there would be a great deal more expense to use these men on the road than it would be to use free labor. I know other states work them, and they say they get good results, but I haven't any of the reports. I have written to Washington for one. Local conditions have much to do with them. If you take a quarry down at Alton and put these men down there, you reach a certain part of the State that is satisfied with the conditions, they won't change a particle. I think in those states where they are using them it is a success around where they are using it. There is no doubt there is a sentiment among the people to work convicts, but in my judgment, from a practical standpoint, I don't believe it is the thing to do. I noticed a statement in a paper last week that the state of Washington, after an experience of some time—I have forgotten how long—concluded it was more expensive with convict labor on the road than free labor. I wrote out there to find out and asked them to send a report.

Mr. Hill—The mere fact that the convicts are working for nothing, and people think we are getting something without cost, without stopping to think what it will really cost to take care of the convicts; that is the reason for the view taken by the public.

Mr. Jones—I had occasion to be in Utah, and I went along a trail where they had convicts at work, and the man in charge told me it cost as much again as free labor.

Warden Murphy—You know here we are producing goods for State institutions, all kinds of furniture, iron beds, bed springs, mattresses, boots and shoes, and brooms that go to State institutions. The only industry that makes any money is the reed and rattan, and a few of the brooms we sell; all the other is work for the State.

Mr. Hill—Which industry did you say you make the money at?

A.—Reed and rattan. The boots and shoes, all the furniture, and the brooms—not all of them, probably half of them—the iron beds, springs and mattresses, and everything of that kind go to the State institutions. The reed and rattan is practically all that we make any money out of. So we have employment for our men, and when a person talks about what you should do with convict labor, it is generally along the line that they have to compete with free labor, and about the first solution of the question is good roads.

Mr. Hill—Quite a few years ago the convicts were not doing anything for awhile.

Warden Murphy—No, when that law passed, we marched forty minutes a day, and could only take out fifty at once. Took all day to march them.

Mr. Hill—I suppose they begged for work.

A.—There wasn't but one man in here that didn't. He was perfectly happy.

Mr. Ireland—I suppose these men have had no choice in the matter; do they complain of working in the quarry?

A.—Once in a while, but not very often.

By Mr. Tice:

Q.—Now, then, Warden, from your experience in handling convicts or criminals, do you think it advisable or practicable to use county or local criminals for use on highways?

A.—I think it would be an expensive thing to do it.

Q.—In the southern states, a considerable per cent of road work is done by what they call county convicts. They are sentenced to the county jail for some petty crime for thirty or sixty days, whatever the term may be. The question in my mind is this: Would that be more practicable than the use of State convicts?

A.—I hardly think so. You take a county like this. I suppose they have on an average twenty-five county convicts. There wouldn't be more than six months in the year they could work them. They have to go to the expense of getting a plant to work them in. If that is not very close to the jail a great deal of time is consumed going back and forth.

Mr. Mitchell—Under our present statute a court has a right to send them to work on the highway.

Warden Murphy—It is confined to a few of the larger counties, and to a very circumscribed territory.

Mr. Ireland—The fact that you don't make one-tenth of the amount of material called for, isn't all this outside talk all out of place as far as the people are concerned?

A.—I think if the people were informed, were familiar with the actual facts they would view the matter in a different light. It is just the thing you are doing now that will give the information to the people.

Mr. Hill—Would not our State law of "indeterminate sentence" be another objection to working the other convicts in other localities than the prison?

Warden Murphy—I think you are correct on that as far as indeterminate sentence is concerned. You have to incur the expense of taking these men back. For instance the board of pardons meets twice a month. They are heard after eleven months. You have to have them brought back there, you have to have the Board go there. That entails an expense too. When you sum up all the expense coupled with it, I think it would be much cheaper to hire free labor if you intend to put them on the road, and take them away from the prison. You take this institution, children that live around here simply hover around this institution. I can't tell why, but there is something about a criminal that attracts a child. Another thing, if we get a man in this institution who hasn't a trade, we teach him a trade. He can work on the road one year or ten years, and he is just the same when he quits. There is nothing elevating about road work. I don't believe the law requires convicts to be put on the public streets to be humiliated. It is humiliating to put a man on the public street so that every man that comes along can look at him. Officials have to send the children away when we have men outside. That is where you do the greatest harm. Of course there isn't the danger with grown people. It is a bad thing for children. Let me give you an illustration. We have what is called a dump pile out here. We took our dump cart and went out and dumped there. There would be women and children going through that dump and trading with the convicts. They would say, "You bring me something, a piece of brass or something else, and we will bring you some tobacco." It got so we had to put a guard there. I think the moral effect ought to be taken into consideration before the financial part. There is no question in my mind but it is a great deal cheaper to hire free labor than to take the men away from here and put them on the roads. We feel after we get this plant up to its capacity increasing forty per cent, which we will be able to do by next spring, we will have very satisfactory results.

Senator Isley—I think, Warden, you have the material here to make good roads over the entire State of Illinois, but the difficulty is the possibility of distribution. If we could deliver that we would have the matter of good roads solved. You naturally have to deprive one part of the State because it isn't feasible to put in another. If you place a good road in any place or as far as they are willing to pay the freight, and then establish throughout plants along in the place you can reach I cannot see but what your doing that will satisfy everybody.

Warden Murphy—That is my best judgment, you could better afford to pay the freight to any place in the State rather than take these men out and establish plants along different localities in the State.

Senator Isley—There is no doubt about that, especially convicts. You could afford to pay freight to these people that are not getting the benefit now, rather than establish plants over the state with convicts.

Mr. Tice—Then to sum up the whole situation, in your judgment the use of convicts for building and maintaining public roads is an impracticable question, as they are now being used to the best advantage that they could be used under the present system?

A.—Yes, sir, I think it is not practicable from a financial standpoint, and I think it is a bad proposition from a moral standpoint. On the other hand, we have employment for the men to a greater advantage.

Senator Isley—Both to the men and the public?

A.—Yes, sir.

Mr. Tice—And that the manner in which they are now being employed in the production of this road material is the best manner to employ them?

A.—In my judgment, yes.

STATEMENT FROM J. B. SMITH, WARDEN OF THE SOUTHERN ILLINOIS PENITENTIARY AT CHESTER FOR THE ILLINOIS LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE ON ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Interrogated by R. S. Jones:

1. How many male prisoners have you? A.—1,152.
2. How many of this number are able-bodied for work on public roads? A.—$29.
3. Out of the total number of male prisoners would this be the maximum number that could be put at hard labor? A.—Yes.
4. How long have you been operating the crusher plants producing road materials at your prison? A.—Since July, 1904.

5. Was this crusher built under your instructions and supervision? A.—Crusher No. 1, capacity 250 cubic yards per 8 hours, was built in 1890. Crusher No. 2, capacity 500 cubic yards, per 8 hours, was built in 1906 and 1907. Crusher No. 3, capacity 500 cubic yards per 8 hours, built in 1912.

6. What was the cost of building this crusher? A.—Twenty-seven thousand dollars was the cost of building Crusher No. 2.

7. About how many men are employed at this particular work of producing road materials? A.—Five hundred seventy-four in quarries. Fifty per cent of same producing road materials for public highways.

8. Does this number operate your crusher at the full capacity. A.—No.

9. About what is the average output of crusher plants per day? A.—Three hundred eighty-four cubic yards per day.

10. Can you give us approximately the cost of repairs on your crusher plant for a month or year? A.—About $190 per month.

11. Can you give us approximately the cost of this material for shipment? A.—About 33 cents per cubic yard.

12. Do you figure this cost loaded on cars? A.—Yes.

13. Have you a demand for all of your output? A.—Yes.

14.—From what part of the State do you have the greatest demand for your output? A.—From the south half; namely: Crawford, Lawrence, Richland, Effingham, Clay, Fayette, Bond, Montgomery, Macoupin, Jersey, Madison, St. Clair, Marion, White, Washington, Monroe, Randolph, Jackson, Alexander, Union, Franklin counties.

15. Does this output all go to road work? A.—No. Only 48,395 cubic yards have been shipped for public highways for 1912.

16. How many men could you work if you had machinery and equipment sufficient to work the entire number of men available for this kind of work? A.—Six hundred.

17. Would you, in your judgment, consider it a practicable proposition to establish crushers at various parts of the State where we might find out-cropping of suitable stone and have these crushers operated by convict labor? A.—I would not.

18. In your opinion would it be better to keep these convicts at work at the prisons and if necessary operate independent plants at points where there might be out-cropping of stone in other parts of the State than to attempt to use convict labor in preparing stone at these other points? A.—I would certainly not advise working prisoners at any quarries other than Prison quarries.

19. Do not the counties that are adjacent to your Prison gain in the larger per cent of the benefits of the stone prepared in your Prison? A.—No.

20.—Could not your output be increased by additional machinery so that with the same force of men you now employ in that work that the output would be doubled or trebled? A. The condition of quarries at this time at this Institution is such that there is no reason why the output should not be doubled in 1913 and 1914.

21. In your opinion what would be the increase in your output by the installation of additional machinery and improved methods of getting out this stone with the reasonable expenditure for these improved facilities? A.—No additional machinery is needed for the output of road materials.

22. If it were considered practicable to employ convict labor in constructing and maintaining public roads would the number of men that could be supplied from your Institution be sufficient to be of any appreciable value or service? A.—All men confined in this Institution now have employment, and have had since July 1st, 1903. Employment could be furnished to 150 or 200 men more than are confined here at the present time.

23. What is your opinion in regard to the use of convict labor on public roads outside of their present use in preparing materials? That is, to put them away from the Institution on public roads? A.—I would not deem it to be advisable to work convicts on public highways, especially so when you have employment for them at the Prison.

24. In your experience in handling convicts or criminals do you think it advisable or practicable to use county or local criminals for use on highways? A.—I am of the opinion that no man should be kept idle. When arrest is made the party should be given employment, and if acquitted should be paid for their labor. If convicted the County should have the benefit of the labor to apply on expense.

For further information to you and your committee, if you desire, the output for 1912 of the stone department of this institution would equal 115,477 cubic yards, 22,000 tons, or 733 cars is the output of limestone dust which required 20,000 cubic yards of the above output.

The demand for limestone dust for soil purposes is increasing so rapidly that it will require at least, for 1913, 40,000 cubic yards of crushed stone to supply the demands for limestone dust.

If we could have secured cars for limestone dust shipments this year the output would have reached fully 900 cars or 27,000 tons.

In estimating the cost of crusher No. 2 included in the same is 2,080 feet of railroad track, combination crossing connecting the Iron Mountain and the Illinois Southern with crusher track.

WORK FOR THE MEN IN JAIL.

(BY VELLA MARTIN, INSPECTOR OF INSTITUTIONS.)

In the State of Illinois, a man guilty of misdemeanor may be fined and held in jail for an indefinite period because he is unable to pay his fine. Only three of the one hundred and two counties in Illinois have workhouses; in these counties, a prisoner held on a State charge is allowed one dollar and a half per day, said amount to apply on his fine. In places where no work is provided, a person may be confined for six months because he has not twenty dollars or more. Obviously then we do not keep a man in a vermin-infested, foul-aired jail because he is guilty of vagabondage, as we release the man who is able to pay for his offense. We do hold the man for debt and that in a place where he has no possible chance of fulfilling his obligations.

When men and women guilty of felony are sentenced to the penitentiary, they are required to work. In 1910, a daily average of 1,057 persons was confined at Chester, and 1487 at Joliet; none of these prisoners who were able to work were condemned to idle confinement. Yet during the same year a daily average of 1,524 persons occupied the county jails of Illinois. Though the prisoners sentenced to county jails are guilty of misdemeanors, they are condemned to absolute idleness while the men convicted of felonies are permitted to do interesting work.

The State has no moral right to confine misdemeanants with prisoners who are awaiting trial for heinous crimes. First offenders subjected to the demoralizing influence of contact with expert crooks, under conditions of absolute idleness, usually develop anti-social tendencies.

Work on the public highway satisfies many requirements for prison labor. Good light and air are insured, plenty of exercise is provided, skill is not required. An added advantage is the fact that trade unions do not oppose this method of employing prisoners.

The seventeenth General Assembly of Colorado passed a law giving to convicts who work upon highways ten days' commutation of sentence for every thirty days of work. The Warden of the State Penitentiary has established a number of camps for the construction of roads. "The work performed by the prisoner stimulated by the promise that his sentence will be commuted ten days out of every thirty days of work has been of such excellent character as to surpass that of the ordinary laborer employed to work upon the roads." The cost of guards has been very little. In his message of 1911, Governor Shafroth states that during the biennial year $317,221.00 was saved in the way of road building, farm work, lime making, repairs and construction of buildings.

In his message of 1911, Governor Sanders of Louisiana says "The use of convicts in construction of the public highways of Louisiana has passed the experimental stage. It has been found by actual experience that the use of convicts in this work is both economical and efficient."

Governor Crothers of Maryland says "The Road Commission is most anxious that some way may be found in which the cost of construction of of these roads can be reduced and I am of the opinion that this purpose can be materially affected by the passage of a law authorizing the use of convict labor from the jails and other penal institutions of the State on road work in getting out material in quarries and in other capacities where they can be safely and conveniently used."

Governor Oddie of Nevada favors employment of convicts on the public highways because it has been successful in many states, because it does not compete with free labor, and because it is physically beneficial to the prisoners.

Governors Glasscock of West Virginia, West of Oregon, and Hooper of Tennessee favor work of convicts on the roads because of the benefits to the community and the prisoners.

Since 1905, thirty-three of the United States have had laws permitting the employment of convicts on state and county roads, but only a few states have taken advantage of these laws. Tennessee, Colorado, Oregon, Louisiana, Missouri, Michigan, Vermont, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia are a few of the states in which the employment of convicts has been profitable and in the main beneficial. The following estimate of the comparative expenditures for one mile of first class macadamized road shows that the single state of the group in which prison labor is employed on the roads saves the tax-payers a considerable sum:

Delaware, over	$ 7,812 00
Maryland, over	6,914 00
New Jersey, over	5,544 00
Connecticut	7,000 00
Maine, over	5,828 00
Massachusetts	6,842 00
New Hampshire	4,227 00
New York	$8,000 00 to 10,000 00
Virginia	2,600 00

Not only does Virginia build each mile of good road at one-half or one-third the amount expended in states where convicts are not employed on the highway. Furthermore, the Secretary of the National Committee on Prison Labor, Dr. E. Stagg Whitin, states: "The Virginia system (of employing county prisoners on the highway) is probably the most successful.... All the convicts, both county and State, are directly under the State Board of Charities and Corrections, with inspectors attached to that body. The local engineer supervises the work and is a State or County official, depending upon the type of road, while the contractor supplies the material and the machinery for mixing and guarantees the type of road mixture, etc." Under no circumstances should the prisoners be controlled by the contractors.

The experiment in Kalamazoo County, Michigan, has been successful. In October, 1909, the sheriff was directed by the county board to turn his sentenced prisoners over to the Road Commission. A Superintendent was appointed to take charge of the work and one dozen prisoners were taken out to work on the highway. Though the only guards are a superintendent and a pit-boss, the men are not restrained. They are well fed and well clad. While they are working out their sentences, they are allowed a small sum for each day's work which is paid to their families or to themselves upon release.

Many examples of successful convict labor on the public highways could be given. A notable feature of the successful experiments is the element of incentive. Sheriff Tracy of Montpelier, Vermont, relates that he could get nothing out of his prisoners until it occurred to him to allow each man what he could earn, at the current rate of wages, above one dollar a day. The result has been a constantly increasing revenue to the State. Many men have purchased necessities for their families out of their earnings. Another method of inciting the prisoner to labor is deduction of a certain number of days for good behavior, and a heavy penalty in the form of a lengthened sentence for attempted escape or misbehavior.

In all the localities where the experiment has resulted in greatest profit to the community and to the prisoners, no degrading restraint or uniform is used. The laborers cannot be distinguished from free laborers. To persons who consider humane treatment of prisoners impractical a perusal of the Oregon, Vermont, Colorado and Michigan experiments would be beneficial. The citizen should not forget that it is the poor man, the man unable to pay his fine or engage a lawyer, who is held in jail. The responsible citizen will invent measures which will keep misdemeanants out of jail, instead of inducing the first offender to become a perpetual vagabond, burglar, or thief. Stimulating work under wholesome conditions may make of a man a social being, while idle confinement in an unwholesome jail will undoubtedly produce the "repeater" or the felon.

VELLA MARTIN,
Inspector of Institutions.

CONVICTS FOR ROAD WORK.

(BY E. B. WRIGHT, PRESIDENT ILLINOIS FEDERATION OF LABOR.)

Organized labor has repeatedly demanded the complete abolition of shop work in the penal institutions of the State and nation, and the substitution of open-air employment for the erring wards of society. We have gone on record time and again as favoring the preparation of stone ballast and other material for use in country districts, and for the actual building of the roads if it could be done without degrading the unfortunate convict as to deprive him of what shreds of manhood and self respect as remain in him following his incarceration in the county jail, his trial and sentence, and the months which society may exact of him within prison walls before he may be trusted again in the open air.

We all rejoice in the progress science has made in the care and treatment of the insane. The day of the torture chamber has gone from our mad houses, the shackles and bars are things of the past. Pleasant surroundings and healthful conditions have restored the mental balance of hundreds of these patients.

Why not take a single step forward in an effort to return the morally sick man to society as a useful citizen? True he must be punished; he must realize that he has offended against the welfare of the people. He must work, but let him work in the open air. It is not necessary to poison him as well as punish him. Few convicts ever return to society physically or mentally cured.

While society justly punishes the criminal is it fair to punish the man and the woman who have led upright lives by forcing upon them the competition of the prison worker? In certain lines of industry the prison contractor has either wiped out the free shop entirely or has retained it merely as an annex the better to confuse the purchasing public.

We have partially solved the prison problem in Illinois, but only partially. Organized labor favors the honor system in employing convicts in road making, and will do all in its power to further such a reform. The slogan of the business man to "Pull Illinois Out of the Mud!" by the extension of the employment of prisoners in State institutions in the preparation of material for road building, and the use of State prisoners—under State direction, on an honor system—in actual road work when practicable, has a cheering sound.

"Good roads spell prosperity." Yes, and the closing of the prison shops spell happier homes in the work-a-day wards of our industrial centers. It may be suggested that the free workers will suffer. Nonsense. We have 94,141 miles of roads in the State, and only 8,914 miles have been improved. Twenty years of convict road building need not displace one free worker. Indiana has about 37 per cent of improved roads, Ohio 27 per cent, Wisconsin 16 per cent, while Massachusetts has 49 per cent.

Give the convict a chance, make him work hard, but keep his body and mind as clean as possible. Give the free worker a chance to live under honest competition. "Pull us all out of the mud."

EDWIN R. WRIGHT.

President Illinois State Federation of Labor.

REPORT OF THE GOOD ROADS COMMITTEE OF THE ILLINOIS COMMERCIAL FEDERATION.

The following list of inquiries was sent by the secretary of the federation to various commercial associations representing towns and cities located in all parts of the State:

1. Do you favor new road laws for Illinois?
2. How much money is spent in your county annually for road work?
3. Are you getting roads that can be used all the year round, and do you feel satisfied with the way this money is spent?
4. Do you regard road improvement as a local issue to be settled by each township or county for itself, or do you want a uniform system of construction by the adjoining counties of the State, so that roads will not be bad in one spot and good in another?
5. Do you think it possible to get uniform construction and betterment without centralized direction by a State officer?
6. Do you believe in State aid for road building?
7. What proportion of the expense of road construction should be borne by the State? By the county? By the township? By the land owner?
8. Are your highway commissioners men who are fitted by learning and practice for the science of road building through the various kinds of soils that exist in your county?
9. Are they chosen for the office of Highway Commissioner because they are trained road builders?
10. Do you think untrained men can build roads as skillfully and as economically as trained engineers?

11. Will your organization help to get passed by the next Legislature a road law prepared by experts in road construction and designed to give the people economical and permanent highways?

12. Will you give us the names of your Good Roads Committee as soon as you have one appointed?

REMARKS AND SUGGESTIONS.

The replies received indicate a practical unanimity on the greater number of questions, there being a difference of opinion on only a few points.

Question No. 1 was answered unanimously in the affirmative.

No. 2 showed amounts expended in the several counties varying from $15,000 the lowest, to $145,000 the highest, or an average for the whole number of those reporting of $56,740 per county.

No. 3 all replies save one were in the negative.

No. 4 all favored a uniform State system excepting one who considered the matter a local issue.

No. 5 but three affirmatives, all others negatives.

No. 6 unanimously in the affirmative.

No. 7, on this question a wide difference of opinion appeared. One-third favored the State bearing the larger per cent of the cost. One-sixth favored an equal distribution of the cost between the State, county, township and land owner. One-fourth thought the cost should be distributed in various per cents to the State, county and township and no part to the land owner. One-fourth advocated an equal sharing of the cost by the State and county. The highest per cent of cost allotted to the State was 50 per cent; lowest 10 per cent. The highest to the county 50 per cent; lowest 12½ per cent. The highest to the township 75 per cent; lowest 10 per cent. The highest to the land owner 50 per cent; and the lowest 2 per cent.

No. 8 all negative excepting two.

No. 9 all negative but one.

No. 10 unanimously in the negative.

No. 11 unanimously in the affirmative.

From a study of the replies made to the several interrogatories and from extended remarks and suggestions offered by the respondents, we can reach no other conclusion than that new road laws and a new and different system of road construction and maintenance is demanded by representative officials of the business men of the State. When we come to consider that almost three-fourths of the taxes of the State are paid by property owners, both real and personal, in the cities and towns, their interest in the economical and efficient expenditure of the revenues is entitled to thoughtful attention.

The commercial associations of the cities and towns of the State are composed of manufacturers, wholesale and retail merchants, and men representing every profession. No body of citizens keeps in closer touch with the cause and effect of everything bearing upon the general welfare of the community. When these men, without a single voice in opposition, advocate State aid in constructing and maintaining the public highways, thereby saying they are willing to assume approximately three-fourths of the cost, it can mean but one thing—that they have studied and investigated the matter and have formed the opinion that they will be fully compensated because of the great benefits and profits to their customers and clients.

Every successful banker, merchant, manufacturer or professional man has long since learned that concentration and centralization of effort and efficiency, both by training and education of agents, are necessary requisites for the economical conduct and permanency of his business.

Then there is no wonder that as they apply these cardinal principles to the important business problem of building and maintaining our public roads, they are of one mind, as indicated by their replies to questions bearing on this point, that only by this uniform system can we secure permanency in construction and economy and efficiency in management.

To the taxpayers and citizens of both urban and rural communities and especially to our Representatives in the General Assembly we offer the following recommendations for the carrying out of the expressed opinions and wishes of the Illinois Commercial Federation:

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE ILLINOIS COMMERCIAL FEDERATION.

1. There should be a decided reform in the general administration of road laws and a more progressive policy.
2. Road taxes paid in labor should be stopped; all taxes should be paid in cash.
3. The number of road officials should be reduced. A strong State Highway Commission should control; under this Commission there should be county superintendents of highways to direct and superintend road work. If we must have elective highway commissioners, one in each township is quite enough.
4. The State should be the ultimate unit of administration, and should control and direct all road and bridge work. It may not be possible to accomplish this at once, but the State aid roads at least should be turned over to centralized direction.
5. A law should be enacted and sufficient appropriations made to empower and enable the State to institute a State aid system of public road construction.
6. The State should have complete authority over and maintain all State aid roads.

REPORT OF THE GOOD ROADS COMMITTEE OF THE ILLINOIS BANKERS' ASSOCIATION.

(MR. S. E. BRADT, DE KALB, ILL., CHAIRMAN.)

By the consent of the committee representing the Illinois Bankers' Association, appointed to investigate the question of public highways, we incorporate in full the report of the results of their investigations, together with their suggestions and recommendations.

The report of this committee is based upon a careful investigation extending through a period of more than eight months and covering practically the entire State.

The report speaks for itself and we make no comment other than to call attention to the fact that men engaged in the business of banking necessarily are in most intimate touch with the effect of every influence bearing on the economic situation, not only in their immediate localities, but in the community at large.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE ILLINOIS BANKERS' ASSOCIATION.

Your Committee on Good Roads, appointed under a resolution adopted at the Springfield convention, realizing that only along lines approved by you and with your hearty support and coöperation could anything be accomplished, submitted to you a list of questions pertaining to the road situation in this State.

These questions were formulated with a view of determining existing road conditions in the different sections of the State, the degree of interest which you take in the matter, your views of the working of our present road system and your suggestions as to the changes necessary to make it more efficient.

They were sent to approximately 1,600 bankers outside of the city of Chicago. Four hundred eighty-six answers were received. These answers covered 430 townships, situated in 98 of the 102 counties of the State.

COMPILATION OF QUESTIONS SUBMITTED TO MEMBERS AND ANSWERS RECEIVED.

Question 1—Approximate number of miles of public roads in your township outside of cities or villages?

The total number of miles of country roads in the 430 townships reporting is 26,100. This is about 27 per cent of 94,000 miles, the total mileage of the State, and the 430 townships comprise about 27 per cent of the total number of townships in the State.

Question 2—Approximate number of miles of stone or brick roads built during the past ten years?

The 430 townships reported 916 miles of stone and brick roads, which is approximately 3.5 per cent of the total mileage reported.

Question 3—Approximate number of miles of gravel roads built during the past ten years in good condition throughout the year?

The 430 townships reported 1,766 miles of gravel roads, which is approximately 6.8 per cent of the total mileage reported.

We believe that the above percentages will hold good throughout the State, which would indicate that 10.3 per cent of the total mileage of the State is improved, either with stone, brick or gravel. This compares very unfavorably with Massachusetts which has 50 per cent of improved roads, New York, 18 per cent; Ohio, 28 per cent; Wisconsin, 18 per cent; Kentucky, 20 per cent, and Indiana, 38 per cent.

As showing the correctness of our compilation, we call attention to the fact that the latest report published by the office of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture, taken from an entirely different source, shows between 9 and 10 per cent of improved roads in this State.

Question 4—Approximate number of miles of well-dragged dirt roads in good condition throughout the year?

The 430 townships reported 2,943 miles of dragged dirt roads, which is in excess of 11 per cent of the total mileage reported.

The road drag is rapidly coming into popular favor and its general use will revolutionize the conditions of the dirt roads. This is shown by what has been accomplished in the state of Iowa under a compulsory road drag law. The soil conditions in that state are very similar to the soil conditions in Illinois, but the proper and persistent use of the road drag has made their roads greatly superior to the roads of this State.

If your community is not using the road drag, it would be well to send to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Bulletin No. 321. This will show how to construct and use a King Split Log Drag, acknowledged to be the simplest, the cheapest, the most practical, and the best tool yet devised for use on dirt roads. If you can get the farmers at work with the road drag for a few consecutive miles on one or two of the main roads leading into your city, you will soon have plenty of help in the good roads movement.

Question 5—Which class of roads do the people of your vicinity favor and what is the trend of public sentiment concerning good roads?

One township reported in favor of concrete as a road building material, 127 favored stone, 95 gravel and 124 dragged dirt roads.

Concrete is not as yet being used to any great extent in this State for building country roads, but in some sections of the country, notably Wayne County, Michigan, where they have built over forty miles in the last four years, it is being used to the exclusion of other road building material. The roads already constructed are the main roads leading into the city of Detroit, and, although the traffic is exceedingly heavy, the oldest of these roads shows no signs of wear. It is claimed for them that the original cost is no more than any other approved type of road and that their great advantage lies in their exceedingly low cost of maintenance, their great durability and their being free from dust.

Any township, contemplating the building of hard roads, would do well to thoroughly investigate concrete as a road building material, as well as the system adopted by the Wayne County Commissioners.

The replies to this question brought out the fact that where there were no improved roads, public sentiment was generally either dormant or unfavorable, while on the contrary wherever they reported one, or more, miles of improved roads, public sentiment was favorable and often enthusiastic. One mile of good road will do more towards creating favorable public sentiment than any amount of argument.

Question 6—About what amount is expended annually by the highway commissioners of your township?

EXPENDED ANNUALLY ON ROADS.

Townships.	Expended.
430 reported	$1,674,630
23 reported less than	1,000
87 reported	$1,000 to 2,000
130 reported	2,000 to 3,000
73 reported	3,000 to 4,000

Over 80 per cent of the townships in this State raise for road purposes only from $500.00 to $4,000.00 annually. The bridge and culvert expenses will require on the average one-third of this money, while the other ordinary expenses and repairs will generally consume the remainder.

When you remember that in each township there is approximately seventy-five miles of country roads, you will realize that in these townships it is a hand-to-mouth proposition and offers very little encouragement in the way of building any permanent roads without outside assistance.

Question 7—In your opinion, what percentage of this amount is spent in a judicious manner, i. e., in thoroughly drained, well graded, properly built roads and well constructed bridges?

Four hundred and thirty townships reported $1,038,715.00 as having been well spent.

This includes the money paid for bridges, which many referred to as having all been used in their township in a judicious manner.

Question 8—What percentage is practically wasted in haphazard work that brings no adequate or lasting benefit?

Four hundred and thirty townships reported $623,915.00, or approximately 37½ per cent of the total amount as having been spent in a manner that brought no adequate or lasting benefit.

	Thus Spent.
15 townships reported	100%
68 townships reported	75 to 90%
175 townships reported	50 to 75%
95 townships reported	25 to 50%
47 townships reported	10 to 25%
18 townships reported	all well spent

This situation is not a new one. The same thing has been going on for the past twenty-five years and in most places the roads have not been improved to any appreciable extent under this system. The money is not willfully wasted, but it is spent in small amounts here and there in the endeavor to patch up and make passable a poor road or a poor bridge. There is not sufficient money at hand to do a good job. This makes it necessary for the highway commissioner to do the best he can with what he has. The result is the same work has to be done over each successive year with no permanent benefit to the roads.

Question 9—From your observation, do you think the average condition as to the proper expenditure of road funds in the adjoining townships is better or worse?

Of those answering this question, fifty-nine say that conditions are better in adjoining townships, seventy-nine say that conditions are worse in adjoining townships, the balance about the same.

While the actual reports cover only 430 townships, the answers to this question with reference to adjoining townships indicate that the same percentage of haphazard expenditure will hold good throughout the State.

There is raised annually in the State of Illinois approximately seven millions of dollars for road purposes, of which amount, according to the foregoing reports, two million five hundred thousand dollars is wasted each year mainly because of our present out-of-date highway system.

Question 10—Do the bankers, merchants, and professional men of your community take an active interest in the election of competent road officials?

One hundred thirty-two townships answered "Yes," 267 answered "No."

As a banker you are interested in this question, at least from an economic standpoint. The loss from poor roads is generally conceded to be a direct loss to the farmer. Granting this to be so, it is an absolute waste and thus an economic loss to the whole community. You can render no greater service to your community than by taking an active interest in the good roads movement.

In some sections of the State this movement is well under way, but in many others, while the good roads sentiment is there, it is lying dormant, because no one has taken the lead by crystallizing it into action. We believe that you can start this movement along the line of the road drag with excellent results.

The local civic improvement and commercial clubs in the towns and villages throughout the State would find it one of the most profitable objects of their efforts to make the highways leading from various directions into their corporate limits permanent and passable, at all times. Such roads would attract a reliable local trade which would generally exceed in its value to the town so benefited the value of the average factory promotion.

Question 13—Do you think that our present township highway system is economical and efficient?

Forty-eight answered "Yes," 388 answered "No."

In view of the answers to Question No. 8, the answers to this question could not be otherwise than above. It is a very strong condemnation of our present system.

There is no other branch of the public service that shows such a large percentage of waste. Any business enterprise under such a system would not last through a season, but so long as the people continue to put up the money and retain the present system, this loss will continue.

Question 14—If not, can it be made so and how?

Twenty-two answered "Yes," 82 answered "No."

Of those answering "yes," one-half of them say that the present law can be made economical and efficient by electing better men, while others say, only by changing the present law.

Question 15—In your opinion, should it be superseded by a system making the county the unit instead of the township and putting road construction under a competent county official?

Two hundred fifty-eight answered "Yes," 128 answered "No."

One of the most frequent criticisms of our present highway system is its lack of uniformity. We have in this State approximately 4,800 highway commissioners, each doing his work not only independently of the commissioners in the adjoining townships, but often independently of the commissioners in the same township.

With a view to correcting this situation, many have suggested that all roads be improved under the supervision of a competent county engineer, he to be under the direction of the State engineer; thus giving us a uniform system of roads so far as available material and other local conditions will permit.

Question 16—Are you personally in favor of the State either through an appropriation or a bond issue assisting in the building of roads under a law giving each county or township its fair proportion of assistance?

Three hundred fifty-four answered "Yes," 63 answered "No."

Question 17—In your opinion, what would be the sentiment of your community on this subject?

Two hundred fifty-one say, "Public sentiment is favorable;" 92 say "Unfavorable."

NECESSITY FOR STATE AND COUNTY AID.

The principle of State aid in the building of the main traveled roads is recognized in various ways and varying degrees by nearly all the states of the union. The state of New York has voted a bond issue of fifty millions to be spent in building country roads. The state roads are built and maintained by the state, alone. County roads are paid for as follows: Fifty per cent by the state, 35 per cent by the county and 15 per cent by the township. The state of California is spending from eighteen to twenty millions in building roads, and Colorado from ten to twelve millions in the same work. Pennsylvania has assisted in building roads to the extent of eight and one-half millions of dollars, New Jersey about four millions of dollars, Ohio about two millions and many others in a less degree.

Our State is already assisting in the building of roads by furnishing stone to the different communities, but this is entirely inadequate. What is needed is direct financial assistance on the main roads. These roads should be the ones over which the farm produce must be hauled to reach a central market. They should connect the principal towns and cities of the county and should also connect with the main traveled roads of other counties, so as to give continuous improved highways across the State and joining the main roads of other states, and would comprise about 20 per cent of the total road mileage of the State.

Townships are generally of the same size and have on an average about 75 miles of country roads. Under our present road laws, each township is obliged to build its own roads regardless of its population or taxable property, i. e., whether a town has 200 inhabitants or 200,000, whether it has $500,000 of taxable property or $100,000,000, it has practically the same amount of roads to build; and for whom?

If the inhabitants of each town used its own roads and no others, then the present law might be considered a just one, but such is not the case. It must be remembered that the inhabitants of the townships having the larger assessed valuation are without question larger users, for both business and pleasure, of the roads in the adjoining rural townships than are the residents of these same townships themselves. Again, whenever the residents of these rural townships use their roads, it is generally for the purpose of hauling farm produce to the city which its people must have, or for carrying home with them such articles as the city merchants have for sale and very often both in the same trip. The fact is that the townships in which the cities are located are being built up and supported in a large degree by the trade and commerce of the rural townships.

As has already been said, it is an impossibility for the rural townships to assume unassisted the burden of permanent road improvement and, in view of the above, it is manifestly unfair that they should be expected to do so, but if the State and county will give them the necessary assistance in building and maintaining the main roads, it will serve to arouse them to the advantages to be derived from good roads and give them the courage to undertake the raising of the necessary funds for gradually improving the connecting roads.

The city of Chicago, paying one-third of our State taxes, bears no part of the tax burden of the country roads. The State of Illinois is Chicago's largest commercial feeder. The citizens of Chicago are large users of the country roads and if by reason of better roads the farmer is able to make a saving in delivering his farm produce to the shipping point, her citizens will surely get their share of the benefits. Chicago can properly assist the country towns in this road improvement only through a State tax.

The country roads have always been a matter of deep concern to our people, but with the coming of the automobile a community of interest in good roads has sprung up that is not only state-wide, but is as wide as the continent. Without doubt, the equity of the situation demands that the township be assisted by the federal government, the State and the county.

The pressure of this movement is already being felt by our federal legislators, many of whom are favorable to the proposition; but what concerns us most is that part for which we as citizens are directly responsible, viz., state and county assistance. Only by some law that will permit the State and county to share its proper proportion of the burden can we hope to carry on any great amount of permanent road improvement and put our State in the forefront in the matter of good roads, the same as it is today in agriculture, commerce and education.

State and county assistance is not a matter of donating something, it is rather a matter of investment. Every user of the roads pays his share of the cost of poor roads and receives an equal benefit from the good roads. As every citizen of our State benefits from the assistance given by the State to education and agriculture, so will he be benefited by State assistance in building better roads which are the handmaidens not only of agriculture and education, but also of commerce.

SUGGESTIONS AS TO DESIRED CHANGES IN STATE LAW.

Among the suggestions made by the bankers in response to our request were the following:

DO AWAY WITH THE PRESENT POLL TAX SYSTEM.

Thirty-four were opposed to the present system of working out the poll tax and favored the payment of all road tax in cash.

ELECT ONE TOWNSHIP HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER.

Under the present law, the highway commissioners receive $2.00 per day for the time actually at work on the roads. If they are farmers and the most of them are, they cannot afford to leave their seeding or their harvesting or any other important work to look after the roads. And if perchance some of them would make the sacrifice themselves, their neighbors on whom they must depend for assistance will not leave their work to help in building roads. Because of this situation, the work is done in the fall and by the next spring has proven in many cases to be a damage to the road rather than a benefit.

At least one-third of the bankers who have offered any suggestions at all, recommend that instead of three highway commissioners as at present, we elect one township highway commissioner only, he to give his entire time to the road work at least during that part of the year when road work should be done.

ENFORCE WIDE TIRE LAW.

The use of wide tires would be of great advantage in the preservation of the roads, especially all gravel and stone roads and would add greatly to their durability.

DISTRIBUTE THE AUTOMOBILE TAX.

Many of the bankers suggest the immediate distribution of the automobile tax, which now amounts to approximately $400,000. This tax was levied under a law specifying that it should be used for the permanent improvement of the highways and for no other purpose. It, therefore, would appear to be entirely out of place to appropriate any part of this fund toward paying the salaries of county engineers, as is being advocated.

If this fund were distributed equally among the townships, as has been suggested by others, only about $250.00 would be available to each one and would result in the dissipation of the fund without any adequate benefit to the highways of the State.

In the opinion of your committee, it would be preferable to allow this fund to accumulate for another year to be used as a nucleus for State aid under some comprehensive law to be passed by the next legislature, but if the present legislature shall see fit to appropriate this fund at a special session, we would recommend that it be distributed among the townships that are willing to make permanent highway improvements and who are also willing to pay a large proportion, say at least 60, per cent of the cost of the said improvement themselves. The roads thus improved at the joint expense of the township and automobile tax fund should be the main roads and should be built in conformity to the specifications furnished by the State Highway Commission and under its supervision.

REVISE ENTIRE STATE LAW.

No less than 90 per cent of the bankers by their answers to the questions and by their suggestions, favored the revision of the road laws of the State.

From their criticisms, we would summarize the particular points in which the present law is a failure as follows:

First—The remuneration is not sufficient to warrant the road official in devoting his time to the work, except when he has no other work to do.

Second—Its tendency is to put untried and inexperienced men in office rather than men fitted for the work.

Third—Instead of providing a uniform system, it permits each one of the 4,800 commissioners to work out his own plans regardless of what the others are doing.

Fourth—It fails to provide by any equitable system for the raising of the necessary funds with which to improve the highways.

Fifth—By its failure to provide any reasonable method for general road improvement, it has retarded public sentiment in favor of good roads and has put our State many years behind in road building.

Sixth—It is responsible for the present deplorable condition of Illinois roads and for the annual waste of $2,500,000 of the taxpayers' money.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE.

For the correction of these defects, we would recommend the enactment of a new law providing for:

First—A State Highway Commission consisting of three members.

A State highway engineer.

A county highway engineer who may also be county surveyor in the medium sized and smaller counties of the State.

One township highway commissioner devoting his time to road work when the road work should be done.

Second—The improvement and maintenance of the main roads (about 20 per cent of the whole) principally at the expense of the State and county.

The improvement and maintenance of the connecting roads (80 per cent of the whole) at local expense.

Third—The improving of the main roads under the supervision of the State and county engineers, the improving of the connecting roads under the supervision of the county engineer and township highway commissioner.

Fourth—The payment of all road taxes in cash.

Fifth—The compulsory dragging of all dirt roads.

Committee.

June 1, 1912.

Good roads are an economic necessity and there is no occasion to labor the argument.

The roads are an index of the character of any country, determining its importance and limiting or aiding its advance.

A country that isn't worth a good road isn't worth what its land sells for and soon won't be worth living on.

No community that has ever improved its roads, has ever regretted it, for road improvement is a good investment for any community.

Since the roads are for all the people, they should be built by all the people, with State and Federal aid.

The within report of our Good Roads Committee is most interesting and illuminating and ought to be of great service to the cause.

We commend it, and state wide effort along the lines indicated, to all members as well as every citizen of Illinois.

B. F. HARRIS,
President Illinois Bankers Association.

CONCLUSIONS.

1. Under the present law the State is divided into approximately 1,600 road districts and each of these road districts is again subdivided into three commissioners' districts. Each of these commissioner's districts is, for most purposes, practically an independent unit for the construction and supervision of the roads within the commissioner's districts. In each of these commissioner's districts such methods of construction and maintenance of highways are adopted as commend themselves to the road commissioner of the particular district. The average amount which each road commissioner has to expend is slightly less than $1,200 annually. So long as this system prevails, no proper coöperation in the construction and maintenance of highways throughout the State can be expected, nor can it be expected that the officials in charge of such construction and maintenance shall have the technical skill required for an efficient and economical construction and maintenance of highways.

2. Under the present law each of the 1,600 road districts is an independent taxing district and the funds for the improvement of the highways within such road district must be raised solely by taxation of the property in the district. It is felt that the large taxable values within the centers of population which derive large benefits from the use of the highways do not properly contribute to their construction and maintenance. Such proper contribution from these large centers can only be secured by a system of State aid. The representative interests of such localities evince a willingness to contribute to the building and maintenance of public highways through the medium of a general State tax.

3. Under the present system of constructing and maintaining the highways, beneficial results commensurate with expenditures are not obtained.

4. The public is annually expending large sums of money on the highways and securing, at the best, only temporary benefits.

5. Under the present system of highway construction and maintenance the highways are not permanently improved.

6. In all parts of the State, in every county in fact, the ordinary highways, during certain seasons of the year do not meet the normal demands of traffic and travel and as a consequence there is a general demand for improved highway conditions.

7. Because of the existing condition of the highways an unnecessary burden is imposed upon business interests.

8. There is neither uniform nor systematic construction and maintenance of the highways nor concert of supervision in their upkeep by the highway officials.

9. There is no general and systematic method employed by which highways may be permanently constructed, improved and maintained in an efficient and economical manner.

10. That economy and permanency in highway construction and maintenance requires experience and technical skill in supervision, beyond the resources of localities generally.

11. Practically the same methods of constructing and maintaining the highways in use 25 or 30 years ago are still employed, and as a consequence, the highways do not meet the broadening and advanced demands of the religious, educational, social and commercial interests of the State.

12. There is a widespread criticism of, and dissatisfaction with, the present road laws and the system of construction and maintenance of the highways.

13. There is a demand for advanced legislation and progressive methods in the construction and maintenance of the public highways.

14. Under the present system there is nobody to equitably supervise the administration of the law, and require a compliance therewith.

15. There is a demand for a uniform and systematic accounting in the expenditure of highway funds and for an official auditing by the State, at least annually, of all highway accounts.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE.

1. The creating of a State Highway Department, the executive of which shall be a State Highway Commissioner who shall be appointed by the Governor by and with the consent of the Senate.

2. The appointment of one chief highway engineer and one assistant engineer.

3. The appointment of county highway engineers.

4. All highway officers operating under the direction of the State Highway Commissioner, other than the chief engineer and the assistant engineer, to be appointed from those found eligible by the State Civil Service Commission.

5. The enacting of a law providing for a State aid system of constructing public highways and bridges.

6. The State to have full authority in the constructing of all highways and bridges built by State aid and after completion to be under the control and management of the State Highway Department, and wholly maintained by the State.

7. A uniform system of constructing and maintaining public highways.

8. A uniform system of accounting and auditing under the highway department in the expenditure of all highway funds.

9. The payment in cash of all taxes levied and collected for highway purposes.

10. Forty feet to be the standard width of all public highways, subject to topographical conditions.

11. Let the county board grant the right and fix the compensation for the use of any part of a State aid road by public utilities, subject to the approval of the State Highway Department.

12. The abolishing of the three highway commissioner system and the election of one highway commissioner in each highway district or township.

13. That all convicts in the State prisons, who are physically able, shall be employed in the preparation of material for the constructing of public highways, and if found expedient, may be employed upon the highways.

14. That county aid, for the construction of permanent highways, other than State aid roads, in townships and road districts, may be given to an amount not to exceed 15 per cent of the actual cost of such improvements.

15. In case the county board shall determine that it is expedient to build a bridge in a township or road district, it may defray the entire cost of the same and the same shall be built under the supervision of the county engineer.

16. That the present automobile law be amended so as to provide that all licenses due under the provisions of said Act shall be payable to the highway commissioner and that it shall be his duty to see that the same are paid and authorize him to collect from justices of the peace fines for offenses committed on highways built by State aid.

17. The applying of all license fees collected under the provisions of the automobile law to the constructing and maintaining of State aid roads.

18. That all highways, other than State aid roads, be under the control of county, township and road district authorities, and that the constructing, improving and maintaining of all such roads be under the supervision of the township, or road district highway commissioner together with the county highway engineer.

19. For the purpose of establishing uniformity of taxes in the various road districts and townships, that the highway commissioner in each township or road district, annually certify to the county board of supervisors or county commissioners the amount necessary to be raised by taxation for the construction, maintenance and repair of roads and bridges in the township or road district, and that at the annual meeting in September, of the board of supervisors or county commissioners, the said amount so certified, if in the judgment of the county board of supervisors or county commissioners, the same are necessary to be raised for road and bridge purposes in such towns or districts, be approved and ordered extended as taxes against the taxable property, in such towns or districts, by the county clerk.

Your committee also submits herewith, as one division of its report, a report prepared under its direction by John A. Fairlie, Ph.D., upon town and county government in Illinois and recommends that the same be printed as a separate volume.

In general your committee is in harmony with the recommendations made in said report as to the changes desirable to be made in the laws having to do with local administration. The changes so recommended are extensive and your committee has not had sufficient time nor funds to cause drafts of bills to be made to effect such changes, and your committee further deemed it inadvisable to attempt to draft such bills until the policy of the General Assembly with reference to the proposed changes in the road laws should be made manifest.

Your committee has caused to be drafted a bill revising the road and bridge laws of the State, making important changes in the policy of the laws with reference to the management of the road system. This proposed law we submit herewith.

A BILL

FOR AN ACT to revise the law in relation to roads and bridges.

Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly: That the laws relating to roads and bridges be and they hereby are codified, revised and amended, with articles, subdivisions, and sections entitled, numbered and to read as follows:

ARTICLE I.

DEFINITIONS.

SECTION 1. (a) STATE ROAD AND BRIDGE FUND.] That the term "State Road and Bridge Fund," when used herein, shall mean all moneys appropriated by the State of Illinois for road and bridge purposes.

(b) STATE AID ROADS.] The term "State Aid Roads" herein shall mean all roads or bridges constructed, repaired or improved at the joint expense of the State and any county or counties within the State as hereinafter specified.

ARTICLE II.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT.

Sec. 2. STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT—(a) ESTABLISHED.] There is hereby created a department, to be known as the State Highway Department, the officers of which shall consist of the State Highway Commissioner, the Chief State Highway Engineer, the Assistant State Highway Engineer and the various subordinate officers hereinafter specified and set forth.

(b) OFFICES.] The Secretary of State shall provide for the State Highway Department suitably furnished offices in the Capitol building at Springfield and shall provide therefor suitable blanks, stationery, printed matter and other office supplies.

Sec. 3. STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER—(a) OFFICE CREATED.] The Governor shall, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, within thirty days after this Act shall take effect, appoint a State Highway Commissioner who shall hold his office from and after the date of his appointment and qualification until the first day of March, A. D. 1920, and until his successor is appointed and qualified. And on the first day of March every six years thereafter the Governor shall, in like manner and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint a successor to such commissioner to serve for a like term of six years and until his successor is appointed and qualified.

(b) OATH—BOND.] Said State Highway Commissioner, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take the oath prescribed by the Constitution of this State for State officers, and said oath shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State. He shall also execute a good and sufficient bond to the State in the sum of not less than $10,000.00, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties, said bond to be approved by the Governor, and then filed with the Secretary of State.

(c) SALARY—EXPENSES.] The said State Highway Commissioner shall receive an annual salary of five thousand dollars ($5,000), and in addition thereto he shall be allowed his actual traveling expenses incurred in official business. Said commissioner may also incur necessary expenses for clerk hire and other incidental expenses, as well as for the general purposes hereinafter indicated.

(d) GENERAL POWERS AND DUTIES.] The commissioner provided for herein shall:

(1) Have general supervision of highways and bridges which are constructed, improved or maintained in whole or in part by the aid of State moneys.

(2) Prescribe rules and regulations not inconsistent with law, fixing the duties of all persons employed in the State Highway Department and the various county superintendents of highways. Such rules and regulations shall, before taking effect, be printed and transmitted to the highway officials affected thereby.

(3) Aid county superintendents of highways and town and district commissioners of highways in establishing grades, preparing suitable systems of drainage and advise them as to the construction, improvement and maintenance of highways and bridges.

(4) Employ such clerical and other assistance as he may deem necessary to properly carry on the work of his office.

(5) Cause plans, specifications and estimates to be prepared for the repair and improvement of highways and the construction and repair of bridges when requested so to do by a county superintendent of highways or by a highway commissioner of any town or road district therein.

(6) Investigate and determine upon the various methods of road and bridge construction adapted to different sections of the State and as to the best methods of construction and maintenance of highways and bridges.

(7) Compile statistics relating to public highways throughout the State and collect such information in regard thereto as he shall deem expedient.

(8) Aid at all times in promoting highway improvement throughout the State and perform such other duties and have such other powers in respect to highways and bridges as may be imposed or conferred upon him by law.

(9) Approve and determine the final plans, specifications and estimates for all State aid roads upon the receipt of the report of the plans, specifications and estimates of the State Highway Engineer as provided herein.

(10) Let all contracts for the construction or improvement of State aid roads.

(11) Prescribe a system of auditing and accounting for all road and bridge moneys for the use of all highway officials, which system shall be as nearly uniform as practically possible.

(12) Perform all other duties prescribed in this Act or reasonably inferable therefrom.

SEC. 4. STATE HIGHWAY ENGINEER—(a) APPOINTMENT.] As soon as practicable after the taking effect of this Act, the Governor shall appoint a Chief State Highway Engineer and an Assistant State Highway Engineer who shall each be competent civil engineers, and experienced and skillful in highway construction and maintenance. The said Chief State Highway Engineer shall receive a salary of thirty-five hundred ($3,500) dollars per annum, and the Assistant Chief State Highway Engineer shall receive a salary of twenty-five hundred ($2,500) dollars per annum, and, in addition thereto, they shall be allowed their actual traveling and other expenses incurred under the provisions of this Act. They shall each hold office for the period of six years and until their respective successors are appointed and qualified.

(b) OATH—BOND.] Said Chief State Highway Engineer and his assistant, before entering upon the duties of their respective offices, shall each take the oath prescribed by the Constitution of this State for State officers and said oath shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State.

If demanded by the Governor, the said Chief State Highway Engineer and his assistant shall be required to execute a good and sufficient bond in such sum as the Governor shall prescribe, conditioned upon the faithful performance of their duties, said bond to be approved by the Governor and then filed with the Secretary of State.

(c) POWERS AND DUTIES.] The said Chief State Highway Engineer and the said Assistant State Highway Engineer shall be the administrative and technical agents of the State Highway Commissioner, and shall be generally subject to the orders of the said State Highway Commissioner. The said Chief State Highway Engineer and the Assistant aforesaid may at all reasonable times be consulted by county, township or road district officers having authority over roads and bridges relative to any question involving such highways and bridges.

Sec. 5. CIVIL SERVICE.] With the exception of the State Highway Commissioner, the Chief State Highway Engineer and the Assistant State Highway Engineer, the appointment of all assistant agents or clerks or other employees of the State Highway Department shall be subject to the laws of this State relating to the civil service.

Sec. 6. REMOVAL FROM OFFICE—VACANCY.] The Governor shall have the power to remove the State Highway Commissioner, the State Highway Engineer and the Assistant State Highway Engineer from their respective offices for incompetency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office. In case of a vacancy in either of said offices the said vacancy shall be filled by appointment by the Governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. When the Senate is not in session, the Governor may make an appointment to fill a vacancy, but any appointment made when the Senate is not in session shall be subject to confirmation by the Senate at its next session before becoming permanent.

Sec. 7. DUTIES OF PRESENT STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION TERMINATED.] Upon the appointment of a State Highway Commissioner, under the provisions of this Act, the present State Highway Commission shall terminate and the members thereof shall turn over all books, maps, papers, plans and other things pertaining to their office to the State Highway Commissioner herein provided for.

ARTICLE III.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS OF HIGHWAYS.

Sec. 8. COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS OF HIGHWAYS—(a)—APPOINTMENT.] In each and every county of the State there shall be a county superintendent of highways to be appointed in the manner following: At its next regular or special meeting after this Act shall become effective, the county board of each county shall submit to the State Highway Commissioner a list of, from three to five persons considered desirable candidates for the office of county superintendent of highways. The State Highway Commissioner shall thereupon submit said list to the State Civil Service Commission, which shall then determine by competitive examination from among the names submitted, the person best fitted for said office, and shall thereupon certify the same to the State Highway Commissioner, who shall then make an order appointing such person superintendent of highways for such county: Provided, however, that if there be less than three names submitted by the county board of any county, or if out of the list submitted there is no person found qualified for the position, the State Highway Commissioner may appoint as superintendent of highways for such county, any person whose name has been submitted by the county board of any other county, and who has passed satisfactorily the examination prescribed by the said Civil Service Commission.

(b) TERM OF OFFICE—SALARY.] The term of office of each county superintendent of highways shall be six years and until his successor is duly appointed and qualified. He shall receive a salary payable out of the general funds of the county in a sum to be fixed by the county board.

(c) REMOVAL.] Any county superintendent of highways may be removed from office by the county board of his county for incompetence, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office.

(d) POWERS AND DUTIES.] The county superintendent of highways shall, subject to the rules and regulations of the State Highway Commissioner:

(1) Prepare plans, specifications and estimates for all bridges to be built by the county. Such plans and specifications, before being finally adopted, shall be submitted to the State Highway Commissioner and approved by him.

(2) Act for the county in all matters relating to the supervision of the construction and maintenance of any road or bridge constructed or maintained at the entire expense of the county or at the joint expense of the county and any town or road district therein, as hereinafter set forth.

(3) Visit and inspect the highways and bridges in each town or district of his county, at least once in each year and whenever directed so to do by the State Highway Commissioner, or the State Highway Engineer, and advise and direct the highway commissioners of the several towns or districts in his county as to the best methods of repair, maintenance and improvement of highways and bridges.

(4) Subject to the direction of the State Highway Commissioner, to supervise the repair and maintenance of all State aid roads within his county.

(5) Keep a record of all contracts or purchases of materials, machinery or apparatus to be used in road construction in excess of two hundred ($200) dollars approved by him in any town or district as hereinafter provided.

(6) Perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law, the rules and regulations of the State Highway Commissioner or the direction of the State Highway Engineer in conformity thereto. Other than as above specifically indicated, the county superintendent of highways shall, to all intents and purposes, be regarded as a deputy to the State Highway Engineer: Provided, however, that no county superintendent of highways shall be required, without his consent, to perform services in any other county.

ARTICLE IV.

STATE AID.

SEC. 9. STATE AID AUTHORIZED.] Public highways, or sections thereof, including bridges therein, may be laid out, improved, or constructed at the joint expense of the State and any county within the State as hereinafter provided. In such case the State shall contribute one-half the expense thereof and the county, or counties, through which the said highway or portion thereof passes shall contribute the remaining one-half. Such highways hereinafter known as "State Aid Roads" may be laid out, constructed or improved in the manner hereinafter directed: Provided, however, that no road or part thereof lying within the corporate limits of any city or village within this State shall be improved or constructed with State aid.

SEC. 10. At their next regular or special meeting following the passage of this Act it shall be the duty of the supervisors in counties under township organization, or the board of county commissioners in counties not under township organization, to designate those public highways within their respective counties that shall come under the provisions of this Act. The highways to be designated by the county boards shall be as nearly as possible those highways connecting the principal cities and trading points in each county with each other, and also with the principal cities and trading points in other counties.

Sec. 11. Such highways shall not include any portion of a public highway within the corporate limits of any city or village; nor shall the total mileage of such highways in any county exceed, in counties of the first class, more than fifteen per centum of the total public road mileage of that county, nor exceed twenty per centum of the public road mileage in counties of the second class, and shall not exceed twenty-five per centum of the public road mileage in counties of the third class. By public roads it is understood to mean all public roads within the State except those within the limits of incorporated cities and villages; the public road mileage of the counties to be that as determined and published by the State Highway Commissioner.

Sec. 12. The county boards shall indicate the highways selected as aforesaid by marking them upon some map which shows the public roads and section lines in the county, and for this purpose existing atlas maps may be used, provided the roads selected are plainly marked thereon.

After the county boards have so selected the highways within their respective counties as aforesaid, and indicated the same on a map of the county, it shall be the duty of the county clerk immediately to forward said map, with his signature thereon attesting to the validity of the same, to the State Highway Commissioner. The State Highway Commissioner shall examine the map with the roads located thereon, and if the roads selected in one county do not connect with the roads selected in another county to make convenient through roads between the various cities and trading points of the different counties, the State Highway Commissioner shall make such changes as will best serve to make the most direct routes between such cities and trading points of the different counties, and return to the county clerks the maps with the corrections shown thereon.

Sec. 13. If, in the judgment of the State Highway Commissioner, it becomes necessary to relocate the routes as selected by the county board for State highways in any county, the State Highway Commissioner may notify the respective boards who shall, at their special meeting when they are selecting the State highway, appoint a committee not to exceed five in number, who shall if they choose, appear before the State Highway Commissioner who shall give hearings on the relocation of the routes as first selected by the county boards. After taking into consideration the information thus presented by these special committees, the State Highway Commissioner shall then proceed to indicate the routes along which State aid roads may be constructed, as hereinafter provided. The highways selected by the county boards and shown on the maps as revised by the State Highway Commissioner, shall be the highways to which the provisions of this Act shall apply, and they shall not apply to any other public highways.

After the county map has been finally corrected by the State Highway Commissioner, a copy shall be returned to the county clerk and a copy retained by the State Highway Commissioner.

Sec. 14. The county clerk shall enter the map returned to him among his official records, and no changes in the routes indicated thereon shall be made, except by a vote of the county board and with the approval of the State Highway Commissioner, as hereinafter indicated; and no changes whatever shall be made in the routes of such highways prior to three years after the filing of the first map thereof, except that in the event the routes as first selected and shown to not total a mileage equal to the percentage allowed for that county, additional roads may be added until the total percentage is equalled.

Sec. 15. If any county board shall fail within thirty days after the passage of this Act to forward to the State Highway Commissioner a map showing the routes selected for State Aid Roads, then the State Highway Commissioner may make such selection himself from the best information that may be available, and a copy of such map with the roads selected shall be sent to the county clerk of those counties whose boards have not made a selection within the thirty days as herein provided, which fact shall be indicated on the map submitted by the State Highway Commissioner; and it shall be the duty of the county clerk to file such map among his records.

Sec. 16. PROCEEDINGS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF STATE AID ROAD—PRELIMINARY RESOLUTION OF COUNTY BOARD.] Whenever the county board of any county desires to initiate proceedings for the construction of a State aid road, along a route designated as aforesaid, such county board may proceed in the manner following. The county board may pass a resolution stating that the public interest demands the improvement of a highway or section thereof within the county, and requesting that it be constructed or improved as provided in this article. Such resolution shall contain a description of such highway or section thereof. The county clerk shall, within ten days after the passage of such resolution, transmit a certified copy thereof to the State Highway Commissioner.

Sec. 17. EXAMINATION OF PROPOSED HIGHWAY—APPROVAL OR DISAPPROVAL BY COMMISSIONER.] As soon as practicable after the receipt of such resolution, the State Highway Commissioner shall consider the apparent durability and importance of the proposed amendment, and shall determine whether such proposed improvement will be of public utility and convenience, and whether the construction thereof will be practically possible. After such consideration the commissioner shall certify his approval or disapproval of the proposed improvement to the county board making application therefor.

Sec. 18. MAPS, PLANS, SPECIFICATIONS AND ESTIMATES.] Whenever the commissioner shall have made his preliminary order as aforesaid, in favor of the construction or improvement of a public highway or section thereof, the said commissioner shall direct the State Highway Engineer, or the Assistant State Highway Engineer to cause proper surveys to be made and to prepare suitable maps, plans, specifications and estimates, the State Highway Commissioner may cause to be included therein, the value of any materials or the fair rental value of any implements, apparatus or machinery suitable for road construction which the State Highway Commissioner desires should be furnished or supplied by the State. In the preparation thereof the State Engineer may call upon the county superintendent of highways to render such assistance and to perform such part of such work as he shall deem necessary. The preparation of such plans, specifications, surveys and estimates of cost shall be subject to the general direction and control of the State Highway Commissioner. If deemed advisable such plans, surveys, specifications and estimates may provide for the widening of an existing highway, or provide for a reasonable deviation from the route described in the preliminary resolution of the county board.

Sec. 19. EMINENT DOMAIN.] In case the plans and surveys provided for in the preceding section require the taking or damaging of the property of any private land owner the State Highway Commissioner in such manner as he may determine, shall, if possible, agree with such private owner relative to the amount of damages sustained, conditioned upon the construction of the proposed improvement. Such agreement when made, shall be given full force and effect according to the terms thereof. In case such land owner fails to reach an agreement with the commissioner respecting such damages, or is legally incapable of so doing, the said State Highway Commissioner may file a petition in any court of competent jurisdiction addressed to any judge thereof in vacation, praying for the assessment of damages for such proposed improvement, after the manner now provided by law relative to the exercise of the right of eminent domain. The damages as thus finally determined either by agreement or proceedings in eminent domain shall be included in the estimate of the cost of the proposed improvement to be borne equally by the State and the county constructing the same.

In case a proposed improvement be abandoned after a resort to proceedings in eminent domain as aforesaid, the costs of such proceedings to which the property owner is by law entitled, shall nevertheless be paid one-half out of the State Road and Bridge Fund and the remaining one-half by the county.

Sec. 20. REPORT TO STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER AND TO COUNTY BOARD.] Whenever the surveys, plans, specifications and estimates of the proposed improvement are fully completed and determined, the State Highway Engineer shall make a complete report thereof and deliver the same to the State Highway Commissioner, and shall also transmit a copy thereof to the county board of the county wherein it is proposed to construct the improvement.

Sec. 21. FINAL RESOLUTION OF STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER.] Upon receiving the surveys, plans, specifications and estimates provided for in preceding sections, the State Highway Commissioner shall finally determine whether he will authorize the construction of the proposed improvement as a State aid road. The commissioner shall thereupon at once cause a copy of such determination to be transmitted to the County Board.

Sec. 22. FINAL RESOLUTION OF COUNTY BOARD. At any regular or special meeting of the county board held after notice of the decision of the State Highway Commissioner to authorize the construction of the proposed improvement as aforesaid, the county board shall determine whether it will authorize the proceedings necessary to enable the county to contribute the one-half of the cost required for the construction of State aid roads as provided in this Act. When a county board has once adopted a final resolution providing for the construction of improvement of a highway or a section thereof in accordance with such plans and specifications, no resolution thereafter adopted by such board shall rescind or annul such prior resolution, either directly or indirectly, excepting under the advice and with the consent of the State Highway Commissioner. In case the county board desires that such provision be made for the construction of a State aid road, it may proceed in either of the methods following:

(1) In case there be sufficient funds in the county treasury available therefor, the county board may appropriate therefrom sufficient to meet one-half the cost of improvement.

(2) If the county board so desires and deems it necessary for the purpose of the improvement herein authorized, the said county board, in the manner now provided by law for issuing bonds for county purposes, may submit to the legal voters of their county the question of issuing such county bonds. In such case the votes in favor of the proposition submitted shall be "For County Bonds for State Aid Roads," and those against shall be "Against County Bonds for State Aid Roads."

Sec. 23. All moneys appropriated by any county board to aid in the construction of a State aid road, and all moneys raised by taxation therefor shall be held as a separate fund therefor until paid out according to the provisions of this Act, and shall not be expended for any other purpose.

Sec. 24. FINAL NOTICE TO STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER.] In case the county finally determines in either of the methods indicated in the preceding section, to make provision for the contemplated State aid road, the county clerk shall at once notify the State Highway Commissioner thereof.

Sec. 25. ORDER OF CONSTRUCTION OF STATE AID ROADS.] Upon the receipt of the notice that the county has finally determined upon the construction of a State aid road in the manner aforesaid, the State Highway Commissioner shall proceed as provided in this article. In so far as practicable, in the opinion of the State Highway Commissioner the construction and improvement of State aid roads shall be taken up and carried forward within the several counties of the State in the consecutive order of the date of the receipt of the commissioner of the certified copies of the final resolutions adopted by the various county boards making provision for such construction or improvements, as aforesaid.

Sec. 26. CONTRACT FOR STATE AID ROADS.] State aid roads may be constructed or improved by contract in the manner provided herein. No contract for the improvement or construction of a State aid road shall be entered into unless at the time, there is in the State road and bridge fund, subject to the order of the State Highway Commissioner, sufficient moneys to defray the portion of the cost thereof which the State is required to contribute under the provisions of this Act. Upon the completion and final adoption or approval, as provided by law, of the plans and specifications and estimates for the construction or improvement of a State aid road, a contract therefor may be executed as provided herein.

(1) ADVERTISING FOR PROPOSALS.] The State Highway Commissioner shall advertise for proposals for the construction or improvement of such highways or sections thereof according to the plans, specifications and estimates prepared therefor. The advertisement shall be limited to a brief description of the work proposed to be done, the terms and conditions under which proposals will be received, the time and place where the same will be opened, and such other matters as the commissioner may deem advisable to include therein. Such advertisement shall be published at least once in each week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper, published in the county in which such highway or section thereof is to be constructed or improved, and in such other newspapers as the Commissioner may designate. In such advertisement the State Highway Commissioner may provide that certain materials, or machinery or implements suitable for road construction, shall be furnished by the State or used in the construction of said State aid road, and may also indicate the fair value of the same or for the use thereof.

(2) PROPOSALS.] Each proposal shall specify the gross sum for which the work will be performed exclusive of such materials as may be furnished by the State and also shall include the amount to be charged for such item specified in the estimate. The commissioner may prescribe and furnish forms for the submission of such proposal and may prescribe the manner of submitting the same which shall not be inconsistent herewith. The proposals shall be publicly opened at the time specified in the advertisement aforesaid, and when opened such proposals shall be subject at all reasonable times to public inspection and at the time of opening shall be publicly read.

(3) AWARD OF CONTRACT.] The contract for the construction or improvement of such highways or section thereof shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, except that no contract shall be awarded at a sum which, together with the value of materials and machinery to be furnished by the State as fixed by the State Highway Commissioner, shall exceed the estimate made for the construction or improvement of such highway or section thereof in accordance with the aforesaid plans and specifications. The lowest bid shall be deemed to be that which specifically states the lowest gross sum for which the entire work shall be performed, including all the items specified in the estimate therefor.

(4) REJECTION OF PROPOSALS.] The commissioner may reject any or all proposals and may at once advertise for new proposals as hereinbefore provided, if, in his opinion, the best interests of the State will thereby be promoted.

(5) FORM OF CONTRACT.] The commissioner shall prescribe the form of contract and may include therein such matters as he may deem advantageous to the State. Such form shall be uniform in so far as may be.

(6) BOND OF CONTRACTOR.] Each contractor, before entering into a contract for such construction or improvement, shall execute a bond in the form prescribed by the commissioner, with sufficient sureties to be approved by the commissioner, conditioned that he will perform the work in accordance with the terms of the contract, and with the plans and specifications and that he will commence and complete the work within the time prescribed in the contract. Such bond shall also provide against any direct or indirect damages that may be suffered or claimed on account of such construction or improvement during the time thereof, and until the highway is accepted.

(7) PAYMENTS ON CONTRACTS.] The contract may provide for partial payments to an amount not exceeding 90 per centum of the value of the work done, which shall be paid in the manner provided by this article when certified to by the commissioner. In case partial payments are made the State and county shall each pay one-half thereof as the work progresses. Ten per centum of the contract price shall be retained until the work has been completed and accepted.

SEC. 27. ACCEPTANCE OF STATE AID ROAD WHEN COMPLETED.] Upon the completion of a State aid road or section thereof constructed or improved under a contract let as provided in this article, the State Highway Engineer shall inspect the same, and if completed as provided in the contract, he shall thereupon report to the State Highway Commissioner. If the commissioner approves, he shall notify the contractor thereof and the highway or section thereof so constructed or improved shall be deemed to have been accepted by the State. Such acceptance shall also be communicated by the State Highway Commissioner to the county clerk of the county wherein such improvement or portion thereof is located.

Sec. 28. PAYMENTS—HOW MADE—EFFECT OF CONTRACT.] Upon the acceptance by the State of an improvement as hereinbefore provided, the contractor shall be entitled to receive the portion of the contract price then remaining due and unpaid. The contractor shall receive one-half of the total cost of such improvement directly from the State Treasurer, and the other half shall be paid by the county to such contractor.

Upon the order of the State Highway Commissioner, the Auditor of Public Accounts is hereby authorized to draw his warrant upon the State Treasurer for all moneys in the State Road and Bridge Fund, or appropriated by the General Assembly for the purpose of constructing State aid roads.

Sec. 29. LEGAL EFFECT OF CONTRACT.] Any contract entered into by and between the State Highway Commissioner and any contractor for the construction of a State aid road according to the provisions of this Act shall be taken and held to confer upon the contractor the right to enforce in any appropriate legal action against the county wherein the improvement is located the payment of the portion of the cost thereof which the county is required to pay under the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 30. ROADS CONSTRUCTED DIRECTLY BY THE STATE.] In case the State Highway Commissioner upon a second advertisement for bids or proposals for the construction or improvement of a State aid road shall not be able to let the contract for a sum, which, together with the value of materials, apparatus, implements and machinery to be furnished by the State determined as aforesaid, shall not exceed the estimate of the cost thereof previously made by the State Highway Engineer, the State Highway Commissioner shall then proceed directly to construct such State aid road. In such case the county within which such proposed improvement shall be located, shall not be required to contribute thereto more than one-half the estimated cost thereof as aforesaid.

Sec. 31. COUNTY LINE ROADS.] State aid roads may be constructed or improved on county lines. In case two counties desire to secure the construction or improvement of a public highway situated upon or near the boundary line between them, the respective county boards thereof may, by appropriate resolutions, initiate proceedings therefor. To this end such county boards may, by concurring resolutions, fix the portion of the one-half the total cost of construction which should be borne by each county. Such resolutions when duly transmitted to the State Highway Commissioner shall be considered in such cases as the preliminary application therefor, as hereinbefore provided. If approved by the State Highway Commissioner, each county board may appropriate the portion of the cost to be borne by such county, or authorize the submission of the question of issuing bonds as hereinbefore provided.

In all proceedings contemplating the construction or improvement of a county line road as provided in this section, all acts of each county board relative thereto, together with the result of any vote upon the question of levying a tax or issuing bonds as provided herein, shall be communicated by the county clerk of each county to the county clerk of the other county, as well as to the State Highway Commissioner.

In case either county shall refuse to take the steps necessary to secure the construction or improvement of such county line road, as provided in this section, then all prior proceedings relative thereto on the part of the other county shall be regarded as suspended.

Sec. 32. REPAIR AND MAINTENANCE OF STATE AID ROADS.] Whenever any State aid road shall be constructed or improved in any county under the provisions of this Act, the State Highway Commissioner, either directly or through the State Highway Engineer, the Assistant State Highway Engineer, or the county superintendent of highways shall thereafter keep all such roads in proper repair, and the total cost of such maintenance shall be paid out of the State Road and Bridge Funds upon the warrant of the Auditor, whenever such payment shall be ordered by the State Highway Commissioner. For the purpose of keeping such roads in proper repair the State Highway Commissioner shall have authority to purchase all necessary tools, machinery, supplies and materials, and may employ, or authorize the State Highway Engineer to employ, all labor necessary therefor.

Sec. 33. PUBLIC UTILITIES.] No steam or electric railroad company, telephone or telegraph company, or company laying or using pipe lines, shall have the right to locate or construct its road or place its poles or wires, or lay its pipe lines upon or along any State aid road, without the consent of the county board of the county wherein it is proposed to place or locate the same. Such consent may be granted for any period not longer than twenty years upon petition of the company, upon such terms and conditions, not inconsistent with this Act, as such county board shall deem for the best interests of the public: Provided, that before any such consent of the county board shall become effective the said county board shall receive the approval of the State Highway Commissioner to the use of the said State aid road for such purpose and the conditions upon which the same shall have been granted: And, provided, further, that no such consent shall be granted except upon the condition that the company will pay all damages to the owners of the property abutting upon said State aid road which they may sustain by reason of the location or construction of the said steam or electric railroad or the placing of the said telephone or telegraph poles or wires, or the laying of the said pipe lines, the same to be ascertained and paid in the manner provided by law for the exercise of the right of eminent domain.

ARTICLE V.

BRIDGES AND IMPROVEMENTS CONSTRUCTED AND REPAIRED BY A COUNTY OR AT THE JOINT EXPENSE OF A COUNTY AND ANY TOWN OR ROAD DISTRICT.

Sec. 34. BRIDGES MAY BE BUILT BY COUNTY.] In case the county board shall deem it expedient to build a bridge in any town or road district therein, the said county board may order the same built at the entire expense of such county. Such bridge shall in such case be constructed according to plans and specifications prepared by the county superintendent of highways, subject to the approval of the State Highway Engineer.

Sec. 35. AID FROM COUNTY BOARD.] When it is necessary to construct or repair any bridges over a stream, or any approach or approaches thereto, by means of an embankment or trestle work on a public road, in any town or district or on or near to or across a town or district line, in which work the town or district is wholly or in part responsible, and the cost of which will be more than twelve cents on the one hundred dollars on the latest assessment roll, and the levy of the road and bridge tax for two years last past in said town or district was in each year for the full amount allowed by law to be raised therein for all road and bridge purposes except for damages incurred in laying out, altering, widening or vacating roads, the major part of which levy is needed for the ordinary repair of the roads and bridges, the Commissioner of Highways may petition the county board for aid, and if the foregoing facts shall appear, the county board shall appropriate from the county treasury a sum sufficient to meet one-half of the expenses of said bridge or other work, on condition the town or district asking aid shall furnish the other half of the required amount.

LETTING CONTRACTS.] When it is determined by the county board to grant the prayer of the Highway Commissioner asking aid for the construction of such bridge or other expensive work, the county board shall thereupon enter an order directing the county superintendent of highways to prepare plans and specifications for such improvement. The contract for such improvement shall thereupon be let in the manner authorized by said county board, subject to provisions of the law relating to the letting of contracts: Provided, however, that no county, town or road district shall be liable for any part of such expenses or compelled to pay any part of its appropriation for such purpose until all of the work has been fully completed and accepted by the county superintendent of highways and such acceptance properly certified to by said officer and presented to the county board at a meeting held after the completion of said work, which certificate shall contain itemized account of the expenditures; and a copy thereof shall also be filed with the town or district clerk as the case may be.

Sec. 36. BRIDGES BUILT BY TWO COUNTIES.] Bridges over streams which divide counties, and bridges on roads on county lines, and bridges within eighty rods of county lines, shall be built and repaired at the expense of such counties. And all such bridges over streams which form the boundary line between two counties, and all such bridges within eighty rods of such boundary line, when the cost of constructing the same shall be $5,000 or over, shall be built by such counties respectively in the proportion that the taxable property in each county respectively bears to each other according to its assessed value as equalized at the time of constructing such bridge. And when any county desires to build any such bridge across any stream which is the boundary line between such county and another county, or desires to build any such bridge within eighty rods of such boundary line, and the cost of such bridge will equal or exceed $5,000, and the county desiring to construct such bridge has appropriated its share of the cost of constructing the same, then it shall be the duty of such other county to make an appropriation for its proportion of the cost of said bridge on the basis of the assessed value of the property, real and personal, of each of said counties according to the last preceding assessment thereof as equalized, and if such other county fails or refuses to make an appropriation for its proper proportion of the cost of constructing such bridge, any court of competent jurisdiction shall issue an order to compel such county to make such appropriation upon a proper petition for that purpose, and the cost and expense of maintaining and keeping the same in repair after the same is built and constructed shall be borne in the proportion of the assessed value of the property in each of said counties according to the latest equalized assessment thereof: Provided, that for the building and maintaining of bridges over streams near county lines in which both are interested and where the cost thereof is less than $5,000, the expense of building and maintaining any such bridge shall be borne by both counties in such portion as shall be just and equitable between the counties, taking into consideration the taxable property in each, the location of the bridge, and the advantage of each, to be determined by the commissioner in making contracts for the same, as provided for in section 37 of this Act.

Sec. 37. CONTRACTS BY COMMISSIONERS OF ADJOINING COUNTIES.] For the purpose of building or keeping in repair such bridge or bridges, it shall be lawful for the county boards of such adjoining counties, to enter into joint contracts, and such contracts may be enforced in law or equity against such county boards, and such county boards may be proceeded against jointly, by any parties interested in such bridge or bridges, for any neglect of duty in reference to such bridge or bridges, for any damage growing out of such neglect.

Sec. 38.—APPROACHES TO BRIDGES ON OR NEAR COUNTY LINES.] Approaches to all bridges built and constructed under and by virtue of three preceding sections, shall be built, constructed and maintained by the respective counties within which such approach or approaches may be located, and all approaches to any and all such bridges as have heretofore been built and constructed.

Sec. 39. SUIT ON JOINT CONTRACT.] If the county board of any such county, after reasonable notice in writing from such other county board shall neglect or refuse to build or repair any such bridge when any contract or agreement has been made in regard to the same, it shall be lawful for the county board so giving notice to build or repair the same, to recover, by suit, one-half (or such amount as shall have been agreed upon) of the expense of so building or repairing such bridge, which costs of suit and interest from the time of the completion thereof, shall be recovered from the county board so neglecting or refusing.

ARTICLE VI.

TOWN AND DISTRICT ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION FOR HIGHWAY PURPOSES—SUBDIVISION I.

ORGANIZATION—DIVISION INTO TOWNS AND DISTRICTS.

Sec. 40. TOWN AND DISTRICT ORGANIZATION SIMILAR.] For all purposes relating to the construction, repair, maintenance and supervision of roads and bridges, the several towns in counties under township organization, and road districts in counties not under township organization, shall, as near as may be, and subject to the provisions of this Act, be regarded as analogous in corporate authority, and the powers and duties of the highway officers thereof shall be similar in extent and effect.

Sec. 41. COUNTIES NOT UNDER TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION—DIVISION INTO DISTRICTS.] Counties not under township organization shall be divided into road districts by the county boards thereof, in the manner hereinafter set forth. All road districts, where it is practicable, shall be composed of territory not less than a congressional township. Fractional or whole townships may be added to other fractional or whole townships. The districts so formed shall be designated by some number.

(1) COUNTIES ALREADY DIVIDED INTO DISTRICTS.] In counties not under township organization, wherein road districts are already now laid out and established under the provisions of an Act approved May 4, 1887, in force July 1, 1887, entitled, "An Act to provide for the organization of road districts, the election and duties of officers therein, and in regard to roads and bridges, in counties not under township organization, and to repeal an Act and parts of Acts therein named," the road districts already laid out therein by the county boards thereof shall be continued in existence, unless the same shall be altered in the manner hereinafter set forth: Provided, however, that all incorporated cities, towns and villages which have heretofore been excluded from road districts in such counties shall hereafter be included therein, and in all cases where necessary therefor, the county boards of such counties shall make provision to create such city, town or village into a road district, or to make it a part of some road district already formed.

(2) COUNTIES NOT ALREADY SO DIVIDED.] In all counties not under township organization, and operating under the provisions of an Act approved May 10, 1901, entitled, "An Act in regard to roads and bridges, and to provide for the adoption of the same," and wherein road districts are not already laid out and established, it shall be the duty of the county boards thereof, at their first session after this Act shall be in force and effect, to divide such counties into road districts, as provided herein.

(3) CORPORATE NAME OF DISTRICT.] The corporate name of each district shall be, "Road District No.," and all actions by or against such district shall be in its corporate name.

(4) CORPORATE CAPACITY OF DISTRICT.] Every district so organized shall have corporate capacity to exercise the powers granted thereto, or necessarily implied and no others. It shall have power: (1) To sue and be sued. (2) To acquire by purchase, gift or device, and to hold property, both real and personal, for the use of its inhabitants, and again to sell and convey the same. (3) To make all such contracts as may be necessary in the exercise of powers of the district.

(5) ALTERATION OF BOUNDARIES OF ROAD DISTRICTS.] The board of county commissioners of each county shall have full and complete power and jurisdiction to alter the boundaries of road districts and to change road district lines in their respective counties to suit the convenience of the inhabitants residing therein, but no such change shall be made under the provisions of this Act unless at least twenty of the legal voters of such road district shall petition for such alteration or change; nor shall such alteration or change be made by such board of county commissioners without notice thereof having been given by posting up notices in not less than five of the most public places in each of the several towns or road districts interested in such proposed alterations or changes.

SUBDIVISION II.

HIGHWAY OFFICERS, THEIR ELECTION, POWERS, DUTIES AND COMPENSATION.

Sec. 42. TOWN AND DISTRICT ROAD OFFICERS—(a) COMMISSIONER.] In each township in counties under township organization or road district in counties not under township organization, there shall be one highway commissioner who shall serve for a term of two years, and to be elected in the manner hereinafter set forth. The powers and duties of such highway commissioner shall be as hereinafter indicated.

(b) CLERK.] In counties under township organization the town clerk shall act as the clerk of the highway commissioner of such town. In counties not under township organization there shall be elected in each road district a district clerk, who shall hold his office for a term of two years and until his successor is elected and qualified.

TREASURER.] In counties under township organization the supervisor of each town shall be ex officio treasurer of the road and bridge fund. In counties not under township organization the district clerk shall be ex officio treasurer of such fund.

WHO ELIGIBLE.] No person shall be eligible to the office of highway commissioner unless he shall be a legal voter and have been one year a resident of said district. In counties not under township organization the same limitation shall apply to the district clerk.

Sec. 43. ELECTIONS—PROVISIONS GENERALLY APPLICABLE.] In all counties under township organization the highway commissioner shall be elected at the annual town meeting and subject to the laws governing the same. In all counties not under township organization the highway commissioner and the district clerk shall be elected at an election to be held on the first Tuesday in April next after the passage of this Act and on the first Tuesday in April every three years thereafter.

Sec. 44. SAME—PROVISIONS SPECIALLY APPLICABLE TO FIRST ELECTION.] In all counties under township organization, a commissioner of highways shall be elected in each town at the annual town meeting held next after this Act becomes effective. In all counties not under township organization and which have hitherto been divided into road districts as aforesaid, a commissioner of highways shall be elected in each road district thereof on the first Tuesday in April next after this Act becomes effective. The commissioner of highways elected as herein provided shall hold his office for three years and until his successor is elected and qualified. Until the first election held after this Act becomes effective, as aforesaid, the several boards of highway commissioners now in office, shall continue to exercise their respective powers and duties as heretofore. Thereafter, the highway commissioners elected under the provisions of this Act shall, unless otherwise indicated herein, exercise all the functions, powers and duties heretofore exercised by the various boards of highway commissioners.

Sec. 45. ELECTIONS—COUNTIES NOT UNDER TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION—PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE CONDUCT THEREOF.] In all counties not under township organization the following provisions regarding elections.

ANNUAL ELECTION FOR DISTRICT OFFICERS—ABSENCE OF OFFICERS.] The annual election for district officers shall be held on the first Tuesday in April, of each year, at the place designated by the commissioners of highways. The commissioner of highways and two other persons to be named by the county board for each road district of the county shall be ex officio judges, and the clerk shall be ex officio clerk of all district elections, but before entering upon the discharge of their duties they shall take the oath of office prescribed by the general election law of the State. In the absence of any of the above named officers the vacancy shall be filled by appointment by the commissioner present, and in case the commissioner is not present the electors present shall appoint such judges.

NOTICE OF ANY ANNUAL OR SPECIAL ELECTION.] Notice of the time and place of holding any annual or special election shall be given by the district clerk, or, in his absence, by the commissioner, by posting written or printed notices in at least three of the most public places in the district, at least fifteen days prior to such election.

DISTRICT ELECTIONS—HOW CONDUCTED.] The district elections shall be conducted in the same manner and subject to the same laws and regulations as prescribed for general elections: Provided, that no registration of voters shall be required.

WHO ENTITLED TO VOTE.] All persons possessing the qualifications of voters, who reside within the boundaries prescribed for such districts shall be entitled to vote at such election.

CANVASS OF VOTES—CERTIFICATE, POLL LIST AND BALLOTS SEALED AND SENT TO DISTRICT CLERK.] The judges, shall immediately, upon closing the polls, make a canvass of the votes polled in the manner provided by the general election law of the State, and make a written statement or certificate of the number of votes cast at such election for each person or proposition voted for, and the office for which such person received such vote, and shall, within forty-eight hours thereafter, cause such certificate and poll list, together with the ballots cast at such election, to be separately sealed up and transmitted to the district clerk to be filed and preserved by him.

CANVASS OF RETURNS—NOTICE OF RESULT OF ELECTION TO VOTERS.] The commissioner of highways, together with some justice of the peace to be by him selected, and the district clerk, shall within five days after any election is held, meet and canvass said returns, and declare the result of said election. The canvass being completed, a statement of the result shall be entered at large, by the clerk of the meeting, in the minutes of the proceedings, to be kept by him as required by this Act, which shall be publicly read by him to the meeting; and such reading shall be deemed notice of the result of the election, to every person whose name shall be entered on the poll list as a voter.

DRAWING LOTS IN CASE OF TIE—NOTICE.]—In case two or more persons shall have an equal number of votes for the same office, the question of which shall be entitled to the office shall be decided by lot, under direction of the district clerk, but he shall give each party at least five days' notice of the time and place of drawing lots.

NOTICE OF ELECTION TO PERSONS ELECTED—FILING LIST OF OFFICERS ELECTED IN OFFICE OF COUNTY CLERK.] The clerk within ten days after the canvass of the votes as hereinbefore provided in this section, shall transmit to each person elected to any district office, a notice of his election. He shall also file in the office of the county clerk a list of names of all district officers elected at such election, who have qualified, within twenty days after such election shall be held.

Sec. 46. SAME—COUNTIES OPERATING UNDER SPECIAL ACT—PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO FIRST ELECTION]. In all counties not under township organization which are operating under the optional Act entitled, "An Act in regard to roads and bridges in counties not under township organization, and to provide for the adoption of the same," approved May 10, 1901, and which counties therefore are not already divided into road districts as aforesaid, the county board of each of said counties shall, at least twenty days before the first Tuesday in April next after this Act shall become effective, designate some central and convenient place in each district for the holding of the first district election, and shall also appoint three suitable electors of the district as judges of the election.

NOTICES OF FIRST ELECTION.] The county clerk shall thereupon make out notices, stating the time (which shall be the first Tuesday in April thereafter) and place of holding the first district election, and the names of the judges of the election so appointed, and deliver such notices to the sheriff of the county who shall cause the same to be posted in not less than three of the most public places of the district, and not less than fifteen days before the time of holding such election.

OFFICERS ELECTED.] At such first election there shall be elected one commissioner of highways who shall hold his office for two years and until his successor is elected and qualified. At such first election there shall also be elected a road district clerk who shall hold his office for two years and until his successor is elected and qualified.

CANVASS OF VOTES—EXPENSE.] After the canvass of the votes the judges shall make returns as provided in the general election laws of this State, to the county clerk, who shall make a canvass of the votes and immediately notify the persons elected of their election. The expenses of such first election shall be paid by the county.

Sec. 47. OATH REQUIRED.] Every person elected or appointed to the office of commissioner of highways, and every district clerk in counties not under township organization, before he enters upon the duties of his office, and within ten days after he shall be notified of his election or appointment, shall take and subscribe, before some justice of the peace or district or town clerk, the oath or affirmation of office prescribed by the Constitution, which oath shall, within five days thereafter, be filed with the district or town clerk.

In counties under township organization, no additional oath shall be required of the town clerk, to enable him to enter upon the discharge of the duties of his office as ex officio clerk of the highway commissioner.

NEGLECT TO TAKE OATH—REFUSAL TO SERVE.] If any person elected or appointed to either of the offices above enumerated, shall neglect to take and subscribe such oath, and cause the same to be filed as above required, such neglect shall be deemed a refusal to serve.

Sec. 48. WHEN TERM OF COMMISSIONER OR CLERK EXPIRES, SUCCESSOR TO DEMAND BOOKS, PAPERS, ETC.] When the term of any commissioner of highways or clerk shall expire, and other persons shall be appointed to such office, it shall be the duty of such successor, immediately after he shall have entered upon the duties of his office, to demand of his predecessor all the books, papers, moneys and other property under his control, belonging to such office.

WHEN OFFICE BECOMES VACANT BY RESIGNATION OR OTHERWISE—DEMAND, ETC.] Whenever either of the officers above named shall resign, or the office becomes vacant in any way, and another person shall be elected or appointed in his stead, the person so elected or appointed shall make such demand of his predecessor, or of any person having charge of such books, papers, moneys or other property.

DELIVERING UP ON OATH ALL RECORDS, BOOKS, ETC.—OATH, BY WHOM ADMINISTERED.] It shall be the duty of every person so going out of office, whenever thereto required pursuant to the foregoing provisions, to deliver up on oath, all the records, books, papers, moneys and other property in his possession or in his control belonging to the office held by him; which oath may be administered by the officer to whom such delivery shall be made.

Sec. 49. VACANCIES IN OFFICE—COUNTIES UNDER TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.] In counties under township organization the provisions of law applicable to resignations from town offices, and the filling of vacancies therein, shall apply to highway officers in the same manner as to other town offices.

Sec 50. SAME—COUNTIES NOT UNDER TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.. In counties not under township organization the following provisions shall be applicable relating to vacancies in road district offices:

VACANCY IN OFFICE—HOW FILLED—POWERS OF PERSONS APPOINTED.] Whenever any district shall fail to elect the proper number of district officers to which such district may be entitled by law, or when any person elected to any district office shall fail to qualify, or whenever any vacancy shall happen in any district, from death, resignation, removal from the district or other cause, it shall be the duty of the county board to fill such vacancy by certificate under the hand and seal of the county clerk; and the persons so appointed shall hold their respective offices until the next annual election, and until their successors are elected and qualified; and shall have the same powers and be subject to the same duties and penalties as if they had been duly elected by the electors.

CERTIFICATE OF APPOINTMENT.] When any appointment shall be made, as aforesaid, the county clerk shall cause the certificate of appointment to be forthwith filed in the office of the district clerk, who shall immediately give notice to each person appointed.

JUSTICE OF PEACE MAY ACCEPT RESIGNATION OF OFFICER—NOTICE.] Any justice of the peace residing in such district, may, for sufficient cause shown to him, accept the resignation of any district officer of his district, and whenever he shall accept any such resignation, he shall forthwith give notice thereof to the district clerk of the district, or in his absence, to the president of the Board of Commissioners of Highways, who shall make a minute thereof upon the district records. He shall also immediately give notice to the county clerk of any vacancy that may exist in any district office.

Sec. 51. POWERS AND DUTIES OF OFFICERS—(a) HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS.] The highway commissioner of each town or district shall have power and it shall be his duty:

- (1) To lay out, alter, widen or vacate roads as hereinafter provided.
- (2) To cause such roads used as highways as have been laid out or dedicated to public use, but not sufficiently described, and such as have been used for twenty years, but not recorded, to be ascertained, described and entered of record in the office of the district or town clerk.
- (3) To determine the taxes necessary to be levied on property within his town or district for road and bridge purposes, subject to the limitations hereinafter provided.
- (4) To direct the expenditure of all moneys collected in the town or district for road and bridge purposes and to draw warrants on the town or district treasurer therefor.
- (5) To direct the construction and repair of roads and bridges within the town or district, to let contracts, employ labor and purchase material and machinery therefor, subject to the limitations herein provided: Provided, however, that no contract shall be let for the construction or repair of any road or bridge or part thereof in excess of the amount of $200, nor shall any machinery or other appliances be used in road construction in excess of such amount be purchased without the approval of the county superintendent of highways.
- (6) To have general charge of the roads and bridges of his town or district, to keep the same in repair and to improve them so far as practicable.
- (7) To take possession of and keep under shelter, when not in use, all scrapers, plows and other tools belonging to the town or district wherever the same may be found, and not allow the same to go to waste, and not lend the same, except to persons employed to work the roads by contract or otherwise.
- (8) To cause to be erected and kept in repair at the forks or crossing place of the most important public roads, post and guide boards, with plain inscription thereon, in letters and figures, giving directions and distances to the most noted places to which such road may lead; to prevent thistles, burdock, cockleburs, mustard, yellow-dock, Indian mallow and gympsom [jimson] weed from seeding, and to extirpate the same so far as practicable; and to prevent all rank growth of vegetation in the public highway causing the same to be cut and destroyed prior to the seeding of the same, and at the farthest prior to September 1st, in each and every year; and the said overseer may, at his discretion, adopt any suitable and convenient mode of supplying water in troughs conveniently situated on the public highway for public use.
- (9) To issue his warrant or order on the treasurer of the Board of Highway Commissioners for the payment of all moneys paid out by such treasurer.
- (b) REPORT.] The Highway Commisisoner shall annually make report in writing showing:

(1) The amount of poll tax assessed, how much paid, and how much delinquent.

(2) The amount of road and bridge money received by him, and a full and detailed statement as to how and where expended, and the balance, if any, unexpended.

(3) The amount paid for damages in laying out, altering, widening or vacating roads, and right-of-way for ditches.

(4) The amount of liabilities incurred and not paid; and if such liabilities are undetermined, they shall be estimated.

(5) Any additional matter concerning the roads and bridges of the district he may think expedient and proper to make.

In counties under township organization such report shall be made to the board of town auditors at the semi-annual meeting immediately preceding the annual town meeting. In counties not under township organization such report shall be made not later than the last Tuesday in March to the district clerk who shall file the same in his office and he shall record such report at large in the records of said road district.

Sec. 52. DUTIES OF CLERK.] The town or district clerk shall have the custody of all records, books and papers of the town or road district, and he shall duly file all certificates or oaths and other papers required by law to be filed in his office. He is authorized to administer oaths and take affidavits in all cases required by law to be administered by town or district officers. The duties of the clerk shall further include:

(1) RECORDING ORDERS OF COMMISSIONER.] He shall record in the book of records of his district, all orders and directions of the highway commissioner required by law to be kept, and as hereinafter provided for. All records and books required by law to be kept by such clerk shall be deemed public records and shall at all times be open to inspection without fee or reward. The clerk shall also meet with the highway commissioner whenever requested at any reasonable time to do so by the latter official.

(2) BOOKS AND STATIONERY FOR OFFICE.] The district clerk shall, from time to time, as may be necessary, procure the proper books and stationery for his office and the cost thereof shall be paid out of the town or district treasury.

(3) COPY OF PAPERS AND TRANSCRIPTS FROM RECORDS—EVIDENCE.] Copies of all papers duly filed in the office of the town or district clerk and transcripts from the town or district records certified to by him shall be evidence in all courts in like effect as if the originals were produced.

Sec. 53. TREASURER.] The treasurer of the road and bridge fund shall receive and have charge of all moneys raised in the town or district for the support and maintenance of roads and bridges therein, and for road damages, excepting such portions of the moneys as hereinafter directed to be paid to the authorities of incorporated villages, towns and cities. He shall hold such moneys at all times subject to the commissioner of highways, and shall pay them over upon his order, and not otherwise. He shall keep an account in a book provided by the commissioner of all moneys received, and all moneys paid out, showing in detail to whom and on what account the same is so paid.

(1) BOND.] The supervisor or clerk, as the case may be, before becoming entitled to act as treasurer, and within ten days after his election, shall execute a bond in double the amount of moneys likely to come into his hands by virtue of this Act, conditioned that he will faithfully discharge his duties as such treasurer, that he will honestly and faithfully account for and pay over, upon the proper orders, all moneys coming into his hands as treasurer, and the balance, if any, to his successor in office. Such bond shall be payable to the town or district, and shall be in such sum as the commissioner of highways shall determine. Said bond shall be approved by the commissioner of highways, and shall be filed in the office of the county clerk with such approval endorsed thereon: Provided, that if from any cause the commissioner of highways shall deem the bond so given insufficient, he may require a new bond: And, provided, further, that the commissioner shall have the right to fix any other sum to be required in any new bond so given. The commissioner of highways shall have power to bring suit upon such bond for any loss or damage accruing to the town or district by reason of any non-performance of duty, or defalcation on the part of the said treasurer.

(2) ITEMIZED STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS.] The treasurer shall also present annually on the first Tuesday in April to the highway commissioner an itemized statement of receipts and disbursements which shall be sworn to.

Sec. 54. COMPENSATION OF OFFICERS—COMMISSIONER.] The commissioner shall receive for each day necessarily employed in the discharge of his duties, the sum of three dollars and fifty cents ($3.50) upon a sworn statement to be filed by such commissioner in the office of the town or district clerk showing the number of days he was employed and the kind of employment, and giving the dates thereof.

CLERK.] The town or district clerk shall receive two dollars per day for each day he shall be required to meet with the highway commissioner, and the same amount per day for the time he shall be employed as clerk of election, or in canvassing the returns of such election. He shall receive no other per diem. In addition to the above he shall also receive fees for the following services, to be paid out of the town or district funds, except where otherwise specified. For serving notice of election or appointment upon district officers, as required by this Act, twenty-five cents each. For posting up notices required by law, twenty-five cents each. For copying any record in his office and certifying to the same, ten cents for every hundred words, to be paid by the person applying for the same.

TREASURER.] The ex officio treasurer shall, in addition to the other compensation to which he is by law entitled, receive 1 per cent on all moneys received, not received by his predecessor, and 1 per cent on all moneys paid out not paid to his successor.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.] The justice of the peace required by this Act, shall receive the sum of two dollars per day for his services.

Sec. 55. OFFENSES AND PENALTIES.] If any highway commissioner shall wilfully refuse to perform any of the duties enjoined upon him by this Act, he shall forfeit not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, and may be proceeded against in the name of the town or district for the recovery of such forfeiture before any court of the proper county having jurisdiction.

SUBDIVISION III.

THE RAISING OF REVENUE FOR HIGHWAY PURPOSES AND THE APPLICATION THEREOF.

Sec. 56. POLL TAX.] On or before the third Tuesday in April, each highway commissioner shall make out a list of able-bodied men in his town or district between the ages of twenty-one (21) and fifty (50) years and deliver the same to the town or district treasurer on or before the first day of May in each year, and assess at such meeting against such person upon such list a sum of not less than one (1) nor more than two (2) dollars, as a poll tax for highway purposes, to be paid in cash to such treasurer by the first Monday of June of each year: Provided, that paupers, idiots, lunatics and such others as are exempt by law shall not be compelled to pay a poll tax for highway purposes: Provided, also, that this list shall not include persons within the limits of cities or incorporated villages. The commissioner shall also, within ten (10) days after such list is delivered to the treasurer of the road and bridge fund cause written or printed notices to be given to each person so assessed, notifying him of the time when and place where such tax must be paid, and if this poll tax shall not be paid by the first Monday of June in such year it shall be the duty of the commissioner of highways, in the name of the district or town, to bring suit therefor against such persons before some justice of the peace having jurisdiction thereof. Summons shall be issued and returned in the same manner as provided by law in other cases. If judgment is rendered against defendant the court shall find in such judgment that the same is for poll tax unpaid, and shall endorse the same on the execution, if one is issued. No property belonging to the defendant shall be exempt from levy to satisfy such execution: Provided, also, that on petition of not less than twenty-five (25) legal voters of any town or district, asking to have the proposition to abolish the poll tax submitted to the legal voters of said town, or district, filed with the town or district clerk not less than fifteen (15) days before the annual town meeting or annual district election, then the town or district clerk shall state in the notice of the annual town meeting or district election that the legal voters of such town or district may vote by ballot for or against the payment of a poll tax, and if a majority of all the ballots cast are against the payment of a poll tax, then that part of this section which provides for the levying of a poll tax shall no longer be in force in such town or district.

(1) CONSTABLE'S DUTY HAVING EXECUTION FOR POLL TAX.] The constable to whom such execution shall be delivered shall forthwith collect the moneys therein mentioned. He shall pay the money so collected, when collected, to the justice of the peace who issued the execution, who is hereby required to pay the same to the treasurer.

Sec. 57. GENERAL TAX LEVY FOR ROAD AND BRIDGE PURPOSES.] Between the last Tuesday in August and the first Tuesday in September the highway commissioner in each town or road district shall annually certify to the board of supervisors or board of county commissioners the amount necessary to be raised by taxation for the proper construction, maintenance and repair of roads and bridges in such town or road district. Such certificate shall be filed in the office of the county clerk, and by that official presented to the county board at their regular September meeting for their consideration. The amount so certified if approved by the county board, or such part thereof as the said board shall approve shall be extended by the county clerk as taxes against the taxable property of such town or district: Provided, however, that the county clerk shall not extend against the taxable property of any town or road district a rate in excess of sixty-one (61) cents on each one hundred dollars valuation of the taxable property of the town or district, and if the amount of taxes approved by the county board shall be in excess of such rate it shall be the duty of the clerk to reduce the same to said rate of sixty-one cents upon each one hundred dollars of the assessed valuation of said town or district.

Sec. 58. COPY OF CERTIFICATE TO BE PRESERVED.] The commissioner of highways of each town or district in addition to certifying to the county board the amount necessary to be raised by said town or district for road and bridge purposes therein, shall also within the dates aforesaid make out and deliver to the town or district clerk a copy of such certificate to be kept on file by such clerk for the inspection of the inhabitants of such town or district: Provided, however, that a failure to file such a copy shall not affect the validity of the certificate filed with the county clerk, or of the tax levied pursuant thereto: Provided, further, that the town or village clerk shall not certify levies of road and bridge taxes to the county clerk.

Sec. 59. DAMAGES FOR LAYING OUT ROADS, ETC.—TAX LEVY FOR.] When damages have been agreed upon, allowed or awarded for laying out, widening, altering or vacating roads or for ditching to drain roads, the amounts of such damages, not to exceed for any one year twenty cents on each one hundred dollars of the taxable property of the town or district shall be included in the first succeeding tax levy, provided for in section 57 of this Act, and be in addition to the levy for road and bridge purposes; and when collected, shall constitute and be held by the treasurer of the road and bridge fund as a separate fund to be paid out to the parties entitled to receive the same. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of highways at the time of certifying the general tax levy for road and bridge purposes within his town or district to include and separately specify in such certificate the amount necessary to be raised by taxation for the purpose of paying such damages. Upon the approval by the county board of the amount so certified, as provided in the preceding section, the county clerk shall extend the same against the taxable property of said town or district, provided the amount thus approved shall not be in excess of twenty cents on each one hundred dollars of the taxable property therein.

Sec. 60. TAX RATE—EXTENSION AND COLLECTION OF TAXES.] All items of tax levy of any town or district authorized by sections 57 and 59 of this Act shall be extended by the county clerk as one tax upon the collector's book and when collected shall be paid to the treasurer of the commissioner[s] by the collector as fast as the same is collected, except such rate per cent as shall be allowed for collecting the same: Provided, that one-half the tax required to be levied in section 57 and collected for road and bridge purposes, on the property lying within an incorporated village, town or city in which the streets and alleys are under the care of the corporation, shall be paid over to the treasurer of such village, town, or city, to be appropriated to the improvement of roads, streets and bridges, either within or without said village, town or city, and within the township, under the direction of the corporate authorities of such village, town or city: And, provided, further, that when any of said tax is expended beyond the limits of said village, town or city, it shall be with the consent of the road commissioner of the town.

Sec. 61. ROAD DAMAGES—ORDERS OUT OF TAX TO BE LEVIED.] Whenever damages have been allowed for roads or ditches, the commissioner of highways may draw orders on the treasurer, payable only out of the tax to be levied for such roads or ditches, when the money shall be collected, or received, to be given to persons damaged.

Sec. 62. BONDS MAY BE ISSUED BY VOTE OF SPECIAL TOWN OR DISTRICT MEETING TO BUILD BRIDGE, ETC.] When the highway commissioner desires to expend on any bridges or other distinct and expensive work on the road, a greater sum of money than is available to him by other means, the said highway commissioner, together with twenty-five free-holders residing in the town or district may petition the town or district clerk to call a special town or district meeting to vote upon said proposition. Said petition shall be signed by the commissioner of highways in his own official capacity and by at least twenty-five freeholders of such town or district and shall be filed in the office of the town or district clerk. The proposition to be voted on at such town or district meeting shall be clearly stated in such petition substantially as follows: "To borrow.....dollars to construct or repair (describe the bridge or other work)". Upon the filing of such petition, the town or district clerk shall call such special town or district meeting by posting up in ten of the most public places in said town or district, notices of such special town or district meeting; which notices shall state the object, time and place of the meeting, and the maximum sum to be borrowed, and the manner in which the voting is to be had, which shall invariably be by ballot, and shall be "For borrowing money to (here define the purpose)", or "Against borrowing money to (here define the purpose)." The special town or district election shall be held at the place of the last annual town or district meeting or election by giving at least ten days' notice, and returns thereof shall be made in the same manner as such special town or district elections are now or may hereafter be provided by law; and if it shall appear that a majority of the legal voters, voting at said election, shall be in favor of said proposition, the said commissioner of highways and town or district clerk, as the case may be, shall issue from time to time, as the work progresses, a sufficient amount in the aggregate of the bonds of the said town or district for the purpose of building such bridge, or other distinct and expensive work; such bonds to be of such denomination, bear such rate of interest, not exceeding six per cent, upon such time, and be disposed of as the necessities and convenience of said town or district requires: Provided, that said bonds shall not be sold or disposed of for less than their par value, and such town or district shall provide for the payment of such bonds by appropriate taxation.

Sec. 63. ROAD AND BRIDGE MONEY—HOW PAID.] All road and bridge moneys of any town or road district shall be held by the treasurer of the road and bridge fund subject to the order of the commissioner of highways.

SUBDIVISION IV.

PROVISIONS SPECIALLY APPLICABLE TO BRIDGES AND IMPROVEMENTS CONSTRUCTED OR REPAIRED AT THE JOINT EXPENSE OF TWO ADJOINING TOWNS OR DISTRICTS.

Sec. 64. BRIDGES BUILT BY TWO TOWNS OR DISTRICTS.] Bridges over streams which divide towns or districts and bridges over streams on roads on town or district lines, and bridges within eighty rods of town or district lines over streams on roads extending from one town or district into another town or district and crossing town or district lines, shall be built and repaired at the expense of such town or districts: Provided, that the building and maintaining of bridges over streams near towns or district lines in which both are interested and where the cost thereof is less than $5,000 the expense of maintaining any such bridge shall be borne by both towns or districts in such portion as shall be just and equitable between said towns or districts, taking into consideration the taxable property in each, the location of the bridge, and the advantage of each, to be determined by the commissioners in making contracts for the same, as provided for in section 55 of this Act.

Sec. 65. CONTRACTS BY COMMISSIONERS OF ADJOINING TOWNS OR DISTRICTS.] For the purpose of building or keeping in repair such bridge or bridges, it shall be lawful for the commissioners of such adjoining towns, or districts, whether they be in the same or different counties to enter into joint contracts, and such contracts may be enforced in law or equity against such commissioners jointly, the same as if entered into by individuals, and such commissioners may be proceeded against jointly by any parties interested in such bridge or bridges, for any neglect of duty in reference to such bridge or bridges, or for any damage growing out of such neglect.

Sec. 66. APPROACHES TO BRIDGES ON OR NEAR TOWN OR DISTRICT LINES.] Approaches to all bridges built and constructed under and by virtue of the two preceding sections, shall be built, constructed and maintained by the respective towns or districts within which such approach or approaches may be located, and all approaches to any and all such bridges as have heretofore been built and constructed jointly by two or more districts or towns shall be maintained by the respective districts or town within which such approach or approaches are now located.

Sec. 67. WHEN COMMISSIONER OF ADJOINING TOWNS OR DISTRICTS REFUSE TO ENTER INTO JOINT CONTRACT, BRIDGE MAY BE BUILT AND BONDS ISSUED BY VOTE OF TOWN MEETING OR DISTRICT ELECTION.] Whenever the commissioner of either of such adjoining town or adjoining districts, shall refuse to enter into such joint contracts to build and maintain such bridge or bridges, the commissioner of the other town or district may submit such question to the annual district election or town meeting or call a special district election or town meeting to vote upon the proposition as to whether such district shall proceed to build and maintain such bridge or bridges at its own expense. If such proposed bridge shall require a greater sum of money to complete it than is available to the commissioner by other means, he may also submit the proposition to such annual or special district election or annual or special town meeting, to borrow money to build such bridge. The voting shall be by ballot, and if simply the question as to the building of the bridge is submitted, if the voter desires to vote for building the bridge, his ballot shall state "to build bridge," and if he desires to vote against the proposition, his ballot shall state "against the proposition to build bridge." If the proposition to borrow money to build such bridge shall be included in the notice the maximum amount to be borrowed shall be stated in the same, and the voter desiring to vote affirmatively shall state on his ballot "to build bridge and to borrow money to construct the same"; and if he desires to vote negatively, his ballot shall state "against the proposition to build bridge and to borrow money to construct the same." Such special election shall be called and held in the same manner as is provided in section 62 of this Act. If the proposition to build such bridge shall receive a majority of all the votes cast at such election or meeting the commissioner shall then have the power to contract for the building of such bridge and approaches thereto, the same as if the bridge was entirely located in such district or town, and shall have the power to acquire by purchase, lease or gift, any private bridge already built, suited to the purpose, or any land upon which to build the approaches, or may use for the purpose of such approaches any public highway, that may lead to the bank of the stream where said bridge is to be built on either side of said stream, whether such highway may be within the limits of said town or district or county or not. If the proposition to build such bridge and borrow money to build the same shall receive a majority of the votes cast at such special or annual election or meeting, the town or district clerk, under the direction of the commissioner, shall issue from time to time, as the work progresses, a sufficient amount in the aggregate of the bonds of said town or district for the purpose of building such bridge and the approaches thereto, or to purchase any private bridge already built, as the case may be, said bonds to be of such denominations, bear such rate of interest, not exceeding 8 per cent, upon such time, and be disposed of as the necessities and conveniences of said commissioners may require. Such bonds shall not be sold for less than their par value, and such town or district shall provide for the payment of such bonds and interest by appropriate taxation.

Sec. 68. SUIT ON JOINT CONTRACT.] If the commissioner of either of such towns or districts, after reasonable notice in writing from the commissioners of any other such towns or districts, shall neglect or refuse to build or repair any such bridge when any contract or agreement has been made in regard to the same, it shall be unlawful for the commissioner so giving notice to build or repair the same, to recover, by suit, one-half (or such amount as shall have been agreed upon) of the expense of so building or repairing such bridge, with costs of suit and interest from the time of the completion thereof, from the town or district so neglecting or refusing.

SUBDIVISION V.

THE LETTING OF CONTRACTS.

Sec 69. CONTRACTS OF SINGLE TOWN OR DISTRICT.] The commissioner of highways in each town or district is hereby authorized to contract for the construction and repairing of roads and bridges lying wholly within the limits of his town or district; the cost whereof does not exceed $200.00. When any contract shall be for a sum in excess of $200.00, the said commissioner shall not let the same without the approval of the county superintendent of highways. The county superintendent shall keep a record of all contracts approved by him.

Sec. 70. CONTRACTS FOR IMPROVEMENTS TO BE CONSTRUCTED BY TWO TOWNS OR DISTRICTS.] Contracts for constructing and repairing roads and bridges on town or district lines, or across streams on town or district lines, shall be let by the commissioners of the two towns or districts who shall meet and act together when taking action upon the letting of such contracts for the construction or repair of such roads and bridges, or acceptance of the work. When such contracts are for the expenditure of a sum exceeding $200.00 they shall not let the same without the approval of the county superintendent as provided in the preceding section.

Sec. 71. CONTRACTOR TO FURNISH BOND.] No contract so made either at public or private letting shall be considered as let unless the contractor shall, within ten days after the letting, enter into contract and file a bond with two good and sufficient sureties with the commissioner, in the penal sum of double the amount of the contract, payable to the commissioner of the town or district, upon failure to comply with the conditions of his or their contract.

Sec. 72. WHEN CONTRACTS MADE PAYABLE.] All contracts for the construction or repair of roads, or building or repairing bridges shall be made payable as soon as the work on said contract is completed and accepted by the commissioner of highways.

Sec. 73. IN LETTING CONTRACTS, ETC., COMMISSIONERS MUST NOT HAVE ANY PECUNIARY INTEREST.] In letting contracts, employing labor, or in purchasing tools, machinery or materials, neither the highway commissioner nor the county superintendent of highways shall have, directly or indirectly, any personal pecuniary interest therewith.

SUBDIVISION VI.

LAYING OUT, ALTERING, VACATING, WIDENING ROADS.

Sec. 74. WIDTH OF ROADS.] All public roads established under the provision of this Act shall be of the standard width of forty feet.

Sec. 75. REDUCING WIDTH OF ROADS.] The commissioner of highways of any town or road district may reduce the width of any existing public road within any town or road district to a width of forty feet when the same is petitioned for by a majority of the land owners along the line of said road, within said town or district. When possible the land so vacated by reducing the width of the road shall be taken equally from both sides of the public highway. In cases of natural obstruction on one side of the public highway, or where the said road extends along the right-of-way of any railroad, river or canal, the commissioner is authorized to reduce the width of the road on one side only.

Sec. 76. ALTERING, WIDENING, VACATING AND LAYING OUT ROADS—PETITION.] Existing roads may be altered, vacated or widened and new roads may be laid out in the manner herein provided for. Any number of land owners residing in any town or road district within two miles of the road to be altered, widened, vacated or laid out, or two-thirds of such land owners, may file a petition with the commissioner of highways of such town or district, praying for the altering, widening, vacation or laying out of said roads. Said petition shall set forth a description of the road and what part is to be altered, widened or vacated, and if for a new road the names of the owners of lands, if known, and if not known it shall so state, over which the road is to pass, the points at or near which it is to commence, its general course, and the place at or near which it is to terminate.

Sec. 77. HEARING ON PETITION—NOTICE—PRELIMINARY ORDER.] Whenever the commissioner shall receive any such petition he shall fix a time when, and a place where he will examine the route of such road and hear reasons for or against the altering, widening, vacating or laying out of the same, and he shall give at least ten days' notice of the time and place of such examination and hearing by putting notices in three of the most public places in the town or district in the vicinity of the road to be widened, altered, vacated or laid out. The commissioner may, by public announcement, and by the posting of a notice at the time and place named for the first hearing, adjourn the said hearing from time to time, but not for a longer period than ten days in all; and shall at such meeting, or such adjourned meeting, decide and publicly announce whether he shall grant or refuse the prayer of the petition, and shall endorse upon or annex to the petition a brief memorandum of such decision, to be signed by said commissioner and filed within five days thereafter in the office of the town or district clerk.

Sec. 78. APPEAL.] In case a commissioner of highways shall deny the prayer of the petition, the petitioner may appeal from such decision to the county superintendent of highways by joining in a notice of such appeal and filing the same in the office of the town or district clerk within ten days after the date of the decision appealed from. The clerk shall thereupon transmit the original petition for the altering, widening, vacating or laying out of such road, together with the said notice of appeal to the county superintendent of highways. Upon receipt thereof the said county superintendent of highways shall thereupon fix a time and place for a public hearing thereof, giving notice thereof and render his decision thereon in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of the hearing upon said petition by the commissioner of highways of the town or district. Upon rendering his decision, the said superintendent of highways shall likewise endorse on said petition a memorandum of his decision and shall file the same in the office of the town or district clerk. Such decision of the commissioner of highways, or upon appeal, such order of the county superintendent of highways, shall be regarded as a preliminary decision upon the advisability of the proposed improvement, and shall be subject to revocation in the manner hereinafter provided.

Sec. 79. SURVEYS ORDERED.] If the commissioner of highways, or upon appeal from his decision, the county superintendent of highways, shall enter a preliminary order as aforesaid that the prayer of the petitioner should be granted, the said highway commissioner or county superintendent of highways, as the case may be, shall cause a survey and plat of such road to be made by a competent surveyor who shall report such survey and plat to said commissioner of highways or county superintendent, as the case may be giving the courses and distances and specifying the land over which said road is to pass; in which he may make such changes between the termini of the road described in the petition, as the convenience and interest of the public in his judgment may require. Upon the petition of twelve land owners residing in the town or district where the road is situated, it shall be the duty of the said commissioner of highways or county superintendent, as the case may be, within a reasonable time to employ a competent surveyor and have any road designated in such petition to be once resurveyed.

Sec. 80. DAMAGES TO BE DETERMINED.] Whenever the commissioner of highways of any town or road district or upon appeal from his decision, the county superintendent of highways has entered a preliminary order as aforesaid for the establishment, vacation, widening or alteration of a road, and a survey therefor has been completed as hereinbefore provided, proceedings shall next be taken to fix the damages which will be sustained by the adjoining land owners by reason of such alteration, vacation, widening or laying out. In case such preliminary order was entered by the commissioner of highways, he shall act for the town or district in all matters relating to the fixing of damages, as well as the surveying of such road. But in case such order was entered by the county superintendent of highways on appeal, as aforesaid, the said county superintendent shall represent the said town or district in such matters.

Sec. 81. DAMAGES MAY BE AGREED UPON.] The damages sustained by the owner or owners of land by reason of the establishment, alteration, widening or vacation, as aforesaid, may be agreed upon by the owners of such lands if competent to contract, and the commissioner of highways or county superintendent, as the case may be. Such damages may also be released by such owners, and in such case the agreement or release shall be in writing and shall be filed and recorded with the copy of the order establishing, altering, widening or vacating such road in the offices of the town or district clerk, and shall be a perpetual bar against such owners, their grantees and assigns for all further claims for such damages.

Sec. 82. INDUCEMENTS MAY BE OFFERED.] Any person or persons interested in the establishment, alteration, widening or vacation of any public road in this State, are hereby authorized to offer inducements to the commissioner of highways or county superintendent of highways, as the case may be, for the establishment, alteration, widening or vacation of any such road, by entering into contract with said commissioner or county superintendent, conditioned upon such establishment, alteration, widening or vacation, to pay money or other valuable thing to the town or district for the benefit of the road or bridge funds of the same; or to perform any labor, or construct any road, bridge or culvert on any road which said person or persons desire to be established, widened or altered. Any such contracts in writing made with said commissioner of highways or county superintendent shall be deemed good and valid in law and may be enforced by said commissioner or his successors in office before any court having jurisdiction.

Sec. 83. SUMMONING JURY TO ASSESS DAMAGES—SUMMONS TO OWNERS.] In case such damages are not released or agreed upon as in the preceding section specified, the commissioner, or in case of appeal the county superintendent of highways, shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting at which it was decided to grant the prayer of the petition, make a certificate that he is about to establish, widen, vacate or alter a public road, describing such road, vacation, widening or alteration, and the land over or on which such road is to be established, altered, widened or vacated, and naming the owners of such lands, if known, and if not known, stating the fact and asking for a jury to assess the damages of such owners, and shall present such certificate to some justice of the peace of the county, who, on receipt of the same, shall, within five days, issue a summons against the land owners concerned, which summons shall be in the following form as nearly as the case will admit, viz:

State of Illinois, }
.....County, } ss.

The People of the State of Illinois, to any constable of said county—GREETING:

You are hereby commanded to summonto appear before me at on the day of..... ato'clock, and prove to a jury then and there to be empaneled, such damages as he or they may sustain on account of the establishing, altering, widening or vacating the road described in a certificate of the commissioner of the town of or road district No..... (or county superintendent of highways acting for said town or road district No.....) in said county, which certificate is now on file in my office.

Given under my hand and seal this day of....., 19....

Justice of the Peace.

In which summons the justice shall specify a certain place, day and hour for the trial, not less than six nor more than fifteen days from the date of such summons, at which time and place such land owners are to appear. Such summons shall be served at least three days before the time of trial mentioned therein, by reading the same to the land owners therein named.

Sec. 84. IF OWNER INFANT, ETC., HOW SERVED.] If any such owner is an infant, such summons shall be served by delivering a copy to the infant and its guardian, if any; if no guardian, the person with whom he or she resides. If any owner is a lunatic or habitual drunkard having a conservator, or insane, by delivering a copy to his conservator, if any.

Sec. 85. NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT OWNERS—CONTINUANCE.] In case it shall appear, either from the certificate of the commissioner or county superintendent of highways, the affidavit of any person, or the return of any officer to whom the notice may be delivered for service, that there are non-resident or unknown owner or owners who cannot be found and served within the county, such justice shall also cause notice to be delivered to the occupant of such lands, and the contents and nature thereof to be made known to such occupant and also to be posted in three of the most public places in the vicinity of such proposed road or alteration, at least ten days before the time fixed in the summons for hearing proof of damages, stating the time and place, as stated in said summons, and describing the road to be established or altered, and the lands for which damages are to be assessed; and in case service is made upon any owner by posting notices as above provided, the justice shall continue said hearing for a period not exceeding twelve days.

Sec. 86. MANNER OF SELECTING JURY—CHALLENGE.] Such justice shall also forthwith issue a venire directed to any constable of the county, to summon six persons having the qualifications of jurors to appear at such time and place as may be designated for the proving of such damages, whose competency shall be determined the same as in other civil cases before justices of the peace. Either party to the case shall have the same right of challenge as in other civil cases; and any deficiency in the number of jurors, from whatever cause, shall be supplied by summoning other persons residing in such county: Provided, that not more than one-half of such jury shall be residents of the town or district liable to pay the damages assessed in the case: Provided, further, that changes of venue may be granted, if applied for before the commencement of the trial, in the same manner as in other civil causes before justices of the peace.

Sec. 87. OATH TO JURY—TRIAL TO BE CONDUCTED AS IN OTHER CIVIL CASES.] The jury shall appear before and be sworn by such justice faithfully and impartially to assess the damages of each of the owners specified in such certificate, or those of them whose claims are then to be adjusted, according to law, to the best of their judgment and understanding; and all parties in interest shall be entitled to subpoenas and other writs and papers, and the trial shall be conducted as in other civil cases.

Sec. 88. TRIAL—VERDICT—JUDGMENT—DAMAGES—BENEFITS.] The case shall be entitled, "Town of (or road district No.) vs." (whoever may be summoned as land owners), and the jury shall hear such lawful evidence touching the question of such damages as may be presented to them; and they shall also, on request of the commissioner of highways or county superintendent of highways, as the case may be, or owners of lands whose damages are to be determined, in a body visit and examine the proposed location, alteration, widening or vacation of such road and the lands to be taken or affected thereby, and make a written verdict specifying the amount of damages, if any, which every such owner shall recover, and return the same to such justice, to be by him entered on his docket in the nature of a judgment: Provided, that in estimating the damages, except damages to land actually taken for a road, the jury may consider the benefits conferred; but no benefits enjoyed in common by the owners of surrounding property shall be considered in estimating damages.

Sec. 89. APPEAL. Any person or persons interested in the verdict of any jury in assessing damages in opening, altering or vacating any road, may appeal from such decision to the county or circuit court within ten days after such decision has been rendered, by filing a written petition with the justice of the peace, from whose decision they desire to appeal, asking for an appeal and stating on what grounds such appeal is taken.

Sec. 90. COSTS OF APPEAL—APPEAL BOND.] Any parties taking an appeal from the verdict of the jury as aforesaid, shall file a sufficient bond with the justice of the peace, before taking such appeal, conditioned for the payment of the cost of such appeal in case the verdict of the jury is in all things sustained or the appeal dismissed; if the verdict of the jury shall not be sustained, the district shall pay the costs of such appeal. When such appeal is taken from the verdict of the jury called by the justice of the peace to assess damages as aforesaid, and when the commissioner of highways or county superintendent, as the case may be, shall be unable to agree with the owners of lands in regard to such damages, then all proceedings shall cease until the amount of damages is settled by the county or circuit court on appeal as aforesaid.

Sec. 91. FINAL ORDER OF HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER OR COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF HIGHWAYS.] Within twenty days after the damages likely to be sustained by reason of the proposed laying out, alteration, widening or vacation of any road shall have been finally ascertained, either by agreement of the parties or by trial in a court of the justice of the peace, or on appeal to the county or circuit court, or within twenty days after such damages may have been released, as aforesaid, the commissioner of highways shall hold a public hearing at which he shall hear and consider reasons for or against the proposed laying out, widening, alteration or vacation of such road, and at which time and place he shall publicly announce his final decision relative thereto. The commissioner of highways shall give public notice of such public hearing by posting notices thereof in at least three of the most public places in the town or district for at least five days prior thereto. At such time and place the commissioner of highways shall determine upon the advisability of such proposed laying out, widening, alteration or vacation of such road and shall make an order for the same and shall within five days thereafter file such order in the office of the town or district clerk.

Sec. 92. APPEAL FROM FINAL ORDER.] From such order of the commissioner of highways finally determining the advisability of such proposed laying out, alteration, vacation or widening of any road, any person interested therein may appeal to the county superintendent of highways by filing a notice of such appeal in the office of the town or district clerk within ten days of the date of filing the decision appealed from. Thereupon such clerk shall at once transmit all papers relating to such proposed laying out, alteration, vacation or widening of such road to the county superintendent of highways, who shall within twenty days after the receipt of the same, hold a public hearing within such town or district to finally determine upon the laying out, vacation, widening or alteration of such road. Such hearing shall be upon such notice and conducted in like manner as the hearing before the commissioner of highways relative to such final decision and from which appeal has been taken. The final order of the county superintendent of highways, relative to such proposed laying out, alteration, widening or vacation of such road shall be filed with the town or district clerk within five days from the date of such public hearing.

Sec. 93. EFFECT OF FINAL ORDER.] In case the commissioner of highways, or upon appeal from his decision the county superintendent of highways, shall finally determine as aforesaid against the advisability of the proposed laying out, alteration, widening or vacation of such road, such order shall have the effect to annul and revoke all proceedings and assessments, releases and agreements in respect to damages growing out of the proceedings upon the petition aforesaid. In case the commissioner or county superintendent shall not revoke such prior proceedings, he shall make an order to be signed by him, declaring such road to be altered, widened, vacated or laid out as a public highway and which order shall contain or have annexed thereto a definite description of the line of such road, together with the plat thereof. The commissioner of highways or county superintendent, as the case may be, shall within five days from the date of his said final order, cause the same, together with the report of the surveyor, the petition and the releases, agreements or assessments in respect to damages, to be deposited and filed in the office of the town or district clerk; who shall note upon such order the date of such filing. It shall be the duty of such clerk to record such order, together with the plat of the surveyor in a proper book to be kept for that purpose.

Sec. 94. PROCEEDINGS SUBSEQUENT TO FINAL ORDER.] After it has been finally determined that a road shall be laid out, widened, altered or vacated, either by the commissioners of highways or upon appeal by the county superintendent of highways, all proceedings subsequent thereto on behalf of the town or district shall be taken by the commissioner of highways thereof as herein-after provided. And such commissioner of highways in such cases is hereby authorized and empowered to report all necessary proceedings not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act to secure the laying out, widening, alteration or vacation of any such road.

Sec. 95. RECORDS OF TOWN OR DISTRICT CLERK—EVIDENCE—EFFECT OF SAME.]—The records of the town or district clerk, or a certified copy of such record and papers, relating to the establishment, location, alteration, widening or vacation of any road shall be prima facie evidence in all cases that all the necessary antecedent provisions have been complied with, and that the action of the commissioner or other persons and officers, in regard thereto, was regular in all respects.

Sec. 96. LIMITATIONS OF TIME TO OPEN.] All roads laid out as herein provided shall be opened within two years from the time of laying out the same. If the damages resulting from the establishing of such roads shall not be paid within ninety days from the time of the final determination to open the same as aforesaid, such new roads shall be deemed to be vacated.

Sec. 97. REMOVAL OF FENCES—NOTICE.] Whenever a public road is ordered to be established or altered, according to the provisions of this Act, which road shall pass through or on enclosed land, the commissioner of highways shall give the owner or occupant of such land sixty days' notice in writing, to remove the fences. If such owner or occupant does not remove the fence or fences within sixty days after such notice, the commissioner shall have the same removed, and direct the road to be opened and worked; the owner of such premises shall pay all necessary costs of removal, and the same may be recovered by the commissioner of highways in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Sec. 98. CROPS—REMOVAL OF.] When any road opened according to the provisions of this subdivision shall pass over enclosed lands, the owners of such lands shall have a reasonable time, not exceeding eight months, to be designated by the commissioner of highways to harvest crops and remove fences which may be on such lands before such road or cartway shall be opened.

Sec. 99. PRIVATE ROADS.] Roads for private and public use of the width of three rods or less, may be laid out from one dwelling or plantation of an individual to any public road, or from one public road to another, or from a lot of land to a public road, or from a lot of land to a public waterway, on petition to the commissioner by any person directly interested. Upon receiving such petition, proceedings shall be had respecting the laying out of such road as in the case of public roads. In case the commissioner of highways or upon appeal, the county superintendent of highways shall enter a preliminary order for the laying out of such road, the said highway officer making such preliminary order shall, if possible and the parties are competent to contract, agree upon the total amount of damages, together with the portion thereof to be paid by the town or district, as well as by each of the land owners benefited by such private road. In case such damages cannot be determined or apportioned by agreement, the same shall be fixed as in the case of public roads. The amount of such damages shall be paid by the persons benefited thereby, to the extent and in proportion that they are benefited as determined and declared by the court. The remainder of the amount of damages over and above that to be paid by the parties aforesaid, shall be paid by the town or district as in other cases. The amount of damages to be paid by individuals shall be paid to the parties entitled thereto, before the road shall be opened for use. In all other respects the provisions of this Act relative to the opening, vacation, alteration or widening of public roads shall be applicable also to the laying out, alteration, widening or vacation of private roads.

Sec. 100. ROADS ON TOWN OR DISTRICT AND COUNTY LINES, ETC.] Public roads may be established, altered, widened or vacated on county or township or district lines, or from one township or district to another, and in case a railroad right of way or stream of water joins the boundary line of such county line, then along the line of such railroad right of way or stream of water, in the same manner as other public roads, except that in such cases, a copy of the petition shall be posted up in and presented to the commissioner of each town or district interested; said petition to be as in other cases, and signed by not less than twelve, or two-thirds of the owners of land residing thereon, in either township or district or county within two miles of the road to be so altered, widened, vacated, located or laid out. Whereupon it shall be the duty of the commissioners of the several towns or districts to meet and act together in the same time and manner as in other cases, in considering the petition, viewing the premises, adjusting damages, and making all orders in reference to such proposed road, alteration, widening or vacation, and a copy of all final orders and plats and papers shall be filed and recorded in each of the counties and towns or districts interested. In case the said commissioners are unable to agree, the county superintendent of highways shall act as arbitrator between them in case the towns or districts shall lie within the same county, and if in different counties the state highway commissioner, or any person designated by him, shall so act. All appeals hereinbefore provided for may likewise be taken to the county superintendent of highways, or in case the towns or districts shall lie in two or more counties, to the State Highway Commissioner.

Sec. 101. COMMISSIONER TO ALLOW ALL OR PART OF ROAD TO EACH TOWN OR DISTRICT—ALSO TO DIVIDE DAMAGES AND EXPENSES—ARBITRATION.] The commissioners shall also, in case a new road is established, allot to each of such towns or districts the part of such road which each of such towns or districts shall open and keep in repair, and the part so allotted shall be considered as wholly belonging to such town or district. They shall also divide the expenses and damages which may accrue from such location, widening or alteration, and if they cannot agree, they shall refer the matter to the county superintendent of highways or in case the towns or districts shall lie in two or more counties, to the State Commissioner of Highways whose decision shall be final.

Sec. 102. ROADS HERETOFORE LAID OUT ON COUNTY OR DISTRICT OR TOWN LINES.] All roads heretofore or hereafter laid out upon town or district or county lines shall be divided, allotted and kept in repair in the manner as hereinbefore directed. Any public road that is or shall be laid out on any county or town or district line, and in case a railroad right-of-way or stream of water forms the boundary line of town or district or county, or crowds the public road off from such town or district or county, then the road alongside such railroad right-of-way or stream of water, shall be held to be a road on a county or town or district line, although owing to the topography of the ground along such county or town or district line, or at the crossing of any stream of water the proper authorities in establishing or locating such road may have located a portion of the same to one side of such county or district or town line or railroad right-of-way, or stream of water, and the expenses of keeping in repair such road shall be assessed by each town or district or county interested.

Sec. 103. STATE LINE ROADS.] Roads may be laid out and opened upon the line between this and any adjoining State, as provided in the preceding sections, whenever the laws of such adjoining state shall be applicable.

Sec. 104. WHERE ROAD PROPOSED ACROSS OR ALONGSIDE RAILROAD—NOTICE.] In addition to the notices now required by law in proceedings for laying out, locating or opening of public roads, similar notices shall be served on any railroad company across or alongside of whose railroad it may be proposed to locate a public road: Provided, that this Act shall not apply to the proceedings for opening streets in towns or cities.

Sec. 105. NOTICES ON RAILROAD COMPANIES—HOW SERVED.] The notices as provided by this Act shall be served by delivering a copy thereof to the station agent of any such railroad company nearest to the proposed location of such projected public road.

SUBDIVISION VII.

REPAIR AND MAINTENANCE OF ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Sec. 106. HOW ROADS TO BE GRADED—WALK—PENALTY FOR DRIVING ON CROSSINGS.] In grading roads, whenever practicable, it shall be done so as to leave not less than one-tenth of the width of the road on each side for a sidewalk; and the space between these points shall be made a regular oval grade so that the entire space can be used for traveling purposes; and it shall be unlawful to ride or drive on such walk; and any person so offending shall be subject to a fine of $1.00 for each offense. Grading shall be done before the first of September in each year. Corner stones marking sectional or other corners shall not be disturbed, except to so grade the road that these, if in the line of travel shall not rise above the surface, and corner stakes shall be replaced by good and substantial stones. In grading public roads, if a ditch is made at the junction of roads, or at the entrance of gates or other openings of adjoining premises, the road authorities shall construct good and sufficient culverts, or other convenient crossings.

Sec. 107. SIDEWALKS IN UNINCORPORATED VILLAGES.] Highway commissioners are hereby authorized to build sidewalks in unincorporated villages out of any delinquent road tax belonging to the town or road district in which such village is located.

Sec. 108. (a) ROAD DRAGS—AUTHORITY AND USE.] The commissioners of highways in the several towns or districts and the county boards in the counties of this State are hereby authorized to have earth roads dragged at all seasons of the year whenever they may deem it beneficial to have such work done; and they may contract, a preference to be given adjoining land owners or tenants, to have a given piece of road dragged at a rate not to exceed one dollar ($1.00) per mile for each time dragged, if such work is done owners or tenants, to have a given piece of road dragged at a rate not to exceed a rate of seventy-five (75) cents per mile for each time dragged, if such work is done during other months of the year than aforesaid: Provided, that the width required by the highway commissioner to be dragged be not less than twenty feet, if the width of the roadway will permit: Provided, also, that the dragging is done as nearly as practicable in accordance with the instructions of the highway commissioner of the town or district.

(b) OBSTRUCTING DRAINAGE.] It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to place loose earth, weeds, sods, or other vegetable matter on the portion of a road which has been dragged and so maintained in good condition, or to place any material in such a manner as to interfere with the free flow of water from the dragged portion of the road to the side gutters or ditches: Provided, that this restriction shall not apply to deposits of earth or other material that may be made by the authority of the proper road officials, if necessary for filling or raising the elevation of a given section of road or other necessary construction work.

TRAVEL REGULATED.] It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to drive or cause to be driven a vehicle of any description in or upon any portion of the highway immediately after the same has been dragged and before such portion of highway shall have partially dried out or frozen: Provided, that nothing in this section shall apply in those instances where it is impossible to drive with safety at one side of said dragged portion of the road, or where a vehicle does not make a rut on such dragged portion of the road, injurious to the work accomplished by use of the road drag, or where a vehicle does not make a rut nearer than nine (9) feet from the center of the dragged portion of the road.

SUBDIVISION VIII.

GRAVEL ROCK AND MACADAM—HARD ROADS.

Sec. 109. PETITION FOR ROAD—NOTICE—ELECTION—VOTE—RATE PER CENT.] On the petition of twenty-five per cent of the land owners who are legal voters of any township to the town clerk thereof, in counties under township organization or road districts in counties not under township organization, to the district clerk, he shall, when giving notice of the time and place for holding the next annual town meeting or road district election, also give notice that a vote will be taken at said election or meeting for or against a tax not to exceed one dollar on each one hundred dollars assessed valuation of all the taxable property, including railroads in the township or road district, for the purpose of constructing and maintaining gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads. Said petition shall state the location and route of the proposed road or roads, and shall also state the rate per cent not exceeding one dollar on each one hundred dollars, and the number of years not exceeding five, for which said tax shall be levied. If, in any such petition, a special election shall be requested for such purposes, it shall be called in the manner provided for calling special elections in section 113 of this Act.

Sec. 110. BALLOTS.] The ballots at said election shall contain the following form: "For special tax for gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads;" "Against special tax for gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads."

Sec. 111. DUTY OF COMMISSIONERS—TAX—DONATIONS.] If a majority of all the ballots cast at said election shall be in favor of said special tax, then it shall be the duty of the commissioner of highways of the township or road district to levy a tax in accordance with said vote and certify the same to the county clerk, in the manner provided in section 57 of this Act. He shall also cause a copy of such certificate of levy to be filed in the office of the town or district clerk as provided in section 58 of this Act. The county clerk shall cause the amount of such levy, thus certified to him to be extended on the tax books for the current year: Provided, that the length of time for which the special tax levy shall continue shall not exceed five years, and also the road or roads to be improved must be designated in the petition. The commissioner may also receive donations in money, labor, materials or other valuable things, to aid in the construction of said road.

SEC. 112. LEVY AND COLLECTION OF TAX.] The county clerk, when making out the tax books for the State and county tax for the collector, shall extend the special tax in separate columns against each tax payer's name or taxable property, as other taxes are extended, which shall be collected the same as State and county taxes, and known as the permanent road fund.

SEC. 113. BORROWING MONEY.] In any town or road district wherein the people have at any time voted for a special tax for gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads, as provided in sections 109 and 110 of this Act, and wherein it is desired to secure a greater sum for that purpose than is available from such special tax, a petition may be presented to the town clerk, to call a special election to vote upon the proposition of issuing the bonds of such town or road district: Provided, however, that the issuing of such bonds may be authorized concurrently with the election held pursuant to sections 109 and 110 of this Act and at which it is affirmatively determined to levy the tax therein specified. Said petition shall clearly state the proposition to be voted on at said town or district election substantially as follows: "To borrow dollars to construct or repair (describe the bridge or other work)." Such petition shall be signed by the commissioner of highways in his official capacity and by one hundred of the free holders of said town or district (or where there may be less than two hundred such free holders, then a majority of them), and thereupon such petition shall be filed in the office of the town or district clerk. Upon the filing of such petition, the town or district clerk shall call such special town or district election, by posting up in ten of the most public places in said town or district, notices of such special town or district election, which notices shall state the object, time and place of the meeting or election, the maximum sum to be borrowed, and the manner in which the voting is to be had which shall invariably be by ballot, and shall be, "For borrowing money to (here define the purpose)", or "Against borrowing money to (here define the purpose)." The special election shall be held at the place of the last annual town or district election, by giving at least ten days' notice, and returns thereof shall be made in the same manner as other special town or district elections are now or may hereafter be provided by law; and if it shall appear that a majority of the legal voters, voting at said election shall be in favor of said proposition, the commissioner of highways and the town or district clerk, as the case may be, shall issue from time to time, as the work progresses, a sufficient amount in the aggregate of the bonds of said town or district for the purpose of building and maintaining gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads; said bonds to be of such denomination, bear such rate of interest, not exceeding five per cent, upon such time, and be disposed of as the necessities and convenience of said town or district requires: Provided, that said bonds shall not be sold or disposed of either by sale or by payment to contractors for labor and materials for less than their par value. Such bonds shall be issued in not more than ten annual series; the first series of which shall mature not more than five years from the date thereof and each succeeding series in succeeding years thereafter. A record of all issues of said bonds shall be kept in the office of the county clerk of the county in which such town or district is located, and it shall be the duty of such county clerk to extend annually against the property of said township or road district a tax sufficient to pay the interest for said bonds for each year prior to the maturity of such first series and thereafter he shall extend the tax for each year sufficient to pay each series as it matures, together with the interest thereon and the interest upon the unmatured bonds outstanding. Such bonds may be lithographed and the interest for each year evidenced by interest coupons there-to attached, which shall be signed by the same officers who executed the bonds: Provided, however, that the amount including the principal and interest, to be voted upon shall not exceed the amount which can be raised during a period of five years by a levy of one dollar on each one hundred dollars of taxable property as taken for assessment purposes for such town or district: And, provided, further, that the total amount of such bonded indebtedness shall in no case exceed thirty-five thousand ($35,000.00) dollars and such town or district shall provide for the payment of such bonds and the interest thereon by appropriate taxation.

Sec. 114. DUTY OF TREASURER.] The treasurer of the road and bridge fund of any town or district before receiving any of said fund herein provided for, shall execute a good and sufficient bond, with two or more sureties, to be filed with the town clerk or district clerk, as the case may be, for the benefit of the town or district, in double the amount which will probably come into his hands by virtue of this subdivision of this Act.

Sec. 115. TAX COLLECTOR—DUTY—COMMISSION.] The tax, when collected, shall be paid to said treasurer as fast as collected, except such rate per cent as shall be allowed for collecting the same, and said tax shall be known and kept as the permanent road fund. The treasurer shall be allowed one per cent on all of said fund that comes into his hands.

Sec. 116. POWERS OF COMMISSIONERS OF HIGHWAYS.] The commissioner of highways shall have power to employ a competent surveyor or civil engineer and their necessary assistants, for the purpose of surveying the route of the road to be improved, and make plans, specifications and estimates of said work. The commissioner shall cause the same to be divided into convenient sections, and each section numbered.

Sec. 117. PLANS—BIDS—NOTICE.] When the plans and specifications are completed, the commissioner shall advertise for sealed bids for said work, by publishing a notice thereof for at least three weeks in some newspaper published in said township. If there is no newspaper published therein, then in the newspaper published nearest said township, and also by posting notices in at least ten of the most public places in said town.

Sec. 118. PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS—WHAT TO CONTAIN.] The plans and specifications shall provide for the grading of a road-bed of not less than 20 feet in width on the surface, and so constructed as to drain freely to the sides and with all necessary side and lateral ditches and tile drains, bridges and culverts, and a track laid with gravel, rock, macadam, or other hard and durable substance, not less than seven or more than sixteen feet in width, and if constructed of gravel or broken stone, not less than ten inches thick in the center, and eight inches thick on the edges: Provided, however, this section shall be considered as directory only, and shall not prohibit the making of roads of different width or thickness, in the discretion of the commissioner.

Sec. 119. COMMISSIONER—OPENING BIDS—FAILURE TO GIVE BOND.] The commissioner shall appear at the time and place appointed, for the purpose of opening the bids and shall proceed to let the contract publicly to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders by sections, with proper specifications of the various kind of labor or material on each section, and bidders shall be required to separately state their bids for each class of work in such manner as the commissioner may provide, and each contractor shall be required to give bond with good and sufficient sureties for the performance of his contract, payable to the commissioner for the use and benefit of the town or district with the necessary specifications and stipulations on the part of the contractor entered therein: Provided, however, no contract in excess of the sum of two hundred (200.00) dollars shall be let by the commissioner of highways in any town or district without the approval of the county superintendent of highways. No commissioner shall be interested either directly or indirectly in any contract relating in any manner to said road.

Sec. 120. MAY REJECT BIDS.] If the commissioner of highways shall be of the opinion that the bids are too high, he may reject the same. No contract shall be deemed as let unless the contractor shall, within ten days after the letting, enter into contract and file a bond with two good and sufficient sureties with the commissioner, in the penal sum of double the amount of the contract, payable to the commissioner of highways upon the failure to comply with the conditions of his or their contract.

Sec. 121. ESTIMATE—PAYMENT OF CONTRACTOR.] The commissioner shall cause the surveyor or engineer to make estimates of the work done, and certify to the same, not oftener than once in thirty days, as may have been provided in the contracts, and shall then issue an order on the treasurer in favor of the contractor, reserving not less than 20 per cent of said estimates, to guarantee the completion of the contract. Upon the completion of the contract the commissioner and engineer shall make a thorough and complete examination and estimate of said work, and, if found in accordance with the specifications of the contract, the commissioner shall issue his order on the treasurer for the full amount due the contractor.

Sec. 122. RECORD—REPORT—SETTLEMENT.] The commissioner shall keep a full and accurate record of all his proceedings under this Act, and shall, upon the completion of the road, file with the town or district clerk all records, papers, plans, plats, estimates, specifications and contracts, and shall make a full report to, and settlement with the board of town auditors at all regular meetings of the same. If the commissioner fails to make such settlement, the supervisor shall cause an action to be instituted against him in the corporate name of the township to enforce such settlement.

Sec. 123. CONSTRUCTION OF ROAD—MATERIAL.] The commissioner may, in his discretion, cause the road to be constructed wholly of earth, and by a thorough system of tile and other drainage, when gravel, stone and other suitable hard materials can not be obtained at a cost within the means in the hands of the commissioner.

Sec. 124. COMMISSIONERS MAY TAKE MATERIALS.] The commissioner, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining or repairing gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads, as provided in this subdivision and for procuring materials therefor, may enter upon lands of others, doing no more damage than the necessity of the case may require, and take therefrom such material as is necessary for the construction and repairing of said roads: Provided, that the commissioner of highways, his employees, or teams, shall not enter upon such lands for the purpose in this section stated, without having paid or tendered the amount of damage allowed or agreed upon: Provided, that the commissioner and the party or parties owning or controlling the lands to be entered upon, or from which material is to be taken, cannot agree as to the amount of damage or value of material, that the amount of damage shall be determined as provided for in the law for exercising the right of eminent domain.

Sec. 125. COMPENSATION OF COMMISSIONER AND EMPLOYEES.] The commissioner shall receive the same compensation for his services under this subdivision of this Act as for services under the common road law: Provided, however, he shall not receive benefit for both kinds of service on the same day. The surveyor or engineer shall receive a compensation not to exceed that allowed by law to the county surveyor. The assistants or employees shall receive such reasonable compensation as may be agreed upon. The commissioner shall be paid out of the road and bridge fund of the town or district. The surveyors and other employees shall be paid by the commissioner out of the permanent road and bridge fund and none other.

Sec. 126. EXTENSION OF ROAD WITHIN CITY OR VILLAGES.] Whenever a special tax shall have been levied under the provisions of this subdivision of this Act, the commissioner of highways of any town or district may, by agreement with the city council or board of trustees of any city or village of less than 10,000 population, extend any road improved under the provisions of this subdivision within or through the corporate limits of such city or village: Provided, such extension within such city or village shall be of the same cost and kind of material as the road outside such city or village, to be paid for out of said special tax and after completion to be maintained by the municipal authorities of such city or village at the cost of such city or village.

Sec. 127. POWERS OF COUNTY BOARD.] The several county boards of counties are hereby vested with the same powers for constructing, repairing and maintaining gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads in their respective counties as the commissioners of highways acting severally or together with the several county superintendents of highways according to the provisions of this Act. The county board of any county may also assist any town or road district therein in the construction of a hard road under the provisions of this Act, to the extent of fifteen per cent of the cost thereof: Provided, however, that the question of raising a special permanent road tax for the purposes set forth in this Act shall first be submitted to the legal voters of the county, at any regular election for county officers, on the petition of one hundred land owners who are legal voters in said county, to the county clerk, previous to the time of posting the notices for said county election, said petition and notices to designate the road or roads to be improved and number of years, not to exceed five, for which the tax shall be continued.

Sec. 128. BALLOTS—ELECTION—TAX.] The ballots shall be in the form prescribed in section 110 of this Act. If a majority of all the ballots cast at said election shall be in favor of the special permanent road tax, it shall be the duty of the county board to direct the county clerk to extend such tax against all the taxable property, including railroads in said county, and proceed in the construction of the road or roads voted for in the same manner as provided for the guidance of commissioners of highways in their respective towns or districts.

Sec. 129. ROADS TO BE FREE.] All roads constructed under the provisions of this subdivision of this Act, either by towns or districts or counties shall be free for public travel and kept in repair by the proper authorities thereof.

Sec. 130. SURPLUS FUND.] All surplus funds remaining in the hands of the treasurer of the town or district after the completion of any road provided for under this subdivision of this Act shall be turned over to the common road fund of said town or road district, as the case may be, except so much thereof as the commissioner may order retained for the purpose of repairing said permanent road.

ARTICLE VII.

CERTAIN PROVISIONS APPLICABLE GENERALLY TO HIGHWAY OFFICIALS.

Sec. 131. TILE DRAINS—CONTRACT WITH OWNERS.] Whenever the commissioner of highways is about to lay a tile drain along any public road other than a State aid road, or the State Highway Commissioner or county superintendent of highways is about to lay such tile drain along a State aid road, the said highway commissioner, State Highway Commissioner, or county superintendent of highways, as the case may be, shall have power to contract with the owners or occupants of adjoining lands to lay larger tile than would be necessary to drain the road, and to permit connection therewith by such contracting parties to drain their lands: Provided, that all such contracts on roads other than State aid roads for a sum in excess of $200.00 shall be made on behalf of any town or road district by the highway commissioner thereof, with the consent of the county superintendent of highways.

Sec. 132. WILLOW HEDGES—PUBLIC NUISANCE.] Where willow hedges, or a line of willow trees have been planted along the margin of a road, so as to render tiling impracticable, the commissioner of highways if the road be other than a State aid road, and the State Highway Commissioner or the county superintendent of highways, if the road be a State aid road, may contract with the owner for their destruction; and they shall be destroyed before tiling. The planting of these trees hereafter on the margin of roads is hereby declared to be a public nuisance.

Sec. 133. CARRIAGES MAY BE KEPT OFF HIGHWAYS—WHEN.] The proper highway officials are hereby authorized to keep carriages and vehicles of every kind off the public highways whenever necessary to properly repair the same.

Sec. 134. OVERSEER MAY ENTER LANDS TO OPEN DITCHES, ETC.—WHEN OWNER WILL NOT CONSENT—PROCEEDINGS.] The highway commissioner of the towns and roads districts are hereby authorized to enter upon any land adjacent to any highway in their respective towns or districts for the purpose of opening any ditch, whenever it shall be necessary to open a water course from any highway to the natural water course; and to dig, open and clean ditches upon said land for the purpose of carrying off the water from said highways; or to drain any slough or pond on said highways: Provided, that unless the owner of such land, or his agents, shall first consent to the cutting of such ditches, the commissioner shall apply to any such justice of the peace of the county in which such road is situated for a summons, directed to any constable of said county, commanding him to summon the said owner to appear before the said justice, at a time and place specified in such summons, not less than five nor more than fifteen days from the date thereof, for the purpose of having the damages assessed which such owner may sustain by reason of the digging or opening of such ditches or drains. The said summons shall be under the hand of such justice and be served in the same manner as summons is now served in civil actions before justices of the peace. On the return of such summons, a venire shall be issued for a jury, as in other cases in the trial of civil actions before justices of the peace, which jury shall assess such damages and render a verdict therefor. Whereupon judgment shall be entered by the justice in accordance with the verdict. If either party shall feel aggrieved by such judgment, an appeal may be taken as in other cases; provided bond is filed within five days from the time of entering of the judgment. If no appeal is perfected within five days the amount so awarded shall be paid before the commissioner of highways shall be warranted and empowered to enter upon such lands and dig, open and clean such drains, ditches and water courses as aforesaid for the purposes contemplated in this Act. The commissioner is authorized to use the poll tax and road money of his town or district for the payment of such judgment: Provided, that not more than one-half of such jury shall be residents of the town or district which is liable to pay the damages: Provided, further, that in case the owner of said lands is a non-resident, service may be had by leaving a copy with the occupant or agent, or by notice in the same manner as prescribed in section 85 of this Act.

Sec. 135. MATERIAL FOR CONSTRUCTING ROADS—EMINENT DOMAIN.] The State Highway Commissioner, the State Highway Engineer, the county superintendent of highways and the commissioner of highways of any town or district, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining or repairing gravel, rock or other roads, and for procuring material therefor, may enter upon lands of others, doing no more damage than the necessity of the case may require, and take therefrom such material as is necessary for the construction or repair of said roads: Provided, that such State Highway Commissioner, State Highway Engineer, county superintendent or commissioner of highways, their employees or teams shall not enter upon such lands for the purpose stated in this Act without having paid or tendered the amount of damages allowed or agreed upon: And, provided, further, if such State Highway Commissioner, State Highway Engineer, county superintendent of highways or commissioner of highways and the party or parties owning or controlling the lands to be entered upon, or from which material is to be taken, cannot agree as to the amount of damage or value of such material, that the amount of damage shall be determined as provided for in the law for exercising the right of eminent domain.

Sec. 136. AUTHORITY TO STRAIGHTEN WATER COURSES.] Whenever any public road shall be petitioned for, and located, in part, in the bed of any stream, that the highway commissioners of the several towns or districts are hereby authorized to enter upon the adjacent land on which said stream is located, for the purpose of changing the current of the said stream, so that it will not flow upon or over such proposed roadway; and to dig any necessary ditches for such purpose: Provided, that in case the owner of such land or his agent shall not consent to such straightening of said stream, then the commissioner shall first proceed to have the damages assessed and paid, in the same manner as is now provided for the assessment and payment of damages in proceedings to open ditches for the drainage of public highways.

Sec. 137. RIGHT OF OWNER TO MAKE CROSSING—COSTS.] Any person owning, using or occupying lands on both sides of any public highway, shall be entitled to the privilege of making a crossing under said highway for the purpose of letting his cattle and other domestic animals cross said road: Provided, said person shall erect at his own expense, a good and substantial bridge, with good railings on each side thereof, and build an embankment, of easy grade, on either side of said bridge; said bridge to be not less than sixteen feet wide, and to be approved in the case of a State aid road by the State Highway Commissioner, State Highway Engineer, or county superintendent of highways, and in the case of any other than a State aid road, to be approved by the commissioner of highways of the town or district in which said bridge is built, and the same to be kept constantly in good repair by the owner or occupant of said land, the construction subject always to the consent and approval of the said State Highway Commissioner, State Highway Engineer, county superintendent of highways or commissioner of highways, as the case may be: And, provided, further, that in case such crossing is made on any waterway or natural channel for water and where a culvert or bridge is maintained as required for road purposes, said owners or occupants shall not be required to pay for or construct any more of said crossing than the additional cost of such crossing over and above the necessary cost of a suitable culvert or bridge for road purposes at such place.

Sec. 138. TO KEEP DOWN WEEDS.] The commissioners of highways in their respective towns or road districts, shall annually, at the proper season, to prevent the spread of the same, destroy or cause to be destroyed, all cocklebur, Canada thistles, Russian thistle and all other kinds of thistles, or other noxious weeds, growing brush or plants growing on or upon all public roads other than State aid roads within their respective towns or districts. The State Highway Engineer or the county superintendent of highways shall attend to the destruction of such weeds, thistles and plants upon all State aid roads. It is also hereby made the duty of the highway officers aforesaid to seasonably mow and keep down all weeds or other vegetation growing along the highways under their respective jurisdictions.

PENALTY.] Any highway officer failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine of not less than $10.00 or more than $25.00 for each season in which he shall neglect the requirements of this Act.

Sec. 139. CAPACITY OF BRIDGES AND CULVERTS.] It shall be unlawful hereafter to construct any bridge or culvert upon any ravine, creek or river upon a public highway or street in any town, county or city in this State unless such bridge or culvert shall have the capacity of sustaining a weight of at least one hundred pounds to the square foot.

PENALTY.] Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be fined not to exceed $200.00.

ARTICLE VIII.

LAW OF THE ROAD—OFFENSES AND PENALTIES—REPEALED.

Sec. 140. CERTAIN ROADS DECLARED PUBLIC HIGHWAYS.] All roads in this State which have been laid out in pursuance of any law of this State, or of the territory of Illinois, or which have been established by dedication or used by the public as highways for fifteen (15) years, and which have not been vacated in pursuance of law, are hereby declared to be public highways.

Sec. 141. THE TERM CARRIAGE.] The term "carriage" as used in this Act shall be construed to include stage coaches, wagons, carts, sleighs, sleds, automobiles, motorcycles, motor vehicles and every other carriage or vehicle used for the transportation of passengers and goods, or either of them.

Sec. 142. NOTICE AGAINST FAST DRIVING OVER BRIDGE.] The commissioner of highways, the State Highway Commissioner, the State Highway Engineer, or the county superintendent of highways, when they deem it advisable, may put up and maintain in conspicuous places at each end of any bridge a notice with the following words in large characters: "Five dollars fine for riding or driving on this bridge faster than a walk." If any person shall ride or drive over any bridge, upon which such notice has been placed, faster than a walk, he shall forfeit the sum of five dollars for every such offense.

Sec. 143. DESTROYING OR DEFACING GUIDE BOARDS, ETC.] For destroying or defacing any guide board, post or milestone, or any notice or direction put up on any bridge or otherwise, by or with the authority of the State Highway Commissioner, State Highway Engineer, county superintendent of highways, or any commissioner of highways of any town or district, the offender shall forfeit a sum of not less than three dollars, nor more than fifty dollars.

Sec. 144. DEPOSITING IN ROAD WEEDS, GARBAGE, ETC.] It is hereby declared unlawful for any person to deposit in a public road weeds, trash, garbage or other offensive matter or any broken bottles, glass, boards, containing projecting nails or any other thing likely to cause punctures in the tires of automobiles or motor vehicles; and any person so offending shall be liable to a penalty of not less than three dollars nor more than ten dollars: Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to proper deposits of harmless materials made in good faith and in a proper manner to repair the roads.

Sec. 145. INJURING SIDEWALK, BRIDGE, ETC.] If any person shall purposely destroy or injure any sidewalk, public bridge, culvert, or causeway, or remove any of the timber or plank thereof, or obstruct the same, he shall forfeit a sum not less than three nor more than one hundred dollars, and shall be liable for all damages occasioned thereby and all necessary costs for rebuilding or repairing the same.

Sec. 146. TURN TO THE RIGHT.] That whenever any persons, traveling with any carriages, shall meet on any turnpike, road or public highway in this State, the persons so meeting shall seasonably turn their carriages to the right of the beaten track, so as to permit each carriage to pass without interfering or interrupting, under the penalty of five dollars for every neglect or offense, to be recovered by the party aggrieved: Provided, this section shall not be construed to apply to a case where it is impracticable from the nature of the ground for the driver of the carriage or wagon to turn to the right of the beaten track.

Sec. 147. DRUNKEN DRIVER—PENALTY.] No person owning any carriage, running or traveling upon any road in this State for the conveyance of passengers, shall knowingly employ, or continue in employment, any person to drive such carriage who is addicted to drunkenness or the excessive use of spirituous liquors; and if any such owner shall violate the provisions of this section, he shall forfeit at the rate of $5.00 per day for all the time he shall keep such driver in his employment. Any person driving his own team, or the team of another, on the public highway, when intoxicated, shall be subject to a fine of not less than $3.00, nor more than $25.00 for each offense.

Sec. 148. DRUNKEN DRIVER, DISCHARGE OF.] If any driver, while actually employed in driving any such carriage shall be guilty of intoxication, to such a degree as to endanger the safety of the passengers in the carriage, it shall be the duty of the owner of such carriage, on receiving written notice of the fact, signed by any one of said passengers, and certified by him on oath, forthwith to discharge such driver from his employment; and every such owner who shall retain, or have in his employ, within thirty days after the receipt of such notice, any driver who shall have been so intoxicated, shall forfeit at the rate of five dollars per day for the time during which he shall keep any such driver in his employment after receiving such notice.

Sec. 149. RUNNING HORSES, ETC., ON PUBLIC ROADS.] No person driving any carriage upon any turnpike, road or public highway within the State, with or without passengers therein, shall run his horses or carriage or permit the same to run, upon any occasion, or for any purpose whatever, except in case of necessity; and every person who shall offend against the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be fined not exceeding $100.00 or imprisoned not exceeding sixty days, at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 150. TEAM TO BE HITCHED.] It shall not be lawful for the driver of any carriage, used for the purpose of conveying passengers for hire, to leave the horses attached thereto while passengers remain therein, without making such horses fast with a sufficient halter, rope or chain, or by placing the lines in the hands of some other person, so as to prevent their running; and if any such driver shall offend against the provisions of this section, he shall forfeit the sum of $20.00, to be recovered by action, to be commenced within six months; and unless the amount of such recovery be paid forthwith, execution shall be immediately issued therefor.

Sec. 151. OWNER LIABLE FOR DAMAGES—DRIVER OF STAGE, ETC., GUILTY OF MISDEMEANOR.] The owner of every carriage running upon any turnpike, road or public highway, for the conveyance of passengers, shall be liable, jointly or severally, to the party injured, in all cases, for all injuries or damages done by any person in the employment of such owners as a driver while driving such carriage, to any person, or to the property of any person, and that whenever the act occasioning such injury or damage be willful, negligent or otherwise, in the same manner as such driver would be liable. Any driver of any mail stage coach, or any other vehicle for the conveyance of passengers, willfully offending against the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $300.00, or imprisoned not exceeding four months.

Sec. 152. INJURING OR OBSTRUCTING ROADS, ETC.] If any person shall injure or obstruct a public road by felling a tree or trees in, upon or across the same, or by placing or leaving any other obstruction thereon, or encroaching upon the same with any fence, or by plowing or digging any ditch or other opening thereon, or by turning a current of water so as to saturate or wash the same, or shall leave the cuttings of any hedge thereon, for more than ten days, he shall forfeit for every such offense a sum not less than three dollars, nor more than ten dollars; and in case of placing any obstruction on the highway, an additional sum of not exceeding three dollars per day for every day he shall suffer such obstruction to remain after he has been ordered to remove the same by the commissioner of highways or in case the road is a State aid road, after he has been ordered to remove the same by the State Highway Commissioner, State Highway Engineer or county superintendent of highways. Any person feeling himself aggrieved may make complaint under this section: Provided, however, this section shall not apply to any person who shall lawfully fell any tree for use and shall immediately remove the same out of the road, nor to any person through whose land a public road may pass, who shall desire to drain his land, and who shall give due notice to the proper highway officials of such intention: And, provided, further, that the commissioner of highways, State Highway Commissioner, State Highway Engineer, or county superintendent of highways, as the case may be, after having given reasonable notice (to the owners) of the obstruction, or persons so obstructing, or plowing, or digging ditches upon such road, of the obstruction, may remove any such fence or other obstruction, fill up any such ditch or excavation, except ditches necessary to the drainage of an adjoining farm emptying into a ditch upon the highway, and recover the necessary cost of such removal from such owner or other person obstructing such road aforesaid, to be collected by the highway officials having jurisdiction of the road whereon such offense was committed.

Sec. 153. OBSTRUCTING PERSON IN HIGHWAY.] If any person shall willfully and unnecessarily hinder, obstruct or delay, or shall willfully and unnecessarily attempt to delay, hinder or obstruct any other person in lawfully driving or traveling along or upon any public highway in this State, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than ten (10) nor more than twenty-five (25) dollars; and shall also be liable for all damages occasioned to any person by reason of a violation of this section.

Sec. 154. ITINERANT CAMPING ON PUBLIC HIGHWAYS UNLAWFUL.] It shall be unlawful for any itinerant person or persons on any public highway in this State to either hitch or turn loose any stock, cows, horses or other animals for the purpose of feeding same or for purpose of temporary camping on such public highways of this State for a period to exceed twelve hours in any one township or district.

PENALTY FOR VIOLATING SECTION 154.] Any legal voter or resident in this State may enter complaint before any court having jurisdiction against any person or persons found violating this section and it shall be the duty of such court to issue a warrant for the arrest of such violators and have them brought forthwith before said court for examination, and if found guilty of such violation as charged, shall be fined in a sum not less than ten dollars ($10.00) or exceeding fifty dollars ($50.00) for each such offense, or committed to the county jail not exceeding thirty days, at the discretion of such court.

Sec. 155. LAMPS.] Every carriage driven upon any public highway of this State during the period from sunset to one hour before sunrise shall carry at least one lighted lamp, showing a light visible at least two hundred feet in the direction toward which such carriage is proceeding, and shall also by the same or another lighted lamp, display a light, visible for an equal distance in the reverse direction. Every person driving a carriage upon a public highway in violation of this section shall be liable to a fine of not less than five ($5.00) dollars and not more than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars for each offense.

Sec. 156. ENGINES ON PUBLIC HIGHWAYS.] It shall be the duty of persons in charge of any steam, gasoline or oil traction engine, being propelled over the highways of this State, to stop said engine whenever they meet any person or persons going in the opposite direction on said highway with horses or other animals, until said horses or other animals shall have passed by; and said engine shall be stopped when it is one hundred (100) yards distant from said horses or other animals, and sooner in case said horses or other animals become frightened at said engine before arriving at said distance. The owner or driver of said engine shall also keep a good, trusty man not less than fifty (50) nor more than two hundred (200) yards in advance of said engine, to assist in controlling any horses or other animals being driven or used on said highway; until said horses or other animals shall have passed by said engine; and it shall be the duty of the man thus sent in advance to use all reasonable care and diligence to prevent the occurrence of any accidents which might result in case said horses or other animals become frightened at said steam engine.

WHEN UNLAWFUL TO BLOW WHISTLE.] It shall be unlawful for any person to blow the whistle of said engine while on the public highway.

PENALTY.] Any owner of a steam, gasoline or oil traction engine, who, by himself, agent or employee, violates the provisions of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall, for each offence be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, to be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall also be liable for all damages that may be sustained by persons or property by reason of his failing to comply with the provisions of this section.

Sec. 157. WIDTH OF TIRES REGULATED.] From and after the first day of January, A. D. 1917, all wagons or vehicles for the hauling or carriage of freight used upon any of the public roads of this State shall be provided with tires not less than three inches in width, and from and after said date all carriages, wagons and vehicles used upon any of the public roads of this State shall be of the standard tread or width of sixty-two (62) inches, measured from the center line of the tires upon the wheels thereof. From and after the date aforesaid it shall be unlawful for any person to use or drive any wagon or carriage upon any public road in this State in violation of the provisions of this section under penalty of not to exceed two hundred ($200) dollars.

Sec. 158. SUITS FOR RECOVERY OF FINES OR PENALTIES UNDER ACT, HOW BROUGHT—APPLICATION OF FINES.] All suits for the recovery of any fine or penalty under this Act, including as well such offenses as may be committed upon or in relation to State aid roads as upon other roads, shall be brought in the name of the town or district in which the offense is committed, before any justice of the peace within the county, who shall have jurisdiction in such cases, to the extent of their jurisdiction in other cases, or before any other court of competent jurisdiction: Provided, that all suits for fines and penalties, incurred under this Act, on town or district and county line roads, shall be brought in the name of the town or district to which that part of the road shall have been allotted, before any justice of the peace who shall have jurisdiction in such cases to the extent of their jurisdiction in other cases or before any other court of competent jurisdiction; and it shall be the duty of the State Highway Commissioner, State Highway Engineer, county superintendent of highways and commissioner of highways to seasonably prosecute for all fines and penalties under this Act; but in case of failure of said officers to so prosecute, complaint may be made by any person: Provided, said person shall, before bringing suit in the name of the town or district, give bond for costs, as is provided for in case of a non-resident. But whenever any person shall enter complaint to any of said highway officials, it shall be the duty of such highway official to at once proceed to investigate as to the reasons of such complaint, and if such complaint is found to be just, he shall at once proceed to prosecution.

Sec. 159. FINES—HOW DISPOSED OF.] All fines and penalties recovered under the provisions of this Act for offenses committed upon or in relation to State aid roads, shall, unless otherwise provided, be paid over to the county treasurer, and by him transmitted to the State Treasurer to become a part of the State Road and Bridge Fund. All fines and penalties recovered under provisions of this Act for offenses committed upon or in relation to all other roads shall, unless otherwise provided, be paid over to the treasurer of the road and bridge fund of the town or district where the offense is committed to be expended upon the roads and bridges in said district or town. The judgment or docket entry of the court or justice imposing a fine or penalty for violation of this Act as aforesaid, shall in each instance specify whether such offense was committed upon or in relation to a State aid road or a road other than a State aid road.

Sec. 160. RESTRICTION—JURISDICTION.] Nothing contained in this Act shall interfere with or affect any law concerning hackney coaches or carriages in any of the cities of this State, nor interfere with nor affect the law or ordinances of any such city for the licensing or regulating such coaches or carriages. Justices of the peace shall have jurisdiction in all cases arising under this Act, where the penalty does not exceed their jurisdiction.

Sec. 161. PART INVALID.] The invalidity of any portion of this Act shall not affect the validity of any portion thereof which can be given effect without such invalid part.

Sec. 162. CERTAIN ACTS REPEALED.] The following Acts and parts of Acts are hereby repealed:

"An Act in regard to roads and bridges in counties under township organization, and to repeal an Act and parts of Acts therein named," approved June 23, 1883: Provided, however, that all officials now holding office under said Act shall continue to exercise and enjoy their respective rights, powers, duties and emoluments as therein provided until the first election of highway officials held under and pursuant to the provisions of this Act.

"An Act to provide for the organization of road districts, the election and duties of the officials therein, and in regard to roads and bridges, in counties not under township organization, and to repeal an Act and parts of Acts therein named," approved May 4, 1887: Provided, however, that all officials now holding office under said Act shall continue to exercise and enjoy their respective rights, powers, duties and emoluments as therein provided until the first election of highway officials held under and pursuant to the provisions of this Act.

"An Act to provide for the election of the commissioners of highways in counties under township organization, and to legalize the election and official acts of such as were elected in the years 1874 and 1875, and to fix the compensation of the treasurers of such commissioners," approved April 15, 1875.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY.

Local government in Illinois has received considerable attention from others than those directly engaged in its operation, as illustrating important phases in the development of local institutions throughout the United States. In 1876, Elijah M. Haines, editor of the standard treatise on the Law of Township Organization and County Affairs in Illinois, read before the American Social Science Association at Saratoga, N. Y., a paper on Township Organization—its origin and progress in the Western States. Some years later, (in 1883) Albert Shaw published a brilliant sketch of Local Government in Illinois, in the Johns Hopkins' University Studies in Historical and Political Science, which has come to be accepted and used by later writers, as a standard authority.

These articles, however, are based mainly on the statutory provisions; and neither presents a comprehensive account of the historical development and actual operation of local government in this State. As a result, the prevailing ideas and the instruction on this subject to the younger generation in our schools and colleges over-emphasize a traditional view, and are inadequate and at times misleading, both with regard to the history of institutions and the importance of the different factors in the working of local government at the present time.

Since 1900, more thorough studies have been made of some of the historical phases of the subject, through the efforts of the Illinois State Historical Library, the Illinois State Historical Society and the University of Illinois. C. W. Alvord: The County of Illinois, reprinted from the Illinois Historical Collections, Vol. II.

Data relating to the history of Illinois counties has also been published (in 1906) in a pamphlet on Counties of Illinois, their origin and evolution, compiled by James A. Rose, Secretary of State.

In view of these circumstances and as a basis for a revision of the laws on county and township government, it has seemed desirable to place on record a more extended account of local government in Illinois. This will be by no means exhaustive; and no attempt will be made to duplicate the detailed history of the earlier period. But there will be presented, first, a historical survey of the development of local institutions in Illinois, and secondly, a descriptive and critical discussion of the existing system and its operation. This account is prepared largely from official records, supplemented by data from local histories, and by other data and opinions, more especially with reference to conditions at the present time, secured in answer to inquiries and by correspondence with local officials and others.

INQUIRIES TO COUNTY OFFICIALS.

To secure information for this report, the following inquiries were sent to county officials throughout the State:

INQUIRIES TO COUNTIES NOT UNDER TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

1. Has any effort been made to have the township system adopted in your county?
2. Has any proposal been made to unite your county with any adjoining county, under sections 64-84 of the Revised Statutes, chapter 34?
3. Number of meetings of county commissioners during the past year.
4. Do you consider the county assessment of property more, or less, satisfactory than assessment by town assessors?
5. Is the county collection of taxes more, or less, satisfactory than collection by town collectors?
6. What is your opinion of the present system of road district highway commissioners?
7. Do you favor a county road engineer to supervise road and bridge work?
8. Do you favor the appointment of medical examiners to conduct coroners' inquests, the state's attorney to investigate cases where there is apparent need for criminal proceedings?

INQUIRIES TO COUNTIES UNDER TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

1. When was the township system established in your county?
2. Has any proposal been made to return to the county system?
3. Has any proposal been made to unite your county with any adjoining counties, under sections 64-84 of the Revised Statutes, chapter 34?
4. Number of supervisors in your county.
5. Number of meetings of board of supervisors during the past year.
6. Would a board of (3) county commissioners be more, or less, satisfactory than the board of supervisors?
7. What is your opinion of the town assessor, and do you favor a county assessor, as recommended by the special tax commission?
8. What is your opinion of town collectors, and do you favor a county collector?
9. What is your opinion of town highway commissioners?
10. Do you favor a county road engineer to supervise road and bridge work?
11. Do you favor a county board of education appointed by county judge, board of supervisors, or governor, to supervise local schools and to appoint county superintendent of schools?
12. Do you favor a law authorizing the creation of county auditors in counties containing more than 25,000 population?
13. Do you favor the appointment of medical examiners to conduct coroners' inquests, the state's attorney to investigate cases where there is apparent need for criminal proceedings?
14. What is your opinion of the effectiveness and value of the town meeting?

It will be noted that most of the inquiries have reference to the advisability of a greater concentration of local administration, many relating to the possible transfer of functions from town to county officials. If all the suggested changes were made, the result would almost eliminate town government. But the purpose of the inquiries was to ascertain local opinion in regard to each question considered by itself.

The replies to these inquiries are summarized in the statement below, and shown in more detail by counties in table XVII. In the aggregate more than two-thirds of the replies were in favor of greater concentration of local administration in the hands of county officials; and on several questions the replies in favor of what may be called county concentration were from three to nearly six times as many as those opposed. Summarizing the replies by counties, those from eighty-one counties were in favor of county concentration by more than two to one, those from fourteen counties showed a majority opposed to county concentration, while from seven counties the opposition was more than a third but no more than one-half of the replies.

An examination of the replies classified according to the population of counties shows that the strongest expression in favor of county administration came from the small counties now under the county system, and next from the counties under township organization with from 25,000 to 40,000 population. But the prevailing tendency of the replies from all classes of counties was in the same direction.

This general result however does not mean that there was any such decided opinion in favor of the complete abolition of township organization and adoption of the present alternative system of county government. The replies to the different questions showed a considerable variation; and these will be noted in the discussion of the several topics. But the general result clearly indicates that some features of the present system of county and township government are not satisfactory.

HISTORICAL SUMMARY.

To summarize briefly the main tendencies in the development of local institutions in Illinois is more difficult than is indicated by the sweeping generalizations of previous writers now commonly accepted. A careful analysis of the complicated mass of detailed legislation shows many conflicting provisions; and the broader lines of movement have at times been seriously interrupted by counteracting and cross currents, which tend to confuse the situation. The most salient characteristics may however be noted along two main lines: the movement from a simple and concentrated organization to a highly differentiated list of local officials, as yet lacking efficient organization and correlation; and the movement from a centralized system, proceeding for many years in the direction of decentralization, but more recently showing some more centralizing tendencies.

During the various stages of territorial government in Illinois, local officials were appointed by the territorial authorities, and judicial and administrative functions were concentrated in the same hands. In these respects the local institutions followed the systems of Virginia and Kentucky. Provision was, however, made from the organization of the Northwest Territory for both county and township officials; the latter showing the influence of the Middle Atlantic states.

Under the first State Constitution of Illinois, 1818, the establishment of elective county commisisoners formed a distinct step towards decentralization and the separation of judicial and administrative functions. These changes showed a tendency toward further development in the direction of the Pennsylvania system of local government. But during the first decade of the State, the disintegration of the early civil township and the formation of distinct sub-districts of the counties for elections, roads and other local purposes showed the influence of the increasing migration from the southern states.

Further changes during the period of the first State Constitution were clearly in the direction of further decentralization of local administration. Justices of the peace were made elective in sub-districts of the counties in 1827; a considerable number of towns and a few cities were incorporated; in the last decade of this period a system of local school administration was organized, based on the congressional townships and petty school districts; while the rapid multiplication of new counties, many of small area, showed the influence of the same tendency.

The second State Constitution (1848) shows clearly the presence of conflicting forces. A series of restrictions on the formation of new counties put an end to further decentralization by this means; while the revival of county courts with both judicial and administrative powers, marked a return to the earlier and more concentrated machinery of county government. At the same time however, the provisions for an optional system of township organization opened another way to further decentralization. But the town governments as established fell far short of the powers of the New England towns. The township law followed closely that of New York; and its main features were decentralization of road administration and State functions such as the assessment and collection of taxes, rather than the grant of important powers of local home rule. Nevertheless, the township system was rapidly adopted in many counties; while the incorporation of cities and small villages continued the process of administrative decentralization. The continued centralization of legislative power was clearly shown in the enormous and increasing mass of special legislation for counties, cities and other local districts, which forms one of the most notable characteristics of this period.

In the third State Constitution (1870) special legislation was prohibited on a long list of subjects; and this restriction has been more effective than in other states in reducing the volume of special local acts. But this has not brought about any important general grants of legislative power to local authorities, and the main result has been to change the form of legislative control. Detailed general laws or laws applying to certain classes of local districts have been passed in increasing numbers, adding to the complications of local administration.

The Constitution of 1870 also returned to the separation of judicial and administrative functions in counties not under township organization, by reviving the system of county commissioners for such counties.

After 1870, the decentralizing tendencies continued for a time, in the further extension of the township system, and by the introduction (in 1887) of elective road district commissioners in counties not under township organization. The latter change removed one of the important distinctions between the two classes of counties in Illinois.

On the other hand, in the last twenty years there has been some tendency to increase the importance of the county as compared to the town, in the administration of poor relief and the assessment of property for taxation.

More notable has been the decline in the relative importance of the town in comparison with the enormous development of municipal powers and functions in the incorporated cities. This enlarged importance of urban government has been due in the main to the increase of urban population; but also in part to the fact that the municipal areas have been adjusted from time to time to correspond more closely to the convenience of administration than the fixed and artificial boundaries of the townships.

In the organization of town government, the town meeting has lost ground by close restrictions on the fundamental power of taxation, as well as by the failure to enlarge its authority; and the significant powers of town authorities are vested in administrative officials acting under the minute regulations of statute law.

Moreover there has been some development of State administrative authority by the transfer of functions to State officials such as the assessment of railroad property by the State board of equalization, the development of State charitable institutions, recently more thoroughly centralized under the control of the State Board of Administration, and other State offices and institutions. There has also been some development of State aid and supervision of local authorities, through the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the State Board of Public Charities, (recently replaced by the State Charities Commission), and the State Highway Commission. But as yet this latter tendency is less notable in Illinois than in other states, such as Massachusetts, New York and Wisconsin.

The most general local government districts in Illinois are counties, townships and school districts. In addition there are organized many cities and villages and also special drainage and park districts. These municipal areas overlap each other; and the system as a whole is more complicated and confusing than in any other state.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT.

There are 102 counties in the State of Illinois, ranging from counties of less than 200 square miles and 7,000 population to counties of over 1,000 square miles and more than 100,000 population. There are 29 counties with an area of less than 400 square miles, the constitutional limit for new counties; and there are half a dozen counties with an area of more than 1,000 square miles. There are 50 counties with less than 25,000 population, and 17 counties with more than 50,000 population.

A good many difficulties in the operation of county government are due to these wide variations in the area and population of counties. It is safe to say that the county officers required by the Constitution are more than are needed in many of the small counties; and that more efficient and more economical administration could be secured by combining two or more officials into one, or by giving some of the officials jurisdiction over several of the small counties, or by uniting several small counties into one.

County boards in Illinois are organized in three distinct types: A board of three commissioners elected at large, in counties not under township organization; a board of fifteen commissioners for Cook County, ten elected from the city of Chicago and five from the rest of the county; and boards of supervisors, elected by towns in other counties under township organization. The latter range in size from five members in Putnam County to fifty-three in LaSalle County. In eighteen counties there are thirty or more members in the board of supervisors.

The large board of supervisors has often been supported on the theory that the county board is the legislative branch of county government. But an examination of the powers and functions of county boards shows that, apart from making appropriations and levying taxes, for the most part they act as administrative bodies. For this purpose the large board is unwieldy and ineffective. Only five or six other states have county boards as large as the boards of supervisors in Illinois, and most, even of the states with town governments, have county boards of from three to seven members.

A small majority of the replies to the inquiries sent to county officials in Illinois in counties under township organization were in favor of a small board of county commissioners in preference to the present boards of supervisors. From thirty-nine counties under township organization there was a decided preponderance in favor of county commissioners; but a majority of the replies from thirty-four counties were opposed to small boards of commissioners. This situation seems to show the need for some other alternative, occupying perhaps a middle ground between the two main forms of organization now permitted in this State. At the same time much of the detailed administrative work now performed by the county boards should be done by county officers; and one of the county officers might well be recognized as the chief executive officer.

In each county there are elected from nine to thirteen officers. From four to seven county officers are elected at one time, at the general election in November of even numbered years, along with State officials and members of the general assembly. It is coming to be recognized that the long ballot necessary for so many elective officers prevents anything like true popular selection in the choice of these officers; and the demand for a short ballot calls for decided changes in the method of selecting county officers. Some improvement could be secured by eliminating statutory officers from the elective list; but as most of the county officers are provided for by the State Constitution, a satisfactory solution can only be secured by the amendment or revision of the Constitution.

The county clerk has the most varied duties, and from his official contact with all branches of county administration is tending to become the de facto chief executive officer of the county. He is custodian of the county records, clerk and accountant of the county board and clerk of the county court; he has important duties under the primary and election laws, and in the assessment of property and the extension and collection of taxes; he issues hunters' and marriage licenses, and performs numerous other duties. If the county clerk were given some of the legal powers of a chief executive, the responsibility and efficiency of county administration could be improved.

The county judge, in most counties, deals mainly with probate administration; but in counties of over 50,000 population this business is vested in a separate probate judge. The county judge also has a limited jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases, and has some administrative functions mainly in connection with elections and taxation.¹

The county treasurer is not only custodian of county funds, but is also county collector of taxes (collecting State, county and local taxes), and supervisor of assessments in counties under township organization, and is assessor in counties not under township organization.

The clerk of the circuit court acts also as recorder, except in counties of more than 60,000 population, in which a recorder of deeds is elected. In counties with a distinct probate judge there is also a probate clerk.¹

The state's attorney is primarily a public prosecutor in criminal cases, acting as agent of the State; but he also acts as legal advisor and attorney for the county and county officers. This officer might well be appointed by the Governor or Attorney General, as a direct representative of the central State government; and one official might act for two or more of the smaller counties.

The sheriff may be called the constituent officer of the county. His principal duties are now as chief conservator of the peace and executive agent of the judicial courts. In counties not under township organization, he is collector of taxes.

The coroner holds inquests on the bodies of persons whose deaths are supposed to be due to violence or other undue cause. The procedure is antiquated; and this work could be better done by appointing competent medical examiners, and authorizing the state attorneys to investigate cases where need for criminal proceedings is shown.

The county superintendent of schools acts as agent of the State in distributing the State school fund, and also inspects and supervises the local school officials, under the supervision of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He forms a more effective intermediary between the State and the local officials in the smaller local districts than is provided in any other branch of public administration.

The county surveyor (a statutory official) makes surveys in special cases, for private parties or on the order of a court.

COUNTY FINANCES.

The development of county administration is limited by constitutional limitations on the tax rate and amount of debt; while the tax rate is further restricted by the Juul law. In fact the total amount of county taxes remained almost stationary from 1870 to 1900. Since the latter date there has been a considerable increase, from $6,179,195 to $11,546,266; but most of this has been in Cook County. The highest rates are in the small counties.

County expenditures are supposed to be under the control of the county boards. But numerous fees and some salaries and other expenses are regulated by statute; and about forty per cent of the county expenditures are paid without the action or control of the county board.

An attempt to compile statistics of county finances for analysis and comparison had to be abandoned for lack of data from most of the counties. But the information received from fifteen counties, supplemented by a more detailed examination of the records of Sangamon and Piatt counties, serve to show clearly the inadequacy of existing accounting methods. Except in Cook County, no officer keeps a complete record of all the financial transactions of the county; and no statements are prepared consolidating and summarizing the records of the various officials. In fact, the different reports do not even cover the same fiscal year. The several officers receiving fees and commissions pay from these the expenses of their offices; and only the surplus is paid into the county treasury. At the same time, a large part of the fees and commissions are paid by the county, and to add together the total amounts in the several reports would involve duplication to a considerable extent. Expenditures are reported on a basis of warrants cancelled, instead of on warrants issued, and thus do not show the expenses properly chargeable to a given year. Nor do the present accounts and reports classify the expenditures for the main purposes of county administration, nor do they separate ordinary expenses from payments for permanent improvements, or compare expenditures with appropriations. No balance sheets of assets and liabilities are prepared.

To secure a satisfactory system of county accounts and financial reports there is need for the service of trained accountants. A number of other states have provided for county auditors; and by recent legislation auditors have been provided for the Illinois counties with over 75,000 population. But there is clear need for establishing a uniform system of accounting in all the counties, with a regular inspection and audit of accounts by a State official, as is now established in Ohio and other states. Such arrangements would permit of the release of county officials and their bondsmen from further liabilities after their term of office.

POOR RELIEF.

Local poor relief in Illinois is furnished partly in county poor farms and partly by outdoor relief. Nearly every county maintains a poor farm and almshouse. Conditions in these institutions show some improvement in recent years, owing to a closer inspection and the removal of the insane and other classes to State institutions. But the situation in most counties is far from satisfactory. The inmates of the county farms include the aged, blind, demented, feeble minded, deaf and dumb and children; and as the average number in each county outside of Cook County is less than thirty, proper segregation of the different classes is impossible. Petty politics often plays a prominent part in the management of these institutions. The average expenditure per inmate reported shows wide variations between different counties; while there are no satisfactory accounts of receipts and expenditures. In most counties hospital facilities and medical aid are inadequate.

In two-thirds of the counties the expenditure for outdoor relief is larger than that for the county farm. This aid is administered by the county commissioners and township supervisors, with appointed overseers in some places. In nine counties under township organization, the payments for outdoor relief are made by the town; in the other counties the expenses are paid by the county. The administration of outdoor relief lacks organization and system; reports, records and documents are defective and in many places lacking; while the range of expenditures in different counties shows the absence of any definite policy.

About thirty counties pay money pensions to blind persons, under a law of 1903; and in fifteen other counties allowances are made to some of the blind.

COUNTY JAILS.

The condition of the county jails in Illinois, as shown by the inspections of the State Charities Commission, show but little improvement over conditions shown by the first examination of the former State Board of Charities in 1870. A large majority of the jails are old and unsanitary. Only ten counties had jails in first class condition; and in 37 counties the jails should be condemned as unsanitary. In 72 of 100 counties the law regarding the segregation of minors and adults was violated; in 11 counties there were no provisions for women, and in many other counties the women's cells were not segregated from those of the men. Only 17 counties did not have insane persons in the jail. In 29 counties so-called "Kangaroo courts" were permitted.

TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

Any county may adopt or discontinue the system of township organization, on petition and a popular vote; a smaller petition being required for adoption than for discontinuance. There are now 85 of the 102 counties in Illinois which have adopted the township system. Since 1890 only two counties have adopted township organization; and under existing conditions the counties with and without township organization seem likely to remain as they are. Most of the counties not under township organization are small in area and population.

In the 85 counties there are 1,430 civil townships, with an average area slightly less than 36 square miles. Most of the townships are distinctly rural, with a population of from 1,000 to 2,000. But except in Chicago, where the townships have been practically abolished, the townships include cities and villages within their geographical limits; so there are a number of townships of from 10,000 to 60,000 population. The township of Joliet contains 16,000 inhabitants outside of the city.

Towns in Illinois have very limited powers. They are vested with corporate capacity, and may levy local taxes and make by-laws for a few enumerated purposes, and may vote to prohibit the grant of liquor licenses. They also elect a considerable number of officials, for road and judicial administration, and for the assessment and collection of taxes. But the matters which form the important business of New England towns are in Illinois looked after by the cities, villages and school districts.

Provision is made for an annual town meeting of the electors, on the first Tuesday in April, for the election of officers and the transaction of business, and also for special meetings. But in practice the town meeting is of slight importance. Its powers are closely limited—the principal local tax (for roads) is levied by the highway commissioners—and in most towns it is attended by very few persons. Inquiries as to the attendance at the annual meetings in April, 1912, brought replies from less than a third of the towns in the State. Less than a third of these reported an attendance of more than fifty at the business meeting; and only thirty-nine towns reported an attendance of more than 100. In towns including cities of some size the town meeting is of even less importance than in rural towns; and is seldom attended by more than a handful of voters.

Nearly three-fourths of the county officers who replied to inquiries as to the value of town meetings reported that they were no longer of any substantial service. Moreover, the strongest opinions in favor of the town meeting came, not from the northern counties where New England influences are most prevalent, but from a few counties in the central part of the State. Many urged the abolition of the town meeting.

A town clerk, in a town of 2,500 population within fifty miles of Chicago, reported an attendance of thirteen persons, which included "six judges and clerks of election, two town officers, one professional candidate for moderator, and one innocent bystander in the booth marking his ballot, leaving three plain citizens, who were evidently interested in the meeting." In a period of twenty-five years, he states that on three occasions the road and bridge tax was levied at town meeting, and two resolutions had been adopted. Ordinarily the only business is to read the reports of town officers and levy the trifling town tax for miscellaneous expenses.

In a few towns the town meeting seems to be fairly well attended; but in some of these at least this appears to be due to local social customs rather than to interest in public affairs.

If the town meeting is to be continued, steps should be taken to enlarge its powers and to secure a larger attendance and interest. But for most towns in Illinois, the situation seems to call for a re-organization of town government, imposing more definite powers on officials who can be held responsible, instead of trusting to the few who accidentally attend a town meeting.

In each town there is elected a supervisor, town clerk, assessor, collector, three commissioners of highways, and two to five justices of the peace and constables. Assistant supervisors are also elected in the more populous towns. Most of the officers are now chosen for a two-year term; but some officers are elected each year. Township elections are not subject to the primary law, presumably because this seems unnecessary in rural districts. But this results in the selection of important officials in towns which include cities by the unregulated caucus or "soap box" primary.

The supervisor and assistant supervisors are members of the county board. The supervisor also acts as town treasurer and in most towns as overseer of the poor. The duties of other officials are indicated by their titles. The supervisor, town clerk, and justices of the peace of each town constitute a board of town auditors.

A considerable reduction could well be made in the number of town officers. The assessment of property and collection of taxes could be more efficiently done by county officers; and a single highway commissioner would be better than three. The supervisor should also be made more definitely the chief executive officer of the town.

Town finances are of very slight importance. The road and bridge tax is separately administered; and the general town levy is usually not more than 2 or 3 per cent of the total taxes, and averages less than 6 cents on the $100.00 of taxable value. The principal expenditures are for the assessment of property for taxation and the compensation of town officers.

An examination of the financial records of town officers in Sangamon County disclosed not only an absence of any system of accounts, but also the lack of the most essential data even as to cash transactions, and frequent errors in the extension of figures. The collectors' commissions, which form one of the principal items, do not appear in the town records. There is no attempt at a classification of expenditures.

TAX ADMINISTRATION.

The assessment of property for State and local taxation in Illinois is made by county officers in the seventeen counties not under township organization, and in Cook County; and by town assessors, aided by county officers, in other counties under township organization. There have been prolonged and emphatic complaints of the results of the present system; and it seems clear that even real estate is far from uniformly or equitably valued, while the gross under-valuation of personal property is notorious. Assessments in counties under township organization appear to be more unsatisfactory than in counties where this work is in the hands of county officers. The Revenue Commission of 1886 and the Special Tax Commission of 1910 recommended that town assessors be abolished and county assessors provided in all counties. County boards of review should also be reorganized, and a State tax commission established.

Taxes are levied for the State and various local authorities under a complicated series of statutes; while the aggregate amount of taxes which may be levied is limited by the intricate provisions of the Juul law. The present arrangements often lead to invalid levies and confusion; and there is need for more coördination and concentration of responsibility in making tax levies, as well as a less mechanical method of limiting the total.

In counties under township organization, taxes are collected by town collectors, and delinquent taxes by the county treasurer. In counties not under township organization, the sheriff is the collector. The tax collectors are allowed commissions on the taxes collected; both town and county collectors receiving commissions on the taxes collected by town collectors. There has been criticism of the town collectors as an unnecessary duplication of collection machinery; and some re-adjustment of the present system seems advisable.

ROAD ADMINISTRATION.

The construction and maintenance of public roads in Illinois is regulated by two distinct general laws, one for counties under township organization and the other for counties not under township organization, with a number of optional provisions for each class of counties. The main features of the two general laws are similar, each providing for the election of three highway commissioners in each town and road district, who levy taxes and look after the roads. Under the optional provisions, one county has a county system of road administration; and while some towns do all road work on a money system, many still use the primitive system of labor taxes. County aid is given in small amount, mainly for the building of bridges.

Expenditures on the public highways have increased rapidly. The road and bridge tax has risen from $1,259,851 in 1879 to $5,673,235 in 1911. But there are wide variations in the rates levied in different sections of the State; and the present methods of administration clearly fails to secure anything like a satisfactory system of roads.

Complaints of the existing system of road management are even more numerous and general than with respect to other branches of local government. There is a strong demand for the abolition of town and road district commissioners, and the complete concentration of local road administration in county officials. There should at least be a thorough re-organization, with a single highway commissioner for each town and road district, road engineers for counties or larger districts, and a large measure of State aid and supervision in the development of a system of main highways.

JUSTICES AND CONSTABLES.

Justices of the peace and constables are elected by towns and election precincts throughout the State, except in the city of Chicago. In Chicago there is a municipal court, and in nineteen other cities there are city courts, with elected judges; but in most cities the only local police courts are those of the justices of the peace. Under the fee system, which prevails in most places, there is room for abuse; and better results would be secured if municipal courts were established in cities in place of the justices. In the rural districts, there appears to be no serious complaint; but in the absence of any supervision over the justices there is no data on which to base an opinion.

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION.

The management of public schools in Illinois is organized in a complex system, with State, county, township and school district officials. Local administration is primarily based on the petty school district, but includes a combination of township and district officers with county and state supervision. School townships are often not co-terminous with civil townships, and in such cases school elections are held at different times from both town and city elections.

While the school district is the smallest unit of local government in the State, the system of supervision by officials of larger districts is more thoroughly organized than in any other branch of public administration. To this systematic supervision of the district officials may be ascribed, in no small part, the greater efficiency of school administration. Certainly information as to schools and school finances are more readily available, through the system of reports, than for other local officials.

At the same time, there is criticism of local school administration; and the Education Commission in its report to the Forty-sixth General Assembly urged that the adoption of the township in place of the small school district as the primary unit would open the way to increased economy and efficiency in the educational work of the State. An examination of the reports of school finances indicates that under the present township management of school funds a large proportion of the funds handled are used for purely administrative expenses, which could be reduced if larger areas of administration were employed for this purpose.

ELECTIONS.

The large number of separate elections in Illinois, especially for various groups of local officials, is the subject of much complaint; and the burden of voting at from six to eight elections in a year easily accounts for the lack of interest in many elections. The local elections should be consolidated so far as practicable; and the primary law should be extended to townships including cities.

CONCLUSIONS.

This general survey of town and county government in Illinois confirms the results of other investigations in particular fields that the present decentralized and unorganized administrative machinery produces inefficiency and waste in the transaction of public business. Originating in a vague theory of local self-government at a time when, under frontier conditions, public business amounted to little, it has proved entirely inadequate to the complex social and industrial problems of today. The existing arrangements do not secure home rule for local communities in local affairs; but form a heterogeneous congeries of officials, lacking anything like systematic correlation to each other, and without effective responsibility either to the local communities or to the State, which vainly attempts to regulate their activities by an excessive degree of legislative centralization. To meet the conditions of today, there is need for more systematic organization, and for a larger use of experts trained in special fields than can be secured by the smaller units of local government.

Where improvements have come in recent years, it has been by such means—as in the organization and supervision of local school administration, and in the more complete centralization of the greater part of public charity by the development of specialized State institutions. So too, the movement for municipal home rule gains headway because the cities are securing a more systematic municipal organization, and deal with public affairs on a scale large enough to utilize the services of trained experts.

References are made throughout this report to numerous proposals for changes in the organization of local administration in various areas and branches of the public service. Many of these have been previously urged by students of special phases of the subject. May not the time be at hand when more rapid progress will be gained by taking a larger outlook and planning comprehensive changes along similar lines in the whole field of local government?

For any general and thorough reorganization of local government changes will be required in several articles of the State Constitution. In the article on counties, the provisions designating and requiring the election of county officers and the annual election of county commissioners and annual township meetings should be eliminated. In the article on the judiciary, detailed provisions in regard to courts and the election of justices of the peace should be eliminated or made more flexible. The article on revenue should be amended to permit of changes in the present methods of taxation, and the limitations on tax rates and debt should be revised.

Such changes cannot be hoped for by the process of proposing separate Constitutional Amendments, which is more difficult in Illinois than in any other state; and to carry out a thorough reorganization of local government will require a constitutional convention to undertake a general revision of the State Constitution.

Meanwhile, however, there are many changes and improvements which can be made by statute under the present Constitution. These may be summarized as follows:

1. Provide for a uniform system of county and other local accounts, and for the annual audit of such accounts by State officers—so as to secure reliable data as to the finances of local authorities.

2. Provide a more efficient system of regulating the total amount of local taxes than the present law. This will require a local body with discretionary power in place of the intricate and mechanical provisions of the present law.

3. Provide for the county assessment of property and for county collection of taxes.

4. An optional law vesting executive powers in the county clerk or some other county officer, and providing for county councils (comprising from seven to thirteen members) to be elected by districts within each county, to make appropriations, levy county taxes and exercise powers of local legislation.

5. Provide for the appointment of county or district road engineers; and authorize county boards to levy a county road and bridge tax, and with the approval of the voters to issue bonds for the construction of improved roads and bridges.

6. Authorize the State Civil Service Commission to hold local examinations for clerical and other subordinate positions in the larger counties.

7. Authorize county boards, on their own motion, to submit to the voters the question of adopting or discontinuing township organization; and prescribe a uniform number of petitioners to require the submission of either question.

8. Provide that notice of annual town meetings shall state the business to be transacted, and fix a minimum attendance (of 25) as a quorum for the transaction of business. Town meetings might well be granted additional powers to deal with the local problems of small villages.

9. Cities and villages of over 10,000 population should be separately organized as towns; and in such towns the powers of town meetings and town officers should be vested in the city or village authorities.

10. Provide for a chief executive officer in each town, and also for a town board, to consist of the supervisor, town clerk, road commissioner (to take the place of the present highway commissioners) and justices of the peace. The town board to act as an executive committee and as a town board of health.

11. In counties not under township organization, one road commissioner and district clerk to be elected in each road district for a term of two years, the district road tax to be levied by the county board or a district meeting of voters.

12. Town assessors and town collectors to be abolished.

13. Provide that town, road district, city, village and, so far as practicable, school elections shall be held on the same date, this date also to be the day for any general primary election held in the spring.

14. The township system of local school administration, recommended by the educational commission, would not only improve educational conditions, but would simplify the general system of local government in Illinois and increase the public interest in both town and school elections.

15. City courts or salaried police justices should be provided for all cities of over 10,000 population.

Your committee submits herewith, as one division of its report, a report prepared under its direction by John A. Fairlie, Ph.D., upon town and county government in Illinois and recommends that the same be printed as a separate volume.

In general, your committee is in harmony with the recommendations made in said report as to the changes desirable to be made in the laws having to do with local administration. The changes so recommended are extensive and your committee has not had sufficient time nor funds to cause drafts of bills to be made to effect such changes, and your committee further deemed it inadvisable to attempt to draft such bills until the policy of the General Assembly with reference to the proposed changes in the road laws should be made manifest.

Your committee has caused to be drafted a bill providing for the establishing of a uniform system of county accounts and providing for the audit of county accounts. This proposed law we submit herewith. The experience of your committee has demonstrated the necessity of a law providing a uniform system of county accounts and the audit by a State officer of the accounts of county officers.

PART I—HISTORY OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN ILLINOIS.

A. THE TERRITORIAL PERIOD.

THE FRENCH IN ILLINOIS.

During the first part of the eighteenth century several French settlements were made on the bottom lands between the present site of East St. Louis and the mouth of the Kaskaskia River. By 1750 it was estimated that in the five villages there might be 1000 white people, 300 blacks and 60 red slaves. These were chiefly traders and farmers; and with a few other scattered settlers on the Illinois River represented the French colonization in Illinois.

The government of these French settlements was comparatively simple. The settlers knew nothing of representative institutions, such as existed in the English colonies. At first, they were left much to themselves, though nominally subject to the authorities at Quebec. In 1717, however, the Illinois country was definitely united to Louisiana, under the authority of the Company of the West; and in the following year a commandant was appointed who established his headquarters at Fort Chartres.¹

In 1732, the Company of the West retired; and Louisiana became a royal province, distinct from New France (Canada), with a governor, intendant and council, all appointed by the King of France.

The governor of Louisiana appointed the commandant of the Illinois dependency; and this official was at the head of the military forces, and also controlled trade, granted lands, had some patronage, (in the appointment of cadets) and exercised appellate judicial functions.²

A considerable number of civil offices seem to have been provided; but several offices were frequently filled by one person. Next to the commandant, the chief official in the Illinois district was styled: Principal scrivener of the marine, sub-delegate, commissaire and judge of the civil court. Another official acted as public attorney and keeper of the royal warehouse; and there were also a treasurer, clerk of the court and deputies, bailiffs and notaries.³

Each village seems also to have had a captain of militia, in whose selection the inhabitants are said to have had a voice. This official acted also as a kind of justice of the peace, from whose decisions an appeal lay to the commandant of the district.⁴ There appears further to have been a village syndic, elected by the inhabitants, who looked after enclosed fields and other local affairs.⁵ Parish records were kept by the priests.

These officials exercised executive and judicial functions. Legislation in the modern sense was unknown. The "Customs of Paris," which had become the law of France, had been introduced into her American colonies; but according to early historians these were more or less modified by the ignorance or judgment of the local officials. Local usages also existed; and in many cases disputes would be settled informally, by the commandant or the priest or by the arbitration of friends and neighbors.¹

More recent investigations in records lately brought to light, indicate, however, that there was a well developed civil government, with officials regularly performing their duties. Up to the beginning of the Seven Years War (1756), the French government exercised a careful supervision over this region. But during the remainder of the French rule the officials became careless in the discharge of their duties; and many irregularities were practiced.²

BRITISH OCCUPATION, 1763-1778.

By the treaty of Paris, in 1763, France ceded to Great Britain, the Illinois country, along with other possessions; and in 1765 a British commandant with troops arrived at Fort Chartres. While the French were allowed liberty of religion, many of the white inhabitants moved away. By the edict of 1763 further settlements were prohibited; and in spite of the efforts of the French settlers and of American traders and land speculators, no permanent civil government was established during the British occupation.

The government of the small and diminishing white population was in the hands of military officers, who succeeded each other at brief intervals. Up to 1774, the whole Northwest was subject to the commander of the British forces in America, with headquarters at New York. In 1769 the colonial governments were empowered to appoint officers to superintend the Indian trade; and the Illinois region was assigned to Pennsylvania, with Fort Pitt as the seat of authority.

In the Illinois settlements, the military commandant acted also as judge and general agent. In each of the villages there were other officers acting as captains of militia and local judges, who put in execution the decrees of the commandant, apparently continuing the French official. In addition, there was a sergeant and a notary in each of the districts of Cahokia and Kaskaskia.

A civil court was established in 1768; but the French settlers seem to have had little use for trial by jury and the English common law, and the former methods were soon restored.

In 1774, the Quebec Act passed by the British parliament, included the Illinois country in the province of Quebec, confirmed the freedom of the Catholic religion, and revived the French civil law. This tended to conciliate the French; but interfered with the efforts of merchants and land companies from the seaboard colonies to enter and open up this region. The Quebec Act was strongly denounced on the seaboard; and was included among the grievances in the Declaration of Independence.

A draft for a civil government for the Illinois region has been found, probably dating from this period. But there is no evidence that it went into effect.

On the outbreak of the Revolution, the British troops were withdrawn from the Illinois settlements; and a Frenchman named Rocheblave was left in command, supported only by local militia. This situation made possible the capture of the posts in Illinois (in July, 1778) and other parts of the region north of the Ohio, by the energetic action of George Rogers Clark with a body of frontiersmen, acting under the authority of Virginia. At this time the population of Kaskaskia and the other villages settled by the French was about 900 white persons, about half as many negro slaves, and less than 500 Indians.³

THE COUNTY OF ILLINOIS, 1778-1790.

After taking possession of the Illinois settlements, Clark acted as commandant and chief judge; and under his direction local justices were elected in the several districts, and courts were established similar to the county courts of Virginia. Virginia promptly laid claim to the whole region northwest of the river Ohio, on the basis of its first colonial charter of 1609, and Clark's expedition. In December 1778, the Virginia Assembly passed an Act recognizing the French inhabitants as citizens of Virginia and organizing the county of Illinois. The region over which jurisdiction was exercised included that between the Wabash, Ohio, Mississippi and Illinois rivers.¹

Following the Virginia system of county government, Captain John Todd² was appointed by the Governor as county lieutenant. In May 1779, he reached Kaskaskia, appointed militia officers and sheriffs, and organized three local courts, with elected justices of the peace, thus continuing the system established by Clark.

These courts of justices met at first irregularly, and later held monthly sessions with some regularity and special sessions when required. The individual justices had jurisdiction in cases involving not more than twenty-five shillings, as was the law in Virginia. The French law was on the whole maintained, but with some modifications. There was some attempt at Kaskaskia to regulate procedure according to English law; and trial by jury was at least permitted.

Difficulties soon arose between the French inhabitants and the military forces. Todd failed to control the situation, and before the end of 1779 he left Illinois leaving a deputy lieutenant in charge. The courts of justices continued; and in the absence of other officials granted titles to land and exercised other powers without express authority. Elections for justices were held regularly in Cahokia; but in Kaskaskia elections were irregular; and after 1782 the court was discontinued for five years.

The Virginia law for the county of Illinois was limited in its duration and was not extended after 1782. In 1783 the whole region northwest of the Ohio was definitely ceded by Great Britain to the United States; and soon afterwards, Virginia and other states ceded their conflicting claims to Congress. But it was several years before a system of government was definitely established. To some extent the Virginia county system was continued. Deputy lieutenants were appointed by retiring officials; the Cahokia court remained an active institution and the Kaskaskia court was revived in 1787. The period was one of confusion and disorder, especially at Kaskaskia, from which many of the French inhabitants emigrated to the Spanish territory west of the Mississippi. American settlers began to come in and disputes arose between them and the French, while land titles remained unsettled for a number of years.³

THE NORTHWEST TERRITORY.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT.

By the ordinance of 1787 for the government of the Northwest Territory, the Governor of the territory was authorized to create proper divisions for the execution of process, civil and criminal; and, as fast as circumstances might require, to lay off districts in which the Indian title should become extinct, into counties and townships, subject to such alterations as might subsequently be made by the Legislature. Further, the Governor was empowered to "appoint such magistrates and other civil officers in each county and township as he shall find necessary for the preservation of the peace and good order in the same."⁴

On October 1787, General Arthur St Clair of Pennsylvania was chosen Governor of the Northwest Territory and on July 15, 1788, occurred the formal inauguration of civil government. A voluntary local organization had, however, already been established at Marietta and Losantiville, (Cincinnati). On July 26, Washington County, the oldest county west of Pennsylvania, was created by proclamation of the Governor, comprising all the region ceded by the Indians east of the Scioto river, or about one-half of the present state of Ohio. In August, Acts were promulgated providing for county courts of quarter sessions, common pleas and probate;¹ and soon after a clerk, sheriff and judges of probate and common pleas were appointed.

Other counties were soon established. Hamilton, Knox and St. Clair counties were organized in 1790; Randolph County in 1795 and Wayne County in 1796. Knox County, as first established, included Indiana and the eastern half of Illinois, but in 1801 its boundaries were altered to correspond roughly to Indiana, with a narrow strip west of the Wabash river. St. Clair County at first embraced western Illinois south of the Illinois river, but later included most of Illinois and Wisconsin. Randolph County was formed out of the southern part of St. Clair County. Wayne County at first comprised northern Ohio and Indiana, the northeastern corner of Illinois, the eastern edge of Wisconsin and all of Michigan.²

The county organization as first established in the Northwest Territory followed in the main the system of Pennsylvania, but with distinct traces of southern and New England influences.³ All positions were however filled by the appointment of the Governor and in addition to the offices first established in 1788, later Acts soon provided for coroners (Dec. 21, 1788), treasurers (1792), and recorders of deeds and orphans courts (1795).⁴

Five classes of judicial tribunals were provided: a court of common pleas, a court of general quarter sessions, a court of probate, a court of orphans, and the courts of single justices of the peace.

The court of quarter sessions exercised criminal jurisdiction and also constituted the general administrative authority of the county. In this respect the county government followed the older practice in England, the colonies, and Virginia and Kentucky, rather than the contemporary institutions in New York and Pennsylvania. The court was composed of the justices of the peace commissioned for the county at large, of whom not less than three nor more than five were specially designated to hold the court. Any three, one being of the quorum, were competent to act. Four regular sessions, and special sessions were held each year.

In administrative affairs, the court of quarter sessions had charge of highways, the licensing of taverns, the fixing of ferry rates, and the care of the poor. They could also divide the county into election districts, lay out townships and appoint clerks, constables, overseers of the poor, fence viewers and other township officers. The justices also had charge of taxation and finance; but in a few years this function was transferred to a board of commissioners which was gradually differentiated by acts of 1792, 1795 and 1799.⁵

The Act of 1899 [1799] (passed by the first General Assembly of the N. W. T.) provided for one or more commissioners in each county (one each in St. Clair and Randolph counties) to list land and other property for taxation; and also for a county board of three commissioners to levy taxes and audit claims. But the quarter sessions continued to be the higher authority. They appointed the commissioners, heard appeals from them and let contracts for county buildings, though a further appeal could be taken by the commissioners from the decisions of the sessions to the supreme court of the territory.

TOWNSHIPS.

The ordinance of 1785 for the survey of the public lands laid the foundation for the establishment of the township, by providing that the surveys should divide the territory into townships of six miles square. These "congressional townships," although originally lacking any governmental organization, came to be used as county districts and later developed into the system of organized township government.¹ An important factor in this later development was a provision of the ordinance that one of the thirty-six sections in each township should be set apart for maintaining public schools within that township.

The ordinance of 1787 expressly contemplated the formation of townships as well as counties; and in 1790 by Act of the Governor and Judges of the Northwest Territory provision was made for the first civil townships. It was enacted that each county should be divided into townships, with such "bounds, natural or imaginary as shall appear to be most proper"; and for each township the court of quarter sessions should appoint a constable, a clerk and one or more overseers of the poor.²

By Acts of 1792, the judges of common pleas in each county were to appoint commissioners of taxes and assessors in each township or district; and the justices in every county were to appoint supervisors or overseers of highways in each township or district.³ By Act of 1795 an assessor was to be elected in each township.⁴

St. Clair County when first organized was divided into three judicial districts: Cahokia, Prairie du Rocher and Kaskaskia.⁵ As population increased a larger number of settlements arose, and a number of townships appear to have been established. Randolph County, when organized in 1795, included five settlements, later called townships—Kaskaskia, Prairie du Rocher, St. Philip, Fort Chartres and New Design.⁶ In 1796 there were six townships in St. Clair County—Cahokia, Turkey Hill, Clinton Hill, L'Aigle, Fountain and Goshen.⁷

In 1799 the first General Assembly of the Northwest Territory repealed the Act of 1790 requiring the formation of townships, and also abolished elected assessors and provided for appointed appraisers in the several townships and county districts.⁸ In 1802, the General Assembly of the Northwest Territory provided for a more elaborate and more popular system of township government,⁹ and the principal features of this Act were embodied in the early laws of Ohio.

In 1800, however, the territory of Indiana had been created, including the Illinois country, so that the Act of 1802 did not apply in Illinois.

INDIANA TERRITORY.

On the organization of Indiana territory in 1800, the laws of the Northwest Territory appear to have continued in operation in the new territory without re-enactment or express authorization until repealed by the authorities of the new territory.¹⁰ On August 1, 1800, Governor Harrison of the Indiana territory appointed justices and county officers for Randolph and St. Clair counties, the same persons being appointed as justices of quarter sessions and common pleas, and in some cases one person was designated to hold several county offices.¹¹

Several laws promulgated by the Governor and Judges of Indiana Territory made some changes in the system of local administration. An Act of June 23, 1801 establishing courts of judicature provided for justices of quarter sessions and justices of common pleas, to be appointed by the Governor, as under the laws of the Northwest territory.¹ An Act of January, 1802, provided for the appointment by the Governor of a surveyor in each county.² An Act of November 5, 1803, to regulate county levies abolished the office of county treasurer and seems to have done away with the listing commissioners and county commissioners. The sheriff was to list property for taxation and collect taxes; the justices in quarter sessions were to appoint two freeholders for each township to appraise real estate, and the court of quarter sessions was to audit claims and levy county taxes.³ By this Act, the county government was much the same as under the early laws of the Northwest Territory.

No new counties were organized within the limits of Illinois during its connection with Indiana Territory; but changes were made in the boundaries of the existing counties. By proclamation of the Governor, February 3, 1801, Knox County was restricted to what is now Indiana with a narrow strip west of the Wabash river; and St. Clair and Randolph counties were extended to the eastward to the new boundary line.⁴ On March 25, 1803, the line between St. Clair and Randolph counties was changed, running northeasterly instead of due east, thereby enlarging the latter county.⁵

Until the end of 1803, the county government seems to have been conducted under the Act of 1799. Records of the county commissioners of Randolph County are noted from July 4, 1803, to Jan. 13, 1804.

Additional laws relating to county government were enacted by the territorial legislature of Indiana, after its establishment in 1805. By Act of August 24, 1805 the courts of common pleas were vested with the powers of justices of the peace and quarter sessions.⁷ In practice the same persons had often been appointed to these positions; but under this Act the list of separate courts was reduced, and the court of common pleas became the administrative authority for the county. By Act of August 26, 1805, the courts of common pleas of the several counties were required to appoint assessors,⁸ thus apparently taking the work of assessing property from the sheriffs and township appraisers.

In 1807 the Assembly of Indiana Territory enacted a general revision of the laws in force, including those of the Northwest Territory and those passed specifically for Indiana Territory. Of the laws in this code, the following related to local government.⁹

Chapter 47. A law for the appointment of surveyors.

Chapter 51. An Act to regulate county levies.

Chapter 70. An Act regulating the duties of sheriffs.

Chapter 71. An Act concerning clerks of courts.

All but the last four of the above noted Acts appear to have been from the laws of the Northwest Territory, with minor changes. The last four were Acts passed for Indiana Territory.

Under these laws, the principal county authority was the court of common pleas, composed of justices appointed by the Governor. Six sessions of this court were to be held each year at three of which no suits or civil or criminal process should be brought. In addition to its judicial functions the court of common pleas levied taxes, audited claims, licensed taverns and regulated ferries; appointed county assessors, surveyors and pound keepers; formed townships and appointed for each township overseers of the poor, supervisors of highways, fence viewers and constables.

Under the general revision, two common pleas judges with the sheriff had charge of elections; but by a separate Act of September 16, 1807, this provision was repealed, and the election law was amended to provide for an election district in each township, the sheriff to appoint deputies for each district.¹

To what extent the civil township was actually organized under these territorial laws is not altogether clear. An Indiana writer states that the township law of the Northwest territory was never carried out in Indiana territory; and adds: "Indeed the township as a political organization seems to have attained very little importance during the territorial period. The existence of townships was recognized in the law for the appointment of overseers of the poor and also in the laws governing elections, but as a distinct political organization the township was scarcely known in the laws or in the appointments made by the governor."²

It is true there were no elective township officers and no township officers appointed by the governor, unless justices were appointed from the several townships; but the list of township officers to be appointed by the county authorities included, not only overseers of the poor and election officers, but also supervisors of roads and fence viewers, and (at least until 1805) appraisers of property for taxation. We have already noted the existence of townships in St. Clair County in 1796. Further, the existence of one township (Prairie du Chien in the county of St. Clair) is distinctly recognized in an Act of the Indiana Assembly of October 25, 1808, extending the jurisdiction of the justices of the peace in that township.³

On the other hand, there is evidence that the territorial laws were not always carried out in another Act of 1808,⁴ specifically directing the assessors and sheriffs of Randolph and St. Clair counties to assess and collect the territorial tax on land already ordered by a previous Act.

TERRITORY OF ILLINOIS, 1809-1818.

By Act of congress of February 3, 1809, Indiana territory was divided and the territory of Illinois established, including the present states of Illinois, Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan. On April 29, Nathaniel Pope, Secretary and acting Governor of the new territory, issued a proclamation dividing the territory into two counties, Randolph and St. Clair.⁵ These corresponded closely to the former Indiana counties of the same name, but the eastern boundaries were changed to correspond to the boundaries of the new territory. County officers were appointed as under the laws of Indiana territory. On June 10 a resolution was published signed by the Governor and Judges of the territory declaring that the laws of Indiana territory continued in force, except those of local application.¹

Some changes were soon made, however, in the system of county government; and further alterations were made during the territorial government of Illinois. These made no radical overturn in the system of local government; but rather showed at first a tendency to return to the earlier and simpler machinery of county government, while the later laws indicated an element of uncertainty as to the forms of organization.

COUNTY COURTS, 1809-1811.

An Act concerning the courts of common pleas and county courts, adopted June 16, 1809 by the Governor and Judges, abolished the courts of common pleas and vested their civil and criminal jurisdiction in the judges of the general court of the territory, who were to hold two terms of court in each county. This Act also established a court of justices in each county to exercise the other powers of the courts of common pleas, and hold six terms each year.² An Act of July 20 authorized the county courts to hear appeals from the justices' courts.³ Another Act of the same date repealed the provision in the law relating to county levies for the appointment of tax appraisers in each township, and made the sheriff the tax assessor and collector. County courts could levy a tax of not over 36 cents on the one hundred dollars valuation.⁴

These county courts of justices of the peace formed the administrative board for county affairs from 1809 to 1811. Other county officers continued to be appointed by the Governor, as before, including clerks, sheriffs, coroners, surveyors, recorders and militia officers.

COURTS OF COMMON PLEAS, 1811-1814.

On January 24, 1811 the Governor and Judges adopted an Act concerning courts of common pleas. This repealed the provisions in the law of 1809 abolishing the courts of common pleas, and thus revived these courts in each county, with both judicial and administrative powers.⁵ From this time the executive register of the territory notes the appointment of the courts of common pleas in addition to the justices in each county.⁶

The first Act of the territorial Legislature of Illinois, passed December 13, 1812, declared in force all laws passed by the territorial legislature of Indiana, in force Mar. 1, 1809, of a general nature and not local to Indiana territory and not repealed by the Governor and Judges of Illinois territory, and also all laws passed by the Governor and Judges of Illinois territory and not repealed by them.⁷ Another Act of this Legislature regulating the courts of common pleas granted these courts the same jurisdiction and powers as under the Indiana laws in force Mar. 1, 1809, including the provision for six sessions each year, three for the trial of suits and three for other business.⁸

Two other Acts of 1812 provided for the appointment by the courts of common pleas of each county of commissioners to list lands for taxes, taking this function from the sheriff, who continued, however to act as collector and treasurer.⁹

Two years later (1814) new laws were passed which practically revived the acts of 1809. The territorial judges were constituted a supreme court of the territory, to hold court in each county, exercising the judicial powers of the courts of common pleas. Two prosecuting attorneys were to be appointed by the Governor for these courts, the origin of the office of state's attorney.¹ A court of three judges, appointed by the Governor, was established in each county to exercise the other powers and jurisdiction of the courts of common pleas.² These county courts had fewer members than the county courts of justices from 1809 to 1811; but in other respects had similar functions. Another Act of this year authorized county courts to establish towns, but made no provision for their government.³ Still another Act of 1814 provided for the appointment by the Governor of a treasurer in the each county.⁴

In 1815, the laws of Illinois were compiled and revised by Nathaniel Pope, the first secretary of the territory, and the revised code was enacted by the Legislature. This revision includes a considerable number of laws taken from the Indiana code of 1807; among these, laws on the following subjects: Constables, Coroners, Courts of Common Pleas (amended), Elections, Ferries, Justices of the Peace, Militia, Relief of the Poor, Records, Sheriffs, Licensing Taverns and Townships. These laws continued to regulate the powers and duties of county officers, and to provide for the formation of townships and the appointment of township officers for elections, poor relief and roads.⁵

In the later years of the territorial period some further changes were made in the laws on local administration. An Act of January 6, 1816, increased the jurisdiction of the county courts.⁶ An Act of January 11, 1817 provided for the appointment of a circuit attorney in each judicial circuit.⁷ An Act of Jan. 12, 1818, established two circuits, for each of which a judge learned in the law should be appointed by the Governor, and also once more transferred the powers of the county court, to a justice's court, composed of the justices of the peace in each county,⁸ thus reviving for a year the original form of county organization in the Northwest territory.

NEW COUNTIES.

Before the election of the first territorial Legislature, Governor Edwards, by proclamation of Sept. 14, 1812, established the three new counties of Madison, Gallatin and Johnson. Madison County embraced the greater part of what had been St. Clair County, with a portion of Randolph; Gallatin and Johnson counties were formed out of Randolph County.⁹

By acts of the territorial Legislature passed Dec. 11, 1813, the boundaries of Gallatin, Randolph and St. Clair counties were re-adjusted; and by Act of Nov. 28, 1814, Edwards County was established, from part of Gallatin and the eastern part of Madison County.¹⁰

At the legislative session of 1815-16 four new counties were created: White, Monroe, Jackson and Pope.¹¹ At the session of 1816-17, two more counties were established: Crawford and Bond.¹ In 1818, three additional counties were organized: Franklin, Union and Washington, and the boundaries of Johnson were re-adjusted.²

Thus at the end of the territorial period, there were fifteen counties in Illinois. Twelve of these in the south were now of moderate dimensions; but the three counties of Madison, Bond and Crawford extended from their present limits to the northern boundary of the territory.³

TOWNSHIPS.

Extracts from local records in a number of Illinois County histories show that the laws for the creation of civil townships as county districts were by no means dead letters and that townships were established for the appointment of various local officials. By 1809 four new townships had been added to the original five in Randolph County and a list of justices, overseers of the poor, overseers of highways and constables for the several townships for the year 1809 are given. At the end of the territorial period, Randolph county has six townships.⁴ By 1812 the court of common pleas of St. Clair County had established four townships in that part of the county afterwards transferred to Madison County; and at the first meeting of the court of common pleas for Madison County, April 5, 1813, two road overseers were appointed, and overseers of the poor for the four townships into which the county was divided.⁵ When Monroe County was organized in 1816, it was divided by the county court into four townships.⁶ At the first county court of White County, February 12, 1816, the county was divided into three townships, and overseers of the poor, fence viewers and constables were appointed.⁷ On May 16, 1816, the county court of St. Clair County established nine civil divisions or townships.⁸ On the other hand, in Crawford County it is stated that at the first term of the county court (Feb. 26, 1817) the county was divided into three election districts or precincts.⁹

These early civil townships were much larger in area than the congressional townships, and often irregular in form. There was no provision for the local election of township officers nor for any town meeting. But the creation of these districts with appointive officers, and the use of the name, "township," which have been overlooked in previous accounts of local government in Illinois, clearly foreshadowed the later development of the township as a unit of local self-government.

B. STATE GOVERNMENT.

FIRST STATE CONSTITUTION, 1818-1848.

ENABLING ACT.

The Act of Congress of April 18, 1818, for enabling the people of Illinois to form a State Constitution, in addition to the provisions as to boundaries and the procedure to be followed in organizing the new state, also contained a series of propositions in regard to public lands and education offered to the constitutional convention and accepted by it on behalf of the people of Illinois.¹ One of these propositions prepared the way for the later development of township government in Illinois by granting to the new State the section of land in each congressional township set aside by the ordinance of 1785 for the support of the schools as set forth in the enabling Act: "The section numbered 16 in every township, and when such section has been sold or otherwise disposed of, other lands equivalent thereto, and as contiguous as may be, shall be granted to the State, for the use of the schools."

CONSTITUTION OF 1818.

The first State Constitution of Illinois, adopted in 1818, made some important changes in the system of local government and these were followed by further legislative changes. The Constitution inaugurated a more decentralized system of local administration by providing for the election in each county of a sheriff, a coroner and three county commissioners, and also authorized the General Assembly to provide for the appointment of justices of the peace, surveyors of highways, constables and other local officers. Clerks of courts were to be appointed by the judges.

The constitutional provisions relating to local government were as follows:

Article III, Sec. 11. There shall be elected in each and every county in said State, by those who are qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly, and at the same time and places where the elections for such members shall be held, one sheriff, and one coroner, whose election shall be subject to such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by law. The said sheriffs and coroners respectively, when elected, shall continue in office for two years, subject to removal and disqualification, and such other rules and regulations as may be from time to time prescribed by law.

Article III, Sec. 22. The Governor shall nominate, and by and with the consent of the Senate, appoint all officers whose offices are established by this Constitution, or shall be established by law, and whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for: Provided, however, that inspectors, collectors and their deputies, surveyors of the highways, constables, jailers and such inferior officers whose jurisdiction may be confined within the limits of the county, shall be appointed in such manner as the General Assembly shall prescribe.

Article IV, Sec. 6. The Supreme Court, or a majority of the justices thereof, the circuit courts, or the justices thereof, shall respectively appoint their own clerks.

Article IV, Sec. 8. A competent number of justices of the peace shall be appointed in each county, in such manner as the general assembly may direct whose time of service, power and duties shall be regulated and defined by law. And justices of the peace, when so appointed, shall be commissioned by the Governor.

Schedule, Sec. 4. There shall be elected in each county three county commissioners for the purpose of transacting all county business, whose time of service, power and duties shall be regulated and defined by law.

ACTS OF 1819—COUNTY COMMISSIONERS' COURTS.

No provision appears in the first State Constitution to continue in force the laws of the territory after the establishment of State government; and the first General Assembly of the State in 1819 enacted a long series of laws, practically forming a new code. Many of these Acts related to local government, which was, to a large extent, reorganized.

While sheriffs and coroners were made elective officers in such county, county recorders and circuit attorneys continued to be appointed, but by the Governor and Senate.¹ County clerks and treasurers' courts were to be appointed by the newly established county commissioners' courts, and the treasurer was to act as assessor.²

By Act of March 22, provision was made for courts of county commissioners in each county, to hold four regular sessions each year, commencing on the first Mondays of March, June, September and December. These courts had no civil or criminal jurisdiction, but were to deal with the public concerns of the county, with power to punish for contempt. More specifically their jurisdiction included all things concerning county revenue, regulating and imposing the county tax, power to grant licenses to ferries and taverns, and other licenses, jurisdiction in regard to public roads, canals, turnpike roads and toll bridges, with power to issue writs, warrants and process necessary for executing the powers vested by law.³

Counties and civil townships were each made bodies corporate and politic; and each township was established as an election precinct.⁴ By various Acts, the county commissioners were to appoint in each civil township three judges of election, two overseers of the poor, one or more constables and a suitable number of supervisors of roads and highways.⁵ County commissioners were also to appoint in each township where the population should admit three freeholders, as trustees of the school lands granted by the United States, who were to lay out the school lands and lease them.⁶

Justices of the peace were to be nominated by the House of Representatives, confirmed by the Senate and commissioned by the Governor; vacancies during a recess of the General Assembly to be filled by the county commissioners.⁷

By these measures, the county received a large measure of autonomous administrative power, with a simple system of local organization. The elected county commissioners courts had substantially the same administrative powers as had the appointed county courts established in 1814, with added powers to appoint their clerk and the treasurer. The sheriff and the coroner were the only other elected local officials. Townships were continued as county districts for various purposes of local administration, and their importance was somewhat emphasized by the grant of corporate capacity; but the township officers continued to be appointed by the county board.

Some uncertainty in the use of the term township was, however, introduced by the provision for trustees of school lands. These were appointed for congressional townships, while the townships for other purposes had usually been larger in area than the congressional township. Some of the county histories, from this time, mention election precincts in place of the former townships; but in other cases townships for election and road purposes are still noted.¹

COURTS OF PROBATE.

By Act of February 10, 1821, a court of probate was established in each county, the judges to be elected by the General Assembly, to hold office during good behavior. These courts were given exclusive original jurisdiction in regard to the probate of wills, letters of administration, and the settlement of estates, power previously vested in the county courts and county commissioners' courts. The judges of probate were also granted sole original power in cases of insolvency.²

In 1823 the judges of probate were made elective in each county;³ but in 1825 the method of election by the General Assembly was restored.⁴

An Act of 1825 provided for the appointment in each county of a public administrator, to be nominated by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.⁵

During the period of the first State Constitution many changes were made in the laws relating to local government, in the numerous Acts passed at each session of the General Assembly, in the Revised Code of Laws adopted in 1827, and in the Revised Statutes of 1845. Much of this legislation was of minor significance; but some developments of considerable importance may be noted, including: the disintegration of the township as a county district, and the later organization of school townships and school districts; the rapid multiplication of new counties, leading to the adoption of a minimum limit as to their size; a steady increase in the number of elective offices; and some development in the powers of county commissioners.

DISINTEGRATION OF THE TOWNSHIP.

The creation of county districts known as townships, and the appointment of township constables, road supervisors overseers of the poor and election judges had indicated a movement towards the development of autonomous township government. But between 1823 and 1827 Acts of the General Assembly gradually eliminated for a time the township as a general unit of local government in Illinois; while at the same time by the continuation of the school township, the way was opened for the later revival of the township for other purposes.

In 1822 the county, as reduced in area by the creation of other counties, was subdivided into six political townships; and in 1824 a new township was formed. ⁵ Ibid, p. 70.

An Act of 1823 regulating elections provided that all elections should be held at the county seat and in such other election precincts, not exceeding four in any county, as the county commissioners might establish.¹ As there were more than four townships in some of the counties, this Act deprived the townships in such counties of their function as election districts.

An amendment of the Act relating to roads and highways, in 1825, required the county commissioners' courts to lay off road districts and appoint a supervisor for each district.² This permitted and indeed suggested the use of other areas than the existing civil townships as road districts.

The ephemeral school law of 1825 authorized the county commissioners' courts to form school districts, and provide for the election of three trustees and for the levy of a school tax by the legal voters of each district.³

The temporary elimination of the civil township in Illinois was completed in the Revised Code of Laws, enacted by the Fifth General Assembly in 1827. One Act of this code provided for the election for a term of four years of justices of the peace and constables in districts established by the county commissioners' courts, not less than two nor more than eight in each county.⁴ The Act for the maintenance of the poor vested the county commissioners of the several counties with "entire and exclusive superintendence of the poor in their respective counties;" and the provisions for appointing township overseers of the poor no longer appears.⁵ The Act concerning roads repeated the provision for the creation of road districts.⁶ An amendment of the Act regulating elections increased the number of election precincts authorized in a county to six. Moreover while the counties were continued as bodies corporate and politic, the former provision making the civil townships corporate bodies no longer appears.⁷

In contrast with the elimination of the civil township from its earlier functions as a general county district, was the continuation and increased importance of the congressional township as an administrative district for school purposes. Trustees of school lands were to be appointed by the county commissioners in each congressional township where deemed expedient and where the population admitted; but in any township not containing twenty white inhabitants the county commissioners' court should manage and lease the school lands. At the same time, however, the school law of 1825 was repealed; and under the new laws school districts were to be formed by the trustees of school lands only on the petition of a majority of the freeholders in the township. A school tax might be levied by the voters of such districts, but no person could be taxed for the support of a free school unless by his free will or consent, first had or obtained in writing.⁸

Thus in place of civil townships serving as districts for all the various local purposes, the new code provided for the formation in each county of distinct sets of districts for elections, justices and constables, schools and road purposes.⁹ This disintegration of the early township and the centralization of poor relief in the county commissioners' court stamped the county more clearly as the main unit of local administration. But at the same time

⁹ The following extracts from county records, taken from county histories, illustrate the formation of separate and overlapping county districts for the various purposes of local government, in place of the former system of a single set of districts known as townships.

Madison County: In 1825 four public school districts were organized; and the county was subdivided into sixteen road districts, many of them having the same names as the former townships. Under the Act of Dec. 30, 1826 the county was laid off into seven election districts. History of Madison County (1882), p. 143.

St. Clair County: In June 1826 four election precincts were established, three containing more than a township. History of St. Clair County (1881), p. 73.

Perry County: At the first meeting of the county commissioners (June 1827) two election districts were created; at the second session (September, 1827) three road districts were established. History of Randolph, Monroe and Perry Counties, pp. 163, 165.

the local election of justices and constables and the provision for school districts were important decentralizing measures, which were to lead to further developments in this direction.

FORMATION OF NEW COUNTIES.

At the second session of the First General Assembly four new counties were created: Alexander, Clark, Jefferson and Wayne. In 1821, six new counties were established: Lawrence, Greene, Sangamon, Pike, Hamilton and Montgomery. By an Act of this year the procedure in connection with the formation of new counties was regulated, providing that notice of intention to apply for a new county or the division of an existing county should be advertised for twelve weeks in one or more newspapers in or nearest to the county to be formed or divided, and that proof of such notice should be made before granting leave to bring in a bill to comply with such application.¹

During the next six years, twenty-three new counties were created; four in 1823—Edgar, Marion, Fulton and Morgan; three in 1824—Clay, Clinton and Wabash; ten in 1825—Calhoun, Adams, Hancock, Henry, Knox, Mercer, Putnam, Schuyler, Warren and Peoria, all in the region north and west of the Illinois River; and two in 1826—Vermilion and McDonough; and four in 1827—Shelby, Perry, Tazewell and JoDaviess.²

By Act of Dec. 26, 1826, the former Act regulating the procedure in the creation of new counties was repealed; and provision was made for four weeks notice of any petition for forming a new county, changing county lines or the removal of county seats, to be printed in a newspaper published in the State, and a copy of the petition placed on the court house door of the county at least two months before being presented in the General Assembly. It was further provided that no county should be divided or county seat removed, unless on a petition signed by a majority of the qualified voters.³

The formation of new counties continued steadily until 1843. In 1829, two new counties were established; in 1831, six; in 1833, two; and in 1836, six. By this time the whole area of the State had been marked off into 66 counties of moderate size, although those in the northern part of the State were larger than those in the south. Further subdivision of the larger counties followed: In 1837, six more counties were created; in 1839 no less than fifteen; in 1841, seven; and in 1843, four. In 1847 the single county of Saline was organized, making a total of 100 counties at the time of the adoption of the second State Constitution in 1848.

By 1848 Illinois had nearly twice as many counties as the large and populous states of New York and Pennsylvania, each containing many times its population. Many counties were very small, both in area and population. Twenty-eight counties contained less than 400 square miles; thirteen of them had less than 300 square miles; and three—Hardin, Pulaski and Putnam—had each less than 200 square miles.

In 1840 eleven counties had more than 10,000 population, twenty-four had between 5,000 and 10,000, and fifty had less than 5,000 inhabitants.

The multiplication of counties was perhaps due in part to the absence of any general unit of local government smaller than the county. But the creation of so many small counties must have added to the expense of local government.

At length, in the Revised Statutes of 1845, further restrictions were placed on the formation of additional counties by providing that no new county should contain less than 400 square miles; that no counties should be reduced to less than this area; and that in dividing counties, the boundaries should not be within ten miles of the county seat.⁴ These restrictions were confirmed in the Constitution of 1848.

⁴ Revised Statutes of 1845, ch. 27, sec. 39. 40.

The Constitution of 1848 reunited the counties of Adams and Highland (separated in 1843 on account of a county seat contest); and since then only three additional counties have been organized: Kankakee in 1853, and Douglas and Ford in 1859.

MORE ELECTIVE OFFICES.

By an Act of 1829 county surveyors were to be nominated by the House of Representatives, confirmed by the Senate and commissioned by the Governor.¹

An Act of March 1, 1837 regulated more definitely the method of electing county commissioners, provided for a three years term, one member to be elected each year.² By Act of Feb. 7, 1837 the clerks of county commissioners' courts and county treasurers were made elective; and by Act of March 4, of the same year, a probate justice of the peace was to be elected in each county, in place of the probate judges appointed by the General Assembly. These officers were to be elected for terms of four years, the elections to be held on the first Monday in August beginning in 1839.¹ A school commissioner, elected in each county for a two years term, was added by the school law of 1841.²

By Acts of 1839 and 1841 the assessment of property was transferred for a few years from the county treasurer to assessors appointed by the county commissioners' court. The first of these Acts authorized the appointment in each county of one or more assessors, not to exceed one for each justice's district;³ but two years later the number was limited to one for each county.⁴ The Revised Statutes of 1845 again made the county treasurers ex officio assessors; and the separate office of county assessors disappears.⁵

The Act of Feb. 25, 1843 indicated that the system of electing county treasurers had led to some new difficulties in the management of county funds. This provided for semi-annual statements by county treasurers, and for the dismissal of any defaulting treasurer and the appointment of a successor.⁶

Nevertheless, in 1845 provision was made for the election of county recorders and county surveyors; and a two years' term was established for the probate justice of the peace, county recorder, county commissioners' clerk, county surveyor, county treasurer, justices of the peace and constables, elections to be held on the first Monday in August of odd numbered years.⁷

By the Revised Statutes of 1845, circuit attorneys were to be elected by the General Assembly, one for each judicial circuit for a term of two years.⁸

POWERS OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

An Act of Jan. 31, 1835 provided for appeals from the county commissioners' courts to the circuit courts.⁹

In 1839 an amendment of the poor law authorized the county commissioners' courts to establish poor houses.¹⁰

The Revised Statutes of 1845 granted additional powers to the county commissioners, to purchase lands for county buildings and to erect county jails and court houses.¹¹

COUNTY AND ROAD TAXES.

Under the earlier revenue laws a tax on lands had been levied by the General Assembly (at the rate of one-half of one per cent on the estimated value), the tax from lands owned by non-residents going to the State, and from lands of residents to the county. County commissioners were also authorized to levy a tax, not exceeding one-half per cent upon town lots (if not taxed by the trustees of towns) and on specified items of personal property.¹² A labor tax for roads was also authorized.¹³

Beginning in 1841 county commissioners were empowered to levy taxes on general property for roads and county purposes. Under the road law of 1841, county commissioners might assess a road tax not to exceed ten cents on each one hundred dollars worth of property, in addition to the labor tax.¹⁴ By Act of March 4, 1843, county commissioners were limited to a tax for county purposes not exceeding 50 cents on every one hundred dollars worth of taxable property, not more than one-half of which could be set apart for road purposes and this could be discharged in labor at not more than one dollar per day.¹⁵

An Act of Feb. 28, 1845, authorized a road tax of not more than 20 cents on the $100;¹ but in the Revised Statutes of 1845, the road law repeated the provision of the Act of 1843 for a county tax of 50 cents on the $100.00, one-half of which might be used for road purposes;² while the Revenue Law (approved on the same date), authorized county commissioners to levy a tax for county purposes, in no case to exceed four mills on each dollar, unless specifically authorized by law.³

In 1847, county commissioners' courts were again authorized to assess and collect a road tax, not exceeding 20 cents on the $100.00, as well as a labor tax of not exceeding five days on each able bodied man between 21 and 50 years of age.⁴

POOR LAW ADMINISTRATION.

Under the poor law of 1819, the county commissioners court of each county was authorized to appoint in each township two overseers of the poor, who should farm out poor persons to the lowest bidders. Taxes for poor relief were levied by the county.

An Act of 1827 for the maintenance of the poor vested the county commissioners of the several counties with "entire and exclusive superintendence of the poor of their respective counties." The former provisions for appointing township overseers no longer appears and the administration of poor relief was concentrated in the county authorities.

In 1839, an amendment of the poor law provided that the justices of the peace (elected in subdivisions of the county since 1827), in conjunction with persons appointed by the county commissioners' courts, were to be overseers of the poor, and vested with the entire and exclusive superintendence of the poor of their respective districts. At the same time the county commissioners courts were authorized to establish county poor houses; and later Acts made further provisions for such institutions, which began to be established in some counties in the decade after 1840.

INCORPORATED TOWNS AND CITIES.

In the absence of any general system of town government, special Acts were passed from time to time incorporating the villages which appeared with the progress of settlement. Kaskaskia had been incorporated by Act of the territorial legislature of Indiana in 1807, and was reincorporated in 1818. Shawneetown was incorporated in 1814, Edwardsville in 1819 and other towns soon followed. Altogether sixteen towns were incorporated before 1830.

An Act of 1814 provided for the establishment of towns, but this contained no provision for their government. In 1831 a general Act for the incorporation of towns was passed and under this, Springfield was incorporated in 1832, Chicago in 1833, Quincy in 1834 and altogether forty-eight towns by 1841.

Special town charters also continued to be granted by the Legislature, in some cases organizing new towns and in others adding to the powers of towns already organized. Twenty-six special charters were enacted from 1830 to 1840; and by the latter date there were about eighty incorporated towns in the State.

Toward the end of the period under the first State Constitution several municipalities were incorporated as cities by special Acts. In 1818 an Act had been passed to incorporate the city and bank of Cairo, but this had no permanent results. In 1837 Chicago and Alton were incorporated as cities; in 1840 Springfield, and in 1845, Peoria.

SCHOOL TOWNSHIPS AND DISTRICTS.

The school law of 1841, revised in 1845 and 1847, is important not only in definitely establishing a system of common schools in Illinois, but also, in the provisions for the autonomous organization of the school township, forms a striking landmark pointing towards the establishment of township organization for other purposes a few years later.

By the Act of Feb. 27, 1841, provision was made for the election of a school commissioner in each county to sell school lands and invest funds, and for the incorporation of the inhabitants of any congressional township for the purpose of organizing and supporting public schools. Elections were to be held by the trustees of school lands appointed by the county commissioners' courts; and when the vote was in favor of incorporation, five trustees were to be elected to superintend the business of the township in relation to schools and education. When the first vote was against incorporation, subsequent elections should be held on the written request of twenty legal voters of the township. These trustees were to be successors of the appointed trustees of school lands, with power to lay off school districts and have a general superintendence of all schools in the township. A meeting of the inhabitants of every incorporated township should be called once each year, at which information about the schools and school funds should be presented; and at every such meeting the legal voters of the township might adopt resolutions and prescribe rules and regulations concerning the duties of trustees and organizing and supporting schools. In each school district, three school directors should be elected, with power to provide school houses and employ teachers.¹

An Act of Feb. 23, 1843, provided for the voluntary dissolution of such incorporated townships on petition of a majority of the legal voters and an election.²

In the revised school law of 1845 the optional features in the law of 1841 disappear and each congressional township is definitely established as a township for school purposes and upon the election of trustees to be a body corporate and politic. The trustees were to have similar powers as in the Act of 1841 in regard to the management of school funds, the formation of school districts and adopting by-laws in regard to schools; but were no longer given general superintendence of schools. The provision for the annual meeting of the inhabitants of the township does not appear; and the school district meeting becomes more important, with power by a two-thirds vote to levy a tax not exceeding 15 cents on the $100 for school purposes. This Act further provided that the Secretary of State should be State superintendent of common schools.³

A further revision of the school law in 1847 authorized the inhabitants of any township to authorize the county school commissioner to discharge the duties of school trustees in the management of school funds. The annual school district meeting was given power to select sites for school houses, and to determine the kind of building to be erected.⁴

It should be noted that the system of school organization established by these Acts included a somewhat complex combination of centralizing and decentralizing features. Along with the development of the township and school district were the compulsory provisions of the State law, enforceable through the supervision of county school commissioners and the Secretary of State as superintendent of common schools.

SECOND STATE CONSTITUTION, 1849-1870.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF 1847.

In the Constitutional Convention of 1847 a number of important changes in local government were proposed and adopted—including restrictions on the minimum size of counties and on the removal of county seats, a further increase in the number of local elective offices, a change in the constitution of the county board, and a provision authorizing an optional system of township government. These provisions were all closely related to each other; but various forces emphasized different factors, and the numerous proposals were considered by several committees whose reports overlapped and caused some complications in reaching definite results.

A minimum limit to the size of new counties had already been established by statute; but this and other statutory restrictions might be repealed or ignored by a subsequent legislature. Proposals for constitutional provisions were the subject of prolonged discussion and were finally adopted by close votes.

The consolidation of the county commissioners' courts and the courts of probate into county courts with judicial powers was urged as a means of reducing the number of separate offices and securing economy in administration. Yet this proposal was supported by many members who also favored township organization, under which the large board of supervisors was introduced, increasing the number of officers and costing more than the former commissioners.

Various resolutions in regard to counties, removal of county seats and county courts were referred to the Committees on Counties, Judiciary and Miscellaneous Subjects.¹

During the month of July each of the committees noted above submitted reports of proposed Constitutional provisions, including a number of minority reports.² After discussion of the judiciary article in committee of the whole, this was referred to a select committee of 27; which on August 4, submitted a majority and two minority reports.³

On August 14, the section providing for county courts in place of the county commissioners was adopted by a vote of eighty to forty-eight.⁴ Half of the members voting for this, also voted later for the provision authorizing township organization; while a third of those voting against county courts also voted against township organization. On August 20, after lengthy discussions and numerous amendments the provisions in regard to the size of counties and removal of county seats were adopted, by narrow margins.¹

Other sections of the judiciary article added county judges, state's or county attorneys, clerks of circuit courts and justices of the peace to the list of constitutional elective officers, provided for the removal of county officers, and authorized the General Assembly to provide for the election of other officers and the filling of vacancies, with the proviso that no such officer should be elected by the General Assembly.² The article on counties continued the provision for the election of sheriffs; but the coroner was omitted from the list of constitutional offices.³

General provisions adopted affecting local elections were those restricting the right of voting to citizens, requiring all votes to be by ballot, and establishing the date of general elections for the Tuesday following the first Tuesday in November, until otherwise provided by law.⁴

The demand for township organization was due largely to the fact that the migration to Illinois following its admission as a state (especially in the central and northern counties) had come largely from the northern states, where towns and townships were more or less important units of local government. Township government might have been established by the General Assembly, as in Ohio and Indiana; but no such measure was enacted under the first Constitution. In the convention of 1847 the sectional contest between the northern and southern counties on this question resulted in a compromise, authorizing an optional township system. This arrangement permitted each county in the State to continue the county system or to establish the township system; but before many years the township system had been adopted in the greater part of the State.

Early in the Convention Mr. Peters, a member from Peoria and Fulton counties offered a resolution to provide "a committee on Townships, with instructions to report whether it is expedient to amend the Constitution as to provide for the incorporation of the several townships for municipal and other purposes."⁵ This was defeated; but two weeks later a resolution proposed by Mr. Wead of Fulton County, was adopted, to appoint a special committee "to inquire into the expediency of abolishing the county commissioners' court, and providing for the organization of townships, which townships shall have the general superintendence of their fiscal affairs; and also to report a plan for the better administration of county affairs."⁶ On July 16 this committee reported a series of proposed provisions providing for township organization.⁷

On August 17, during the discussion of the judiciary article and before action on the report of the committee on township organization, on motion of Mr. Hurlbut, member from McHenry and Boone counties, the following additional section was adopted by a vote of 92 yeas, nays not counted:⁸

"The legislature may pass a general law authorizing township organization in all counties in which a majority of the legal voters may, at any general election, vote for such township organization, and when such township organization shall be established in any county, then the county court herein provided for shall cease to transact county business."⁹

Three days later the convention took up the report of the committee on township organization; and on August 21st adopted by a vote of 87 to 52 the following section, proposed by Mr. Knowlton of Peoria County:¹⁰

A proviso permitting counties of less than 400 square miles when favored by a majority of the voters of each county was laid on the table by one vote (70-69); and the county seat section was adopted by a vote of 70 to 64.

"The legislature shall provide by law that the legal voters of any county may adopt a township form of government within each county by a majority of votes cast at any general election within said county."

On this decisive vote the members from the counties north and west of the Illinois River voted almost unanimously for the provision; those from the central counties were closely divided—affirmative votes coming from the counties just east of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers and those near the Indiana border; while the members from the southern counties for the most part voted in the negative, but with some affirmative votes from St. Clair, Monroe, Gallatin, Pope, Alexander and Pulaski counties. David Davis from McLean County voted yea; while J. M. Palmer from Macoupin County and the President, Newton Cloud of Morgan County, voted no.¹

CONSTITUTION OF 1848.

The various sections of the Constitution of 1848 relating to local government, as revised and enrolled by the Committee on Revision and Adjustment of the articles of the Constitution, finally adopted by the convention and ratified by popular vote, are given below:

Article V.

Sec. 16. There shall be in each county a court to be called a county court.

Sec. 17. One county judge shall be elected by the qualified voters of each county, who shall hold his office for four years, and until his successor is elected and qualified.

Sec. 18. The jurisdiction of said court shall extend to all probate and such other jurisdiction as the General Assembly may confer in civil cases, and such criminal cases as may be prescribed by law, where the punishment is by fine only, not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Sec. 19. The county judge, with such justices of the peace in each county as may be designated by law, shall hold terms for the transaction of county business, and shall perform such other duties as the General Assembly may prescribe: Provided, the General Assembly may require that two justices, to be chosen by the qualified electors of each county, shall sit with the county judge in all cases; and there shall be elected, quadrennially, in each county, a clerk of the county court, who shall be ex officio recorder, whose compensation shall be fees: Provided, the General Assembly may, by law, make the clerk of the circuit court ex officio recorder in lieu of the county clerk.

Sec. 20. The General Assembly shall provide for the compensation of the county judge.

Sec. 21. The clerks of the Supreme and circuit courts shall be elected at the first special election for judges. The second election for clerks of the circuit courts and state's attorneys shall be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, 1852, and every fourth year thereafter.

Sec. 23. The election of all officers, and the filling of all vacancies that may happen by death, resignation or removal, not otherwise directed or provided for by this Constitution shall be made in such manner as the General Assembly shall direct: Provided, that no such officer shall be elected by the General Assembly.

Sec. 25. County judges, clerks, sheriffs and other county officers, for wilful neglect of duty, or misdemeanor in office, shall be liable to presentment or indictment by a grand jury, and trial by a petit jury, and, upon conviction, shall be removed from office.

Sec. 27. There shall be elected in each county in this State, in such districts as the General Assembly direct, by the qualified electors thereof, a competent number of justices of the peace, who shall hold their office for a term of four years, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified, and who shall perform such duties and receive such compensation, and exercise such jurisdiction as may be prescribed by law.

Sec. 28. There shall be elected in each of the judicial circuits of this State, by the qualified electors thereof, one state's attorney, who shall hold his office for the term of four years, and until his successor shall be commissioned and qualified; who shall perform such duties and receive such compensation as may be prescribed by law: Provided, that the General Assembly may hereafter provide by law for the election, by the qualified voters of each county in this State, of one county attorney for each county in lieu of the state's attorneys, provided for in this section; the term of office, duties, and compensation of which county attorneys shall be regulated by law.

Sec. 29. The qualified electors of each county in this State shall elect a clerk of the circuit court, who shall hold his office for the term of four years, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified; who shall perform such duties and receive such compensation as may be prescribed by law. The clerks of the Supreme Court shall be elected, in each division, by the qualified electors thereof, for the term of six years, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified; whose duties and compensation shall be provided by law.

Article VII.

Sec. 1. No new county shall be formed or established by the General Assembly, which will reduce the county or counties, or either of them, from which it shall be taken, to less contents than four hundred square miles; nor shall any county be formed of less contents; nor shall any line thereof pass within less than ten miles of any county seat of the county or counties proposed to be divided.

Sec. 2. No county shall be divided, or have any part stricken therefrom, without submitting the question to a vote of the people of the county, nor unless a majority of all the legal voters of the county voting on the question shall vote for the same.

Sec. 3. All territory which has been or may be stricken off by legislative enactment, from any organized county or counties, for the purpose of forming a new county, and which shall remain unorganized after the period provided for such organization, shall be and remain a part of the county or counties from which it was originally taken, for all purposes of county and State government, until otherwise provided by law.

Sec. 4. There shall be no territory stricken from any county unless a majority of the voters living in such territory shall petition for such division, and no territory shall be added to any county without the consent of a majority of the voters of the county to which it is proposed to be added.

Sec. 5. No county seat shall be removed until the point to which it is proposed to be moved shall be fixed by law, and a majority of the voters of the county shall have voted in favor of the removal to such point.

Sec. 6. The General Assembly shall provide, by a general law, for a township organization, under which any county may organize whenever a majority of the voters of such county, at any general election, shall so determine; and whenever any county shall adopt a township organization, so much of this Constitution as provides for the management of the fiscal concerns of the said county by the county court shall be dispensed with and the affairs of the county may be transacted in such manner as the General Assembly may provide.

Sec. 7. There shall be elected in each county in this State, by the qualified electors thereof, a sheriff who shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified: Provided, no person shall be eligible to the said office more than once in four years.

Schedule.

Sec. 6. The county commissioners' courts and the probate justices of the several counties shall continue in existence and exercise their present jurisdiction until the county court, provided in this Constitution is organized in pursuance of an Act of the General Assembly to be passed at its first session.

COUNTY COURTS.

After the adoption of the Constitution of 1848, the general assembly, by Act of February 12, 1849,¹ provided for the new county courts, to take the place of the former probate justices and county commissioners' courts.

In each county there should be elected a county judge and a clerk for the term of four years, elections being held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, instead of as formerly in August. The county court was to hold sessions each month, and to exercise the power and jurisdiction of the probate courts previously established.

The county judge of each county, with two justices of the peace, also elected quadrennially, by the voters of the county, formed a county court vested with all the power, jurisdiction and authority heretofore conferred on the county commissioners' court. Sessions should be held on the first Monday in December, March, June and September of each year, and special sessions should also be called.

While these county courts were established for all the counties in the State, their powers as successors to the county commissioners ceased in counties adopting township organization, and such powers were vested in the boards of supervisors.

By the assessment Acts of 1853, county courts were given original jurisdiction of suits for taxes on real property, whether sitting for county or probate business;² and by special Acts from time to time civil jurisdiction in other matters was granted to the county courts in certain counties. The probate jurisdiction was also amended and regulated by various Acts.³

By the Act of 1849, the clerk of the circuit court was made recorder of deeds in each county.

TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

In accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of 1848, the general assembly in 1849 passed an optional law to provide for township and county organization.⁴ This law closely followed the existing New York law, and difficulties in applying this to the conditions in Illinois made necessary an extensive revision in a new Act of 1851.⁵ During the next decade further changes were made by the enactment of new Acts relating to the assessment and collection of revenue (in 1853 and 1855)⁶ and by amendments to the township organization law (in 1854, 1857 and 1859).⁷

In 1861 there was passed "An Act to reduce the Acts to provide for township organization, and the Acts amendatory thereof, into one Act and to amend the same."⁸ This was further amended by Acts of 1865, 1867 and 1869.⁹ Numerous Acts were also passed during the period applying to particular counties.

The main features of the township system as thus definitely established in Illinois may be noted in the more important provisions of the Acts of 1849 and 1851, and the principal changes made by the subsequent Acts.

Acts of 1849 and 1851—The Act of 1849 provided for a vote at the next general election on the question of township organization in each county in the State, the new system to go into effect in the counties adopting it on the first Tuesday in April, 1850.

Section 4 of this Act provided that the adoption of township organization should be decided by "a majority of all the votes cast for or against township organization." This conflicted with the constitutional provision requiring "a majority of the legal voters;"¹ and in the Act of 1851 the vote required was changed to correspond to the Constitution.

In the Act of 1849 provision was made resubmitting the question at a subsequent election in counties where the voters "shall neglect or fail to avail themselves of the provisions of this Act," on petition of fifty freeholders. The Act of 1851 provided that a vote on the adoption of township organization should be held at any general election, on the petition of fifty legal voters.

The Act of 1851 also provided for discontinuing township organization on petition of a majority of legal voters and a popular vote in any county.

In counties which voted to establish the township system, the county court or county commissioners' court should appoint three commissioners to divide the county in towns or townships, following as near as may be, the townships as surveyed by the United States government. The commissioners should name the townships and report to the county clerk, who should submit an abstract to the auditor of public accounts.

Each town as a body corporate was given power to sue and be sued, to purchase and hold lands, to make contracts, and to regulate the use of corporate property. It was distinctly provided that no town shall possess any corporate powers except as granted by law, and as will be seen the powers granted were but few and of small importance.

An annual town meeting should be held in each town on the first Tuesday in April, at which the following town officers should be elected: supervisor, town clerk, assessor, collector, overseer of the poor, three commissioners of highways, two justices of the peace, two constables, overseers of highways and poundmasters, a total of at least fourteen in each town.

By the Act of 1851 an additional supervisor was to be elected in any town of 800 voters; and in Cook County, each ward of the city of Chicago was to elect a supervisor.²

The electors of each town, in town meeting had power:

To determine the number of poundmasters, and locate pounds.

To elect town officers.

To direct the institution or defense of suits at law, and the sums to be raised for this purpose.

To make fence regulations and determine the time when stock may run at large.

To impose penalties for violating town regulations, and to apply such penalties for the interest of the town.

Further provisions regulated the method of conducting town meetings and the election of town officers, and prescribed the powers and duties of officers. The supervisors acted as town treasurers, and in each county formed a board of supervisors, which exercised the administrative powers of the county court. Assessors and collectors took the place of county officers in the assessment and collection of taxes. Commissioners of highways were given charge of roads and highways, with power to administer the labor road tax and to assess a road tax on property, limited (by Act of 1851) to 20 cents on the one hundred dollars. The supervisor, town clerk and justices of the peace constituted a board of town auditors; and claims approved by this board were to be met by a tax levied by the board of supervisors. These officers were also authorized to fill vacancies in the town offices.

Articles 18 to 24 of the township law regulated in detail the assessment and collection of taxes and the opening, construction and maintenance of roads and bridges. These provisions were extensively revised in the Act of 1851.

The supervisors of the several cities and towns of the counties adopting the town system were constituted a board of supervisors, which should hold annual and special meetings and exercise the administrative powers of the county court in regard to the corporate property of the county, county finances, court houses and jails, and poor relief. The board of supervisors was also to equalize the aggregate assessed valuations of the several towns made by the town assessors; and to levy on the towns the amount of charges certified by the town board of auditors.

In counties adopting township organization, the county treasurers ceased to act as assessors; but were given the power of sheriffs to collect delinquent taxes on lands and town lots. Clerks of county courts were to furnish blanks or books properly ruled for the use of town assessors.

The system of county and township government thus established closely resembled that of New York and Michigan rather than that of Ohio, Indiana or New England. An analysis of the lengthy Acts shows that the Illinois town fell far short of the powers of the New England town; and that the significance of the township system in Illinois has been much exaggerated. The powers of local government granted to the towns were few and unimportant; those of the town meeting were even less, and did not at first include any power of local taxation. Of the local powers granted, those of any significance were vested in the commissioners of highways and the boards of town auditors; and the decentralization of highway administration was the most tangible grant of authority in local affairs. Further than this, the township organization law decentralized the assessment and collection of taxes for State and county purposes, made the town the district for electing justices of the peace and constables and substituted the board of supervisors for the compact county court in charge of county affairs.

The township system was thus mainly significant as establishing a decentralized administration of State functions, and did not confer any large measure of legislative home rule in local affairs, even in taxing matters.

It is difficult to see wherein the town governments thus established could have been of much service in local affairs. It is clear that the town assessment and collection of taxes caused serious trouble from the first, and in spite of numerous laws has never become satisfactory. At the same time the large boards of supervisors for county affairs were necessarily more expensive than the small county courts. Nevertheless the new system found favor among the people and was rapidly adopted by one county after another.

Acts subsequent to 1851, amending and revising the law relating to township organization, added in some respects to the powers and importance of the towns; but in other respects showed a decided tendency to strengthen the powers and duties of county officers to supervise and supplement the town officials when delinquent or ineffective; while the increasing detail of of the statutory provisions constituted a growing degree of legislative centralization over the whole field of local government.

Assessment and Collection of Taxes—The revenue laws of 1853 and 1855 established further and more minute regulations for the assessment and collection of taxes, both in counties with township organization and those without. The failure of the thoroughly decentralized township system of tax administration is shown by the additional authority conferred on county officers in counties with township organization. The Act of 1853 required the town assessors to meet with the county clerks for instructions and advice, authorized the board of supervisors to assess property omitted by the town assessors, and required the county treasurer to act as county collector for delinquent taxes. The Act of 1854 amending the township law authorized the board of supervisors in any county to appoint assessors and collectors to reassess and collect taxes, where collection had been restrained on account of unjust assessment. The revenue Act of 1855 transferred the assessment of railroad property to the board of supervisors, and authorized the county clerk to assess property omitted in the regular assessment list. The revised township law of 1861 authorized boards of supervisors to amend an unfair assessment roll, or to declare it null and void and appoint a resident of the town to make a new assessment.

Some State supervision was also authorized by the revenue laws of 1853. The Auditor of Public Accounts was required to print and to send to the county clerks copies of the laws with printed forms and instructions. In 1867 a further step was taken by establishing a State Board of Equalization, with power to equalize the aggregate assessed valuations of counties.

Powers of Boards of Supervisors—In addition to the powers in relation to assessment and collection of taxes, the boards of supervisors were given further authority by various acts, both in regard to county and town affairs.

By the Assessment Act of 1853, they were given power to levy a tax for county purposes, not to exceed four mills on the dollar.

The Act of 1854 amending the township law gave the boards of supervisors jurisdiction to alter the boundaries of towns and to divide and enlarge towns; but no new town should be created with less than thirty legal voters, nor unless twenty of such voters petitioned for the alteration. By Act of 1857, sixty days' previous notice was required before making any new town or changing the boundaries of a town. The Act of 1854 also required boards of supervisors to levy special town taxes for bridges, on certificate from the boards of town auditors.

By the Act of 1857 boards of supervisors were to fill town offices by appointment in case of failure to elect within thirty days of the annual meeting.

An Act of 1859 empowered county boards to change the names of towns or incorporated villages, on petition of a majority of the voters.

The Act of 1857 authorized boards of supervisors to appropriate funds to aid in the construction of roads and bridges.¹

An Act of 1867 authorized boards of supervisors to direct towns to build or repair bridges; and in case of failure to comply, they might authorize the work and add the expense to the tax levy of the town.

Town and Road Taxes—Under the township laws of 1849 and 1851 the town meeting had no power to levy taxes; but the highway commissioners could assess a road tax (of not over 20 cents on the $100) and the board of supervisors were to levy a tax for the amount of other town changes certified by the board of town auditors. Later acts increased the taxing power of towns to some degree.

The amending law of 1854 authorized the several towns to raise money for prosecuting and defending suits, for roads and bridges and for any other purposes deemed necessary. But this apparently general authority was soon restricted. In 1857, the electors in town meeting were empowered to authorize and require the highway commissioners to assess a road tax, not exceeding 40 cents on the $100; but without such directions the highway commissioners might, as before, assess a tax not exceeding 20 cents on the $100. The revised township law of 1861 continued in force both of these provisions.

By Act of 1867 the highway commissioners were authorized to assess a road tax up to 40 cents on the $100, the maximum which could be ordered by the town meeting. This Act also provided that the labor road tax could be commuted in money and the road tax on property might be paid in labor, at the rate of $1.50 per day. Another Act of this year authorized the voters in town meeting to levy a tax for building a bridge or causeway in another town, ten days notice having been given.

An Act of 1869 authorized town meetings to provide that the road tax be paid only in money.

Relief of the Poor—Under the township organization laws of 1849 and 1851, provision was made for the election of overseers of the poor by each township in counties adopting the township system. It is not clear from the statutes whether poor relief became a town charge in such cases; but it may be presumed this was the intent of the law. During the twenty years from 1849 to 1869, however, special acts were passed providing for town support of the poor in seventeen counties, mostly in the northern part of the State.¹

Town Officers—The Act of 1854 amending the township law provided that in towns of over 2,000 population, one justice of the peace and one constable should be elected for each 1,000 inhabitants up to 5,000.

The revised township law of 1861 provided that highway commissioners should be elected for a term of three years, one retiring each year.

An Act of Feb. 16, 1865, constituted the supervisor, assessor and town clerk a board of health, in counties where the Act was adopted by the board of supervisors.

By Act of March 8, 1869, the supervisor was to act ex officio as overseer of the poor.

Adoption of Township Organization—At the election in November, 1849, twenty-four counties voted to adopt township organization. This included seventeen counties north of the Illinois River (Cook, Lake, McHenry, Boone, Winnebago, Stephenson, Carroll, Ogle, Lee, Bureau, LaSalle, DeKalb, Kane, DuPage, Kendall, Grundy and Will); also seven counties in the central part of the State—four on the Illinois River (Marshall, Peoria, Tazewell and Fulton); and three on the Mississippi River (Hancock, Adams and Pike).²

In Knox, Schuyler and Warren counties a majority of those voting on the question were in favor of township organization, but not a majority of those voting at the election; and the Supreme Court held that the vote received did not comply with the constitution requirement.³ In Jasper county a small majority of the vote on the question was in favor of township organization; but apparently not a majority of those voting at the election.²

In the years following, other counties rapidly adopted township organization. By 1860 it had been established in thirty-six additional counties, the township system by this time covering all the counties north and west of the Illinois River except two (Henderson and Calhoun), and also a large block of counties south of the Illinois River in the eastern half of the State and some scattered counties as far south as Wayne. During the next decade ten more counties in the central and southern sections adopted township organization. Thus by the end of the period under the second State Constitution, seventy of the hundred and two counties in Illinois had adopted the township system.

To complete the record on this topic it is convenient to note here the further extension of township government in Illinois since 1870. In the later period the movement has preceded more slowly than in the two decades following the adoption of the second State Constitution.

From 1871 to 1876, seven additional counties adopted the system; from 1883 to 1890, seven others were added; and since the latter date only two counties (Henderson and Williamson) have established township organization, both in 1907. During this period several counties which had adopted the township system have voted to discontinue it, most of them re-adopting it in a few years, as in Jackson, Franklin and Washington counties. Johnson County, however, after adopting township organization appears to have definitely returned to the county system.

In about half the counties now without township organization, the question of adopting the township system has been submitted, in some cases several times—in Cass, Edwards, Menard, Monroe, Morgan, Perry, Scott and Union—but thus far has not been adopted in any of them.

The seventeen counties which do not have township organization in force at the present time are in several groups: One includes seven counties in the extreme southern part of the State; two groups somewhat to the north lie, one on the eastern and one on the western side of the State; a fourth group of four counties is between Sangamon County and the Illinois River in the central part of the State; while Calhoun County occupies an isolated position in the narrow strip between the lower part of the Illinois and the Mississippi rivers.

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION.

No important changes were made in the local organization of school administration in Illinois during the period of the second State Constitution. In 1854 the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction was created, thus permitting the development of further State supervision over the local officials. In 1855 a general revision of the school law was enacted, which provided for a State tax of two mills on the dollar for the support of common schools. In 1865 the title of the county commissioner of schools was changed to county superintendent of schools and the term extended to four years; and at the same time it was made his duty "to visit every school in his county at least at once every year," thus strengthening the county supervision over local school management.

CITIES AND VILLAGES.

One of the most important developments in local government in Illinois during the period of the second State Constitution was the marked increase in the number of incorporated cities and villages. In 1848 there were only five cities in the State; the census reports of 1870 show 43 cities, all but two with a population over 2,000, and aggregating 570,000, more than one-fifth of the total population.¹ In addition, several hundred villages and incorporated towns had been organized and by 1870 there were about 500 incorporated municipalities in the State.²

A general law provided for the incorporation of towns; but most of the municipalities were incorporated as cities or villages by special Acts of the General Assembly; and these special charters were in turn amended and revised by numerous supplementary Acts. The volume of this special and local legislation comprised a large part of the output of legislative measures; and its mass is too great to permit of any analysis of the plans of municipal organization in this discussion.

Attention should however be given to the relation between this multiplication of incorporated municipalities and the adoption and importance of township organization. On the one hand the proportion of very small villages and incorporated towns seems to be distinctly larger in counties not under township organization than in counties which had adopted the township system.³ On the other hand the organization of comparatively small villages in counties under the township system, shows that the township law did not provide for the needs of the village communities, which form the most important part of the function of New England towns; and the separate organization of the villages and small cities served to decrease the relative importance of township government in Illinois.

² The Official List of Incorporated Municipalities of Illinois, compiled and published by the Secretary of State in 1902, shows 395 Cities and Villages incorporated by special act before 1870. This does not include incorporated towns organized under the general law; and the census reports of 1870, while omitting many places in the "official list," at the same time shows a number of "towns" organized as parts of townships which are not in the "official list." A large number of them were very small places. 180 of the 300 Cities and Towns shown in the census of 1870 had less than 1,000 population; and half a dozen "Towns" had less than 100. The smallest was Petersburg in Washington County, with a population of 35.

THIRD STATE CONSTITUTION, 1870-1912.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF 1869-70.

In the Constitutional convention of 1869-70 many changes and additions were proposed in relation to local government; and the new Constitution contained a considerable number of new provisions, modifying the former arrangements but without making radical changes.

To prevent the evils and abuses of special and local legislation, the general assembly was prohibited from passing such laws on a list of 23 enumerated subjects, and in addition in all other cases where a general law can be made applicable.

A good deal of attention was again given to the regulation for the creation of new counties and the removal of county seats. It was provided that if a portion of a county is added to another county, voters on the question of removing county seats must reside in the county six months before election, and in the precinct ninety days; and the question of removal of a county seat shall not be submitted oftener than once in ten years. There was submitted separately the question whether a three-fifths vote should be required for the removal of a county seat further from the center of the county; and the three-fifths vote was adopted. Under these restrictions there have been practically no changes in county boundaries or county seats since 1870.

Provision was made for enlarging the jurisdiction of county courts, and authorizing the election of county judges in districts of two or more counties. Separate probate courts may be established in counties of over 50,000 population. But the administrative powers of county courts were taken away.

A State's attorney was to be elected in and for each county, in place of one for each judicial circuit.

For the management of county business in counties not under township organization there was provided a board of county commissioners, one to be elected each year. For Cook County special provision established a board of fifteen county commissioners, ten elected from the city of Chicago and five from towns outside of the city.¹

The coroner was restored to the list of constitutional county officers and provision was made for electing a recorder of deeds in counties over 60,000 population. Several sections dealt in some detail with the compensation of county officers requiring the General Assembly to regulate fees, and requiring fee officers to make semi-annual reports.

A limitation of 75 cents on the $100 was established for taxes levied by county authorities, unless by a vote of the people of the county.

Counties, cities, townships, school districts and other municipal corporations were forbidden to create or further increase their indebtedness above five per cent on the value of taxable property; and it was further provided that at the time of incurring indebtedness an annual tax should be levied sufficient to pay interest and to discharge the principal within twenty years. This restriction on municipal indebtedness was the result of the extravagant loans made by local authorities during the preceding period, largely for aid to railroads, and aggregating over $50,000,000.²

The provision authorizing township organization was continued with some minor amendments. The vote for the adoption of the township system was made a majority of those "voting at any general election," thus confirming the construction placed by the Supreme Court on the former provision requiring a majority of the legal voters of the county. Provision was also made authorizing, in counties which had adopted township organization, a vote to discontinue this system.

Address to the People of Illinois, in Journal of the Convention, p. 985.

While no important change was made in regard to the township system, some incidental discussion of its merits appears in the debates of the Convention. Early in the Convention, J. C. Haines of Lake County proposed to unite the separate committees on counties and on township organization;¹ and later he brought in a minority report of the committee on counties authorizing the General Assembly, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to provide for township organization in all the counties. In this report the township system was supported primarily for its value as a means of political education.² Still later, in connection with a proposal to print a list of the sixty-six counties under township organization, with the names of the townships, Mr. Haines said: "These political divisions are of some consequence, because our taxes are assessed and collected by them."³

In opposing any attempt to compel counties to establish the township system, Mr. Underwood (of St. Clair County) said:⁴

"I am satisfied that ultimately township organization will be adopted by all the counties, though at present there is great diversity of opinion upon the two systems.

"The old system is doubtless better adapted to a sparse population; but as our counties become settled up and cities and villages arise, township organization will naturally supplant the old system."

Mr. Hanna (of the 10th district—Wayne and Hamilton counties) made the most vigorous criticism of the system of township organization, on the ground of the additional offices created:⁵

"There ought to be just as few officers as the people can get along with. This State is as badly cursed with too many officers, as by any other curse attached to it. In the county I have the honor of representing, this system of township organization has made about 165 new officers. The result is nobody cares about the business he is expected to perform.....

"I know of places where men represent some sixty constituents each [on the Board of Supervisors], while some represent 500 or 600; and I am aware of two townships that have less than fifty voters.....

"The town meeting is responsible to nobody, and our Board of Supervisors simply amounts to a town meeting."

Mr. Vandeventer (of the 25th district—Cass and Brown counties) while personally opposed to the system said the people undoubtedly favored it:⁶

"In my estimation it has never had the essential elements sufficient to recommend itself to the people throughout the State. I have been unable to see that it is peculiarly and intrinsically well calculated to carry on a system of county government." He had opposed it in his own (Brown) County; but in a vote of 1,800 there was 1,200 majority for it. "Democrats, republicans, radicals, copperheads, rebels and ex-rebels—everybody was in favor of it."

Mr. Hart (of the 44th district—LaSalle and Livingston counties) in defending the board of supervisors admitted it might not be the most economical system, but argued that it was satisfactory to the people:

"The system in (my) county has worked well. It may be that it is not the most economical system that might be pursued to accomplish the ends in view; but The people are entirely satisfied with the system which is manifest by re-electing the members, some of them having acted continuously upwards of thirteen years."⁷

From these statements it appears that the system of township organization was popular in most of the State, and was advocated mainly as a means of political education. As to its importance, the only definite statement is in reference to the assessment and collection of taxes. On the other hand, even the supporters of the township system admitted that it was not economical; while its opponents objected to the additional offices. No definite evidence was given as to the popular interest in the town meetings.

CONSTITUTION OF 1870.

The provisions in the Constitution of 1870 relating to local government are given below, new provisions being underscored.

Article IV—Legislative Department.

Special Legislation Prohibited.

Sec. 22. The General Assembly shall not pass local or special laws in any of the following enumerated cases, that is to say, for:

- Granting divorces;
- Changing the names of persons or places;
- Laying out, opening, altering and working roads or highways;
- Vacating roads, town plats, streets, alleys and public grounds;
- Locating or changing county seats;
- Regulating county and township affairs;
- Regulating the practice in courts of justices;
- Regulating the jurisdiction and duties of justices of the peace, police magistrates and constables;
- Providing for changes of venue in civil and criminal cases;
- Incorporating cities, towns or villages, or changing or amending the charter of any town, city or village;
- Providing for the election of members of the board of supervisors in townships, incorporated towns or cities;
- Summoning and impaneling grand or petit juries;
- Providing for the management of common schools;
- Regulating the rate of interest on money;
- The opening and conducting of any election, or designating the place of voting;
- The sale or mortgage of real estate belonging to minors or others under disability;
- Protection of game or fish;
- Chartering or licensing ferries or toll bridges;
- Remitting fines, penalties or forfeitures;
- Creating, increasing or decreasing fees, percentage or allowances of public officers, during the term for which said officers are elected or appointed;
- Changing the law of descent;
- Granting to any corporation, association, or individual, the right to lay down railroad tracks, or amending existing charters for such purposes;
- Granting to any corporation, association or individual any special or exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever;
- In all other cases where a general law can be made applicable, no special law shall be enacted.

Article VI—Judicial Department.

County Courts.

Sec. 18. There shall be elected in and for each county one county judge and one clerk of the county court, whose term of office shall be four years. But the General Assembly may create districts of two or more contiguous counties, in each of which shall be elected one judge, who shall take the place of and exercise the powers and jurisdiction of county judges in such districts. County courts shall be courts of record, and shall have original jurisdiction in all matters of probate, settlement of estates of deceased persons, appointment of guardians and conservators and settlement of their accounts, in all matters relating to apprentices, and in proceedings for the collection of taxes and assessments, and such other jurisdiction as may be provided for by general law.

Sec. 19. Appeals and writs of error shall be allowed from final determinations of county courts, as may be provided by law.

Probate Courts.

Sec. 20. The General Assembly may provide for the establishment of a probate court in each county having a population of over 50,000, and for the election of a judge thereof, whose term of office shall be the same as that of the county judge, and who shall be elected at the same time and in the same manner. Said courts, when established, shall have original jurisdiction of all probate matters, the settlement of estates of deceased persons, the appointment of guardians and conservators, and settlement of their accounts; in all matters relating to apprentices, and in cases of sales of real estate of deceased persons for the payment of debts.

Justices of the Peace and Constables.

Sec. 21. Justices of the peace, police magistrates and constables shall be elected in and for such districts as are, or may be provided by law, and the jurisdiction of such justices of the peace and police magistrates shall be uniform.

State's Attorneys.

Sec. 22. At the election for members of the General Assembly in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and every four years thereafter, there shall be elected a state's attorney in and for each county, in lieu of the state's attorneys now provided by law, whose term of office shall be four years.

Courts of Cook County.

Secs. 23-28. Provides for special courts in Cook County.

Article IX—Revenue.

Sec. 8. County authorities shall never assess taxes the aggregate of which shall exceed seventy-five cents per one hundred dollars' valuation except for the payment of indebtedness existing at the adoption of this Constitution, unless authorized by a vote of the people of the county.

Sec. 9. The General Assembly may vest the corporate authorities of cities, towns and villages with power to make local improvements by special assessment or by special taxation of contiguous property or otherwise. For all other corporate purposes, all municipal corporations may be vested with authority to assess and collect taxes; but such taxes shall be uniform in respect to persons and property within the jurisdiction of the body imposing the same.

Sec. 12. No county, city, township, school district or other municipal corporation shall be allowed to become indebted in any manner or for any purpose to an amount, including existing indebtedness, in the aggregate exceeding five per centum on the value of the taxable property therein, to be ascertained by the last assessment for State and county taxes previous to the incurring of such indebtedness. Any county, city, school district or other municipal corporation incurring any indebtedness as aforesaid, shall before or at the time of doing so, provide for the collection of a direct annual tax sufficient to pay the interest of such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal thereof within twenty years from the time of contracting the same. This section shall not be construed to prevent any county, city, township, school district or other municipal corporation, from issuing their bonds in compliance with any vote of the people which may have been had prior to the adoption of this Constitution in pursuance of any law providing therefor.

Article X—Counties.

• Sec. 1. No new county shall be formed or established by the General Assembly which will reduce the county or counties, or either of them, from which it shall be taken to less contents than four hundred square miles; nor shall any county be formed of less contents; nor shall any line thereof pass within less than ten miles of any county seat of the county or counties proposed to be divided.

Sec. 2. No county shall be divided, or have any part stricken therefrom without submitting the question to a vote of the people of the county, nor unless a majority of all the legal voters of the county voting on the question shall vote for the same.

Sec. 3. There shall be no territory stricken from any county unless a majority of the voters living in such territory shall petition for such division; and no territory shall be added to any county without the consent of the majority of the voters of the county to which it is proposed to be added. But the portion so stricken off and added to another county, or formed in whole or in part into a new county, shall be holden for and obliged to pay its proportion of the indebtedness of the county from which it has been taken.

County Seats.

Sec. 4. No county seat shall be removed until the point to which it is proposed to remove shall be fixed in pursuance of law, and three-fifths of the voters of the county, to be ascertained in such manner as shall be provided by general law, shall have voted in favor of its removal to such point; and no person shall vote on such question who has not resided in the county six months and in the election precinct ninety days next preceding such election. The question of the removal of a county seat shall not be oftener submitted than once in ten years to a vote of the people. But when an attempt is made to remove a county seat to a point nearer to the center of the county, then a majority vote only shall be necessary.

County Government.

Sec. 5. The General Assembly shall provide, by general law, for township organization, under which any county may organize whenever a majority of the legal voters of such county, voting at any general election, shall so determine; and whenever any county shall adopt township organization, so much of this Constitution as provides for the management of the fiscal concerns of the said county by the board of county commissioners, may be dispensed with, and the affairs of said county may be transacted in such manner as the General Assembly may provide. And in any county that shall have adopted a township organization, the question of continuing the same may be submitted to a vote of the electors of such county, at a general election, in the manner that now is or may be provided by law; and if a majority of all the votes cast upon that question shall be against township organization, then such organization shall cease in said county; and all laws in force in relation to counties not having township organization shall immediately take effect and be in force in such county. No two townships shall have the same name, and the day of holding the annual township meeting shall be uniform throughout the State.

Sec. 6. At the first election of county judges under this Constitution, there shall be elected in each of the counties in this State not under township organization, three officers, who shall be styled, "The Board of County Commissioners," who shall hold sessions for the transaction of county business as shall be provided by law. One of said commissioners shall hold his office for one year, one for two years and one for three years, to be determined by lot; and every year thereafter, one such officer shall be elected in each of said counties for the term of three years.

Sec. 7. The county affairs of Cook County shall be managed by a board of commissioners of fifteen persons, ten of whom shall be elected from the city of Chicago and five from towns outside of said city, in such manner as may be provided by law.

County Officers and Their Compensation.

Sec. 8. In each county there shall be elected the following county officers, at a general election to be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1882: A county judge, county clerk, sheriff and treasurer, and at the election to be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1884, a coroner and clerk of the circuit court (who may be ex officio recorder of deeds, except in counties having 60,000 and more inhabitants, in which counties a recorder of deeds shall be elected at the general election in 1884.) Each of said officers shall enter upon the duties of his office, respectively, on the first Monday of December after his election, and they shall hold their respective offices for the term of four years, and until their successors are elected and qualified: Provided, that no person having once been elected to the office of sheriff or treasurer shall be eligible to re-election to said office for four years after the expiration of the term for which he shall have been elected.¹

Sec. 9. The clerks of all courts of record, the treasurer, sheriff, coroner and recorder of deeds of Cook County, shall receive as their only compensation for their services, salaries to be fixed by law, which shall in no case be as much as the lawful compensation of a judge of the circuit court of said county and shall be paid respectively only out of the fees of the office actually collected. All fees, perquisites and emoluments (above the amount of said salaries) shall be paid into the county treasury. The number of the deputies and assistants of such officers shall be determined by rule of the circuit court, to be entered of record, and their compensation shall be determined by the county board.

Sec. 10. The county board, except as provided in section nine of this article, shall fix the compensation of all county officers, with the amount of their necessary clerk hire, stationery, fuel and other expenses and in all cases where fees are provided for, said compensation shall be paid only out of, and shall in no instance exceed, the fees actually collected; they shall not allow either of them more per annum than fifteen hundred dollars, in counties not exceeding twenty thousand inhabitants; two thousand dollars in counties containing twenty thousand and not exceeding thirty thousand inhabitants; twenty-five hundred dollars, in counties containing thirty thousand and not exceeding fifty thousand inhabitants; three thousand dollars in counties containing fifty thousand and not exceeding seventy thousand inhabitants; thirty-five hundred dollars in counties containing seventy thousand and not exceeding one hundred thousand inhabitants; and four thousand dollars in counties containing over one hundred thousand and not exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand, and not more than one thousand dollars additional compensation for each additional one hundred thousand inhabitants: Provided, that the compensation of no officer shall be increased or diminished during his term of office. All fees or allowances by them received, in excess of their said compensation, shall be paid into the county treasury.

Sec. 11. The fees of township officers, and of each class of county officers, shall be uniform in the class of counties to which they respectively belong. The compensation herein provided for shall apply only to officers hereafter elected, but all fees established by special laws shall cease at the adoption of this Constitution, and such officers shall receive only such fees as are provided by general law.

Sec. 12. All laws fixing the fees of the State, county and township officers shall terminate with the terms respectively of those who may be in office at the meeting of the first General Assembly after the adoption of this Constitution; and the General Assembly shall, by general law, uniform in its operation, provide for and regulate the fees of said officers and their successors, so as to reduce the same to a reasonable compensation for services actually rendered. But the General Assembly may, by general law, classify the counties by population into not more than three classes and regulate the fees according to class. This article shall not be construed as depriving the General Assembly of the power to reduce the fees of existing officers.

Sec. 13. Every person who is elected or appointed to any office in this State, who shall be paid in whole or in part by fees, shall be required by law to make a semi-annual report, under oath, to some officer to be designated by law, of all his fees and emoluments.

REVISED STATUTES OF 1874.

A commission had been established by the General Assembly in 1869 to revise and rewrite the General Statutes of the State. The adoption of the new Constitution added to the work, and this delayed the completion of the revision until after the adjournment of the Twenty-seventh General Assembly. That Assembly, however, at its regular, adjourned and special sessions in 1871 and 1872, passed a number of important laws relating to local government, including:

Several Acts relating to fees and salaries of county and township officers—approved February 13, March 29 and April 9, 1872.

An Act in regard to roads and bridges, approved March 21, 1872.

An Act to provide for the removal of county seats, approved March 15, 1872.

An Act for the assessment of property and for the levy and collection of taxes, approved April 1, 1872.

An Act in regard to elections, and to provide for filling vacancies in elective offices, approved April 3, 1872.

An Act to provide for the construction and protection of drains, ditches, levees and other works, approved April 9, 1872.

An Act to provide for the incorporation of cities and villages, approved April 10, 1872.

The provisions of these Acts were for the most part incorporated in the corresponding chapters of the Revised Statutes, as adopted by the General Assembly in 1873 and 1874. But the chapter of the Revised Statutes on Roads and Bridges repealed the Act of 1872 on that subject.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT.

The revised county law of 1873 contained elaborate provisions in regard to the creation of new counties, the alteration of county boundaries and the removal of county seats; provisions in regard to the new system of county commissioners, with special provisions as to the county commissioners of Cook County; and provisions for issuing county bonds on submission to the voters, not to exceed the constitutional limit of 5 per cent of the value of taxable property.

After the revision of 1874 but few Acts amending or supplementing the county law were passed up to 1900. An Act of 1875 made further provision for acquiring sites for county buildings.¹ An Act of 1879 provided for the union of counties.² An Act of 1887 authorized the appointment of jury commissioners in counties where approved by popular vote; and an amending Act of 1897 required the appointment of such commissioners in counties with over 100,000 population.¹ An Act of 1893 revised the special provisions for the board of county commissioners for Cook County, providing for the election by popular vote of a president of the board, with a limited veto power and power of appointment.²

Since 1900 a considerable number of laws have been passed relating to county government. The more important deal with county finances, public health and safety and charities, as follows:

An Act of 1901 providing for boards of health in counties and towns; and an Act of 1893 for the relief of the blind.³

An Act of 1905 providing for the issue of county bonds; Acts of 1907 and 1911 establishing the office of county auditor in Cook County and counties over 75,000 population; and an Act of 1909 regulating the levy of a tax over the 75 cents limitation by vote of the people.⁴

An Act of 1905 concerning the classified civil service of Cook County.⁵

Acts of 1907 authorizing detention homes and pensions to poor parents of children; an Act of 1909 authorizing county boards to provide a tuberculosis sanitarium; and Acts of 1911 authorizing county hospitals and providing for the appointment of county mine inspectors.⁶

TOWNSHIP GOVERNMENT.

The township law in the Revised Statutes of 1874⁷ made some changes in the powers of towns and the provisions for town officers. Probably the most important was the restriction on the power of taxation. Under the former laws the town meetings could levy taxes for certain specified purposes (for roads and bridges and for expenses of law suits) and also for "any purpose they may deem necessary." The law of 1874 limited the general grant to "any other purpose required by law."⁸ On the other hand some additional specific powers were conferred on the town meeting as follows:

To offer inducements for the planting and care of trees along highways.

To construct and keep in repair public wells and watering places.

To prevent the deposit of night soil or other offensive substances within the limits of the town.

It was further provided that in towns co-extensive with incorporated cities or villages, the town meeting should not exercise most of the powers, but the county board should provide for raising money for town expenses.

Provision was made for the election of additional supervisors from the more populous towns under a general rule, in place of the former special Acts.

In place of the optional law of 1865, the supervisor, town clerk and assessor in every town were constituted a board of health.

Few changes in the system of township government have been made since 1874. An Act of 1877 provided that the territory within any city might be incorporated as a town, vested the powers of such towns in the city councils, and provided for combining city and town officers and discontinuing highway commissioners in such towns.⁹ Amendments to this Act were passed in 1883 and 1905. More recently, by Act of 1899 and subsequent amendments, the townships in the city of Chicago have been consolidated; and the functions of town officers transferred to city or county officers.¹⁰ By an Act of 1901, in townships included in cities of over 50,000 population the powers of town officers may be transferred to county officers. By the revenue law of 1898 the town assessment of property has been subject to further supervision by county authorities. The most important change in the general system of township government has been that from one to two years in the term of most of the town officers. This was provided for supervisors in 1889,¹ and for town clerks, assessors and collectors in 1909.² Another Act of 1909 readjusted the compensation of town officers.³

TAX ADMINISTRATION.

The revenue law of 1872 further elaborated the statutory rules for listing and valuing property, increasing the number of items of personal property required to be scheduled; it provided for a review of assessments in counties under township organization, by the assessor, clerk and supervisor of each town; it also enlarged the powers of the county boards, authorizing them to review and correct individual assessments, as well as to assess property not assessed by the assessor and to equalize the total valuation of towns; and it reorganized the State Board of Equalization and added to its authority that of assessing railroad property and the capital stock of Illinois corporations.⁴

An Act of 1893 provided for the election of a board of three assessors in townships over 40,000 population;⁵ but this was repealed in 1901.

An Act of 1898 made important changes in assessment methods, especially in counties under township organization. It recognized the practice of undervaluation in the assessment of property by providing that the taxable value should be one-fifth of the "full value." It made the county treasurer supervisor of assessments, with the same authority as the town assessor to assess and to make changes or alterations in the assessment of property. It provided for county boards of review with enlarged powers. In Cook County, the town assessors in the city of Chicago were abolished; and an elected county board of assessors and board of review were established.⁶

The Act of 1898 also provided for a limitation on the aggregate debt and tax rates in any county over 125,000 population; but this was held to be unconstitutional. An Act of 1901 (the Juul law), however, established a general limitation on tax rates and provided that when the aggregate tax rate exceeded 5 per cent (on the one-fifth valuation) the county clerk should reduce the rates of the various taxing districts.⁷ Finally an Act of 1909 provides that the taxable value of property shall be one-third of the "full value" and also provides for a corresponding reduction in the aggregate tax rate, the normal maximum being fixed at 3 per cent.⁸

ROAD AND BRIDGE LAWS.

A great deal of legislation on roads and bridges has been enacted since the adoption of the Constitution of 1870. Practically every session of the General Assembly has seen some Acts passed; and general revisions of the road and bridge laws have been passed on several occasions. Passing over the greater portion of the detailed changes, some of the most important statutes may be noted, relating to the introduction of elective road commissioners in counties not under township organization, changes in the amount of road and bridge tax and the beginnings of State aid for road work in Illinois.

In 1872 a general road and bridge law was passed, only to be repealed by another law in 1873 forming part of the Revised Statutes. The Act of 1872, among other things, had provided that in counties not under township organization, each congressional township should form a road district, in which there should be elected three highway commissioners with powers similar to the highway commissioners of towns.¹

The road and bridge law in the Revised Statutes of 1873 returned to the former system. In counties not under township organization, the county board was given general superintendence of roads, with power to form road districts, appoint road supervisors, and assess road taxes, not exceeding 20 cents on the $100 in addition to the labor tax, or not exceeding 40 cents on the $100 where the tax system was elected as a whole. In counties under township organization, highway commissioners were elected by towns, with power to assess the labor tax, and a money road tax not to exceed 40 cents on the $100.²

In 1877 a new road and bridge law for counties under township organization was enacted. This provided for a poll tax of $2.00 on each able bodied man, and authorized highway commissioners to levy a property tax not exceeding 40 cents on the $100 for making and repairing roads (the tax from incorporated cities and villages to go to such cities and villages) and a tax of not over 40 cents on the $100 for bridges, new roads, tools, machinery and materials and outstanding orders.³

Two years later another revision of this road law for counties under township organization repealed the Act of 1877, restored the labor tax in place of the poll tax, but repeated the provisions for property taxes in the law of 1877, and provided also that with ten days' notice and a vote of the town meeting an additional tax of not over 40 cents on the $100 might be levied.⁴

Still another general revision of the road and bridge law for counties under township organization, passed in 1883, introduced further complications in the provisions for road taxes. The highway commissioners were again authorized to levy a poll tax, and also a tax on the property of the town for road and bridge purposes not to exceed 60 cents on the $100, and with the consent of a majority of the board of town auditors an additional levy of not over 40 cents on the $100. Other sections of this Act authorized town meetings to establish a labor system for payment of road taxes; and for towns adopting the labor system, repeated the provisions of the Act of 1879 for a tax of not over 40 cents for making and repairing roads, a tax of not over 40 cents, for bridges, new roads, etc., to be levied on real and personal property and railroad property, while an additional levy of not over 40 cents might be made with notice and a vote of the town meeting.⁵

There was also passed in 1883 an Act to authorize the construction and maintenance of gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads, on petition and vote of town or road district meetings, authorizing a tax of not to exceed $1.00 on the $100.⁶

In 1887 a general revision of the road law for counties not under township organization was passed, under the title: "An Act to provide for the organization of road districts, the election and duties of officers thereof, and in regard to roads and bridges in counties not under township organization, and to repeal an Act or parts of Acts therein named." This required the county boards to form road districts, composed of territory not less than a congressional township, each district to have a corporate capacity, and to elect three highway commissioners and a district clerk, for terms of three years, one commissioner to retire each year. Elections were fixed for the first Tuesday in March and vacancies were to be filled by the county board. The highway commissioners should assess a poll tax of from $1.00 to $5.00 and levy a money tax for road purposes not to exceed 100 cents on the $100.⁷ This Act established in counties not under township organization, much the same system of local road administration as in counties under township organization. Local school administration was already organized on a uniform system throughout the State, and justices of the peace were elected locally in all counties. So that from this time the distinction between the two systems of local government in Illinois was of little importance so far as local affairs were concerned, and the main points of difference were in the assessment and collection of taxes and the organization of the county board.

By Act of 1889 the maximum road tax in counties not under township organization was reduced and was not to exceed 50 cents on the $100, and one-half of the tax on property in incorporated cities, towns and villages should go to incorporated municipalities. Provision was also made for working out the poll tax.¹

In 1905 provision was made for an additional levy in counties not under township organization, not to exceed 20 cents on the $100 for damages on account of new roads drains and ditches.²

An optional Act of 1901, for counties not under township organization, authorized any such counties by popular vote to restore the system of county road administration, under which the county board should again appoint road supervisors and levy road taxes, in place of the decentralized system of highway commissioners, elected by road districts, established in 1887.³

An Act of 1903 provided that one-half of the tax for bridges, new roads and machinery collected from property in incorporated cities and villages in counties under township organization should go to such cities for roads and streets, and in cities of over 35,000 population all of this tax should be given to the city.⁴ An Act of 1909 provides that in cities of over 20,000 population, all of the road and bridge tax assessed and collected within the limits of the city shall go to the city treasurer for city purposes.⁵ An Act of 1911 authorizes a road and bridge tax in towns which are coterminous with cities.

The first step towards any systematic State aid for road work in Illinois was taken by an Act of 1903 providing for a temporary good roads commission. This consisted of three persons, appointed by the Governor and Senate, to investigate the problems of road building, and to report to the next General Assembly with a bill for an Act to amend the road laws.⁶

In 1905 an Act was passed establishing a permanent State Highway Commission of three members, appointed by the Governor and Senate, to collect information as to existing road conditions, to investigate and to carry on experimental work in road building, and to furnish recommendations and advice to local officials relative to the construction and maintenance of highways and bridges, with power to appoint a State Engineer.⁷

Other Acts of this year provided for the employment of convicts in the State prisons in the preparation and manufacture of crushed rock and other road materials, and for furnishing such road materials to local road officials on the requisition of the State Highway Commission.⁸

The motor vehicle law of 1907 provided for a registration fee of $2.00 on motor vehicles.⁹ The amended law of 1911 provides for annual fees ranging from $2.00 to $10.00.¹⁰

In 1909 the sections of the road laws regulating the amount of road taxes were amended, the rates being reduced to correspond to the increase in the basis of assessment from one-fifth to one-third of "full value," established by an amendment of the revenue law. In counties under township organization the ordinary road tax rate for towns under the money system was not to exceed 36 cents on the $100, while an additional levy of not over 25 cents might be made with the consent of the board of town auditors; for towns under the labor system, the rates of the property tax was not to exceed 25 cents for maintenance and repair, not over 25 cents for bridges, new roads and machinery, while an additional rate of not over 25 cents might be levied by vote of the town meeting. In counties not under township organization, the road tax should not exceed 30 cents on the $100, with an additional rate of not over 12 cents for damages on account of new roads, drains and ditches.¹

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION.

A general revision of the school law in 1872 was mainly a codification and simplification of the law of 1855 with the numerous acts amending and supplementing that law; and made no important change in the general system of school administration. But in the section dealing with the annual visitation of schools by the county superintendent, the phrase "if so directed by the county board" was introduced; and as a result of this change the county supervision of schools passed almost into abeyance. "At the time the change was made only 10 per cent of the public schools of the State were left unvisited by the county superintendent. Eight years after the change 66 per cent of the schools were left unvisited. In forty counties there was no visitation, and in twenty-four counties practically none."²

In 1873 a further relaxation of higher control over local schools was brought about by providing a State appropriation of $1,000,000 in lieu of the two mill tax for State purposes. This was about the amount of the two mill tax on the basis of the former assessed valuation; and the change was probably due to the marked increase in valuations expected (and attained for a short time) under the revenue law of this year. But the amount of the State appropriation remained fixed at this amount; and with the increase in the value of property this has meant a steady decrease in the relative amount of State aid. In 1873 the State grant had equalled more than one-eighth of the total school expenditure. In 1908 it was less than one thirty-second of the school expenditure.³

The revised school law of 1872 was enlarged and amended by "external and unsystematized accretions" from time to time, until another general revision, authorized by the Thirty-fifth General Assembly and made under the direction of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, was passed May 21, 1889. This continued the same general system of administration as before. Following this Act, another process of growth by unorganized additions of amending and supplementary acts took place.

In 1907 an educational commission was authorized to make a thorough investigation of the common school system of Illinois and of other school systems, and to report with recommendations. This commission presented a comprehensive report in 1909, with a revised code of the existing law and a series of amending bills. The code was enacted, including a number of amendments.⁴ This new code, however, continues the main features of the former system of administration; and recommendations of the educational commission in favor of the township unit in place of the school district, and for a State Board of Education have not been adopted.

The Appropriation Act of 1911 increased the State grant for schools to $2,000,000 a year.

CITIES AND VILLAGES.

The regime of special charters for the incorporation and government of cities and villages was sharply brought to a close in Illinois by the restrictions on special legislation in the Constitution of 1870. The first General Assembly under the new Constitution passed a general law for the incorporation of cities and villages,¹ which was by far the most effective and best general law on municipal government in the United States up to that time. This Act could be adopted by any existing city or village in place of its special charter; and has been adopted by nearly all the cities, villages and incorporated towns in the State. The act also provided for the creation of new cities and villages. It provided a system of municipal government comparatively simple as compared with the complicated methods of organization then common in this county, vesting most of the powers in an elective mayor and council. The mayor was given large powers of appointment and removal; and the council was granted a considerable range of enumerated powers, including the important authority to create municipal offices as needed.

The new system of municipal government, however, did not provide for the consolidation of all local functions in the municipal authorities. Cities and villages continued to form parts of the towns within which they were located; and the town governments overlapped that of the incorporated municipalities. The management of schools also continued in the hands of separate authorities; and in some cities special park boards exist as distinct corporate bodies. These complications have continued, and have been increased by the creation of other special authorities for drainage and sanitary districts.

Numerous acts have been passed amending and supplementing the general law of 1872. Some of these have been made applicable to all cities and villages; and many have been made part of the general law and applicable to all cities and villages which are operating under it. A number of these later laws, however, in part evade the constitutional restriction on special legislation by being applicable only to certain classes of cities or being in force only in such cities or villages as vote to adopt them. Such acts have been most often passed with reference to the city of Chicago; and the necessity for special legislation for this metropolitan community—under the prevailing system of specified enumerated grants of power—finally led to the adoption of the following amendment to the Constitution in 1904, authorizing special legislation for Chicago subject to a local referendum.²

Article IV—Legislative Department.

Sec. 34. The General Assembly shall have power, subject to the conditions and limitations hereinafter contained, to pass any law (local, special or general) providing a scheme or charter of local municipal government for the territory now or hereafter embraced within the limits of the city of Chicago. The law or laws so passed may provide for consolidating (in whole or in part) in the municipal government of the city of Chicago, the powers now vested in the city, board of education, township, park and other local governments and authorities having jurisdiction confined to or within said territory, or any part thereof, and for the assumption by the city of Chicago of the debts and liabilities (in whole or in part) of the governments or corporate authorities whose functions within its territory shall be vested in said city of Chicago, and may authorize said city, in the event of its becoming liable for the indebtedness of two or more of the existing municipal corporations lying wholly within said city of Chicago, to become indebted to an amount (including its existing indebtedness and the indebtedness of all municipal corporations lying wholly within the limits of said city, and said city's proportionate share of the indebtedness of said county and sanitary district, which share shall be determined in such manner as the General Assembly shall prescribe) in the aggregate not exceeding 5 per centum of the full value of the taxable property within its limits, as ascertained by the last assessment either for State or municipal purposes previous to the incurring of such indebtedness (but no new bonded indebtedness, other than for refunding purposes, shall be incurred until the proposition therefor shall be consented to by a majority of the legal voters of said city voting on the question at any election, general, municipal or special); and may provide for the assessment of property and the levy and collection of taxes within said city for corporate purposes in accordance with the principles of equality and uniformity prescribed by this Constitution; and may abolish all offices, the functions of which shall be otherwise provided for; and may provide for the annexation of territory to or disconnection of territory from said city of Chicago by the consent of a majority of the legal voters (voting on the question at any election, general, municipal or special) of the said city and of a majority of the voters of such territory, voting on the question at any election, general, municipal or special; and in case the General Assembly shall create municipal courts in the city of Chicago it may abolish the offices of justices of the peace, police magistrates and constables in and for the territory within said city, and may limit the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in the territory of said county of Cook outside of said city to that territory, and in such case the jurisdiction and practice of said municipal courts shall be such as the General Assembly shall prescribe; and the General Assembly may pass all laws which it may deem requisite to effectually provide a complete system of local municipal government in and for the city of Chicago.

No law based upon this amendment to the Constitution, affecting the municipal government of the city of Chicago, shall take effect until such law shall be consented to by a majority of the legal voters of said city voting on the question at any election, general, municipal or special; and no local or special law based upon this amendment affecting specially any part of the city of Chicago shall take effect until consented to by a majority of the legal voters of such part of said city voting on the question at any election, general, municipal or special. Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to repeal, amend or affect section four (4) of article XI of the Constitution of this State.

Among the Acts amending and supplementing the general municipal law of 1872, the following may be noted:

An Act relating to the powers of the mayor, in 1875.

Acts relating to pensions for police, firemen and other municipal employees in 1877, 1887, 1895, 1907, 1909 and 1911.

Acts relating to sidewalks, sewerage, parks, harbors and other local improvements and special assessments, in 1879, 1883, 1885, 1897, 1899 and 1911.

Acts relating to sanitary districts, in 1889, 1901 and 1903.

An Act providing for annexation of territory to cities and villages, in 1889.

Acts relating to the civil service of cities, in 1895 and 1911.

Acts providing for the construction, maintenance, purchase and lease of municipal water works, in 1873, 1899, 1907 and 1911.

An Act authorizing municipal ownership and operation of street railways, in 1903.

An optional Act relating to boards of police and fire commissioners, in 1903.

Acts relating to bonds, taxes and municipal funds, in 1909 and 1911.

Acts relating to commission government, in 1910 and 1911.

The general tendency of this legislation has been a remarkable development in the scope and importance of municipal functions; and the government of municipalities now constitutes much the most significant part of local government.

The rapidly increasing importance of municipal government is further shown by the growth in the number and population of cities and villages, as compared with the growth in the total population of the State. The number of cities has increased from 43 in 1870 to 241 in 1910; the number of villages and incorporated towns has increased to 822 in 1910; and the total number of incorporated municipalities in 1910 was 1,063, about double the number in 1870.

In population the growth has been still more striking. As shown by the table below, the aggregate population in municipalities of over 5,000 inhabitants was 520,418 in 1870 and 3,237,042 in 1910, having multiplied more than six times, while the total population of the State has little more than doubled. The proportion of the total population in such places has increased from 20.5 per cent to 57.4 per cent. Including the smaller municipalities, the aggregate population is nearly three-fourths (73.4 per cent) of the total; excluding Chicago, the population of the other incorporated municipalities is larger than the strictly rural population of the State outside of cities, villages and incorporated towns; and the latter population seems to be less than it was in 1870.

Such marked changes in the distribution of population have decidedly decreased the relative importance of township government. Fifty years ago the township and school district systems offered the only means of distinctly local government to more than three-fourths of the people of the State. Today, nearly three-fourths of the population are under other municipal governments which look after much the most important part of their local affairs. In Chicago and a dozen other municipalities co-extensive or larger than townships, and comprising two-fifths of the population of the State, the township government has been practically absorbed by other local authorities.

STATE SUPERVISION AND CONTROL.

One of the most significant tendencies in local government in the United States during the past forty years has been the development of State administration in fields of public activity formerly left to local action. This movement has been in part indicated by the development of State institutions and the transfer of some branches of public work to State authorities, and in part by the introduction of State administrative supervision over local authorities. These recent tendencies have been distinctly less marked in Illinois than in many of the other states, and much less than in the other important states with which Illinois ranks in population and industrial development. Nevertheless, there has been some movement in this direction, which should be noted as one element in the administrative development under the Constitution of 1870.

EDUCATION.

State supervision of local administration began in the field of public education; and in no other field is this tendency so firmly established and accepted. Reference has already been made to the land grants of the national government in aid of schools; to the State school tax introduced by the school law of 1855, and to the office of State Superintendent of Public Schools established in 1854. This officer exercises a general supervision over all the public schools of the State; he is the legal adviser of the county superintendents and other local school officers; and he hears and determines appeals from the county superintendents. He receives reports and collects financial and other statistics regarding the public schools of the State, which form the only satisfactory data in regard to the operations of local officials in this State. He may cause to be withheld any portion of this fund from the local officials for certain delinquencies. He grants State certificates to teachers; and is ex officio a member of the boards of trustees of the State educational institutions.

In addition to the supervision over the local public schools, the State of Illinois has established and maintained a number of State educational institutions. The first State normal school was established in 1857, at Normal. The State University was authorized in 1867. Other normal schools have been established at Carbondale (in 1869), at Charleston and DeKalb (in 1895) and at Macomb (in 1899). Each of these institutions is under the general management of a separate board of trustees. The trustees of the University are elected by popular vote. The trustees of the normal schools are appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate.

PUBLIC CHARITY.

State administration in the field of public charity in Illinois has developed mainly by the establishment of State institutions for the care of special classes of dependents. Only to a slight degree has any administrative supervision over local institutions and officers been introduced. The several State institutions, with the dates of their establishment are as follows:

- School for the Deaf, Jacksonville, established in 1839.
- Central Hospital for the Insane, Jacksonville, established in 1847.
- School for the Blind, Jacksonville, established in 1849.
- Asylum for Feeble Minded Children, Lincoln, established in 1865.
- Soldiers' Orphans' Home, Normal, established in 1865.
- Southern Hospital for Insane, Anna, established in 1869.
- Northern Hospital for the Insane, Elgin, established in 1869.
- Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary, Chicago, established in 1871.
- Eastern Hospital for Insane, Kankakee, established in 1877.
- Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, Quincy, established in 1885.
- Industrial Home for the Blind, Chicago, established in 1887.
- Asylum for Insane Criminals, Chester, established in 1891.
- Training School for Girls, Geneva, established in 1893.
- Western Hospital for Insane, Watertown, established in 1895.
- General Hospital for the Insane, Peoria, established in 1895.
- Soldiers' Widows' Home, Wilmington, established in 1895.
- St. Charles School for Boys, St. Charles, established in 1901.
- State Colony for Epileptics, (authorized),

Each of these institutions was established by an Act of the General Assembly declaring its purposes and enumerating its powers. Before 1910, the control of each institution was vested in a separate board of trustees or managers, appointed by the Governor and Senate. Each board appointed a superintendent and treasurer, adopted by-laws, rules and regulations for the management of the institutions entered into contracts and purchased supplies. The superintendent of each institution, with the consent of the trustees, appointed subordinate officers and employees, and had the direct management of the institution. Separate appropriations were made for each institution payable quarterly in advance on warrants drawn on the State Auditor.

The first action towards any general supervision over public charity in Illinois was taken by the creation of the State Board of Public Charities by Act of 1869. Illinois was the fourth state to establish such a board. This board consisted of five members, appointed by the Governor and Senate, for terms of five years, one member each year. The members received no salary, but employed a secretary. The duties of the board were to visit and inspect twice each year all State charitable institutions, all county almshouses and jails and all places where insane were kept. Its investigations of public institutions included methods of government and administration, financial management and efficiency.

A step towards the more centralized and efficient management of the State institutions was taken by the creation of the State Civil Service Commission by Act of 1905. This Act placed the selection of employees in the State charitable institutions under the merit system, by means of competitive examinations conducted by the civil service commission. This not only eliminated political influence in appointments and promotions, and prohibited political assessments; but also concentrated the work of recruiting the staff of these institutions.

By Act of 1909 further important changes were made in the State administration of public charity in Illinois. A State Board of Administration was created, and in its hands were centralized the administration of all the State charitable institutions, with some powers of supervision over local and private charity. At the same time the State Board of Public Charities was replaced by a State Charities Commission, with powers of inspection over State and local charities.

The State Board of Administration consists of five members, appointed by the Governor and Senate. One member is designated by the Governor as president and executive officer of the board. One member is required to be qualified by experience to advise regarding the care and treatment of the insane. The board chooses one of its members as fiscal supervisor and one as secretary. Each member receives a salary of $6,000 a year, and must devote his entire time to his board duties. The terms of one or two members expire every second year. Any member may be removed by the Governor for incompetency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office.

The board is constituted a body corporate, succeeds to all property of former boards of trustees, managers or commissioners of the 17 State charitable institutions, and has executive and administrative supervision over all such institutions. It appoints the managing officers of each institution, and is required to visit each institution once in three months. The financial administration has been largely centralized, under the supervision of the fiscal supervisor. A consolidated appropriation for ordinary expenses of all the institutions is made, based on estimates by the State Board of Administration. Supplies are purchased by contract in large quantities. The separate treasurers for such institutions are abolished; and the funds remain with the State Treasurer until paid out on vouchers audited by the auditor of public accounts. The alienist member of the board supervises the medical work of the institutions.

In addition to its authority over the State institutions, the State Board of Administration has power to investigate almshouses, outdoor relief, orphanages, children's home finding associations, lying-in hospitals and all charitable institutions which appeal to the public for aid; also county jails, city prisons, houses of correction and workhouses. Plans and specifications for erecting, adding to or remodeling jails, almshouses, county prisons or other buildings used for detention or correctional purposes must be submitted to the board for its suggestions and criticisms. The board also licenses all institutions for treating those afflicted with mental and nervous diseases.

The State Charities Commission consists of five members appointed by the Governor, one member's term expiring each year. The members serve without compensation; but it has a paid secretary and an inspector of institutions. This board continues the work of the State Board of Charities, freed from the administrative duties of that body. It is charged to investigate "the whole system of public charitable institutions of the State, examine into the condition and management thereof, especially of the State hospitals, jails and almshouses,"

As auxiliaries to the State Charities Commission, the Governor appoints a board of visitors for each of the State Charitable institutions, who serve without pay other than actual expenses. The commission has also appointed a board of auxiliary visitors in each county to inspect its jail and almshouse. Some of the conditions shown in the inspection of local institutions will be noted in the discussion of local poor law administration and county jails.

The extent of centralization in the administration of public charity in Illinois may be roughly indicated by a comparison of the number of inmates in State charitable institutions and county almshouses, and the expenditure for public charity by State and county authorities in 1911.

	Inmates.	Expenditures.
County authorities other than Cook County—
Outdoor relief.....	$789,083
County Almshouses and Farms.....	22,968	1530,970
Cook County.....	25,159	$1,020,055
		<hr/>
Total.....	8,127	$2,852,358
State Institutions (1911).....	15,830	3,356,587

Since 1911, the Cook County Insane Hospital, with over 2,000 inmates has been taken over by the State. It may be safely estimated that the State institutions now care for nearly three times the number of persons in county almshouses; and that the State expenditures for public charity is about double that of the local authorities in Illinois.

CORRECTIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

The first State institution in Illinois was the first State penitentiary, authorized by Act of 1827, and established at Alton. In 1857 a new penitentiary was authorized and established at Joliet, and the old site and buildings at Alton were sold. An Act of 1867 provided for State reform school, which was erected at Pontiac, and later re-organized into the State Reformatory. In 1877, the Southern Illinois Penitentiary was authorized, and established near Chester.

Most adult persons convicted of crime are now sent to one or other of these State institutions; and the county jails are used only for those awaiting trial or held as witnesses, and those sentenced for short terms.

The administration of the State penitentiaries and reformatory has not been as thoroughly centralized as the State charitable institutions. Each institution has a separate board of commissioners or managers appointed by the Governor and Senate, who appoint the warden or superintendent and other employees (subject since 1911 to civil service rules) and direct the management. But some uniformity of policy has been introduced by the Prison Labor Law of 1903, under which the several boards of commissioners and managers form collectively a Board of Prison Industries, which regulates the employment of convicts in the State institutions and the disposal of the product of their labor. Under this law, as amended in 1905, convicts are employed largely in the manufacture of supplies used by State and local institutions, schools and road districts.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

The State Board of Health, established by Act of 1877, has general supervision over the means of protecting the public health in the State, with some authority to assist and advise the local authorities in sanitary matters.

³ Including all charitable institutions.

By later acts it has been made an examining and licensing board for physicians and surgeons and embalmers, and also compiles records of vital statistics.

Among the activities of the State Board of Health, the following may be noted:

It has maintained quarantine to protect the infectable districts of Illinois from yellow fever at the time of epidemics in the south.

It investigates the prevalence of contagious diseases, and aids in the suppression of epidemics.

It maintains a bacteriological laboratory at Springfield for the scientific diagnosis of diphtheria, tuberculosis, typhoid fever and other dangerously communicable diseases.

It has conducted campaigns of education on the cause and prevention of consumption and on the feeding and care of infants.

It enforces the law prohibiting basement lodging houses and regulating the cubic air space in lodging houses in the city of Chicago.

It investigates the water supplies of cities and advises the local authorities of dangers and means of improvement,¹ and has made preliminary studies of methods of sewerage disposal.

TAX ADMINISTRATION.

By Act of 1867, a State Board of Equalization was created, to equalize the total county valuations of property for taxation. This board consisted of one member elected from each of the twenty-five Senatorial districts into which the State was then divided. In 1872 this board was re-organized and its powers enlarged. Under this Act, the board consists of one member elected from each Congressional district (now twenty-five in number) with the Auditor of Public Accounts. In addition to the power of equalizing county valuations, it also makes the original assessments for railroad property and the capital stock of Illinois corporations.

This board meets annually from August to December, the work being distributed between five committees, whose reports are submitted for final action by the board as a whole. For some years after the re-organization of the board in 1872, it made many changes in the county valuations; but in recent years the local assessments of real estate and personal property have been but little altered, and for a number of years no changes were made. The centralized assessment of railroad property is more satisfactory than the former system of local assessment; but the State board's assessment of capital stock has not added much to the total valuation of property subject to taxation.

While the State Board of Equalization marks a beginning of State supervision and direct State administration in the assessment of property for taxation, its organization and powers are not adapted for effective work. Within the past twenty years, nearly half the states have established small boards of tax commissioners with larger powers of supervision over local assessors; and similar plans have been recommended in this State by the Revenue Commission of 1886 and the Special Tax Commission of 1910.

A small board of tax commissioners giving all their time to this work would be much more effective in exercising the powers now vested in the State Board of Equalization. If such a board had, in addition, authority to investigate local methods and conditions and to decide appeals from the action of local authorities, the assessment of property for taxation throughout the State would be much more uniform and equitable than at present.

HIGHWAYS.

By Act of 1905 a State Highway Commission was established, composed of three members appointed by the Governor for a term of two years. The members of the commission receive no compensation, but are allowed traveling expenses, and appoint a State Highway Engineer and other technical and clerical assistants. The commission investigates and conducts experimental work in road construction, advises local road and bridge officers, and has charge of the distribution to local districts of road materials prepared in the State institutions. The advice to local officials deals with the care of earth roads, the construction and maintenance of improved roads, and surveys, plans and specifications for bridges.

In this field also, the extent of State aid and supervision in Illinois has thus far been very limited and much less than in many other states. As yet the assistance of the State Department is entirely optional with the local authorities; the system of local administration is excessively decentralized, with no provision for expert local officials; while the amount of State aid offered is closely restricted.

In addition to the development of State administration in the general field of what was formerly considered local affairs, there has been a large expansion of State administration in other lines. This development has less direct relation to the subject of this report; but it forms an important part of the movement towards increased State activity, which serves to change the relative balance of State and local administration. A mention of some of these State activities will suggest the general character of this tendency.

In the broad field of the police power, the State now regulates State banks, insurance companies, railroads and express companies; it regulates labor conditions in factories and mines; and examines and licenses, physicians, surgeons, dentists, lawyers, accountants, architects, barbers, and embalmers. The State also encourages agricultural and related pursuits; and through such authorities as the geological survey, the water survey, and the state entomologist is aiding in the development and conservation of natural resources.

With this extension of State administration may be noted the steady expansion of the national administration and the increase of municipal functions in cities and villages. The general effect of these various tendencies has been to reduce the relative importance of the older organs of local government—the county and the town.

PART II—PRESENT SYSTEM OF COUNTY AND TOWN GOVERNMENT.

The present system of county and town government in Illinois is regulated by a heterogeneous congeries of laws scattered through the Statutes of the State. In addition to a considerable number of Constitutional provisions, there are no less than twenty-seven subjects or chapters in the Revised Statutes which must be examined to cover the principal features; while many other provisions are to be found scattered here and there in other chapters. The more important laws are as follows:

- Chapter 34. Counties.
- Chapter 139. Township organization.
- Chapter 37. Courts.
- Chapter 46. Elections.
- Chapter 107. Paupers.
- Chapter 120. Revenue.
- Chapter 121. Roads and bridges.
- Chapter 122. Schools.
- Chapter 31. Coroners.
- Chapter 35. County clerks.
- Chapter 36. County treasurer.
- Chapter 42. Drainage.
- Chapter 53. Fees and salaries.
- Chapter 75. Jails and jailers.
- Chapter 78. Jurors—Jury commissioners.
- Chapter 79. Justices and constables.
- Chapter 89. Marriages.
- Chapter 103. Official bonds.
- Chapter 109. Plats.
- Chapter 115. Recorders.
- Chapter 116. Records.
- Chapter 125. Sheriffs.
- Chapter 133. Surveyors and surveys.
- Chapter 137. Toll bridges.
- Chapter 138. Toll roads.
- Chapter 145. Vacation of streets, alleys and highways.
- Chapter 148. Wills.

A—COUNTIES.

FORMATION, AREA AND POPULATION.

The Constitution and Statutes contain elaborate provisions for the organization of new counties, for the transfer of territory from one county to another and for the union of counties. No new county may be formed with less than 400 square miles. No new counties have been formed since 1859; and no counties have been united under the provisions of the Act of 1879. The present counties have remained substantially unchanged for forty years, and for the most part for sixty years.

Illinois is now divided into 102 counties. The average area is about 500 square miles, but nearly half of the counties (47) have less than this area; and twenty-nine have less than the constitutional requirement for new counties of 400 square miles. Three counties contain less than 200 square miles—Pulaski, Hardin and Putnam. Fifty counties have an area of from 500 to 1,000 square miles; and five counties have more than 1,000 square miles—Champaign, Livingston, Iroquois, LaSalle and McLean.

In population the variations are still greater. Cook County in 1910 had 2,405,233 inhabitants, over 40 per cent of the total population of the State; while Hardin County had but 7,015 inhabitants. Four counties have less than 10,000 population; forty-six have 10,000 to 25,000; thirty-five from 25,000 to 50,000 and seventeen have over 50,000 population.

These wide variations in area and population add greatly to the difficulty of providing a satisfactory system of county government. Many of the counties in Illinois are too small to provide sufficient work or enough competent officials for the numerous offices provided for by law. More efficient administration could be secured if counties with an area less than 400 square miles or a population of less than 25,000 were consolidated with other counties. In other populous states, especially in the east, most counties are both larger in area and more populous than many in Illinois. In Massachusetts, the average population of counties is over 250,000 and excluding Suffolk County (comprising the city of Boston), the average is about 200,000. In New York, excluding New York City, the average county population is about 75,000; and in Pennsylvania, excluding Philadelphia, the average county population is about 80,000.

If the complete union of smaller counties cannot be accomplished, it should at least be provided that counties may unite and coöperate in the selection of certain officials to act jointly for two or more counties. Such coöperation is now secured in a considerable number of cases between towns in Massachusetts, in the selection of school superintendents; and a similar plan might be followed in Illinois in the case of county superintendents of schools, state's attorneys, and other officials.

Statistics of county areas and population in Table III bring to light some facts of interest as to the development of the State during the past forty years. The counties are grouped according to population, separating the counties without township organization from those with the township system. From the summary by groups of counties, it will be noted that most of the increase in the population of Illinois since 1870 has been in counties which now have more than 40,000 inhabitants. The increase in population since 1870 has also been mainly in urban population—including incorporated municipalities of more than 2,500 inhabitants. The increase in urban population from 1870 to 1910 was 2,896,888; while the increase in rural population was only 201,751.

Of the total increase of population in Illinois since 1900, more than 70 per cent was in Cook County, which gained 30.8 per cent. Most of the remaining increase (more than 25 per cent of the total) was in other counties with more than 40,000 population, which gained 15.4 per cent. Counties with from 25,000 to 40,000 population made a small increase of 3.5 per cent; while counties with less than 25,000 population have decreased during the last decade.

The counties with more than 40,000 population are also the counties with a large proportion of urban population. More than half the total population in counties of this size, excluding Cook County, is urban; and the average density of population in such counties is 86.3 to the square mile, while in the several groups of counties with less than 40,000 the density of population ranges from 38.8 to 48.9 per square mile.

Outside of Cook County the density of rural population is relatively uniform, ranging from 35.4 per square mile in counties without township organization to 40.8 per square mile in counties with more than 40,000 population. In Cook County the density of rural population is 89.7; and in several other counties the density of rural population is above the average—e. g., St. Clair, 60.6; Kane, 52.8; Will, 55.9; Lake, 51.3; Williamson, 55.5; DuPage, 69.4; Saline, 54; Franklin, 52.3; and Pulaski, 67.4. These counties either include or are near large cities, or include a number of unincorporated mining settlements.

Popular votes are required for the organization of new counties, for alterations in boundaries or for the union of counties, for the removal of county seats, for issuing bonds, for levying taxes above the constitutional limit of 75 cents on the one hundred dollars. In counties not under township organization, a vote of the people must be taken to authorize expenditure for the construction of public buildings or the establishment of a county normal school. In counties under township organization the question, of continuing or discontinuing township support of paupers may be submitted to the voters of the county, on petition of twenty voters from each one of a majority of townships.

THE COUNTY BOARD.

Each county is a body politic and corporate; and its powers as such are exercised by a county board, in one of three forms. For counties not under township organization (now seventeen in number), the State Constitution provides for a board of three county commissioners, one elected in November of each year for a three-year term. For Cook County, the State Constitution provides for a board of fifteen commissioners, ten elected from the city of Chicago, and five from the towns outside of Chicago; and by statute these commissioners are elected for a two-year term, and one is elected as president of the board with special powers.

For the other eighty-four counties under township organization the county law provides for a board of supervisors, composed of town supervisors, elected at the annual town meetings in April. The number of supervisors in each board varies according to the number of towns in the county and the number of assistant supervisors from the larger towns. Every town elects one supervisor; and every town with a population of 4,000 elects one assistant supervisor and an additional assistant supervisor for every additional 2,500 population.¹

The number of members in the boards of supervisors ranges from 4 in Putnam County to 53 in LaSalle County; in 9 counties there are less than 10 members; in 22 counties from 10 to 20 members; in 35 counties from 20 to 30 members; and 18 counties have 30 or more members, as follows: LaSalle, 53; St. Clair, 52; Peoria, 48; Sangamon, 47; Kane, 44; Will, 44; Madison, 42; McLean, 41; Rock Island, 37; Adams, 36; Champaign, 35; Vermilion and Winnebago, 33; Livingston, 32; Fulton, 31, and Bureau, Knox and Macon each 30.²

MEETINGS AND ORGANIZATION.

Five regular meetings of each board of county commissioners (on the third Mondays of December, March, June and September, and the second Monday of July), and two regular meetings of each board of supervisors (the annual meeting on the second Tuesday of September and a regular meeting on the second Monday of June), are required by law to be held each year. Special meetings may be held when called by the chairman or two members of a board of county commissioners, or by at least one-third of the members of a board of supervisors.

Both county commissioners and boards of supervisors elect a chairman each year; and in both classes of boards a majority of the members constitutes a quorum. The board of supervisors shall sit with open doors, and all persons may attend their meetings.

County commissioners and members of county boards in counties not under township organization are allowed five dollars per day for the time necessarily and actually employed in the discharge of their duties, and five cents a mile for all necessary travel.³

The members of boards of supervisors each receive two dollars and a half per day for the time actually and necessarily engaged in the discharge of their duties as members of such boards, and mileage five cents each way for necessary travel.⁴

Both classes of county boards hold meetings more frequently than is prescribed by law. The small boards of county commissioners meet more often than the boards of supervisors. For the year 1911-12 the smallest number of meetings reported for county commissioners was 5 in Wabash County. In 4 counties the commissioners had less than 10 meetings—Randolph, 6; Calhoun, 7; Perry, 8, and Edwards, 9. The other counties not under township organization reported 12 or more meetings a year. In Menard County there were 5 regular and 14 special meetings, a total of 19; in Union County

³ Ch. 53, Fees and Salaries, par. 37.

there were 26 meetings from March 20, 1911, to March 20, 1912; in Johnson County, 36 meetings in 1911-12; in Monroe County, 44 meetings; in Alexander County, 5 terms, aggregating 56 days; and in Morgan County 12 regular meetings, with a total of 110 days.

In most counties under township organization, boards of supervisors hold four or five meeting a year. For the year 1911-12, in eight counties there were six meetings of the boards of supervisors, and in twelve counties more than six meetings. In six of the later, meetings were held once a month, or ten or twelve during the year—Christian, Douglas, DuPage, Kankakee, Madison and St. Clair. In Crawford County eighteen meetings were held.

The Board of Supervisors of Champaign County, at a meeting in March, 1912, adopted the following resolutions in favor of statutory provisions for five regular meetings each year:

"April Meeting—WHEREAS, About one-half of the members of the board are elected each year and there are no committees to do the work until the new board meets and a new chairman is elected and committees are appointed, it is necessary that a meeting of said board be held in April of each year and it is suggested that said meeting be held two weeks after the town election.

"December Meeting—WHEREAS, A meeting of said board should be held in December of each year for the purpose of settling with any or all county officers whose terms expire and also to settle with officers whose terms continue and for the purpose of passing on bonds of incoming officers and it is suggested that said meeting be held on the first Monday in December.

"March Meeting—WHEREAS, A meeting of said board should be held in March of each year for the purpose of finishing all business of the board for the year and it is suggested that said March meeting convene on the first Tuesday of each year.

"June and September Meetings—WHEREAS, The June and September meetings of the board should be held as now provided by law; Therefore "Be It Resolved—That meetings of the board of supervisors should be held in April, December and March as aforesaid in addition to the meetings now fixed by law in June and September and that all of said meetings should be statutory in order to avoid technicalities in the present law and to avoid possible irregularities in special called meetings."

In addition to meetings of the whole board of supervisors, committee meetings add a good deal to the time given by supervisors to county business, especially in the larger counties. In St. Clair County, during the year ending September 1911, one member attended twelve board meetings and sixty-two committee meetings, a total of seventy-four meetings. Eight members attended forty and more meetings during the year. The total number of days' service for the fifty-two supervisors aggregated 1,338, an average of twenty-six for each member.¹

The total per diem and mileage to supervisors in several counties for the year 1910-1911 was as follows:

St. Clair County, $4, 819.54, (mileage, $1,474.14).

Kane County, $4,079.85.

Sangamon County, $4,884.15.

Vermilion County, $2,083.48.

Hancock County, $2,110.03.

Montgomery County, $1,161. 16.

Logan County, $846.00.

Piatt County, $587.70.

COMMITTEES.

Much of the work of the large county boards is done by means of committees. As there are no statutory provisions for committees, and they are instituted by the several boards, the existing conditions can only be learned from the local records.

¹ Proceedings of the Board of Supervisors of St. Clair County, September Session 1911, pp. 12-13.

The Cook County Board of County Commissioners has five standing committees, and fourteen sub-committees. Kane County has twenty-three committees. St. Clair County has twenty committees; Peoria County, seventeen; Sangamon County, sixteen; Montgomery County, thirteen; and Whiteside, DeKalb and Marshall have each fourteen.

A great deal of variety is shown in the names and functions of committees in the different counties; but certain committees appear to be regularly established and others are common in most counties. Of the nine counties noted above, all have committees of finance, county farm or poor house, court house or public buildings, judiciary and printing and supplies. Seven of the nine also have committees on paupers or outside relief, roads and bridges, elections, education, county jail and one or more committees on claims. Other committees which appear in several counties are those on fees and salaries, hospitals and medical aid, mines and mining, city relations and coroner. Among the committees which appear in only one of the above counties are:

Juvenile Court and Detention Home, in Cook County;

Lakes to the Gulf Waterway, in St. Clair County;

Donations, in Sangamon County;

Ferries and Toll Bridges, in Whiteside County;

Canada Thistles, in DeKalb County; and

Fox and Wolf Scalp Claims, in Marshall County.

In other states the organization of county boards shows a good deal of variety. Only four other states, however, have large boards of town supervisors—New York, New Jersey, Michigan and Wisconsin, and in Michigan small boards of county auditors have been established in the larger counties, which do much of the detailed work elsewhere done by the boards of supervisors. In Tennessee and Arkansas the county courts of justice of the peace, and in Louisiana the police juries in parishes also have a considerable number of members. But in most of the states the county boards, whether called commissioners, supervisors or county courts, are small bodies, from three members (in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Massachusetts) to a maximum of eight (in Virginia and Kentucky). In Indiana each county has a board of three commissioners, and also a county council of seven members, the latter body voting appropriations and approving loans.

In his volume on Local Constitutional History of the United States, Professor George E. Howard clearly favors the large boards of town supervisors, as a local deliberative council, representing the "highest type" of local self-government in a form resembling that of the shiremoot of Anglo-Saxon times.¹ This view has been accepted by others in their discussion of local government, although few have undertaken any careful analysis of the actual operation of county affairs. But the practical experience of the great majority of states is clearly in favor of the small county board, either with or without the township system; and criticisms of the large boards of supervisors have been made by many acquainted with the conduct of county business.

In favor of the large boards, it may be said that local representation is more fully secured than in the small boards; and there is some reason to believe that the representatives elected feel a greater degree of popular responsibility. This form of organization, therefore seems better adapted for deliberative purposes; and accords with English and American traditions as to the structure of legislative and taxing authorities.

On the other hand, as is shown in the discussion of the powers of county boards, their legislative authority is of the most restricted character; and their main functions are executive and administrative. For these purposes the large board is unwieldy, and especially so in populous counties where the number of members runs up to thirty, forty and fifty. Where the difficulty is partly obviated by the development of a system of committees, the responsibility for action is weakened and made uncertain.

Not only have most of the states adopted the small county board, but signs of dissatisfaction with the large boards of supervisors are evident in states where this system has been in operation. Judge Cooley criticised the working of boards of supervisors in Michigan; and in recent years most of the larger counties in that state have modified the system by establishing boards of auditors, which take over a good deal of the detailed work formerly done by the boards of supervisors. In an inquiry made some years ago, it was learned that there had been complaint in Wisconsin that the frequent sessions of boards of supervisors in populous counties to transact minor business involved a good deal of unnecessary expense.¹ More decisively, in Nebraska, where boards of town supervisors were introduced in 1883, later legislation has provided for a board of seven members elected by districts. In Kentucky, the number of members on the county boards was reduced some years ago to eight; and the reduction is said to have been beneficial in improving the character and qualifications of the members.²

Inquiries sent to county officials in connection with the work of the joint committee on County and Township and Roads and Bridges, have disclosed a marked difference of opinion as to the relative merits of the large boards of supervisors and small boards of county commissioners. Even from counties now under township organization, the larger number of replies was in favor of small boards of county commissioners, as more efficient and less expensive than the boards of town supervisors. From nearly a third of the counties, all the replies were in favor of the small county board; and from more than a third of the remainder some replies (in most cases a majority) were to the same effect. From less than a third of the counties were the replies distinctly in favor of the boards of supervisors.

The opinion in favor of the present boards of supervisors was most strong from the smaller counties, where the number of members is small; but similar views prevailed in such important counties as Adams, Bureau, Champaign, Macon and Shelby. Opinions in favor of small county boards came from both small and large counties, mostly in the central and southern parts of the State, including Iroquois, Kane, LaSalle, Madison, Peoria, Rock Island and St. Clair counties.

It is of interest to note that more than two-thirds of the state's attorneys replying were in favor of small county boards, and about two-thirds of the county treasurers preferred the present boards of supervisors; while the other county officials were more evenly divided on this question.

It seems clear that the large boards of supervisors are not satisfactory or efficient bodies in many of the counties of Illinois, and especially in the more populous counties. At the same time there will be a good deal of opposition to the establishment of small boards of county commissioners throughout the State. It appears also that dissatisfaction with what were considered arbitrary acts by county commissioners were factors in the adoption of the township system and the large boards of supervisors in at least some counties. To vest in a small board of three men the taxing as well as the administrative powers of the county boards in the larger counties of the State, without some restrictions may well cause some question.

In view of the criticisms on both forms of county boards in Illinois, another plan may be suggested, which includes features from the county system of other states and from other local governments. One of the county officers might well be vested with executive powers, such as are usually conferred on city mayors and State governors, thus concentrating the responsibility for executive action. At the same time, there could be substituted for the boards of supervisors a county council composed of a smaller number of members elected by districts within the county, these councils to be vested with power to make appropriations, levy taxes and pass local ordinances.¹ Something of this kind has been done in the organization of the board of commissioners for Cook County. Such a system could be provided by an optional law, and applied in counties voting to adopt its provisions.

This follows the practice in the organization of American government, in the nation, states and cities; and it is surprising that so little attention has hitherto been paid to these principles in the organization of county government. It should furnish a distinct improvement over the present system, under which in many of the counties of Illinois an unwieldy board of supervisors is compelled to act at the same time as a deliberative body on questions of policy, and as an executive board on the details of county administration.

SUMMARY OF POWERS.

County boards and especially boards of supervisors are sometimes said to form the legislative branch of county government, under the principle of the separation of powers. But an examination of their powers shows they have very little authority that can be considered legislative in character, while the difference in the powers of county commissioners and boards of supervisors are of relatively little importance, and less than might be expected from the contrast between the county and township system.

Both classes of county boards have the following powers and duties:

They have charge of county buildings and other property and must provide accommodations for courts and other county offices.

They levy county taxes within prescribed limits.

They manage county funds and county business, except as otherwise provided, regulate fees and salaries to some extent, and examine and settle county accounts.

They have limited powers in regard to roads and bridges, license and regulate toll roads, bridges and ferries, may provide for the improvement of county ditches and drains, and cause the removal of obstructions from natural water courses.

They establish, maintain and regulate poor farms, jails and workhouses, and are authorized to pay pensions to the blind and to poor parents of children and to provide detention homes for children.

They fill vacancies in county offices, appoint election judges, provide ballot boxes for elections, prepare jury lists, grant liquor licenses outside of incorporated municipalities, and may establish county normal schools and offer bounties for certain purposes and rewards for the arrest of criminals.

They can appropriate funds for educational and agricultural exhibits at the county fair and for the use of county farmers' institutes.

In counties where coal is mined, they may be called on by the State Inspector of Mines to appoint a county inspector of mines.

In addition to the powers held in common by both classes of county boards, the boards of county commissioners have power to establish election precincts and road districts, a vague general supervision over highways and bridges and conditional authority to construct, repair and maintain gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads; they act as boards of health and boards of review of assessments; they appoint fence viewers and commissioners of Canada thistles and designate overseers of the poor. At the same time, county commissioners are restricted by the requirement of a popular vote for the erection of public buildings, the establishment of county normal schools or the construction of hard roads.

¹ For illustration such county councils might be composed of seven or more members as follows: Divide each county into seven districts, composed of one or more townships, compact and contiguous, each to elect one member of the county council. Any township comprising one-seventh of the population of the county should from a district; when a township has one-fourth of the population it should be entitled to a second member of the council, making a council of eight; a township with one-third of the population should have three of nine members; a township with two-fifths of the population should have four of ten members; a township with one-half of the population should have five of eleven members; and a township with two-thirds of the population should have six of twelve members. This would form a more effective body than boards of supervisors of twenty to fifty members.

On the other hand, the boards of supervisors have authority to organize and change the boundaries of townships.

Comparing the activities of counties with and without township organization on the basis of county taxes and expenditure also shows little difference between the two forms. Indeed the counties not under township organization, which are mostly the less populous counties, have a smaller per capita county expenditure than counties under township organization, while the latter counties have also the additional expenses of township charges.

GENERAL POWERS.

The general powers of counties and the powers and duties of county boards are the same under all systems of organization. Each county has power to purchase, hold, sell and convey or lease real or personal estate necessary for the use of the county, and to make contracts and do all other acts in relation to the property and concerns of the county as are necessary to the exercise of its corporate powers. Specific authority is given to purchase and hold real estate for a tuberculosis sanitarium, a county hospital and agricultural experiments.

The county boards of the several counties have power:

First—To take and have the care and custody of all the real and personal estate owned by the county.

Second—To manage the county funds and county business, except as otherwise specifically provided.

Third—To examine and settle all accounts against the county, and all accounts concerning the receipts and expenditures of the county.

Fourth—To provide a workhouse for persons convicted of offenses punishable by imprisonment in the county jail.

Fifth—To provide and manage a county insane asylum.¹

Sixth—To cause to be annually levied and collected taxes for county purposes within Constitutional and Statutory limits.

Seventh—To authorize the vacation of any town plat, not within any incorporated town, city or village, on petition of two-thirds of the owners.

Eight—To change the name of any town plat on the petition of a majority of the legal voters, if the inhabitants have not become a body corporate.

Ninth—To provide a tuberculosis sanitarium.

It is made the duty of the county board of each county:

To provide a suitable court house, jail and other necessary county buildings, and to provide rooms and offices for the courts of record and county offices. But in counties not under township organization appropriations for public buildings must be submitted to a vote of the people.

To provide books, stationery, printing and postage, and (when the finances of the county permit) suitable fire proof safes or offices for the county officers.

To publish reports of proceedings and to prepare and post annual statements of receipts and expenditures.

On a few points there are differences in the powers granted by the county law to boards of county commissioners and to boards of supervisors. The board of county commissioners is constituted the successor of the county court, which managed county affairs from 1849 to 1870; and also has general supervision of all highways, roads and bridges in the county, including State roads. The board of supervisors has power to appropriate funds to aid in the construction of roads and bridges in any part of the county; but this power appears to be closely restricted by provisions in the roads and bridges law (ch. 121, par. 19). The board of supervisors also has power to change the boundaries of towns and to create new towns. There are further special provisions in regard to the board of county commissioners of Cook County.

¹ Under the revised law of 1909 relating to charities (par. 18 d) after the State has assumed complete care of the public insane, no insane person shall be permitted to remain under county care.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Under the general county law each board of county commissioners has general supervision of all highways, roads and bridges in the county, including State roads. But little or no active work seems to be done under this authority in any of the counties not under township organization.

By the roads and bridges law it is made the duty of each board of county commissioners to divide the county into road districts, where it is practicable, to be composed of territory not less than a congressional township.¹

Another section of the roads and bridges law provides that where expensive work is needed, costing more than $100.00, the county board may appropriate from the county treasury not more than one-half the estimated cost.²

By Act of 1883 the several county boards of counties not under township organization are vested with the same powers for constructing, repairing and maintaining gravel, rock, macadam or other hard roads in their respective counties, as the commissioners of highways in their respective townships—subject to a vote of the county on petition of 100 landowners for the levy of a special road tax.³

Under the general county law the board of supervisors in counties under township organization has power to appropriate funds to aid in the construction of roads and bridges in any part of the county. But this power appears to be closely restricted by a more specific provision in the roads and bridges law.

Under the latter, when necessary to construct or repair a bridge or approaches at a cost over 12 cents on the $100.00 and the road and bridge tax for two years has been the full 25 cents on the $100.00, the county board on petition may appropriate from the county treasury one-half the expense. This is further regulated by several provisos.⁴

County expenditures on roads and bridges in Illinois are insignificant, both in counties under township organization and those not under township organization. In the reports to the census bureau for 1902, the largest county expenditure for roads and bridges was $21,611.00 in Ogle County. Seven other counties under township organization reported more than $10,000.00 each; and most of the other counties reported smaller sums. The largest county expenditure for roads and bridges reported from counties not under township organization was $7,500.00 in Henderson County. From seventeen counties under township organization and two counties not under township organization, no county expenditure on roads and bridges was reported in 1902.⁵

The total county expenditure in Illinois for roads and bridges in 1902, as reported to the census, was $305,842.00.

In the counties from which financial statements for 1910-1911 have been received, the county expenditure on roads and bridges was as follows:

Cook, $48,387.14.	Montgomery, $4,909.73.
St. Clair, $4,245.50.	Whiteside, $6,012.58.
Sangamon, $11,296.04.	Morgan, $10,064.58.
Vermilion, $8,419.95.	Hancock, $5,964.65.
Winnebago, $4,772.51.	Logan, $6,636.38.
Livingston, $6,202.00.	Piatt, $5,042.07.

County boards in many states have much larger powers of levying taxes and issuing bonds for road improvements than in Illinois. This is true not only in the southern and western states where there is no system of township government, but also in states with the township system, such as Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Iowa.⁶

TOLL ROADS AND BRIDGES AND FERRIES.

No toll bridge or toll road may be established without the consent of the county board. Petition and notice are required. The county board is to fix the rates of toll, appoint inspectors of toll roads and may condemn toll bridges or toll roads when it is deemed for the public interest to make them free.¹

County boards also issue licenses for ferries, on petition and subject to conditions established by law. The license fee must be not less than $5.00 and not more than $300.00. The county boards fix the rate of ferriage at each ferry, and may prescribe regulations for the management of such ferry.²

COUNTY DITCHES AND DRAINS.

County boards have power to preserve and improve county ditches and drains. They may appoint district commissioners to form drainage districts and appoint drainage commissioners for such districts. The county boards act as the corporate authority for the several drainage districts of their county organized under the act to maintain and improve county ditches; and they have power to contract with other counties or with the corporate authorities of other districts to connect ditches or to act jointly where a combined system of drainage is found necessary or expedient.³

Another drainage law, however, provides for the creation of drainage districts by petition to the county court, without action by the county board.

POOR RELIEF.

The county board of any county in which the poor are not supported by the town shall have power:

To acquire land for a poor farm, and to erect and maintain a county poor house.

To receive gifts, devises and bequests to aid in the care and support of indigent persons.

To make all proper rules and regulations for the management of the county poor house and poor farm and of the inmates of the poor house.

To appoint a keeper of the poor house and necessary agents and servants, a county physician, and county agent to have charge of poor relief.

To make necessary and proper appropriations for the support of the poor.

In counties not under township organization the county board shall designate some justice of the peace or other suitable person in each precinct who shall be overseer of the poor.

In counties under township organization the county board, upon written request of supervisors of towns of over 4,000 inhabitants, may appoint overseers of the poor for such towns.

On petition of twenty legal voters in each of a majority of towns in any county where township support of paupers has been adopted, the question of continuing this method shall be submitted to the voters by the county board at the next general election.

In counties which adopt the separate support of paupers, the county board may establish a poor house, and fix the rate which each town shall pay for the support therein of its paupers.

County boards shall order to be paid from the county treasury a just and equitable sum of money for the tuition of pauper children residing in the county poor house and attending any district school.⁴

County boards shall pay to poor parents of children amounts ordered by judges of juvenile courts.⁵

⁵ Ibid, ch. 23, par. 175.

County boards are authorized to contribute toward the support of blind persons, and at their discretion may pay to such persons $150.00 a year as a benefit.¹

County boards are authorized to provide and maintain a detention home for the temporary care and custody of dependent, delinquent or truant children. Such homes have been established in Adams and Sangamon counties.²

ELECTIONS.

In counties not under township organization, the county board may establish and change the boundaries of election precincts, and may divide precincts which contain more than 450 voters into election districts.

County boards (except in cities where there are election commissioners) shall appoint judges of election for each election precinct or district, subject to provision for the representation of the two principal parties. The town supervisor must be appointed as one election judge in his town.

County boards shall provide ballot boxes, with secure locks and keys, for the several election precincts and districts.

The county board may appoint one or more constables to attend each place of holding elections, and preserve order during the election.³

VACANCIES.

County boards may fill vacancies in the offices of county commissioner, state's attorney, sheriff, coroner, county clerk, recorder of deeds, county treasurer, county surveyor, justice of the peace, constable or other county or precinct office not otherwise provided by law, if the vacancy occurs within one year before the expiration of the term of such vacant office.⁴

JUROS.

The county board of each county shall, at or before the time of its meeting in September in each year, or at any time thereafter when necessary for the purposes of the Act, make a list of not less than a tenth of the legal voters of each town or precinct in the county, to be known as the jury list. If a grand jury is required, it is the duty of the county board to select twenty-three qualified persons to serve as grand jurors.

In counties with more than 250,000 inhabitants, three jury commissioners are appointed by the judges of the courts of record to prepare jury lists.⁵

COUNTY NORMAL SCHOOLS.

In each county adopting township organization the board of supervisors and in other counties the county court (board of county commissioners) may establish a county normal school, and are authorized to levy taxes and appropriate money for the support of such schools, and for the purchase of necessary grounds, buildings, furniture, apparatus, etc. But in counties not under township organization a vote of the people must be taken.⁶

No county has thus far established a normal school under these provisions.

LIQUOR LICENSES.

County boards may grant licenses to dramshops upon application by petition, of a majority of the legal voters of the town or precinct, but may not issue licenses in any incorporated city, town or village, or within two miles of the same, in which the corporate authorities have authority to license, regulate, restrain or prohibit the sale of liquor or where the sale of liquor is prohibited by law. The license fee must be not less than $500.00, or $150.00 for sale of malt liquors only.¹

REWARDS AND BOUNTIES.

County boards may offer not exceeding $1,000.00 as a reward for the pursuit, arrest and conviction of persons guilty of stealing horses or cattle, or for pursuing and apprehending beyond the limits of the county persons guilty of any felony or other high crime; and may defray the expenses of those who have aided in the pursuit of persons suspected or accused of any felony or high crime; and may levy a tax for such purposes.²

The county board of any county may allow such bounty as it deems reasonable on wolf scalps, ground hogs, crows and eggs.³

County boards may offer a bounty to persons planting trees and cultivating them for three years, not to exceed $10.00 per annum for each acre.⁴

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Each board of county commissioners in counties not under township organization constitutes a board of health with power, outside the corporate limits of incorporated cities and villages:

To do all acts and make all regulations which may be necessary or expedient for the promotion of health or the suppression of disease.

To appoint physicians as health officers and prescribe their duties.

To incur the expenses necessary for the performance of the duties and powers enjoined upon the board.

To provide gratuitous disinfection and vaccination.

To require reports of dangerously communicable diseases.

On the breaking out of any dangerously communicable disease in their county or the immediate vicinity, it shall be their duty to make and enforce such regulations tending to check the spread of the disease; and in case of refusal or neglect promptly to take measures to preserve the public health or to carry out the rules and regulations of the State Board of Health, the latter body may discharge such duties and collect from the county the reasonable expenses incurred.⁵

COUNTY OFFICERS.

The State Constitution provides for the election in each county of a county judge, state's attorney, sheriff, county clerk, clerk of the circuit court, coroner, treasurer, and county superintendent of schools. In counties over 50,000 population a probate judge may also be provided, and has been provided for counties over 70,000 population; and in counties over 60,000 population a recorder of deeds shall be elected. By statute (ch. 46, Elections) provision is further made for the election in each county of a county surveyor and clerks of probate in counties over 70,000; and by an Act of 1911 a county auditor is elected in counties with a population between 75,000 and 300,000.⁶

All of these county officers are elected for four year terms, at the general November elections; but the elections are divided. The county judges, probate judges, county clerks, sheriffs, treasurers and county superintendents of schools are elected in the same years as the State Superintendent of Public Instruction; while the state's attorney, clerks of the circuit courts, recorders of deeds, coroners, surveyors and county auditors are elected in the same years as the State Governor. No person elected to the office of sheriff or treasurer is eligible to re-election to said office for four years after the expiration of the term for which he shall have been elected.

This list of from nine to thirteen officers elected in each county, from four to seven at one time, along with members of the General Assembly and a number of State officials, is one of the principal factors in producing the long and confusing ballot submitted to voters at election time. Moreover few of the county officers have any political functions to perform or are of sufficient importance to attract general popular interest in the merits of particular candidates; nominations even under the direct primary are often determined by personal popularity rather than by the merits of candidates; and the election in most cases is decided by the success of a party ticket, where public attention is concentrated on some question of party policy or the candidates for President or Governor, none of which are likely to affect the conduct of the county officers.

A distinct improvement in county government could be expected if a number of the purely administrative county offices were filled by appointment, with the requirement of definite qualifications and other provisions to limit or exclude political influences. This change could be most easily brought about in the case of the statutory offices—the surveyors, probate clerks and county auditors. Amendment of the State Constitution will be necessary to change the method of selecting the constitutional county officers; but it should be recognized that there is no question of public policy involved in the election of clerks of the circuit court, county clerks, recorders of deeds, treasurers, county superintendent of schools and coroners. The state's attorney and sheriff are both agents of the State government, and should at least be subject to supervision by the State; and if the sheriff is to continue as a locally elected official the state's attorney might well be appointed (by the Governor or Attorney General) as the direct representative of the State in the enforcement of the laws.

COUNTY JUDGE.

In each county there is a county court with a county judge, elected for a term of four years. Such county courts have a limited jurisdiction in matters of law and an extensive probate jurisdiction, while the county judge is also vested with other powers and duties. As a court of law, the county courts have concurrent jurisdiction with circuit courts and justices of the peace in cases involving not more than $1,000.00, and concurrent jurisdiction in appeals from justices of the peace and police magistrates. The probate jurisdiction includes jurisdiction in matters of probate, settlement of estates of deceased persons, appointment of guardians and conservators, and settlement of their accounts; all matters relating to apprentices; proceedings for the collection of taxes and assessments; and proceedings by executors, administrators, guardians and conservators for the sale of real estate. Distinct probate courts are established in counties of over 70,000 population, which take over the probate jurisdiction of the county court, except proceedings for the collection of taxes and assessments.

Besides the law and probate jurisdiction, the county court has also certain administrative powers and duties. It hears and decides on petitions for organizing drainage districts, and appoints drainage commissioners for such districts.¹ In counties under township organization (except Cook County) the county judge annually appoints two members of the county board of review of assessments. Proceedings for judgment and order of sale for the collection of taxes, held in the county court, while in judicial form, are part of the machinery of revenue administration. Proceedings for the adoption of the city election Act are brought before the county court; and in cities which have adopted this Act (Chicago, East St. Louis, Springfield, Galesburg, Danville, Cairo, and Rockford) the county court appoints election commissioners, and has general supervision over the election machinery.

COUNTY CLERK.

The State Constitution provides for the election in each county of a county clerk, at the same time and for the same term as the county judge. He must keep an office at the court house or other place provided by the county authorities at the county seat. County clerks are commissioned by the Governor, and are required to give bond.

The county clerk is a man-of-all work for a great variety of State and county business; and his manifold duties are prescribed in numerous statutes.

In the first place, he is keeper of the seal of the county and custodian of county records, books and papers.¹

Secondly, he acts as clerk of the county board of the county; and as such keeps a record of its proceedings, of accounts allowed by the county board, orders drawn on the county treasurer, and official bonds.² He is required to keep accounts with the treasurer and county collector.

Thirdly he acts as clerk of the county court.³

Under the primary and election laws, he gives notice of primary elections, receives nominating petitions for county offices, prepares and has printed ballots for primary and other elections, provides poll books and other election blanks, receives election returns, acts as a member of the county canvassing board, and issues certificates of election for county offices.⁴

He also prepares certificates of qualification of justices of the peace, grants certificates of election to constables, and keeps a record of justices and constables; he receives and files lists of town officers elected at the annual town meetings; he keeps a record of notaries public, and grants certificates of magistracy to such officers.

Under the revenue laws, he prepares assessment books, with a list of lands and lots to be assessed for taxes, to be delivered to the assessing officers; he makes corrections and additions in the assessment books of real property, when returned by the assessors; he makes out and transmits to the Auditor of Public Accounts an abstract of the assessment of property; he estimates and determines the tax rates, reducing the levies of the taxing authorities when necessary to comply with the Juul law; he makes out collectors' books, with correct lists of taxable property as assessed and equalized, extends the taxes, and delivers these books to the collectors; he must attend and assist at all sales of real estate for taxes, making records of sales and delivering certificates of purchase; and has charge of the redemption of real property sold for taxes.⁵

He issues hunters' and marriage licenses, and is required to keep a record in separate books of physicians and accoucheurs, of births, of marriages and of deaths. He receives and keeps a record of applications for relief from blind persons. He is sealer of weights and measures; and keeps a record of marks and brands for cattle. It is his duty to provide schedules and blanks for the collection of agricultural statistics by the assessors; and to revise, correct, tabulate and foot up the returns and to transmit an abstract to the Auditor.

None of these numerous duties are of a political nature; and if the county clerk is to remain a strictly administrative position the most effective administration of the office would be secured by having this official substantially a permanent officer. For this purpose the present method of election for a short term is not satisfactory; and more efficient service could be secured if the county clerk were appointed by the county board, preferably for an indefinite term, but subject to removal. Some qualifications might also be required; for while his duties are largely of a clerical nature, they call for a fair degree of intelligence and general education, such as might be assumed from those who have completed a high school course; while to keep the county accounts he should have at least an elementary knowledge of bookkeeping.

At the same time, the manifold duties of the county clerk bring this officer in contact with almost every branch of county government; and in many, if not most counties, the county clerk appears to have acquired a large influence in introducing some degree of order into the confusing chaos of the legal machinery of county administration. In particular, his duties as secretary of the county board impose on him the task of preparing the business for that body; and the suggestions of the county clerk are likely to receive attention. Indeed it seems that the county clerk in Illinois is tending to occupy in practice a position, similar to that of the town clerk in the English municipal government, as the de facto chief executive officer of the county. These conditions suggest that the county clerk might well be given some of the legal powers of a chief executive, as indicated in the discussion on county boards. Such an arrangement would help to bring about a greater degree of responsibility and efficiency in the administration of county business.

COUNTY TREASURER.

A treasurer is elected in each county, at the same time and for the same four year term, as the county judge; but no person elected to the office of treasurer is eligible to re-election for four years after the term for which he has been elected. The county treasurer is commissioned by the Governor and must execute a bond.

The county treasurer receives and has charge of the revenue and other public moneys of the county, and also other money and funds, such as taxes collected for the State and local districts, authorized by law to be paid to him, and disburses the same. He must keep books of account, showing moneys, revenues and funds received and paid out. He countersigns county orders, issued by authority of the county board. He makes a report of receipts and payments at each regular term of the county board; it is the duty of the county board to examine his books and make settlement once every six months; and the treasurer may be required by the county board at any time to render an account and make settlement.

In counties not under township organization, the treasurer is ex officio assessor. In counties under township organization, he is supervisor of assessments, and ex officio county collector, for the collection of delinquent taxes and special assessments.

The county treasurers are a good deal more than county officers. Both as collectors and receivers of public moneys, they have charge not only of county revenues, but also of State taxes and taxes for cities, towns and schools and other local districts. In many and perhaps most counties, the county funds form less than a third of the amounts passing through the county treasury.

Popular elections of public treasurers for State and local governments was introduced in this country earlier than for many other officials; and there is a strong tradition in favor of this method, as a necessary safeguard to prevent the loss of public funds. But there have been more cases of defalcation of public funds by elected treasurers than by appointed officials; and the most important public treasurers in this country—those of the United States and New York city—are appointed officials. The security for public funds is now furnished by the treasurer's official bond; and this official might well be appointed by the county board.

CIRCUIT CLERKS AND RECORDERS.

In each county a clerk of the circuit court is elected at the same time as the governor for a term of four years. These officers are commissioned by the Governor, are required to give bond and have offices at the court house.

They are required to attend the sessions of the circuit court in the county, to preserve all the files and papers thereof to make, keep and preserve complete records of all the proceedings and determinations thereof, except in cases otherwise provided by law, and to do and perform all other duties pertaining to their offices as may be required by law, or by the rules and orders of their courts. The statute further prescribes the books to be kept by each clerk.¹

In counties of less than 60,000 inhabitants, the clerk of the circuit court is also ex officio recorder of deeds of his county. In counties having a population of 60,000 or more, there is elected a recorder of deeds, at the same time and for the same term as the clerk of the circuit court. Every recorder is required to record at length in well bound books, all instruments entitled to be recorded, these including deeds, mortgages, plats, powers of attorney and other instruments relating to or affecting the title to real estate in the county. The statutes prescribe the different record books and indexes to be kept, including an abstract book when required by the county board.²

By Act of 1897, for the registration of land titles, to be adopted by vote of the people of the several counties, the recorders of deeds are constituted registrars of titles in counties adopting the Act.³

The duties of circuit clerks and recorders are also clerical and administrative and involve no political authority. Where separate officials are needed, they could well be appointed by the circuit judges, as are the clerks of the United States courts; while in the smaller counties the work of these offices might be done by the county clerk.

STATE'S ATTORNEYS.

At the quadrennial general election, there is elected in each county a state's attorney for a term of four years. His duties include those of attorney for the State and also those of county attorney:

First—To commence and prosecute all actions, suits, indictments and prosecutions, civil and criminal, in any court of record in his county, in which the people of the State or county may be concerned.

Second—To prosecute all forfeited bonds and recognizances, and all actions and proceedings for the recovery of debts, revenues, moneys, fines, penalties and forfeitures accruing to the State or his county, or to any school district or road district in his county; also, to prosecute all suits in his county against railroad or transportation companies, which may be prosecuted in the name of the people of the State of Illinois.

Third—To commence and prosecute all actions and proceedings brought by any county officer in his official capacity.

Fourth—To defend all actions and proceedings brought against his county, or against any county or State officer, in his official capacity, within his county.

Fifth—To attend the examination of all persons brought before any Judge on habeas corpus, when the prosecution is in his county.

Sixth—To attend before justices of the peace and prosecute charges of felony or misdemeanor, for which the offender is required to be recognized to appear before a court of record, when in his power so to do.

Seventh—To give his opinion, without fee or reward, to any county officer and to justices of the peace, in his county, upon any question of law relating to any criminal or other matter, in which the people or the county may be concerned.

Eighth—To assist the Attorney General whenever it may be necessary, and in cases of appeal or writ of error from his county to the Supreme Court, to which it is the duty of the Attorney General to attend, he shall, a reasonable time before the trial of such appeal or writ of error, furnish the Attorney General with a brief, showing the nature of the case and the questions involved.

Ninth—To pay all moneys received by him in trust, without delay, to the officer who by law is entitled to the custody thereof.

Tenth—To perform such other and further duties as may, from time to time, be enjoined on him by law.

Eleventh—To appear in all proceedings by collectors of taxes against delinquent tax payers for judgments to sell real estate, and see that all the necessary preliminary steps have been legally taken to make the judgment legal and binding.¹

The office of state's attorney marks a striking development in American criminal procedure, at variance with the English common law, under which criminal prosecutions were instituted and carried on by private persons. But, at the same time, it is an expansion of the old English office of Attorney General, who conducted suits in the courts on behalf of the government. The name state's attorney, in Illinois, serves to emphasize his principal function as agent of the State in prosecuting criminal cases in the name of the State.

Under the extremely decentralized administrative system prevailing in Illinois, as in the other states, there is not a single official appointed by and directly responsible to the central State government in the several counties of the State. It is not inconsistent with a large degree of local self-government, that the State government should have one such direct representative. Of the existing officials, the title and functions of the state's attorney are most distinctly those of an agent of the State, and he acts very slightly as a local official. Under these conditions, this official might well be appointed by the Governor or Attorney General; and be required to make regular reports which should serve as a means of giving the State authorities information of conditions throughout the State. If the appointments are made by a State official, it should follow as a matter of course that the salary should be paid from the State treasury.

It may also be questioned whether a state's attorney is needed for each of the smaller counties in the State. Two or more of such counties might be grouped into districts for the appointment of these officials.

SHERIFFS.

In each county there is elected a sheriff, at the same time and for the same four years' term as the county judge. No person elected as a sheriff is eligible for re-election for four years after the term for which he has been elected. Every sheriff is commissioned by the Governor, upon the certificate of the county clerk of his due election or appointment, and that he has filed his bond (for $10,000, except in Cook County, where it is $100,000) and taken the oath of office. Every sheriff may appoint one or more deputies, not exceeding the number allowed by rule of the circuit court of his county; the sheriff being liable for neglect or omission of duties by a deputy.

The sheriff may be called the constituent officer of the county. It is the one office always found in every county in England and the United States; and "without a sheriff, there is no shire." The position has lost much of the importance of the all powerful sheriff of the Norman period in England; and is of less dignity than the sheriff in England at the present time. Nevertheless it remains one of the principal county offices, with a variety of duties, as conservator of the peace, and as executive agent of the judicial courts, with some survival of fiscal powers and other duties.

Under the statutes of Illinois every sheriff is conservator of the peace in his county, and shall keep the same, suppress riots, routs, affrays, fighting, breaches of the peace and prevent crime and may arrest offenders on view, and cause them to be brought before the proper magistrates for trial or examination.

Sheriffs shall serve and execute, within their respective counties, and return all writs, warrants, process orders and decrees that may be legally directed and delivered to them.

Each sheriff shall, in person or by deputy, attend upon all courts of record held in his county, when in session, and obey the lawful orders and directions of the court.

To keep the peace, prevent crime, or to execute any writ, warrant, process, order or decree, he may call to his aid when necessary, any person or the power of the county (posse comitatus).

The sheriff has the custody and care of the court house and jail of his county, except as is other wise provided.¹

In counties not under township organization, the sheriff is ex officio collector of taxes.²

As conservator of the peace the authority of the sheriff is largely discretionary; and while his active responsibility has been lessened by the development of the office of State's Attorney, a good deal still depends on his attitude in the enforcement of law and the maintenance of order, especially in times of serious disturbance or threatened riot. There is no organized constabulary under the direction of the sheriff; but if disorder becomes too great to control by his deputies and the posse comitatus, he may call on the Governor for the aid of the State militia.

As executive officer of the courts, on the other hand, the sheriff acts mainly in a ministerial capacity, and is held to strict responsibility by the courts. His duties as custodian of the prisoners and county jail is included in this division of his work.

While the sheriff is, strictly speaking, an agent of the State Government, the practice of local election which prevails in every state but Rhode Island, and the absence of any effective supervision by State officials has led to the popular opinion of the position as primarily a local office. In a few states, however—New York, Michigan and Wisconsin—some measure of State control is maintained, by provisions authorizing the removal of sheriffs for cause by the Governor. In Illinois, a suggestion of the same situation exists in the section of the criminal code, providing that the Governor shall declare vacant the office of a sheriff from whom a person has been taken and lynched.³

CORONERS.

The State Constitution provides for the election of a coroner in each county, at the same time and for the same four years' term as the clerk of the circuit court. Every coroner is commissioned by the Governor, on the certificate of the county clerk of his election or appointment and that he has filed the bond and taken the oath of office required by law.

Next to the sheriff, the coroner is the oldest of the county offices; and it is the oldest elective county office. But its importance has been greatly reduced from that of the English coroner of the thirteenth century, who had jurisdiction over a wide variety of criminal matters, and also over some civil pleas. At present, the principal function of the coroner is to hold inquests on the bodies of persons whose deaths are supposed to be due to violence or other undue cause. The inquest must be held upon a view of the body by a jury of six persons summoned by the coroner. The procedure is distinctly different from a trial. The coroner summons witnesses and instructs the jury as to the law; the jury gives a verdict as to the cause of the death. If any person implicated by the inquest is not in custody, the coroner shall cause such person to be apprehended and committed for trial.

In addition to conducting inquests, the coroner may be called on to act as sheriff, where that official is personally interested in a suit or where the office is vacant.⁴

Coroner's inquests are a curious survival of an antiquated procedure, which served a useful purpose when there was no other system of public investigation and prosecutions for crime. Under present conditions the office is of little importance and the work could be better done in other ways. In most counties the total amount of the coroner's fees is less than $500 a year; and even in St. Clair County is less than $4,000 a year. An office of this kind does not warrant the expense and trouble of popular election. At the same time, to perform the duties properly the coroner should be both a criminal lawyer and a medical expert, while he is required to be neither. In a good share of cases where an inquest is held, all that is needed is a medical certificate as to the cause of death.¹ Where criminal action is suspected, the coroner's inquest has to be practically duplicated by an investigation by the State's Attorney.

In a few states, some steps have been taken to perform this work in a more effective way. In Massachusetts since 1877, coroners have been replaced by appointing competent medical examiners; and where their report shows need for criminal action, this is taken by the regular prosecuting officers. In several New England states and in Virginia, coroners are appointed by the Governor or judges; and in Louisiana, coroners must have a medical or surgical education.

To inquiries sent to county officials in Illinois, as to the advisability of appointing medical examiners to conduct the coroner's inquests, and authorizing the State's Attorneys to investigate cases where need for criminal proceedings was shown, two-thirds of the replies were in favor of such a plan.

If this change were made, some other officer should be authorized to act as sheriff, in cases where this duty now falls on the coroner.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS OF SCHOOLS.

The office of county superintendent of schools is not provided for in the general county law, but by the school law. On this account he is apt to be considered as lying outside the general system of county government. The office is, however, one of the established county offices; and is the more deserving of attention in an examination of county government, just because of the special provisions as to its constitution and powers, some of which might well be applied to other county offices.

Under the general school law, a county superintendent of schools is elected in every county, at the same time and for the same four-year term as the county judge. He must take the oath of office and execute a bond of not less than $12,000 conditioned upon the faithful discharge of his duties. He receives a salary payable from the State school fund, ranging from $1,250 in counties of less than 12,000 population, to $2,750 in counties of more than 75,000 and $7,500 in counties of over 100,000 population, which may be increased by the county board. He may be removed from office by the county board in case of neglect or refusal to make the reports provided by law or for any palpable violation of law or omission of duty; and in case of vacancy the county board shall fill the office by appointment.

The provisions for payment of his salary from the State treasury and for removal from office are distinctly different from the corresponding provisions in regard to other county officers; and might well be applied to other officials who are primarily agents of the State Government.

The powers and duties of the county superintendent of schools are enumerated in considerable detail in the school law. For the purposes of this report, it seems advisable to condense and re-classify the principal items so as to bring out the distinction between the functions of direct administration and those of supervision over the township and school district officials and teachers.

¹ In Cook County from 1907 to 1911, about 40 per cent of the inquests were of deaths from natural causes. Report of Coroner P. F. Hoffmann.

In the first category may be noted:

His duty to apportion the State school fund to townships and to pay over the share belonging to each township treasurer;

His duty to sell township fund lands, to issue certificates of purchase, to keep records, and to make reports to the county board and the Auditor of Public Accounts;

His duty to give notice of the election of trustees and of district elections, in case of failure by the township or district officials;

His duty to hold teachers' examinations, to grant teachers' certificates and to conduct a teachers' institute;

His duty to register applicants for normal school and university scholarships and to hold examinations for the same.

His supervisory authority includes:

His power to direct in what manner township treasurers shall keep their books and accounts; and his duty to examine at least once a year the books, accounts and vouchers, and the notes, bonds, mortgages and other evidences of indebtedness of each township treasurer.

His duty to investigate and determine appeals from the trustees of schools as to changes in school districts.

His power to remove from office any school director for willful failure to perform his official duties.

His duty to visit each school in the county at least once a year, to give teachers and school officers directions in teaching and in regard to courses of study, and to act as official adviser of the school officers and teachers of the county, under the advice of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

His power to give his opinion and advice in all controversies arising under the school law.

Similar powers of inspection, supervision and removal for neglect of duty of town officers by some county official would do much to improve the character of town administration, especially if the county official were in turn subject to the supervision of a State officer, as the county superintendent of schools is subject to the supervision of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

While the county superintendent of schools is now a more effective intermediary between the State and the officials in smaller local districts than is provided in other branches of public administration, further improvements could be made in this office. In view of his important educational and other duties, there should be definite qualifications prescribed by law, such as are prescribed in other states (Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Michigan and Wisconsin, all of which have elective county superintendents), are specifically authorized by the Constitution of Illinois, and have been recommended by the educational commission.

The importance of professional qualifications and of eliminating political influences also suggest the query whether the county superintendent should not be selected by some other method than election by popular vote. On this question, the educational commission made no definite recommendation; though the greater part of its discussion is given to reasons and opinions in favor of some method of selection other than by popular vote. In eleven states (including New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Indiana) the officials corresponding to the county superintendents are appointed, in various ways, as are practically all the city superintendents of schools. The early State Superintendents of Public Instruction in Illinois favored selection by the school officers of the county. The legislative committee of the Minnesota Education Association (1904) recommended the selection of county superintendents by a non-partisan county board of education. Thirty-six of the seventy-eight county superintendents in Iowa (in 1908), were opposed to popular election, and twelve others were doubtful. In Wisconsin, the consensus of opinion in the State Teachers' Association and the county superintendents' convention has been that the present system of electing county superintendent is radically wrong. The county superintendents in Indiana (who are elected by the trustees of schools) are reported to be unanimously opposed to election by the people.¹

Against this decided opinion of those actively interested in the work of education, the replies to inquiries sent to the elective county officials in Illinois showed a large majority opposed to the suggested appointment of the county superintendent by a county board of education. It is perhaps to be expected that elective officials should favor a continuance of this system; but their opinion is hardly conclusive against the judgment of those more directly engaged in educational administration; nor does it overcome the general reasons in favor of a reduction in the number of elective officers to a point where popular election can be a reality and not merely the mechanical counting of votes cast for party tickets, with little reference to the merits of individual candidates.

COUNTY SURVEYOR AND PROPOSED ROAD ENGINEERS.

The election law provides for the election of a county surveyor in each county, at the quadrennial elections when the Governor, circuit clerks and coroners are elected. It is the duty of this officer to make surveys he may be called on to make within the county, and to record such surveys, such record to be kept in the office of the recorder of the county. No act or record of a surveyor is conclusive, but may be reviewed by any competent tribunal, where its correctness is disputed.

Surveys made by the United States Land Office form the original basis of land surveys in Illinois; and the work of county surveyors is limited to special cases where they act on the order of a court or on the application of a private land owner. Even in Cook County, the county expense for the county surveyor for 1911 amounted to only $283.30.

In some states other duties have been placed on county surveyors. In several states, they lay out county roads and sometimes have charge of the construction and maintenance of such roads. In Indiana, the county surveyors have charge of the construction of drainage ditches. Most of the recent road laws of other states provide for the appointment of county road engineers or superintendents.²

It has been suggested that county surveyors should act as county supervisors of roads in this State. The county supervision of roads could well be combined with the present work of the county surveyor; but satisfactory results could not be expected by imposing the additional duties on the present official. There should be provided a sufficient number of competent road engineers, to have control over the construction and maintenance of county roads, and to assist and cooperate with local highway officers; and these officials might well take over the present duties of the county surveyors. Such road engineers, however, should be appointed on the basis of their technical qualifications of training and experience, without reference to political influences. Such road engineers might be appointed by the county boards, subject to definite requirements as to their qualifications. A separate official for each of the smaller counties is hardly necessary; and better results could be secured by grouping such counties in districts, with a road engineer in common. More efficient officials could be secured by their appointment under the rules of the Civil Service Commission, as the State officials paid from the State treasury and acting under the supervision of the State Highway Commission.

Replies to inquiries sent to county officials were in favor of providing for a county road engineer to supervise road and bridge work, by seven to one; and many were in favor of giving this office entire control of road work, in place of the town and district highway commissioners. From seventy-five counties all of the replies were in favor of a county road engineer; and from most of the others a majority were in favor of such an office.

BOARD OF REVIEW.

Under the Revenue Act of 1872 all county boards were given power to review and equalize the assessment of property for taxation. But by Act of 1898, county boards of review were established with enlarged powers. In counties not under township organization the board of county commissioners constitute this board of review; but in counties under township organization of less than 125,000 population the board of review consists of the chairman of the board of supervisors and two citizens appointed by the county judge. In counties over 125,000 population (Cook County) a board of review is of three members elected.¹

In all cases the county board of review is entirely distinct in its membership from the original assessors. Better results could be expected if the county officers who have to do with the original assessment were members of the board of review. Under the present law, this would mean the county clerk and county treasurer. If a county assessor is provided, he should also be a member of the board of review.

COUNTY MINE INSPECTORS.

Section 5 of the mining law of 1911 provides that:

The county board of any county in which coal is produced, upon the written request of the State Inspector of Mines for the district in which said county is located shall appoint a county inspector of mines as assistant to such State Inspector, but no person shall be eligible for appointment as county inspector who does not hold a State certificate of competency as mine manager, and the compensation of such county inspector shall be fixed by the county board at not less than three dollars per day, to be paid out of the county treasury.²

A more efficient and uniform system of mine inspection would be secured if the assistants to the State Inspector were appointed and paid by the State; as in the case of factory inspectors. Moreover the variations in the size of counties, previously noted, prevents these districts from being a suitable area for such officials. Several small counties might be covered by one inspector, while in some counties more than one inspector might be needed.

OTHER OFFICERS.

Boards of county commissioners may appoint a commissioner of Canada thistles for each election precinct; and where town auditors have failed to appoint such a commissioner, the board of supervisors may on petition appoint one.³

In counties not under township organization, the county board at their annual meeting in December, shall appoint three fence viewers in each precinct.⁴

CIVIL SERVICE.

In a number of the larger counties in Illinois, the staff of clerical and other employees is large enough to warrant placing these employees under the provisions of the civil service law. The merit system has been established in Cook County, where a county civil service commission has been provided. It is not necessary to provide a separate commission for each county; but the State Civil Service Commission could be authorized to adopt rules for the county service and to hold local examinations in counties where the county service includes a sufficient number of employees.

The civil service law of New York state is applicable to counties; and in seventeen of the sixty-one counties of that state county employees are selected under the civil service rules. Several of these counties have less than 100,000 population; and there are now seven counties in Illinois in addition to Cook County with a population as large as the smallest New York county included under the civil service rules—St. Clair, Peoria, Kane, Sangamon, LaSalle, Madison and Will.

COUNTY FINANCES.

TAXATION AND DEBT LIMITS.

The effective scope of authority of any public body depends in large measure upon its financial powers; and in the case of county boards their nominal powers are closely limited by the complicated constitutional and statutory restrictions on their powers of raising money.

Under the State Constitution county authorities shall never assess taxes, the aggregate of which shall exceed seventy-five cents per one hundred dollars valuation, except for the payment of indebtedness existing at the adoption of this Constitution, unless authorized by a vote of the people of the county.¹ The Constitution further limits county indebtedness to an aggregate of five per centum on the value of the taxable property.²

The county law makes provision for submitting to the people of any county questions of issuing bonds and levying taxes over the seventy-five cent limit.³ But this procedure seems to be used very little and in many counties is apparently made practically ineffective by the provisions of the Juul maximum rate law.

By the latter law, when the various tax levies in any taxing district (with certain exceptions) will exceed an aggregate of three per cent of the assessed valuation the tax rate shall be reduced to three per cent (subject to the same exceptions). It is provided however that the county tax rate shall not be reduced below forty-five cents on the one hundred dollars (in counties over 300,000 population, the limit is forty cents).⁴

COUNTY TAXES.

County taxes in Illinois remained relatively stable from 1870 to 1900 and in the latter year were only a fifth more than in 1870 and less than in 1875. Since 1900, however, there has been a decided increase in the amount of county taxes, from $6,179,195 to $11,546,266 (nearly double) in 1911. Even with this recent increase, county taxes are now less in proportion to the real value of property than in 1870.

These general tendencies in regard to county taxes are not true of all counties. In some counties there have been large additions to the county levies; in others the amounts have remained about the same, and in twenty counties the county tax for 1911 was less than for 1870.¹

Cook County shows the largest increase and accounts for a large part of the total increase though not the largest ratio of increase. The following tables give the twelve counties where the county tax has shown the largest ratio of increase since 1870:

Counties.	1870.	1911.
Cook.....	$1,351,609	$5,590,854

The four counties with the largest reduction in county taxes since 1870 are shown below:

Counties.	1870.	1911.
Coles.....	$ 35,727	$17,746
Gallatin.....	31,600	12,048
McDonough.....	69,078	51,148
Morgan.....	100,713	79,672

The relatively high taxes in 1870 may have been due to the payment of interest on railroad bonds or the cost of public buildings; and in some cases the large increase from 1870 to 1911 are in part caused by the increase of population.

There is a wide range of variation in the rates of county taxation in the different counties of Illinois. In 1911, the rate in 34 counties was less than 45 cents, the minimum being 17 cents in Ogle County. In eighteen counties the rate was the full forty-five cents, provided under the Juul law. In thirty-eight counties, the county rate was more than forty-five cents but less than the constitutional limit of seventy-five cents. In twelve counties, the constitutional limit had been reached; and in two counties this was exceeded.

The counties with the highest rates are mostly small counties. Six of the counties not under township organization (all counties with less than 25,000 population) had a rate of seventy-five cents; all of the others in this class, except Morgan, had a rate above forty-five cents; and in Morgan County the rate was 45 cents. Three of the other counties with a county rate of 75 cents had less than 25,000 population. The other three counties with the maximum rate were:

Kankakee County, 40,752 population, 75 cents.

Marion County, 35,094 population, 140 cents.

Saline County, 30,204 population, 79 cents.

This situation illustrates some of the difficulties arising from the creation of counties with too small a population and wealth to support the elaborate machinery of county government.

Most of the larger counties in 1911 had a county tax rate of not more than forty-five cents; but this rate was exceeded in Cook, Lake, Macoupin, Madison, Rock Island, Sangamon and Vermilion counties.

Altogether in two-thirds of the counties, the tax rate in 1911 was as high or higher than the forty-five cent rate provided under the Juul law. This must be kept in mind if counties are given power to levy road taxes; and changes should be made in the limitations on the total county rate.

FEES, SALARIES AND REPORTS.

By constitutional provision (Article X, Par. 10) the county board (with exceptions in the case of Cook County) shall fix the compensation of all county officers, with the amount of their necessary clerk hire, stationery, fuel and other expenses. In all cases where fees are provided for, said compensation shall be paid only out of, and shall in no instance exceed the fees actually collected. Maximum amounts are fixed and graded according to the population of counties. The compensation of no officer shall be increased or diminished during his term of office; and all fees or allowances received in excess of said compensation shall be paid into the county treasury.

The General Assembly is also given power to classify the counties into not more than three classes, and regulate fees according to class. (Art. X, Par. 12.) Counties have been classified into three classes, as follows: First class, counties not exceeding 25,000 population in 1900; second class, counties from 25,000 to 100,000 in 1900; and third class, counties over 100,000 population in 1900. Fees have been regulated by statute for state's attorneys, clerks of circuit courts, sheriffs, recorders, clerks of probate courts, county collectors, county treasurers, county surveyors, county superintendents of schools, county commissioners, and boards of supervisors; by the school law of 1909 the salaries of county superintendents are regulated to be paid from the State appropriation; and by Act of 1911 the salaries of state's attorneys have been fixed by law, to be paid from the county treasuries.¹ From the records of a few counties it appears that about 40 per cent of the county expenditures are paid without the action or control of the county board.

By Act of 1907 county officers of counties of the first and second class (all except Cook County) are required to keep accounts and make reports of fees collected; and the county boards are required carefully to audit and examine such reports.²

It is the duty of the county board at least once every six months to examine the books of accounts of the treasurer, and count the funds, and make settlement with the county treasurer.³

Other statutes authorize county boards to determine the compensation of coroner's deputies⁴ and (in Cook County) of jury commissioners;⁵ and require the county boards to provide blanks, books, stationery, pens and ink for the clerk of the probate court, in counties where probate courts are established.⁶

COUNTY ACCOUNTS.

An attempt to secure from the county officers a statement of receipts and expenditures, classified under a few main headings, resulted in such meagre returns that no general results could be compiled for all the counties. But the reports from some counties, supplemented by printed financial statements, serve to throw some light on the accounting methods of counties in Illinois, and to demonstrate the need for steps to establish a more satisfactory and uniform method of financial records in this State.

The nearest approach to a satisfactory statement is that published for Cook County; and if the comptroller's report of expenditures was made in the same form as the appropriation bill, this system might well be accepted as a standard so far as ordinary expenditures are concerned. The appropriation bill classifies expenditures in six main divisions: Administration, taxation and collection, civil courts, criminal courts, charitable and educational institutions and general. Under each division are shown the items for each office, with separate items for salaries, office supplies, furniture and repairs, light, heat and power, and general supplies. The comptroller's report, however, groups expenditures in eight main funds: Salaries, supplies, furniture and repairs, judges, jurors, industrial schools, outdoor relief and roads and bridges (county towns), and sundry other funds. There is no classification according to the main divisions of the appropriation bills; while the separate funds in fact overlap each other. The judges and jurors funds and some of the items in the group of sundry funds are of the same character as those in the salary fund; and other items in the sundry funds might well be classed with supplies. Neither the appropriation bill nor the report of expenditures separate clearly the payments for current expenses from payments for permanent improvements; nor is there any balance sheet or statement of assets and liabilities.

It is possible, by taking the separate items in the report to show the expenditures by the main divisions of the appropriation bill, except the expenses for office supplies and furniture and repairs. The following statement, from the report of the comptroller of Cook County for the year 1911, indicates a general form of financial statement which should be available from each county in the State.

From the financial reports of some other counties it has been possible to compile less satisfactory statements of county finances. The data for the four important counties of St. Clair, Kane, Sangamon, and Vermilion gave more specific items than any of the others; and are shown in the following table.¹

It should be noted that the receipts from fees shown are only the surplus of fees over the expenses of the fee offices. The table, therefore, does not include the total receipts of these offices, nor does it cover the expenses of these offices paid out of fees. The treasurer's commissions are not shown for Sangamon County; while only in that county are any receipts reported from the county farm. Trust funds are included only for St. Clair County.

The figures for a considerable number of items and some of the totals seem to be roughly comparable. The total expenditures for Sangamon County are larger than for St. Clair County, which has nearly a third more population; and the items for the compensation of county officers and for poor relief are distinctly higher. St. Clair County shows a large expenditure on the court house, $29,000 of which was for an addition to the building, not properly chargeable to current expenditures. Sangamon County expenditures are also considerably higher than those of Kane County, which has about the same population. Vermilion County has a large expenditure for charities, especially for the county infirmiry, for which no corresponding items appear in the St. Clair, Kane and Sangamon County reports.

The table below shows the data from the financial statements and reports of ten medium sized counties: Winnebago, Knox, Henry, Livingston, Montgomery, Whiteside, Morgan, Hancock, Logan and Piatt. These may be taken to illustrate the average accounting methods of Illinois counties; and are probably better than in many of the counties from which no returns at all have been secured.¹

It will be noted that for several of these counties the bulk of the expenditure is reported in a lump sum, for county orders, representing the payments on warrants drawn by order of the county board. In two counties—Whiteside and Hancock—there is also given in more detail the orders drawn or the amounts appropriated; but the totals of these do not agree with the total county orders paid. Even in these cases the amount for salaries is usually given in one sum.

In addition to the county orders a number of other items appear separately—such as those for jurors, court reporters, witness fees, birth and death certificates and collector's commissions, payments which do not require the action of the county board. In some cases the sum of such additional items of court expenses have been reported as the total expenditure on courts. In some cases, too, the totals in the statements do not agree with the sum of the items.

Under these conditions, it is impossible, from the data furnished, to show the total payments for any of the main divisions of county expenditure, nor to form any safe conclusions from the expenditures reported. Of the counties included in this table, the total expenditures of Logan County were larger than any other, and the total of ordinary expenses were larger than those of other counties of about the same population; and the expenditures of Knox County were larger than those of the more populous county of Winnebago.

¹ Including warrants issued and not paid.

It may be noted that Piatt County is the only county in any of the preceding tables with less than 30,000 population. From none of the other counties with less than 30,000 population was a financial statement of any value received; and it may be supposed that in many of the sixty-two counties in this class, as well as in some of the larger counties, the accounts are in even less satisfactory condition than those given.

The foregoing remarks and tables demonstrate the failure of county financial statements to show even the main facts of actual expenditures in a form intelligible to the ordinary citizen. But a satisfactory system of accounts and reports should do a good deal more than this. Annual financial statements should compare for each account expenditures with appropriations; and warrants issued with warrants paid; should distinguish between ordinary and extraordinary receipts and expenditures and between the cash transactions and the items properly chargeable to the year; and should give comparative statements of receipts and expenditures for several years, and balance sheets, with statements of assets and liabilities.

To secure a satisfactory system of county accounts and financial reports, there is need for the service of trained accountants. Few of the county clerks, on whom the work of keeping accounts now falls in most counties, can be competent for this work. The better accounts are from the largest counties, where some subordinates are likely to have some knowledge of accounting methods. But provision should be made for a more satisfactory method of keeping county accounts on a uniform system, and for a careful audit and examination, of such accounts every year in all counties of the State.

A number of states have provided for a county auditor as one of the officials required in every county. Such an officer is found in several of the North Central states—Ohio, Indiana, Minnesota, Iowa and South Dakota. In these states the county auditors not only keep the county accounts and issue warrants for payments authorized by the county boards, but they also prepare tax lists and perform other duties connected with the assessment of property for taxation similar to those performed by the county clerk and county treasurer in Illinois. In Minnesota, the county auditor further acts as clerk of the county board.

In New Jersey each county has an auditor appointed by the county board of chosen freeholders; and auditors are also provided in some of the southern and western states—South Carolina, Mississippi, Nevada, Washington and California and for some counties in Utah and Montana. In New York, the comptroller of New York city acts as auditor for the four counties within the city; and there is a county auditor for Erie County. The city auditor of Boston acts as auditor for the county of Suffolk in Massachusetts. Small boards of auditors have been established in a number of counties in Michigan.

In Illinois, the office of county auditor has been provided for Cook County and, by Act of 1911, for other counties over 75,000 population—Peoria, St. Clair, Sangamon, Kane, LaSalle, Madison, Will and Vermilion. In St. Clair County an auditor has been appointed by the board of supervisors for a number of years.

Inquiries to county officials as to the desirability of at least authorizing county auditors for other counties in Illinois showed a decided opinion in favor of such officials. Two-thirds of those giving a definite reply to this question were in favor of county auditors, while a larger proportion of county clerks and treasurers were in favor of such officials. Those opposed were largely from the smaller counties; although two officials from Clark County urged that the suggested limit of 25,000 population be reduced to 20,000, so as to include that county.

Each county should at least be required to establish and maintain a satisfactory system of accounts, in accordance with forms and methods to be prescribed by a State official and to send that officer regular reports of county receipts and payments. In addition, the larger counties—certainly those over 50,000 population—should appoint a competent county auditor, with definite qualifications prescribed by law.

The office of county auditor could probably be combined in many counties with that of the proposed county assessor; and perhaps in the smaller counties the duties could be performed by the county clerk. But in any case the duties of the auditor should be clearly defined, and provisions made for a uniform system of accounts and financial reports.

Besides a more satisfactory system of accounting, there is need also for the systematic inspection and audit of accounts at regular intervals, at least annually. Some of those opposed to establishing the office of county auditor were in favor of a regular audit of county accounts by the State Auditor of Public Accounts and others favored the employment of bonded auditing companies. Some counties have their accounts audited at times by private auditors; and a provision requiring an annual audit should be made compulsory for every county. But if such audits are made by a number of different concerns each acting under a special contract with county officials, they will be less satisfactory than if all are made under the general direction of a State officer. A small force of auditing inspectors devoting their time to county accounts could do this work more effectively and more economically; and could also be of much assistance to county officials in installing and maintaining a uniform system of accounting.

A systematic audit of the accounts of county officers by State examiners would also make possible provisions for releasing such officials and their bondsmen from further liability after their term of office, where their accounts were found to be correct.

Such uniform systems of accounting and auditing have been already established in a number of states. Beginning in Minnesota in 1878, the office of State Examiner was established, with power to inspect the accounts of county officers. In 1879, the county accounts in Massachusetts were brought under State supervision and in 1887 this work was placed under the control of a controller of county accounts. Similar supervision has been established, by means of a State Examiner or the State Auditor, in Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Nevada, Florida, New York (for certain accounts only), and Ohio; and in California, the State Controller publishes a summary of the financial reports of counties. In some of these states, and also in Indiana and Iowa, uniform municipal accounts and reports have also been established by State law.

The installation of this State supervision over county and other local accounts has brought about a marked improvement in local finances. In Wyoming county expenditures were reduced by more than a fourth; and where only two counties had kept their expenses within their income, all were brought to a cash basis. In New York, defalcations or shortages in 33 of the 60 counties were disclosed, and a repetition of such conditions prevented. In Ohio large amounts of money have been saved to the counties by introducing more exact methods and some cases of defalcation have been discovered.¹ There can be no doubt that a large saving can be made in Illinois by more careful methods, and by the comparisons of conditions in different counties, whether or not there are any cases of actual misappropriation of funds.

POOR LAW ADMINISTRATION.

Public charity in Illinois by the local authorities is furnished partly by caring for poor persons in county farms or infirmaries and partly by means of outdoor relief in the form of provisions, clothing and other supplies and medical aid, and occasionally money, distributed mainly through the agency of overseers of the poor. Owing to the inadequate financial methods of both county authorities and local overseers it is impossible to determine exactly the relative importance of the two systems of relief; but recent investigations by the Inspector of the State Charities Commission furnishes some data on this matter.

¹ In one county a shortage of nearly $70,000 in a period of seven years was discovered; in Hamilton county about $250,000 was turned back into the county treasury, as interest or gratuities received by the county treasurers and illegally converted to their own use. Atlantic City Conference for Good City Government, 1906, p. 225.

In 96 out of 100 counties visited, definite appropriations were made out of the county funds for the county farm and outdoor relief.¹ In about two-thirds of them, separate appropriations were made; but in the others, both classes of expenditure were combined in a single appropriation. In 48 of the 100 counties no annual or quarterly statement of poor relief expenditures was made.

As shown in table IX, the total appropriations for the year 1910-1911 aggregated $1,407,555. The total expenditures for 1910-1911, so far as determined, amounted to $789,085 for outdoor relief, and $530,970 for the county farms, an aggregate of $1,020,056.² This does not include Cook County.

In 67 counties, the expenditures for outdoor relief were larger than those for the poor farm and in 27 counties the expenditures for the poor farm were larger than for outdoor relief. In some cases the differences between the two classes of expenditure were comparatively slight and in five counties it was impossible to determine the amounts for each class of poor relief expenditure.³

In addition to the public relief, there are in many counties, voluntary relief societies, but there is no coöperation between these organizations and local authorities. These voluntary societies are doing a good work and their funds are more carefully administered than those of the county. But the lack of correlation between public and private relief results in the overlapping of aid in unworthy cases and demoralizes local charities.⁴

COUNTY FARMS AND ALMSHOUSES.

Almost every county in Illinois now maintains a county farm and almshouse for the care of poor persons.⁵ Within recent years the county almshouses in Illinois show an improvement, owing to closer inspection and the removal of insane patients to the State hospitals.⁶ Nevertheless, conditions are still very bad. Petty politics, now as formerly, plays too prominent a part in the management of the poor farms. To use the words of the State Charities Commission: "The county farm is a local political football passed back and forth by factional or partisan groups as rewards to satraps for services rendered." There is no general system of accounting. Many counties have no record of the produce or income from the county farms—of the total expenditure, or the net cost of the institution to the tax-payers. In 27 counties the almshouse is managed on a contract basis; in 72 counties there are salaried superintendents and in 24 there are also salaried matrons.

The inmates of county almshouses include a variety of different classes, all gathered in one institution. Records for November 1911 show the following different classes:

The average number of inmates in county almshouses outside of Cook County was less than thirty. In fifty-four counties there were not more than twenty inmates.

⁵ No almshouse in Boone, Kendall and Pope Counties; no county farm in Kendall county.

⁶ Report of the State Charities Commission, 1910, p. 87.

It is impossible for the separate counties with their limited resources to erect infirmaries where epileptics, demented, old aged, children, etc. can be segregated and properly cared for. Under the present system, all these classes are thrown together, and, to quote the report of the State Charities Commission: "No matter how conscientious the county authorities and how kind and sincere the superintendent and matron of the farm may be, it is obvious that it is almost an absolute impossibility for the county to furnish the proper care and treatment in one little institution for paupers, blind, cripples, demented, feeble minded, deaf and dumb children,"¹

Expenditures for county farms for the year 1910-11 amounted to $530,970, an average per capita cost of about $183, based on the number of inmates reported for November 1911. The average cost for inmates in the several counties show great variations; but comparisons on the basis of the available data are of little value as there is no distinction between expenditure for maintenance and for permanent improvements; and there is no uniformity in the method of accounting for the produce or income from these farms. In a number of counties the expenditures for 1910-1911 were more than $400 for each inmate, and in one county over $3,000. On the other hand, in a number of counties the expenditures reported were less than $100 per inmate, in one case as low as $45 per capita.

MEDICAL AID.

In all except eighteen counties, physicians are hired to attend the inmates of the infirmary, the jail and sometimes poor families. But only twenty-four counties pay the physicians' fixed salaries; the other counties give the work to the lowest bidder. Politics sometimes figures in the transaction, and the physician who plays good politics is very likely to land the job.

The report of the State Charities Commission for 1911 states that in most of the counties, hospital facilities for the care of the poor sick are inadequate. In thirty-five counties hospital wards or pest houses are provided at the county farms, where sick poor persons are sent—thirteen counties having both a pest house and hospital.² But only six of these counties have regular attendants for sick patients. Some counties have contracts with private hospitals to care for the sick poor at certain rates. Occasionally where there are no voluntary hospitals, poor patients are sent to neighboring counties.³

RELIEF OF THE BLIND.

In 1903 an Act was passed by the General Assembly providing for the relief of the blind. This Act provides that "all male persons over the age of 21 years and all female persons over the age of 18 years and who are declared to be blind in the manner hereinafter set forth and who come within the provisions of this Act shall at the discretion of the board of county commissioners or the board of supervisors receive as a benefit $150 per annum, payable quarterly, upon warrants properly drawn upon the treasury of the county of which such person or persons are residents."

Thirty-one counties have taken advantage of this Statute and now pension their blind in accordance with its provisions. In 1911, 429 blind persons were so cared for, an average of about thirteen per county. Fifteen of the sixty-nine counties which have not adopted this means of providing for their blind, do, however, give regular allowances to some of their residents who are so afflicted.⁴

OUTDOOR RELIEF.

In counties which have not adopted township organization, the poor are uniformly supported from the county treasury; but it is the duty of the board of county commissioners to designate some justice of the peace or some other suitable person in each precinct to be overseer of the poor for that precinct.¹ The investigations of the State Charities Commission disclosed eleven counties under county organization where no overseers were appointed.² In these counties, the three commissioners are expected to look after the poor in all the precincts of their county. In five counties under county organization overseers were appointed.³

In counties under township organization, it is provided that the supervisors of the respective towns in the county shall be ex officio overseers of the poor of their town. But in towns, having over 4,000 people the county board, on request of the supervisor, may appoint an overseer, fix his compensation and term of office which shall not exceed the term of the board. These overseers are required to give bond for the faithful performance of their duty.⁴ The highest salary paid these overseers is $100 a month, the average salary is $20, $35, or $50 per month and the term of the overseer does not exceed one year. The term of office is too short, the compensation too small and the influence of politics too strong to draw to the office men of ability and power.⁵

In some of the counties under township organization, the county board failed to designate suitable persons for overseers with the result that charity administration fell upon other officials of the community and benevolent spirited citizens.

In the counties investigated by the State Charities Commission in 1911, it was found that in sixty-nine counties the supervisors personally took charge of poor relief. Even in towns of 25,000 or over the supervisors are expected to look after the poor. In the remaining fifteen counties under township organization overseers were appointed for towns including cities to take charge of public poor relief.⁶

In this investigation it was also ascertained that in nine of the counties under township organization the towns pay expenses for pauper relief from the town treasuries;⁷ in seventy-five counties under township organization, the expenses are paid from the county treasuries.

Sec. 29, Chapter 107 of the Revised Statutes of Illinois, 1911, reads as follows, "the overseers of the poor in each town in counties under township organization, (whether the poor be supported by townships or otherwise) and of each precinct in counties not under township organization, shall keep an accurate account showing the name of every person relieved or supported in their town or precinct; the place of his or her birth; the manner in which he or she is relieved or supported, whether in whole or in part at the expense of the county or town; the amount of the aid furnished; whether the dependency was on account of idiocy, lunacy, intemperate or other cause, stating the cause. And on or before the first meeting of the county board in September in each year, file a copy of such account with the county clerk of their county." In seventy-nine counties, this law is totally disregarded and in some of the remaining counties, the overseers failed to include all the items required by the statute.⁸

The State Charities Commission after an investigation found in twenty-eight counties the information as to expenditure for outdoor relief was absolutely unreliable, as pauper claims were not classified. In many of the seventy-two counties in which clerks kept pauper claims in a special group, the inspector found claims which should have been included in pauper lists scattered among general and other items.

The average weekly sum allowed each applicant is $1.45 per person.¹ In most counties, the amount is given to persons who come at varying intervals. A person who needs more aid than would be required to keep him or her at the county farm is refused such help or is sent to the almshouse. There are, however, exceptions to this.

In some counties, the overseers are required to write all orders for provisions for the poor; but in most cases orders are verbal. On the strength of a verbal order, given by the supervisors, merchants sometimes continue to furnish goods for indefinite periods. This gives rise to a practice commonly known as "cutting" claims. The supervisors very often decide that the merchants have overworked their indefinite orders and hence allow only part of the claims of the merchants. Hence it happens not infrequently that the merchants give the poor less than their bills represent because they cannot be sure how much they will be allowed by the supervisors.²

In 43 counties the names of poor persons receiving county aid are published in the newspapers, in 57 they are not.³ Officials in some of the counties that do not publish the names of paupers who receive aid, hold that to publish the names would deter only the worthy; in some counties the names could not be easily published as they form no part of the record. It is doubtful if the publishing of names acts as a deterrent to the professional pauper and it would seem to have a tendency to prevent the needy who desired to keep their self respect from asking assistance.

At the present time the old law of settlement exists which provides that the county shall relieve and support all poor persons who have resided in the county one year. No county is liable for the support of any person who did not reside in the county one year prior to his or her becoming chargeable.

Most of the overseers of the poor follow the practice of sending transients on to the next county. A permanent movement of vagabonds is thus encouraged, and no one is particularly benefited by this method.

The expenditures for outdoor relief in 1910, so far as determined in 100 counties, were $789,083. This amounted to 25 cents per capita for the population of these counties. In seven counties, the expenditure for outdoor relief was over forty cents per capita.⁴ The maximum of 64½ cents per capita was in Christian County. In eighteen counties, the county expenditure for outdoor relief was less than ten cents per capita⁵—eight of these counties where there is also town aid; and six were counties not under township organization.

It seems clear that the present method of local poor relief is inefficient from the administrative point of view. Organization, coöperation and coördination are conspicuous by their absence.

Recent tendencies are in the direction of more centralized administration, by the development of State institutions and by the increase of county expenditures for the care of dependent classes, such as pensions for the blind, juvenile courts, detention homes for children and tuberculosis sanitariums. This increase of county expenditures calls for better methods of accounting and financial control.

COUNTY JAILS.¹

The first report of the State Charities Commission on the inspection of county jails in Illinois in 1910 showed little improvement in the condition of these institutions since the first inspection in 1870 by the State Board of Charities. There had been no appreciable improvement in physical plant and little betterment in methods of treatment.

A large majority of the jails were found to be old and antiquated. Of ninety-eight jails inspected, twenty-six were so dark that artificial lighting was necessary on the brightest days. Twenty-one jails had solid stone cells, ventilated only through the bar doors. Only ten could be put in first-class condition as to sanitation; thirty were considered second class; twenty-six as poor; while thirty-two were in such condition that they should be abandoned.

The second inspection of jails by the State Charities Commission, in 1911, revealed considerable improvement in their physical condition, but as an institution the situation as a whole was considered no more satisfactory. Some have gone so far as to advocate the total abolition of the county jail.

During the year 1911, nine counties were either building new jails or had taken steps to erect new buildings: Crawford, DeKalb, Effingham, Jasper, McHenry, Monroe, Pope, Pulaski and Saline. In several other counties the question of new jails was being seriously discussed.

The total population of the county jails at the time of inspections was as follows:

	1911.	1910.
White men.....	947	1,446
Colored men.....	169
White women.....	44	78
Colored women.....	21
Total.....	1,181	1,524

In 1910, 69 per cent of the inmates were awaiting trial, 29 per cent were serving sentences, and 2 per cent were awaiting transfer to State's prisons or were held as witnesses.

The law requiring the segregation of minors from adult inmates was violated in seventy-two of the 100 counties visited. In twenty-seven counties, separate departments were provided for minors and for children, and one additional county provided a separate department for minors. In thirty-six counties there was a separate department for children. Most of these were the larger counties; but separate departments were provided in a number of the smaller counties—Ford, Piatt, Marshall, Kendall and Monroe. In 1910, there were 137 minors in the county jails; in 1911, there were 152, including sixteen children under 16 years of age. Detention homes for children are provided in Sangamon and Adams counties.

In eleven counties there were no provisions for women in the county jails. Many counties comply with the letter of the law requiring separate cells for women, but failed to segregate these cells from those of the men.

¹ Annual Reports of the State Charities Commission, 1910, pp. 34-86; 1911, pp. 42-45, 281-337.

Only seventeen counties did not detain insane persons in the county jail. In twenty-six counties special cells were provided for insane persons; and in fifty-seven counties, insane persons were held in the main jail or the women's department.

The majority of county jails were insanitary and uncleanly. Only in forty-three counties were separate towels furnished and clothes changed weekly; in twenty-six other counties one or the other of these aids to cleanliness were supplied. In only thirteen counties were clean sheets and blankets provided weekly.

The ten counties reported in 1911 as having first-class jails were: Champaign, DeKalb, DuPage, Jasper, Livingston, Mercer, Monroe, Montgomery, Saline and Woodford. In twenty-five other counties there were sanitary jails in use or under construction. In twenty-eight counties, the jails could be made habitable. In thirty-seven counties, according to the report of the State Charities Commission, the jails should be condemned as insanitary.

In all the counties visited, except St. Clair, the sheriff received a per diem payment for feeding prisoners. In twenty counties, the sheriffs also received 25 or 50 cents per week for each inmate's washing; but in many cases the inmates do their own washing. In nineteen counties, the sheriffs collect a "turnkey" fee of 50 cents, for locking a prisoner in, and 50 cents for turning him out of jail. A fourth fee to the sheriff in several counties, is the surplus mileage for conducting prisoners to State institutions.

Provision was made in eighteen counties for allowing prisoners to work out their fines at a rate of $1.50 per day. There are work houses in Adams and Peoria counties. St. Clair, Knox and some other counties have rock piles; and some counties contract with prisoners to work on the public highways.

In twenty-nine counties so-called "kangaroo courts" are permitted. This is a means by which the inmates themselves attempt to maintain some degree of order and cleanliness, which should be done by the authorities. Left to itself, the kangaroo court becomes the means of oppression and even of robbery.

In the summer of 1912, after a conference by a committee of the board of supervisors of Sangamon County with the city commissioners of Springfield, a plan was prepared for a joint city and county workhouse. The report recommended a penal farm, where healthful quarters could be provided for all prisoners with strict segregation of the sexes, the employment of all able men prisoners and the elimination of the financial interest of the sheriff in the housing and dieting of prisoners. There is, however, no legal authority at present for such coöperation of city and county authorities.

B. TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

ADOPTION OF TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

At any general election, the qualified voters in any county may vote for or against township organization in such county. On petition of fifty or more legal voters, the county board shall cause the question to be submitted; and if approved by a majority of those voting at the election, the township system goes into effect on and after the first Tuesday of April next succeeding. When a county has voted in favor of township organization, the county board shall, at its next session, appoint three commissioners to divide the county into towns, conforming as far as convenient to the townships according to government surveys. Reports of the vote on township organization and the names and boundaries of towns are sent to the Auditor of Public Accounts.

Arrangements for the first town election are made by the county board; and in case a town after two elections does not organize and elect officers, the county board may appoint the necessary officers.

On petition of at least one-fifth of the legal voters of any county which has adopted township organization, the question of its continuance shall be submitted to the voters, and if a majority of the votes on that question is against continuance, the township organization shall cease.

These provisions make it easier to submit the question of adopting township organization than that of discontinuing the township system; and the two questions might well be placed on an equality. County boards might be authorized to submit either question on their own motion; and the submission of either question could be required on petition of one-tenth of the voters in any county.

Since 1890 only two counties have adopted township organization; and under existing conditions the counties with and without the township system are likely to remain unchanged. Most of the counties not under township organization are small, both in area and population—Morgan County, with a population of 34,000, is the largest.

The county board or board of supervisors of each county has jurisdiction to alter the boundaries of towns, to change town lines and to divide, enlarge and create new towns, subject to certain conditions. The union of towns and transfer of territory from one town to another requires a petition and an affirmative vote of a majority of the voters of each town voting on such question at a general annual election. No town may have less than sixteen square miles; and a new town must contain at least 200 legal voters.

In 1910 there were 1,430 civil townships in the eighty-five counties in Illinois under township organization. The average area is 35.3 square miles, which is not far from the congressional township of 36 square miles. But many civil townships do not coincide in area with the congressional townships—in some cases they are larger and in others smaller. In Sangamon County only three of the twenty-six civil townships are coterminous with congressional townships.

CITIES AND TOWNS.

Under the laws of Illinois cities and villages and incorporated towns simply supplement the township government, and (except in the case of Chicago) do not absorb any part of the township government. In most other states with the township system cities absorb the town government within the city limits; and in some states even incorporated villages are detached from the towns and take over the functions of town government. The situation in Illinois gives rise to some peculiar conditions, especially in the case of the larger cities.

In 1910 there were in Illinois 1,064 cities, villages and incorporated towns. Most of these are small villages, which cover only a small part of the area of the township within which they are located. But the thirty-two cities of over 10,000 population cover a considerable part of the township area, and contain most of the population of the townships. In Chicago the five former townships have been consolidated; and most of the township functions have been transferred to city or county officers. The city of Peoria includes the whole of Peoria city township and parts of two other townships. Eight other cities are co-extensive with townships—East St. Louis, Springfield (Capitol Township), Evanston (Ridgeville Township), Rock Island, Moline, Macomb, Berwyn and Belleville; the towns of Cicero and Warsaw are co-extensive with townships; the village of Oak Park is co-extensive with the township; and Cairo is co-extensive with the precinct of the same name. Other cities of over 10,000 population appear to include all the urban part of the township; but in seven cities there is a considerable part of the population of the township outside of the city limits, as shown in the following list:

	Population of township 1910.	Population of city 1910.	Township population outside city 1910.
Rockford.....	48,405	45,401	3,004

In some of these townships part of the population outside of the city is included in incorporated villages; but in most cases the larger part, and sometimes all, have no local government other than that of the township. The most striking case is that of Joliet, where a population of 16,000 in the suburbs of the city has no municipal organization other than as part of the township.

TOWNSHIPS IN CITIES OVER FIFTY THOUSAND.

By an Act of 1901, in all townships lying wholly within a city of more than 50,000 population, the powers of townships and town officers may be exercised by county authorities, on petition of 1,000 voters and vote of the township adopting the Act. This Act is applicable to the townships included in the cities of Chicago, Peoria, Springfield and East St. Louis; and has been adopted in Springfield.

In the townships adopting the Act, the powers vested in the township, including all the powers vested in the town meetings and the board of auditors, are exercised by the county board. The county clerk is ex officio town clerk and township assessor, and the treasurer of the county is ex officio collector and supervisor. The offices of highway commissioners are abolished in such townships. Such towns, however, continue to elect supervisors as members of the county board, and also justices of the peace.

The provisions of this Act should at least be made optional for towns with less than 50,000 population which are coincident with cities or villages. Indeed, all cities and villages of over 10,000 population might well be constituted as distinct towns.

POWERS OF TOWNS.

Every town is invested with corporate capacity to sue and be sued, to own and control property and to make necessary contracts. The electors present at the annual town meeting have the following powers:

To make orders for the sale, regulation or use of corporate property, to take necessary measures for the exercise of corporate powers, and to institute or defend suits at law or in equity.

To vote taxes for roads and bridges, for lawsuits and other purposes required by law.

To prevent noxious weeds, encourage the planting of trees, regulate fences and the running at large of cattle and other animals, establish pounds and provide for poundmasters, and provide public wells and watering places.

To make by-laws and rules necessary to carry into effect the powers granted, to impose fines and to apply penalties for the interests of the town.

In towns which are co-extensive with incorporated cities and villages, the town meeting cannot exercise the powers enumerated after the first paragraph of the foregoing list. Even for other towns the list of powers is not impressive.

At special town meetings, the electors have power to fill vacancies in the town offices; to provide for repairing highways and bridges, in cases of emergency; and to act upon subjects postponed from the annual town meeting.

Additional provisions in regard to the powers of towns and town meetings are found in Acts other than the township organization law.

Under the law for roads and bridges the most important part of the taxing power of towns, that of levying taxes for roads and bridges, is vested in the highway commissioners and the board of town auditors; and road and bridge taxes are levied by the town meetings only for additional amounts above the ordinary levies, and after due notice.

On previous notice, the electors at town meeting may vote on the adoption of the labor system for the payment of labor and property road taxes.

By Act of 1905, on request of twenty-five electors notice shall be given that the question of building, purchasing or leasing a town hall will be brought up at the annual town meeting.¹

Under the law providing for anti-saloon territory, each town (and also each city, village or precinct), on petition of one-fourth of the total vote at the last election, may vote at any election to become anti-saloon territory, in which it is unlawful to grant licenses or to sell intoxicating liquor.²

TOWN MEETINGS.

As in New England and a few other states, the Illinois law on township organization provides for an annual town meeting of the electors in each town, for the election of town officers and the transaction of the business of the town. This annual town meeting is held on the first Tuesday of April, notice of the time and place having been posted or printed beforehand. Special town meetings may also be held, with proper notice stating the object of such meeting.

The electors present between 8 and 9 o'clock in the forenoon of the town meeting day are called to order by the town clerk and choose one of their number moderator; and the polls for the election of town officers are opened. In the larger towns several polling places are provided. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the polls are closed; and the moderator calls the meeting to order for the transaction of business, the town clerk acting as clerk of the meeting.

Special town meetings shall be held when the supervisor, town clerk and a justice of the peace, or any two of them, with fifteen voters of the town, file a statement that such a special meeting is necessary. Notices of special meetings must set forth the object of the meeting; and no other business can be done.

In actual practice the town meeting in Illinois is much less important than in New England, and occupies a less prominent place than might be supposed from the language of the statutes. This is due in the main to the much smaller powers of the town meeting as compared with those of the New England towns, which attend to most of the public business carried on in this State by the incorporated villages and small cities.

Even with respect to the powers granted to towns, the town meeting is of much less importance than in New England. The authority to levy the principal local tax—for roads and bridges—is vested in town officers; and the taxing power of the town meeting is limited to the small amount for general purposes, and the levy of an additional road or bridge tax above the amount which the highway commissioners may levy.

Besides the difference in substantial powers, differences in methods of procedure further mark a contrast between towns in New England and in Illinois. In the New England states the warrant calling the town meeting must specify the business to be transacted at the annual meeting, as well as at special meetings; while in Illinois no such notice is required as to the ordinary business at the annual town meeting.

Under these conditions, the town meeting in Illinois in most towns is attended by but few persons, and attracts little attention. This is especially notable in towns containing cities and villages of some size.

In the less populous and more distinctly rural townships a somewhat greater proportionate interest is shown in many places by the reported attendance at the town meetings; and in some places a relatively large number are present. Yet even in most of such towns the attendance and interest falls far short of the traditions of the institution.

To secure some definite data in regard to the existing conditions at town meetings in Illinois, an inquiry was sent to the town clerks throughout the State, asking for the attendance and vote at the town meetings in April, 1912. Later, in connection with other inquiries, county officials were asked to report their opinions as to the effectiveness and value of the town meetings in this State at the present time; and the county clerks were asked for statistics as to the vote and attendance at the annual election and town meeting in April, 1912.

Replies were received from 535 town clerks, out of a total of 1,430 townships in the State. This record has of itself some significance as to the serviceableness of the town clerks in the towns from which no response was received. Two county clerks returned substantially complete returns as to the vote and attendance at town meetings in their counties (Livingston and Montgomery); and several others reported the vote cast at town elections. Altogether some report was received from 622 towns; but in a good many cases no report of attendance at the town meeting was given, and the total number for which a report of attendance at town meeting was received is 440.

In the replies from the town clerks to the two simple questions asked, there was shown a good deal of confusion between the annual town election and the business session of the town meeting in the afternoon. In a good many answers the number of votes cast and the number of voters attending the town meeting are reported as the same; and the figures reported, in comparison with the population and the statistics from other towns, indicate that the total number of votes cast during the day has also been given as the attendance at the town meeting. In most cases the vote given is evidently the total vote cast for town officers during the election; but in some reports, the number of votes is apparently the number voting at the business meeting in the afternoon.

The number of towns reporting the attendance within certain limits is given below:

Of the towns reporting definite information, nearly two-thirds had an attendance at the business session of not over fifty, and only about one in ten had an attendance of over 100. But it cannot be assumed that these proportions will hold for all the towns in the State. The towns for which reports have been received probably include most of those where there was any considerable attendance and interest in the town meetings. Allowing, however, for meetings with a fair attendance and not reported, it may be estimated that for all the towns in the State, less than a fourth have an attendance of fifty at the business session of the annual town meeting; and not over one in twenty have an attendance of more than 100. Yet nearly every town has a population of at least 1,000, and should have more than 200 voters.

The largest number of well attended town meetings were reported from Cook, Henry, Livingston and Will counties.

Below is a list of towns from which an attendance of 100 or more was reported at the town meeting in 1912, apparently at the business session:

In the above list it will be noted that in most cases the attendance is reported at 100 or some other round number, indicating clearly that these figures are only approximations; and in some instances at least may easily be an over-estimate.

In the more populous towns, containing a city or village of some size, the attendance at town meetings is always an insignificant number; and in such towns at least the town meeting serves no useful purpose under present conditions.

Where a town is co-extensive with an incorporated city or village, the townmeeting may not exercise most of the usual legal powers; and in such towns no town meetings appear to be held. In other towns including cities and villages of considerable population, town meetings have the usual legal powers; but in fact the attendance is purely nominal. The following record of reports from town meetings for such towns for April, 1912, shows only one such town with any considerable attendance, Joliet, where about 200 were present, while 3,140 votes were cast at the town election. With this exception, the largest attendance in towns of this class was 50, in Mattoon; in most of these towns the attendance was only from 20 to 30; while in Danville there were but three persons present and in Urbana only the town clerk appeared.

The opinions of county officials as to the effectiveness and value of the town meetings in Illinois was also decisively in the negative. Two-thirds of those replying to this question stated it had little or no value; and many added that such meetings should be abolished. Even many of those whose replies were more favorable to the town meeting, said, "if the people would attend," or admitted that the interest and active value of these meetings were slight; but they believed they should be continued as a potential force. From half of the counties under township organization none of the replies received were in favor of the town meetings. From only five counties under township organization were no criticisms received; and in two of these only a single official answered the question as to the town meeting. Moreover, the strongest expression in favor of the town meeting came, not from the northern counties where the New England influence is most important, but from Douglas, Lawrence and Shelby counties, in the central part of the State. But the reports from town clerks in these counties do not indicate that a large attendance and interest in the town meetings is more common in these counties than in others.

The Board of Supervisors of Champaign County, at their meeting in March, 1912, adopted the following resolutions in regard to town meetings and town elections:

That the town meeting now provided by law be abolished, and all duties thereof be turned over to the board of town auditors.

That in case the town meeting is continued, the moderator at all town meetings shall be elected at 2:00 o'clock.

That the general election law shall apply to all town elections.

Of the numerous criticisms and adverse reports of town meetings submitted to the committee, the following will serve as illustrations:

Fred Hess, county clerk of Champaign County writes:

"The effectiveness and value of the town meeting depends wholly on the interest taken in same by the voters. As a rule in this county, the voters take little or no active interest in the town meetings, and all that is done is usually looked after by a very few people, usually the officer whose duty it is to do so."

W. S. Binns, county clerk of Pike County, addressing a meeting of the committee stated that only about one-twentieth of the voters attended town meetings.

"They call in several fellows, tell them they want to meet to levy a township tax. They get one to make a motion that they levy a certain amount and have some fellow second it."

A. N. Banes, county clerk of Montgomery County, addressing a meeting of the committee stated that he had observed about 6 or 7 per cent of the voters at the regular annual town meeting, and that there was no general interest.

"I usually attend the meetings. During the last five years I have been there four times, and in that time I have never seen more than twelve" (in a township of 2,000 voters).

F. J. Knight, county treasurer of DuPage County, writes:

"The town meeting should be abolished. Not 5 per cent of the voters are able to be present and no notice is given of the subjects to be brought up for consideration. All matters which are now submitted to the town meeting, in my judgment, should be placed on the ballot, so that all voters might have an opportunity to express their opinions on the matters submitted."

Wm. L. Martin, state's attorney of White County, writes:

"I think that the town meeting has become obsolete and has outlived its usefulness. In my experience, the citizens have lost interest in this method of transacting the town business, and invariably a very small minority of the citizens speak for the town."

Harry E. Green, county superintendent of schools in DeKalb County, writes:

"Out of 1,200 voters in this township, not more than fifteen have been present at any one meeting in the past four years."

John S. Brown, surveyor of DeWitt County, writes:

"If you mean by the town meetings, the caucuses which are held before elections and primaries, I think the trouble with all such meetings is that they are attended largely by men who are seeking favors and by those whom they have influenced to come to the meetings to further their ends. There are too many of our voters throughout the county who do not take sufficient interest in public affairs to drop their work for a few hours for the good of the community at large. Unless we can convince the people of our country of the necessity of each person studying the problems of his community and if possible those of our nation, and as far as may be, voicing his opinion, we can not complain if our affairs are handled largely by men who wish to hold office for the sole purpose of the personal gain and the prestige they may gain thereby."

The town clerk of a town of 2,500 population, in one of the northern counties stated that:

"The thirteen persons reported present when the town meeting was called to order included six judges and clerks of election, two town officers, one professional candidate for moderator and one innocent bystander in booth marking ballot, leaving three plain citizens who were evidently interested in the meeting. Two or three persons came in to vote at town election while the meeting was in session."

In reply to a request for further information as the business transacted and interest displayed, he replied:

"At the last town meeting we levied the town tax and reports of the supervisor and commissioners of highways were read. For over twenty-five years past on three occasions the road and bridge tax was levied at town meeting; not on account of any public interest in the matter however; the commissioners just had it done that way. Also during this period of time two resolutions were adopted, count 'em, two in over twenty-five years. One was in relation to the partial support of a pauper who had a brother of moderate means, and was submitted at the request of the supervisor. It was unnecessary but it gave the supervisor something to crawl behind if his action was questioned. The other resolution related to weeds along the highways. Some important business in twenty-five years!

"Previous to 1896 it was not even the custom to levy the town tax at the town meeting. This left only the reports to be read and many times that was not done. When I was first elected clerk in 1894 it was the custom for the supervisor to tell the clerk how much money he wanted for town purposes for the ensuing year and the clerk would make out a certificate for the amount asked and file the same with the county clerk. About this time the railroad companies got busy looking up the manner in which town taxes were levied and some towns got along without any revenue from the railroads for a season, but something was learned and since 1896 the levy has been made at the town meeting. It is only a matter of form however, absolutely no public interest being taken in the meetings, the attendance being composed of the judges and clerks of election in session at the place where the meeting is held, two or three town officials and perhaps a chance voter or two. I am satisfied, very well satisfied, that the general public does not care a damn about town meeting in this locality.

"What if an irresponsible bunch 'had it in' for the supervisor and others in authority and would attend such a meeting as we have and vote a tax levy of thirty cents?

"What is the use of reading the supervisor's annual statement to the assembled electors (13 perhaps) when the same is posted for inspection and published in the local paper?

"What is the use of reading the report of commissioners of highways when their treasurer's report is published?

"What is there worth while (except tax levy) to be done at town meeting anyhow as matters stand today?

"The town meeting as I have met it is a farce and in my opinion should be abolished, even if the town clerk would lose a $2.50 fee each year; but say, don't have any change go into effect until 1914—my term expires then."

Examples of qualified statements are shown in the following:

C. S. Cutting, probate judge of Cook County, writes:

"The town meetings in strictly rural townships is an admirable institution, and is effective in many ways. It permits absolute home rule in those matters, which are strictly local. But in townships which contain populous villages or cities, the town meeting is a farce, is ineffective, wasteful and absurd."

William A. Blodgett, county judge of Whiteside County, writes:

"Town meetings has but little effect and practically no value at present, but should be made to have much effect and value as a place of meeting and exchanging views, taking action on public matters of the town, etc. This of course, cannot be forced by legislation, but might be by legislation supported by sentiment and education."

J. Arthur Baird, county judge of Hancock County, writes of the town meeting:

"Not as effective as in olden times, but still stands ready to render us a service."

Geo. B. McClelland, county superintendent of schools, Greene County, writes:

"The value of town meetings is much greater than their effectiveness, but they give the people the opportunity."

In some towns the interests in town meetings seem to have been transferred to a preliminary caucus held some time before the annual town meeting.

The town clerk of Elgin, writes:

"A Republican caucus is held to make nominations for town officers and those named are elected. This year there was no opposition whatever for any town office, and only by a special effort on the part of a few individuals who personally requested voters to go to the polls was the vote made semi-respectable. Everything goes for the primaries April 9, and April 2 was entirely put in the shade. We average twenty to thirty present at the business meeting at 2:00 o'clock."

A town clerk in McHenry County, after reporting an attendance of fifty-eight, adds:

"March 16, caucus we had 252 votes cast; fight all in caucus. About 400 votes in township."

Most of those in favor of continuing the town meeting gave only brief answers; and in some cases it was not clear that the writers were acquainted with any place where such meetings were well attended and active institutions.

Mr. Grimes, chairman of the board of supervisors of Christian County, addressing the committee, said:

"I think we have on an average of 100 there, sometimes more. We have a good deal of discussion in regard to caring for roads—in other words anything for the betterment of the townships.

"Another thing which has something to do with getting out a crowd is a dinner that is given that day. The Ladies' Aid have a dinner, also a supper, that brings a crowd to town. That possibly has a good deal to do with it. Quite a number of the ladies from the country come in, and of course their husbands come with them."

A town clerk in DeKalb County after reporting an attendance of ten at the town meetings, adds: "How is this for confidence in town officers? Not so bad, is it?

A town clerk in DeWitt County writes:

"There was about eight or ten voters in the office, but there was one hundred on the outside to hear the reports as near as I can tell."

In other states where the system of town and county government is similar to that in Illinois in counties under township organization, the powers and importance of the town meeting have also become of little significance.¹ In New York the town taxes are levied by the county board of supervisors and appropriations for more than $500 are made by ballot of the tax payers at the town election. The business session of town meetings for the most part are attended by but few. In large towns containing several election precincts, the town meeting is simply an election by ballot in the several precincts, and there is practically no general session for the transaction of business.

In Michigan business sessions of town meetings are seldom attended by anything more than a handful of voters; and this situation has been recognized by a provision in the town law authorizing the town board to levy the town tax, where the town meeting does not act.

It seems clear that town meetings in the great majority of towns in Illinois are but slightly attended and of very little value if any; and so far as these towns are concerned might well be abolished. At the same time, the existence of active town meetings in even a small number of rural towns stands in the way of an attempt to abolish town meetings entirely; while the recognition of annual township meetings in the State Constitution also prevents their complete abolition.

Under these conditions, some suggestions may be made for town meetings in places where they are now effective or where they may be revived, while other changes may be proposed for dealing with the conditions as they exist in most of the towns throughout the State.

In the first place, the notice for the annual town meeting should state the business to be transacted, as well as the time and place; and this notice should be given more publicity. In the next place a minimum attendance (at least 25) should be required to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The town meeting should further have authority (but not necessarily exclusive power) to determine the rate of town taxation for all town purposes, within prescribed limits; and the powers of the town meetings should be extended to deal with the problems of small villages, so that the continued multiplication of petty village corporations should be made less necessary. With such provisions, the town meeting would have some reasons for existence, and might not only continue in places where it is now active, but might also be revived in other towns.

But it cannot be assumed that even with these changes, the town meeting will become an effective organ as a general rule; and to meet the more common situation, other changes in the law are needed. For this purpose, there should be a clearly defined chief executive officer in each town and the board of town auditors should be re-organized, its powers should be revised and its name changed to indicate its broader authority. As suggested elsewhere, the town assessor should be abolished, and a single road commissioner substituted for the present three highway commissioners in each town. With these changes, a town board could be constituted, composed of the supervisor, town clerk, road commissioner and two justices of the peace. This board should have the powers of the present board of town auditors, as to making appointments to fill vacancies and should also act as town board of health. The town board should further be authorized to adopt local ordinances, subject to their disapproval by the town meeting or a referendum vote at the town election; while in case of no action by the town meeting, the town board should have authority to levy the necessary town taxes.

These changes would permit the continuation of the "old-fashioned" town meeting, wherever it retains any vitality; and would also provide more effective machinery for the great majority of Illinois towns.

TOWN OFFICERS.

The town officers are a supervisor (with assistant supervisors in the more populous towns), town clerk, assessor, collector, now elected for two-year terms, one-half of the supervisors in alternate years; three commissioners of highways, elected for three years, one retiring each year; and two to five justices of the peace and two to five constables, elected every four years.

Under the present arrangement, in most of the townships only a commissioner of highways is elected in alternate years; while in the more populous towns only a highway commissioner and one-half of the supervisors. This serves to reduce further the importance of the alternate annual town meetings; while requiring the expense of an election to be met each year. If a single highway commissioner, elected for two or more years, were provided in place of the present board of three, all the town elections could be made biennial. The board of supervisors of Champaign County have proposed that the town clerk and collector be elected alternately with the supervisor, and that the assessor be elected each year.

Anyone elected as supervisor, town clerk, assessor or commissioner of highways who refuses to serve shall forfeit to the town the sum of $25.00.

Vacancies in town offices are filled by appointment by the supervisor, town clerk and justices of the peace.

The town clerk and supervisors receive $2.50 per day when attending to town business in town, and $3.00 per day when out of town; the clerk, supervisors and justices when acting as a board of appointment or board of auditors receive $1.50 per day. The supervisor also receives additional compensation as overseer of the poor; and the town clerk receives fees for certain services.

The board of supervisors of Champaign County have recommended that the compensation of all town officers, including that of the supervisor as treasurer of the town fund should be a stated annual salary.

SUPERVISOR.

As a town officer, the principal function of the supervisor is to receive and pay out money for town charges, except that for highways and bridges. He receives accounts against the town and lays them before the board of town auditors, accounts to the board of auditors for all moneys received and disbursed, and files with the town clerk for presentation to the annual town meeting a financial statement, showing balances turned over, receipts, payments and indebtedness.¹

As the road and bridge tax is the most important town revenue, the amounts handled by the supervisors are small. The supervisor should act as treasurer of all town funds, including the road tax. Some more systematic record might then be required of town finances.

The supervisor also acts as overseer of the poor, except in towns of over 4,000 population, where on request of the supervisor overseers may be appointed by the county board. The overseers of the poor look after persons in need of relief, may furnish temporary relief or arrange for the care of poor persons where the county does not have a poor house.²

Assistant supervisors have no power or duties as town officers; but with the supervisors are members of the county board of their respective counties.

TOWN CLERK.

The town clerk keeps the records of the town meetings and other books and papers of the town, certifies to the county board all votes for raising money and to the county clerk the amount of taxes required for town purposes, and acts as clerk of the board of town auditors and the highway commissioners.

TOWN BOARDS.

The supervisor, town clerk, and justices of the peace of each town constitute a board of town auditors, which meets twice a year to examine the accounts of the supervisor, overseer of the poor and commissioners of highways; and examines and audits all claims against the town and the compensation of town officers.

The supervisor, assessor and town clerk of every town constitute a board of health, with the same powers as the boards of county commissioners in counties not under township organization.³

Supervisors, town clerks and town boards are provided only for towns in counties under township organization. Other town officers—assessors, collectors, highway commissioners, justices of the peace and constable—perform functions for which officials are provided for all the counties in the State; and such officials can best be noted in a discussion of the systems of local tax administration, local road administration and justices and constables.

In tax administration, there is an important difference between counties under township organization and counties not under township organization. But highway commissioners, justices of the peace and constables, are elected by local districts in all the counties in the State, with this distinction between the two classes of counties, that in counties under township organization, these officials are all elected by towns; while in counties not under township organization highway commissioners are elected by road districts, and justices of the peace and constables are elected by election precincts.

TOWN TAXES AND FINANCES.

Statistics of the town taxes in table XIII in Illinois serve to illustrate and emphasize the petty nature of town business. The amounts of town taxes, apart from the road and bridge tax are so small, that they are not shown separately in the statements of taxes published by the Auditor of Public Accounts. But data for the year 1911 furnished by the county clerks of thirty-three counties, including 624 towns, are sufficient to show the general situation.

³ Ibid, ch. 34, par. 116-121.

In a good number of towns the tax levy for general town purposes is only a few hundred dollars; and the average of the data reported, excluding Cook County, was $615. In twenty-four of the thirty-three counties from which data was secured, the general town levies ranged from 2 to 3 per cent of the total taxes. In Kane and Rock Island counties, the general town taxes amounted to only about 1 per cent of the total taxes; in Peoria County to only seven-tenths of 1 per cent; in Winnebago County and Cook County to only three-fifths of 1 per cent. In Lee and Pike counties the town taxes were about 4 per cent of the total taxes. The largest proportion reported was in Crawford County, where the general town taxes were about 5 per cent of the total taxes.

The average town tax rate in most of the counties reporting data, ranged between 6 and 9 cents on the one hundred dollars. In only four of the thirty-three counties was the average town rate more than 9 cents. In Clark County the average was 10 cents, in Marion County 10½ cents, in Pike County 12 cents, and in Crawford County it was 19 cents. It may be noted that all of these counties with the highest average of town taxes are in the central and southern parts of the State, and none in the northern counties where the traditions of the New England towns are supposed to be strongest. In eight of the thirty-three counties the average town rate was less than 6 cents; in Cook and Peoria county it was only about 3 cents; and in Winnebago County only 2.2 cents. The general average of town taxes on the total valuation of these counties was 4.4 cents on the one hundred dollars. Excluding the assessed valuation of property in towns where there was no town tax, the general average rate was 9.2 cents.

Of the 621 towns for which data was secured, thirty-two levied no town tax in 1911; in 464 the town tax rate was from 1 to 10 cents on the one hundred dollars; in 104 (about one in six) the rate was over 10 cents; in only twenty-seven of these towns was the town rate as much as 20 cents, and in only 10 was it as high as 30 cents.

Below is a list of the ten towns where the town tax rate in 1911 was 30 cents or more, with the number reported present at the town meeting in 1912 for those towns from which reports of attendance have been received:

	Town tax rate— cents.	Per cent of total taxes.	Number at town meeting 1912.
Hamilton, Lee county.....	56	12	104
East Grove, Lee county.....	53	20
Lemont, Cook county.....	46	10

Martin, McLean county.....	38	12
Hancock, Hancock county.....	37	14	200
Peoria, Peoria county.....	32	8	16
St. Albans, Hancock county.....	30	11

Apparently even a relatively high rate of town taxes does not always insure a large attendance at the town meeting. These maximum rates are, however, moderate compared with the rate of $1.20 authorized for cities and villages, and usually levied even in the smaller cities.

Of much more importance is the road and bridge tax. But this tax is levied by the road district highway commissioners in counties not under township organization, as well as in towns under the township system; and in towns the road and bridge tax is ordinarily levied by the highway commissioners and not by the town meeting. In only nine towns, for which data has been secured, was the rate of the road and bridge tax large enough to indicate that there was a levy made by the town meeting. The road and bridge tax will therefore be more fitly considered in the discussion on road administration.

There are no records of town and highway receipts and expenditures other than the books and reports of the local officials in each town and road district. An examination of the records of the town supervisors and the treasurers of the highway commissioners in Sangamon County disclosed the absence of any attempt at a system of accounts other than a cash book of the most primitive sort, with no effort to classify expenditures and with frequent errors in the extensions of figures. This is in marked contrast with the financial records of the school districts noted later in this report. An analysis of the data secured indicated that the principal items of town expenses were for the assessment of property and the compensation of town officers. The town collector's commissions and county clerks fees are not shown in the supervisor's records, although these amount to two-thirds of the amounts handled by the supervisors. In the highway commissioners' records there is no clear distinction between expenditures for ordinary purposes and for permanent improvements; but only about one-fourth of the expenditures for the period covered appeared to be for permanent improvements.¹

C. LOCAL ADMINISTRATION.

LOCAL TAX ADMINISTRATION.

ASSESSMENT.

The assessment of property for taxation is affected by the different systems of local administration in Illinois. In counties not under township organization, the county treasurer is ex officio county assessor. The board of county commissioners acts as the county board of review.

In Cook County, there is elected a board of five assessors, which appoints deputy assessors, while the town assessors elected by the towns outside of Chicago, act as deputy assessors in their towns. A county board of review of three members is also elected.

In other counties under township organization, the county treasurer is supervisor of assessments; and an assessor is elected in each town.¹ The county board of review consists of the chairman of the board of supervisors and two other members appointed each year by the county judge.

Assessors are required, by the revenue law of 1898, to take a special oath of office, and to give bond to diligently, faithfully and impartially perform the duties enjoined by law. The compensation of the assessor is determined by the county board or the board of town auditors, within limits named in the law;² and each assessor has the power, with the advice and consent of the county board or board of town auditors, to appoint one or more deputies, when necessary.

The duties of assessors are to value and assess for taxation the real and personal property in the town. As previously noted, lists of real estate are prepared by the county clerk. The assessor is required every fourth year to view and value each tract or lot of land, and in the intervening years to list and assess real property not on the assessment list, to add the value of improvements and make deductions for any impairment of value. The revenue law provides that personal property shall be listed by the owners. Assessors are also required to call at the office or residence of each person required to list property and secure a sworn statement of his taxable property; and whenever he fails to obtain such a statement it is his duty to assess the value of such property.

The original assessments are subject to revision by the county boards of review; and the aggregate valuation for each county may be altered by the State Board of Equalization, which also assesses the property of railroads and the capital stock of certain classes of Illinois corporations.

On the assessed valuation taxes are levied by all the various taxing authorities including the State, county and other local authorities. As already noted, the town taxes form a very small part of the total, so that the assessors are not merely local officers, but act in large part as agents of the State as is also shown by the detailed provisions of the revenue law defining their powers and duties.

There have been prolonged and emphatic complaints of the system of town assessment of property since its introduction and this has continued after numerous amendments of the law and the introduction of a considerable measure of county supervision. The revenue commission of 1886 recommended that town assessors be abolished, and that county assessors be established in all counties. This recommendation was renewed by the special tax commission of 1910.

² In townships of less than 5,000 inhabitants, not less than $2.50 nor more than $5.00 per day; in towns of not less than 5,000 inhabitants, not less than $5.00 nor more than $10.00 per day; and in townships containing more than 15,000 inhabitants, additional compensation may be allowed making the entire compensation for making the assessment not exceeding $1,000.

Replies from county officials to inquiries made for the committee on county and township organization were in favor of the substitution of county assessors in place of town assessors by more than three to one. From fifty counties under township organization and all the seventeen counties not under township organization, the sentiment was strongly in favor of county assessors, and from fifty-nine counties there was no opinion in favor of town assessors. From sixteen counties the replies were in favor of town assessors.

In a report on taxation in Illinois prepared for the special tax commission of 1910, it was shown that the assessed taxable valuation of property in Illinois in 1900 and 1904 (supposed to be one-fifth of the full value) was less than an eighth of the census estimates of the true value of the tangible property.¹ Real estate was assessed at only one-seventh of the census estimates; and the ratio of assessed valuation to the census estimates ranged from only 10 per cent in some counties to as high as 20 per cent in others.² The assessed valuation of personal property was only 9 to 10 per cent of the census estimates for tangible personality, and on some classes of tangible personality the assessed valuation was less than 2 per cent of the census estimates.³ In the case of intangible personality, no estimate could be made of the degree of undervaluation; but it was clear that such property was assessed to an insignificant extent.

The census report on agriculture in Illinois for 1910 gives further data for comparing the assessed valuation of lands in Illinois with the census estimates of the value of land in farms. The table below shows the contrast between the two valuations for 1900 and 1910:

	1900.	1910.
Acres of lands assessed.....	34,572,390	34,543,813
Acres of lands in farms.....	32,794,728	32,522,937
Assessed valuation of lands and improvements.....	$ 309,394,797	$ 690,828,532
"Full Value" of assessors.....	$1,546,973,985	$2,072,485,596
Census estimate of value of farm lands and buildings.....	1,765,581,550	3,522,792,570

The real estate assessed as lands includes about 2,000,000 acres more than the land in farms reported to the census. Yet in 1900, the assessed valuation of lands (required to be one-fifth of the full value) was little more than a sixth of the census estimates for the value of farm lands and buildings. The assessed valuation of lands at the quadrennial revaluation in 1911 (now required to be one-third of the full value) was less than a fifth of the census estimate of 1910, for farm lands and buildings. The "full value" of the assessors was about 87 per cent of the census value in 1900; but was less than 60 per cent of the census value ten years later.

Moreover the undervaluation is by no means uniform throughout the State. In Cook County, where the local assessment is made by county officers, the assessed valuation of lands appears to be equal to the one-third of full value required by law. In counties not under township organization, the assessed valuation is a higher proportion of the census values (21 per cent) than in counties under township organization (19 per cent). In several counties under township organization the "full value" of the assessors is less than one-half of the census values;⁴ and in one county is less than 43 per cent of the census estimate.

The census estimates indicate that live stock is assessed at about the same ratio of true value as is farm lands, while farm implements and machinery are undervalued to a much larger degree.

For other classes of personal property there are no census estimates or other data of recent date to use as a basis of comparison. But there is no evidence of any improvement in the work of local assessors in recent years; and it seems clear that other classes of personal property are assessed at a much smaller proportion of true value than are farm lands and live stock. Even tangible personality is assessed at absurdly low figures—manufacturing tools and machinery at $7,200,000 and household furniture at $18,600,000 in 1910. Intangible personalty, such as bonds and stocks, mortgages and other credits, are practically not assessed at all in many parts of the State.

Under the present methods of assessing property for taxation, there is no question that assessed valuations are not only a small fraction of the true value, but are much below the one-third of full value provided for in the revenue law; and that there are wide variations and inequalities in the degrees of undervaluation as between different classes of property and persons and the various local districts throughout the State.

It seems clear that a much more equitable and efficient assessment of property for taxation would be made through a more complete concentration of this work in the hands of county officials, who already do a large part of the work so far as real property is concerned. But the plan hitherto proposed of adding another elective county officer for this purpose will increase the complications of a ballot already too long, and will not give assurance that competent assessors will always be selected. In many of the smaller counties, the work of valuation could be performed by the county clerk acting as assessor, or by the county treasurer, as in counties not under township organization, with the appointment of a small number of qualified deputies. In counties of larger population, a county assessor and auditor should be appointed by the county board, with a sufficient number of deputy assessors; and in the largest counties a county assessor and a county auditor might each be needed with deputies; all such officers to be appointed on the basis of definite qualifications required by law. In any case, the county assessor should also be a member of the county board of review.

In many other states the assessment of property is more largely vested in county officers. In the southern and western states all local assessments are made by county assessors; while in Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin, county officers have more effective powers over the town assessors than in Illinois.

Besides changes in the local administration, there is also need for a permanent State Tax Commission, with authority to supervise the local assessors, as recommended by the Special Tax Commission of 1910. Such State commissions are now established in about half of the states, including nearly all of the larger states and all of the states of the old Northwest Territory except Illinois.

LEVY AND EXTENSION.

The rate of taxation to be levied on the valuation of property as finally assessed and equalized, is determined by a complicated process. Tax levies are made by State, county, and various local authorities in towns, cities, villages and special districts; and the amounts levied are certified to the county clerks; whose duty it is to prepare the collector's books, extending the taxes for the several authorities against each person or piece of property.

Under the Juul law, if the aggregate of the tax levies will require a total rate, in any taxing district, above the maximum allowed, the county clerk must reduce the rate proportionately. Before 1909, when the taxable value was one-fifth of the "full value," the ordinary maximum rate was 5 per cent. In 1909 the legal basis of assessments was changed to one-third; and the ordinary maximum tax rate was reduced to 3 per cent. But certain taxes are not scaled down below fixed limits; and the final result is often a rate above the ordinary maximum.

The law regulating tax levies and the maximum rates is so complex; that it sometimes happens that taxes are levied and extended on the collector's books which do not comply with all the requirements. Such taxes may later be held invalid and their collection restrained on behalf of railroad corporations, or other large tax payers; while the great majority of small tax payers pay the amounts extended on the collector's books.

In other cases the arbitrary standards of the statute give some local authorities more funds than they can use while other authorities in the same county have less than is necessary for the performance of their duties.

To meet these difficulties several suggestions have been made: that in each county a competent attorney should be employed to see that the tax levies are made as provided by law, or that the state's attorney be required to certify in writing as to the validity of tax levies before the taxes are extended; that taxes should be levied on an order from the county judge, on application from the taxing authorities and after hearing objections; or that there should be a county board of taxation to pass on the total levy.

There is certainly need for more coördination and a greater concentration of responsibility in making tax levies; and there should be some authority with discretionary power to adjust the apportionment of taxes between the several spending authorities, in place of the intricate and mechanical provisions of the Juul law.

In New York, the town meeting has no taxing power, and town taxes are levied by the county board of supervisors. Appropriations for more than $500 are made by ballot of the property owners.

In Michigan, the township board is authorized to levy taxes for ordinary township purposes in case of the failure of the township meeting. In this State also the board of supervisors at their annual session in October, determine the amount of county taxes, and also examine all certificates and other records from other local authorities, hearing and considering objections by any tax payer. If any statement or record is defective, and can be corrected, the board may authorize such corrections. Any papers may be referred to the prosecuting attorney, who shall examine them and report in writing his opinion to the board. The board directs that the amounts proposed by local authorities as are authorized by law shall be spread on the assessment roll; and such action shall be deemed final as to the levy and assessment of taxes.¹

COLLECTION OF TAXES.

In counties under township organization, taxes are collected by the town collectors, and also by the county treasurer as county collector. But the county treasurers act as town collectors for the towns included in the cities of Chicago and Springfield. In counties not under township organization, the sheriff is both district and county collector.

The county clerk is required to turn over the collector's books on or before December 21st. Collections by the town or district collector are turned over to the authorities of the different local districts every thirty days; and town and district collectors are required to return the tax books and make final settlement for the amount of taxes placed in their hands for collection by the end of March. After that, delinquent taxes on real estate are received by the county collector, who makes settlement with the county board on the third Monday in June, and final settlement of his accounts for State taxes with the Auditor of Public Accounts on the first day of July.

Town, district and county collectors are allowed commissions on the taxes collected, on the following scale.

In counties under township organization commissions are allowed to both the town and county collector on taxes collected by the former; and the total commissions allowed in such cases are from $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 per cent more than in counties not under township organization.

Complaints of town collectors have been made and it has been proposed that the office be abolished and that the county treasurer should act as collector for all regular tax levies, as he does now for delinquent taxes on real estate.¹ In a recent study of municipal revenues in Illinois, some data is presented as to the relative proportion of taxes collected by the town and county collector for some cities; and it is urged that the present system of duplicate machinery involves unnecessary expense. In some towns 75 per cent and more of the taxes are collected by the town collector; but in others less than half of the taxes are collected by the town officer and more than half by the county collector.²

Replies from county officials to inquiries as to the relative advantages of town and county collection of taxes were in favor of a county collector by three to one, although there was somewhat more opposition than in reference to the proposal for a county assessor. From fifty-one counties under township organization and all of the seventeen counties not under township organization, most of the replies were in favor of the county collector. From eighteen counties under township organization, a majority of the replies were in favor of retaining the town collector. The largest expressions in favor of the town collectors were from Adams, Douglas and Macon counties.

The town collector is perhaps a convenience, especially to the small tax payers in rural districts for the payment of taxes on personal property and in some cases also on real estate. But the present system as a whole is cumbersome and expensive, and should be simplified. The county treasurer should be made the collector for all taxes, and authorized to appoint a sufficient number of deputies or agents for the rural districts. No deputy would be needed for the township in which the county seat is located; nor would it always be necessary to appoint one for each township—one for each village forming a market center would be more convenient, and in many cases the local banks would be the best agency. The method of compensation should also be changed from the present uniform percentage. The rate of commission could be varied with the amount of taxes collected, or with the amounts paid by individual tax payers; or perhaps better the compensation could be at fixed amounts graded according to the amount of taxes collected.

LOCAL ROAD ADMINISTRATION.

There are two distinct general Acts in regard to roads and bridges in Illinois, one applying to counties under township organization, and another to counties not under township organization. But there is much less difference in the local administration of roads under the two laws than might be supposed. More important differences exist between counties in the same general class, under optional provision for the labor system in the law for counties under township organization, the optional law authorizing hard roads, and the optional law authorizing the county system in counties not under township organization.

For counties under township organization, there are elected in each township three highway commissioners, one each year at the town election, one of whom acts as treasurer. Counties not under township organization are divided into road districts with corporate powers, in each of which there is elected on the first Tuesday in March three highway commissioners and a district clerk, (who acts as treasurer) for terms of three years, one commissioner each year. These highway commissioners have jurisdiction over the roads in their respective townships and road districts, with substantially similar powers, including that of levying road taxes.¹

Under an optional law of 1901 any county not under township organization may vote to place the road administration of the whole county under the board of county commissioners, who appoint a supervisor for each road district. This law appears to have been adopted only in two counties, Henderson and Union.² Henderson County has since adopted township organization, leaving Union County the only one with the county system of road administration.

The township and road district system of road administration is inefficient and wasteful. The commissioners are allowed by law $2.00 per day for each day of actual service. When the commissioners hold meetings, each day spent to decide about a bridge, to award a contract or accept the same costs $6.00 for the administrative duties; and the administrative expenses constitute a large proportion of the money that is raised for road purposes. There are nearly 5,000 commissioners in the State, whose compensation amounts to $10,000 for each day's service.

In counties under township organization, each township is divided into three road commissioners' districts, one commissioner to be a resident of each district. The road work in each of these districts is usually in charge of the commissioner from that district, and aside from the levy of taxes the highway commissioners have little to do with the roads outside of their own districts. Thus in the same township there may be three different methods of road work, with perhaps good results in one and bad in another.

In towns which have adopted the labor system, the township is divided into road districts, and a road overseer is appointed for each district by the highway commissioners. The road overseers have direct charge of the road work in their districts, and especially of the enforcement of the labor system. It is well known, however, that the work done on the roads in payment of the labor tax is not full value of the tax. Often the overseer puts in more time getting two or three men to come to work than the amount of labor performed. While the law provides that the work shall be done when demanded by the overseer, in practice the greater part is done at the convenience of those assessed for the labor tax.³

County aid for roads and bridges is authorized, but is furnished only to a very limited extent, usually to assist in building some of the more important bridges.

The results of the present methods of road administration clearly fail to secure anything like a satisfactory system of public highways. As shown in the report of the joint legislative committee on the road laws, less than 10 per cent of the roads in the State can be classed as permanently improved, and most of the roads are in bad condition for a considerable part of the year and not infrequently are impassable for ordinary vehicles.

Replies from county officials to inquiries as to the present system of township and road district highway commissioners were unfavorable by more than three to one; and a large proportion were in favor of abolishing the town and road district system. Many in favor of the existing commissioners also favored a county road officer to supervise their work. From fifty-five counties, all the replies were unfavorable to the present system; and from only ten were the replies all favorable. The largest number in favor of township commissioners were from Douglas and Shelby counties.

A county system of road administration under the supervision of State officials would be more efficient than any system which retains town and district officials; and counties under township organization should be allowed to adopt the county system, as now authorized by the optional law for counties not under township organization.

² First Annual Report of the Illinois Highway Commission for 1906, p. 9.

³ First Annual Report of the Illinois Highway Commission for 1906, pp. 6-8.

It does not seem advisable, however, to attempt the complete abolition of town and district road officers. A large measure of improvement could be secured by providing a single highway commissioner for each town and road district, in place of the present boards of three members. These commissioners should then be given a definite salary, graded according to the population or valuation of the town or district; and should act in coöperation with the road engineers previously recommended for counties and groups of counties, with a large measure of State aid and supervision in the development of a State system of main highways.

ROAD AND BRIDGE TAXES.

Work on the roads is paid for by taxation, under a complicated series of distinct provisions. In counties under township organization, each township may collect all road taxes in money, or may vote to adopt the labor system.

(1) Under the money system, in counties under township organization, the highway commissioners of each town may assess a poll tax for highway purposes not less than $1.00 and not to exceed $2.00; and also determine the rate of taxation for road and bridge purposes, not to exceed 36 cents on the $100; and with the consent of a majority of the board of town auditors and the assessor may levy an additional levy not exceeding 25 cents on the $100. For road damages a further levy of 20 cents may be made. On petition, notice and vote of a special town meeting, money may be borrowed and bonds issued for a bridge or other distinct and expensive road work.¹

(2) In towns which have adopted the labor system, a labor tax of not less than one nor more than three days is imposed on all able-bodied male inhabitants, which may be commuted at the rate of one dollar per day; and property road taxes may be paid in labor. Under this system, the highway commissioners levy a property tax not exceeding 25 cents on each $100 for making and repairing roads only, and a tax of 25 cents on the $100 for bridges, damages on account of new roads and ditches, and the purchase of tools, implements, machinery and materials, etc. On notice before the annual town meeting, an additional tax of 25 cents may be authorized by the town meeting.²

(3) Under the general law for counties not under township organization, the highway commissioners of each road district assess a poll tax of not less than $1.00 nor more than $5.00 for highway purposes, which may be worked out by poor persons at the rate of one dollar per day. The highway commissioners of each road district also determine the rate of the property tax for roads and bridges, not to exceed 30 cents on each $100; and an additional levy not to exceed 12 cents on each $100 may be made for damages on account of the laying out, widening, altering or vacating roads.³

(4) In counties which have adopted the county system, the board of county commissioners assess a poll tax of from $1.00 to $5.00, and a property tax of not more than 30 cents on each $100.⁴

(5) Additional taxes for building gravel, macadam or other hard roads may be levied on petition, notice and vote by ballot at an annual town meeting or road district meeting, not to exceed $1.00 on each $100 assessed valuation for a specified number of years, not exceeding five.⁵

(6) In addition to the road taxes raised in the townships or road districts, the county may assist the townships or road districts in the construction of the more important roads, and of intertown or other important and large bridges which are of benefit to others than the residents of the town in which such bridges are located.⁶

Expenditures on roads and bridges in Illinois have notably increased in recent years. The road and bridge tax increased from $1,259,851 in 1879 to $2,259,934 in 1884. and from $2,746,152 in 1898 to $5,673,235 in 1911, more than double the amount in 1898.¹ This increase has, however, not been uniform throughout the State. The largest rates of increase since 1898 have been in Crawford, Christian, Fulton, Saline, Wabash and Williamson counties, in which the amount of this tax in 1911 was from three to nearly ten times that for 1898. At the other extreme, in Hardin County, the road and bridge tax for 1911 ($2,248) was less than for 1898 ($2,751). Other counties which show but a small increase are:

The largest amounts and the largest tax per square mile are to be found in counties, including or near important cities, especially in the north-eastern part of the State, near Chicago, as shown in the following list:

Other populous and wealthy counties, such as Bureau, McLean, Sangamon and St. Clair have a somewhat lower tax per square mile, but over $100 per square mile; while in Rock Island and Adams counties the road and bridge tax for 1911 was only $93 and $65 per square mile.

The smallest road and bridge tax, both in the amount levied and in proportion to county area are found in the smaller counties, mostly those not under township organization. Ten counties not under township organization levied a tax ranging from $12 to $34 per square mile; and only four of the seventeen counties not under township organization levied a road and bridge tax of over $50 per square mile, the largest of these being Alexander County, where the tax amounted to $80 per square mile.² In ten counties under township organization the road and bridge tax for 1911 was less than $50 per square mile, the minimum being Richland County, at $36 per square mile.

In forty-six of the 102 counties the road and bridge tax for 1911 ranged from $50 to $100 per square mile.

Reports from towns and district highway commissioners and county clerks as to the rate of road and bridge tax levied for 1911 shows a wide variation, not only between different parts of the State, but also between different towns and road districts in the county. Grouping the data for 1094 towns and road districts shows the following:

In more than three-fourths of the towns and districts the road tax rate is fixed at one of the maximum rates named in the road law—25, 30, 36, 50 or 61 cents. Only thirty-four towns levy less than twenty-five cents on the $100; but more than a half of the towns and districts levy no more than thirty-six cents; in three-fourths of the towns and districts the rate does not exceed fifty cents; and in only thirty-three towns is the rate more than sixty-one cents.

These figures also indicate that in very few towns do the town meetings levy a road tax. The town meeting must act only in towns under the labor system, when a tax of over fifty cents is to be levied. While in nearly a fourth of the towns, the road tax is more than fifty cents, in most of these the rate is not more than the sixty-one cents which can be levied in towns under the money system, by the highway commissioners with the approval of the town auditors. Action by the town meeting appears to have been necessary only in the thirty-three towns where the rate was more than sixty-one cents.

Of ninety road districts in counties not under township organization from which reports were received, the road tax rate in sixty-seven districts was thirty cents, in fourteen districts the rate was between thirty-one and forty-two cents, and in nine districts more than forty-two cents.

According to reports received from town highway commissioners, the money system is in general use in twenty-five counties, mostly in the north-eastern and central sections of the State. The labor system is in general use in about twenty counties, mostly in the southeastern part of the State. In nearly half of the counties both money and labor systems are in use by different towns and changes from one system to the other are not infrequent.

The money value of the labor tax was estimated by the State Highway Commission for 1905 at $490,563.

JUSTICES AND CONSTABLES.

Justices of the peace and constables are elected throughout the State, by towns and election precincts, except in the city of Chicago. In counties under township organization they are elected in towns, at the time of the annual town meeting, every fourth year since 1897. In counties not under township organization, they are elected in election precincts at the November elections, every fourth year since 1897. Two justices and two constables are elected in each town and election precinct; and one additional justice and constable for every 1,000 inhabitants above 2,000, to a maximum of five for any town or precinct. In cities coterminous with towns, the city council determines the number of justices within the maximum.

The election of justices and constables in counties not under township organization comes in years when the only other official elected is one county commissioner. More popular interest would be secured if these officers were elected at the same time as other local officers.

Every justice of the peace and constable must take the oath of office, and execute a bond, to be approved by the county clerk, for not less than $2,000 nor more than $10,000. On certificate of qualification from the county clerk, the Governor issues commissions to the justices. Certificates of election are granted to constables-elect by the county clerk, which authorize them to act.

Justices of the peace have jurisdiction in their respective counties in an enumerated list of cases, including both civil and criminal jurisdiction. In many matters their jurisdiction is limited to actions involving not more than $200; and in criminal cases to actions punishable by fine of not more than $200, and cases of assault, and assault and battery and affrays in which the people are plaintiffs. They also have jurisdiction in cases under the city and village laws and ordinances, under the dramshop law, in drainage cases, and under the road law.¹

Under the criminal code, justices of the peace are made conservators of the peace, and may require persons to give security to keep the peace or for their good behavior. On complaint they may issue warrants for arrest in any criminal case, conduct examinations of the accused and release on bail or commit for trial.²

Justices of the peace are also authorized to celebrate marriages. In counties under township organization, they are members of the board of town auditors; and in counties not under township organization a justice of the peace in each precinct may be designated by the county board as overseer of the poor.

Constables are peace officers, with power to arrest anyone committing crime in their presence. But ordinarily, they act only as the ministerial agents of the justices, on specific warrants to make arrests, subpoena witnesses and execute the judgments of the courts.

No special study has been made of the system of local justices and constables. In the rural districts, the existing machinery perhaps operates with a fair degree of satisfaction; but as the only records are those kept by each justice, there is no means of determining conditions without a detailed examination of the situation in several thousand offices. Some supervision over the records of justices by a county officer would seem to be advisable.

In the case of justices acting in cities and villages of some size there are serious defects in the present situation. Former conditions in the justices' courts in the city of Chicago led to the establishment of the present municipal court of Chicago by Act of 1905. City courts were also established in some cities prior to the Constitution of 1870; and these have been continued and are now regulated by an Act of 1901, which also authorizes the establishment of a city court in any city of 3,000 inhabitants.³ City courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit courts; and the judges receive a fixed salary, graded according to the size of the city. City courts are now established in nineteen cities: East St. Louis, Elgin, Aurora, Alton, Canton, Charleston, Chicago Heights, DuQuoin, Granite City, Harrisburg, Herrin, Kewanee, Litchfield, Macomb, Marion, Mattoon, Pana, Sterling and Zion.⁴

But in most of the cities in Illinois, the only local police courts are those of the town or precinct justices of the peace. Under the fee system, which still prevails in most places, there is room for a good deal of abuse.¹ In cities of over 10,000 population, more satisfactory results would be secured if city courts were established, or at least a fixed compensation paid to the justices of the peace.

The constitutional provision requiring the election of justices of the peace should be eliminated.

LOCAL SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION.

School administration in Illinois is organized in a complex system, involving State, county, township and school district officials. The local administration is primarily based on the petty school district; but includes a combination of township and district officers, with county and State supervision.

SCHOOL TOWNSHIPS

Each congressional township is established by law as a township for school purposes; and in each school township there are elected annually three trustees who form a body politic and corporate. In school townships whose boundaries coincide with those of towns, the school trustees are elected at the same time as town officers. In other school townships, the trustees are elected on the second Saturday of April.

The authority of the school trustees is chiefly, but not exclusively financial. They elect a township treasurer, who has charge of the township school funds; and the trustees appropriate and distribute the income of township funds and the State school fund to the school districts. The trustees of schools also divide the township into school districts, and on petition of the voters of any district or districts may divide a district, consolidate districts or change the boundaries of districts.

In townships which vote to establish a township high school, a township high school board of education is elected, consisting of five members, serving for three years, one or two members retiring each year.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

Each school district has a board of school directors or board of education, which controls and manages the school or schools within the district.

In all school districts having a population of less than 1,000 inhabitants, and not governed by any special Act, there is a board of directors of three members, who form a body politic and corporate, one member of which is elected annually on the third Saturday in April for a term of three years.

In all school districts having a population of not less than 1,000 and not more than 100,000, and not governed by special Acts, there is a board of education, consisting of a president, six members and three additional members for every additional 10,000 inhabitants, with a maximum of fifteen members. The president of the board is elected annually; and the members are elected in the same manner as boards of directors (one-third each year) for a term of three years.²

In cities having a population of over 100,000 (Chicago) the board of education consists of twenty-one members, appointed by the mayor, by and with the advice and consent of the common council, seven appointed each year for terms of three years.

The powers and duties of school directors and boards of education are prescribed at length in the school law, boards of education having greater authority than the school directors. In general, however, they appoint teachers, determine their salaries, regulate the course of studies, text books and apparatus, and levy local taxes for school purposes. The selection of school sites, construction of buildings and borrowing money requires a vote of the electors of the school district, except in the city of Chicago.

² Special acts provide for the appointment of boards of education in some cities.

The Educational Commission, in its report to the Forty-sixth General Assembly, presented an extended discussion of the advantages of and objections to the district, township and county systems of school administration. Their conclusion was that if "the township were established as the unit of school organization, we should have opened the way to increased economy and efficiency in the educational work of the State. We should have substituted unity, harmony, coördination, organization, economy, and efficiency for separation, disunity, confusion, inefficiency and waste."¹

The town or township system is general in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. It is permissive in Connecticut (and more than half the towns have the town system), the upper peninsula of Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas.²

In addition to the educational considerations in favor of the township system of local school administration, the adoption of this system would simplify the general system of local government in Illinois. Under present conditions, there is generally even less popular interest in school elections than in town elections. The establishment of the township school system, and the consolidation of town and school elections so far as practicable would increase the public interest in both the town meetings and the management of the schools.

SCHOOL FINANCES.

In marked contrast with the other local authorities in Illinois, statistics of schools and school finances are regularly reported by the local school officials; and these are compiled and published by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. When it is remembered that these statistics are collected from nearly 12,000 school districts, forming the smallest units of local government in the State, the problem of securing similar results from the towns and counties should seem less difficult. The reports for the year 1911-12 have been prepared on a revised and improved schedule; and through the courtesy of the State Superintendent's office, statements summarizing the financial transactions of the public schools of Illinois for 1912 have been secured. These statements are presented in part for the information furnished in regard to school finances, and partly as illustrations of the sort of data that should be available from other local authorities.

Tables XV and XVI give an abstract by counties of the township distributive funds and the school district funds. Summaries are given below showing the totals for the State, with the figures for Cook County and the totals for all the other counties given separately. These show the main purposes of expenditure, distinguishing between current expenses and expenses for capital outlay, and show also the distribution of current expenses for general control, instruction, operation and maintenance of the school plant, and certain auxiliary services. The detailed reports contain much additional information as to the assets and liabilities, and other statistics about the schools, which are summarized in the reports of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

These statistics of school finances throw some light on problems of administrative organization. The principal of the township funds outside of Cook County amounts to $5,594,602 an average of about $3,500 for each school township.³ This amount is too small for efficient management by separate township officers; and the reports show that the greater part of the income goes for administrative expenses. The income of the township funds outside of Cook County amounted to $226,352. The salaries of township treasurers and incidental expenses of the township trustees amounted to $181,671, nearly 70 per cent of the income from the township funds. These expenses pay also for the township expenses for distributing the State school fund; but even including this, the administrative expenses of the school townships are nearly 18 per cent of the total amount distributed to the school districts.¹ While the expenses for each township are less than $120, the total is much too large a share of the funds handled. A large reduction should be possible by placing the management of the township funds and the distribution of the income and the State school fund entirely in the hands of the county superintendents.

PRIMARIES AND ELECTIONS.

A good deal of confusion is caused by the number of elections now held in Illinois, and there is serious complaint of the time required to vote on all the occasions. In addition to the general elections in November of odd years, and June elections for judges, there are every year separate elections at different dates in the spring, for town, city, village and road and school district officers; and also in many places another election for school trustees. The primary election law has increased the number of public election days, by requiring a primary election in all cities and also a general primary election in April every second year. Thus the voters are called on to vote at from six to eight elections within a year; and voters in cities and villages are expected to appear at five or six elections within a period of two months. It is not surprising that at many of the elections, where only minor offices are to be filled, there is only a small proportion of the qualified vote cast.

This situation would be much simplified and a more general interest secured in local elections if the town, city, village and so far as practicable, the schools elections were held on the same day. This day should also be the primary election day for candidates for June election and also for any general State primary held in the spring. But if the local elections were consolidated, a better arrangement would provide for the general State primary in September, except for the selection of delegates to the national nominating conventions in presidential years.

At present the primary election law does not apply to township elections. This is probably due to the belief that they are not necessary in the selection of local officials in the rural districts. But in the townships which embrace cities or villages of some size, there is as much need for regulating township nominations by law as in the case of city officials. At present candidates for town supervisors, assessors, collectors and highway commissioners may be chosen by the old-fashioned "soap box" primary; and the election may be decided by a trifling vote after no public attention to the candidates. In large towns which elect a number of supervisors, a large proportion and in some cases a majority of the county board may easily be selected and continued in office either by themselves or by a small coterie of political managers.

More definite provisions should be made for nominating candidates in townships of over 10,000 population. If primary elections are established for such townships, they should be held at the same time as the primary elections for cities; and provision should also be made at least to permit, and better to require, non-partisan nominations.

COOK COUNTY AND CHICAGO.¹(By F. D. BRAMHALL, University of Chicago.)

The city of Chicago lies entirely within Cook County, and with the exception of a slight overflow into DuPage County, all of its suburban growth lies now and will for some time lie in the same county. Cook County is therefore the second in the United States in population, having 2,400,000 against New York County's nearly 2,800,000. The corporate limits of the city of Chicago include a slightly decreasing proportion of the county's population: in 1890 they contained 92.3 per cent, in 1900 92.4 per cent, and in 1910 90.9 per cent of the total; that is to say, the city's suburban growth is slightly greater than its internal increment. The population of the county now outside of the city numbers 220,000. The area of the city is 191½ square miles; and of the county not quite five times as much, or 933 square miles.

It is of some interest to the problem of government and its possible reorganization to note that only five of the 102 counties of Illinois have an area as large as that of Cook, while there are two with actually less area than the present city of Chicago. The average and medium size of Illinois counties is 540 square miles against Cook's 933. In population there are only two others that pass 100,000; and the next to Cook, with 2,400,000, or with 220,000 outside of Chicago, is St. Clair with 120,000. On the other hand there are nine counties with a population of under or approximately 10,000 apiece—less than one sixth of a Chicago ward—and most of these are decreasing in population.

The county was governed under the first State Constitution, 1818-1848, like all the other counties of the State, by a board of commissioners elected at large. In 1848 the option of township organization was offered, and Cook County like all the other northern counties immediately adopted it. The city of Chicago (which had been chartered in 1837) was divided into three towns, each of which had its town meeting and sent its supervisor to sit on the county board with the supervisors of the country towns. The phenomenal growth of Chicago from 1850-1870 soon resulted in gross under-representation of the city population in the management of county affairs—a fact which was conspicuously taken advantage of during the sixties when the legislature and the abortive Constitutional Convention played battledore and shuttlecock between city and county with the control of the city police. In 1870 the makers of the present Constitution, rigidly as they applied elsewhere the principle of uniformity and the prohibition of special legislation, made special provision for Cook County. There is prescribed in the Constitution a board of fifteen members, ten chosen at large in the city and five in the rest of the county—a proportion practically corresponding in 1870 to population, but now giving country voters about four and one-half times the representation of city voters; and every annexation to the city, so long as the Constitution is unamended, exaggerates the city's under-representation.

At the same time it became more and more apparent that the system of town organization superimposed on the city was a travesty on popular government; and it is only another instance of our characteristic political complacency that not until 1898 were the functions of the towns in assessment and collection of taxes taken from them, not until 1901 were the separate town governments finally abolished, while the separate town election of justices and constables continued until 1906.

The government of Cook County now has at its head a board of fifteen commissioners, ten from the city and five from the county, elected at large in the two divisions, all at the same time, in November of every even year. One of the fifteen is at the same time elected as president by popular vote.

There are also eight executive officers chosen by popular vote for a four-year term in two groups: the state's attorney, coroner, recorder of deeds and surveyor in the presidential year, and the sheriff, treasurer, clerk and superintendent of schools in the intervening even year. There are two tax boards with six-year terms: a board of assessors of five members, two or one of whom are elected every even year, and a board of review of three members, one of whom is elected every even year. There are elected also by the voters of the county a county judge and a probate judge, a clerk of the probate court and a clerk of the criminal court every four years between presidential elections, and a superior court clerk and a circuit court clerk in the presidential year, all at the November elections. Every sixth year an appellate court clerk is elected at the same time. The voter is asked to pick his county officers from a ballot containing candidates for upward of eighty separate offices, if we count presidential electors, or nearly sixty if we omit them. There were over 400 names on the ballot at the last election.

At the same time with the county and general elections the elections of trustees of the Sanitary District are held, three being chosen every two years for a six-year term, and one every six years as president. The Sanitary District, a municipal corporation for the construction and management of the Drainage Canal, includes all of the city of Chicago and a strip of territory outside the city, but wholly within the county. The city elections are held separately in the spring; and the city voter has presented to him every fourth year a ballot containing four offices only: Mayor, treasurer, clerk, and alderman; every second year, one containing the last three; and in the intervening years he chooses only an alderman.

It is fair to say there is a much greater chance for intelligent voting in city than in county elections; and the same observation applies with increased force to the direct primaries preceding the elections. The city voter has the issues and personalities of the government of the city corporate presented to him simply and independently; those of the county government not only in an unintelligible complexity, but mixed with the extraneous forces of State and national politics. This alone would be enough to account for the lower level of county elections; but there is another consideration which should not be overlooked. The city corporate stands in the mind of most men for their local government; it has its picturesque history, its visible physical embodiment, its corporate personality, its stimulus to the pride of its people and its claim upon their loyalty. The county can make no such appeal, and it is a political fact to be reckoned with that however you may urge that the county is an essential part of city government, that the city electorate is almost equivalent to the county electorate, and should assert an equal proprietorship, it is almost impossible to overcome the obsession that the county is an alien thing. There is no more serious consequence of the parcelling out of our local governmental powers and the shattering of responsibility for our municipal housekeeping than this forfeiture of the sense of identification with government and the force of local patriotism which should be a tremendous asset for American political improvement.

Let us turn now to the main relations which this unwieldy corps of county officers bears to the city population. Let us look first at the fundamental question of finance. Cook County had in 1910 a budget of about ten and one-half millions; of this amount about seven and three-fourths were raised by the general property tax, about 93 per cent of which was collected in the city of Chicago. Of the miscellaneous income, principally fees, making up the other two and one-fourth millions, Chicago probably contributed a somewhat larger proportion. This, however, is not the principal interest of the city in county finance administration. The county is the agent both of the State and of all the local governments within the county in the assessment and collection of the general property tax. The city corporate has nothing whatever to do with the valuation of property; that work is done in the first instance by the county board of assessors, elected by popular vote on general ticket, and reviewed by the county board of review, elected in the same way. Judicial appeals from the assessors and board of review go to the county court. After equalization by the State Board of Equalization, the assessment rolls are turned over to the county clerk. To the county clerk also are certified the State tax rate, the county tax rate, the Sanitary District rate, the city corporate, city bond and tuberculosis sanitarium rates, the school building and educational rates, the South, West and Lincoln Park rates, those for several smaller park districts, and the rates for the various towns and villages and school districts outside of Chicago. It is the duty of the county clerk to apply the appropriate rates to each piece of property on the assessment rolls and extend the resultant total as a single charge. In doing so, however, he is restrained by one of the most remarkable exhibits in the whole museum of administrative curiosities: the renowned Juul law. Stated as simply as its nature permits, this law, recognizing the futility of the protection of property owners of a limitation upon the taxing power of individual governmental bodies, if these bodies are to be piled one on another, declares that the total taxes of all local bodies upon a single piece of property are to be limited. The county clerk is directed, therefore to set aside the State tax rate and certain favored local rates, such as the school building rate and a third of the Sanitary District rate; to add all other rates falling on any single piece of property together, and if he finds the total to be over 3 per cent to reduce the total to 3 per cent by reducing every component tax in the same proportion; but in so doing he is not to reduce the city tax (normally 2 per cent) below 1.2 per cent, nor the county tax (nominally .75 per cent) below .45 per cent. The process is a most intricate one; nobody outside of the tax extension division of the county clerk's office pretends to know the details of it, and the county clerk reveals nothing of the process. No taxing body in the county has the data on which to predict what the result will be upon its own income; the necessary consequence, then, is that every authority, expecting a cut, will ask for enough to cover the expected loss; each doing the same, every tax rate certified is, by so much, higher than it would otherwise be; the higher each one is, the higher the total; the higher the total the greater the cut, and the circle is complete. There is in the whole system no place for a rational consideration and balancing of the needs of the various taxing bodies, nor for a scrutiny of their expenditures; no provision whatever for mutual adjustment and control. The function of the county clerk is a purely ministerial one, and its mysterious exercise is accepted in a spirit of fatalism. It is especially worthy of note in this connection that the county clerk, who is ex officio comptroller, through whom forty millions of general property taxes are levied, and who is the responsible accounting officer for a government with a budget of its own of more than ten millions publishes no report whatever of the former function and of the latter only a perfunctory one buried in the files of the "Proceedings of the County Commissioners." It would be hard to find a parallel reticence.

The county not only levies but collects and distributes the taxes. The collection books, prepared by the county clerk, are delivered to the county treasurer, who is ex officio collector. After collection, the treasurer apporitions the yield among the various taxing bodies in proportion to their levy. License taxes, water rates and special assessments are collected directly by the city.

In addition to finance, the county performs three other principal functions for the city: it administers the courts and the machinery of justice; it is the local charity authority; and it supervises elections.

The county functions in connection with justice are not different, except in extent, from those usual with counties. Cook County has its county judge, who has original jurisdiction over tax, assessment and election cases, and appellate jurisdiction over justices of the peace (now existing only outside of Chicago). There is also a probate judge. Cook County constitutes one of the eighteen judicial circuits of Illinois, with an augmented number of judges and a special criminal branch. It also has a superior court of identical jurisdiction, which does not exist in other counties. Cook County is also one of the four appellate court districts of the State, and has a specially increased appellate bench. The State's attorney, a county officer, is public prosecutor, and divides with the mayor and the city police, in a somewhat vague manner, responsibility for law enforcement. Three years ago, for example, when the mayor refused, as he has done ever since 1871, to enforce the Sunday closing law for saloons, the State's attorney was prevailed upon to institute prosecutions; and the present State's attorney has interested himself in the condition of the city police force sufficiently to send to Joliet one of the inspectors. The coroner performs the usual functions, which could better be done by some one else. The sheriff is executive officer for all courts of record in the county, and keeper of the county jail. He has undefined powers as conservator of the peace, within as well as without the city limits. More than once special deputy sheriffs have been sworn in to keep the peace and protect property on city streets. The jury system in all courts of record is administered by jury commissioners appointed by the judges of the various courts jointly. It is appropriate to notice here that the judges of the circuit court have the duty of determining the number of employees to be allowed in the county fee offices; and that the judges of the same court appoint the South Park commissioners. The city has a system of municipal courts, and maintains a house of correction and school for juvenile delinquents.

The county and not the city is the unit of local charity administration. Excepting the municipal lodging house and a tuberculosis sanitarium soon to be opened, the city maintains no institution for charity. The county, on the other hand, has a department of poor relief, a county hospital, an infirmary (poorhouse), a hospital for insane (recently taken over by the State), a tuberculosis hospital, and a juvenile home.

The election machinery of Chicago is in the hands of a board of election commissioners appointed by the county judge, and removable by him. It is the duty of these commissioners to divide the city into election precincts after each presidential election, to appoint election officials, and to supervise the conduct of elections. For this purpose they may command the services of the city police, and the county judge may swear in special deputies to assist in protecting the regularity and purity of elections. It is this power over elections which has made the office of county judge an especially coveted prize; and here at least is a judicial office whose political aspects are far more conspicuous than any others.

In political party organization also, the county and not the city is the unit. The county central committee is the local representative of State and national parties, and upon its executive committee sit the powers that be in the party machines. Although the city vote is preponderant, the partnership with the county has had a considerable significance in Chicago politics. The vote of Chicago has been evenly enough balanced between the two great parties to make the addition of the strongly Republican county vote an important factor; and the delicate adjustment of Democratic and Republican votes in the various local primaries and elections, and of political prizes in city hall and county building has been a field which has employed and rewarded expert political tradesmen.

There are a few minor functions performed by county officers within the city of which a mere mention will suffice: the recording of real estate transfers and registration of titles; the nominal supervision of the school statistics upon which the distribution of the State school fund is based; and the issuance of a few licenses such as hunting licenses and marriage licenses.

Probably no student of Chicago government would contend that the county performs any of these functions better than the city would perform them, or that any of the interests now entrusted to the county are safer there than they would be if administered by officials responsible only to the city electorate. On the other hand, the fact of division and duality in itself is one of the conspicuous hindrances to governmental progress in Chicago. We are happily past the day when the theory of 'governmental paralysis in the interest of public safety, the theory of checks and balances, is the controlling one in political reconstruction. Neither have the demands of any ideally conceived symmetry or uniformity of institutions the force they once had with us. We seem to be emerging in our political philosophy from a dogmatic idealism to a frank empiricism and pragmatism. So far as the Chicago and Cook County situation has any contribution to offer to the general county-city problem, it is merely to declare that sooner or later the county system must yield in such a community to the demands of expediency. The order of the day is simplification, and one important step toward a simplification of our local government, most pressing on the financial side, must be a consolidation of county and city government, either with the present boundaries of Cook County, or preferably by a division of territory and the erection of a new city-county to include in one organization the whole local government of Chicago and its surrounding suburban area.

As a practical matter, our prospect for relief is a rather unpromising one. The government of Cook County is imbedded in the Constitution; the Constitution forbids the creation of new counties of less than 400 square miles of area, or one whose boundaries run within ten miles of an existing county seat. The Constitution is exceedingly difficult of amendment at best; two amendments, those for the initiative and referendum and for reform, are fighting for precedence; and any amendment must secure, for its enactment a majority of all votes cast, not on that question itself, but for the highest office at the election—a requirement not easy to meet when the proposal interests the whole State equally, and very difficult when, as in this case, it is primarily sectional.

A REPORT OF THE RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES OF SANGAMON AND PIATT COUNTIES.

(By O. R. MARTIN, University of Illinois.)

The accompanying statements represent an attempt to present in a comprehensive manner the financial administration of the county in this State. Sangamon County, with a population in 1910 of 91,039, was selected as typical of the large counties in the State, and Piatt County with a population in 1910 of 16,376 was selected as typical of the small. Both of the counties are under township organization.

The general plan of the two statements is the same, and the difficulties in their preparation have been largely of the same character. In Sangamon County the large volume of business causes the accounts to be more complex, but, on the other hand, the departments of county administration are more or less definitely set off from each other. In Piatt County, the volume of business is much smaller but the different departments are not clearly differentiated.

In the statement of the receipts, attention has been directed both to their character and to the sources from which they were derived. The expenditures have been analyzed and classified so as to show the exact conditions obtaining in each department of the county administration. Because of the inadequate accounting methods employed by the counties, it has been impossible to prepare statements which will not be subject to criticism in certain of their features. One of the main objects of the investigation, however, has been to point out the unsatisfactory conditions now obtaining, and to indicate the general lines along which improvement should be made.

At present the only financial statement for the county published is a summarized statement of the receipts and disbursements of the county treasurer. From this, but little information can be secured concerning the county as a whole, since there is no analysis of either the receipts or the disbursements. In preparing the accompanying statements it was necessary to examine in detail all the books and records of the different officers in each county. In every case access to these books and records was granted by these officers, and in addition they rendered much valuable assistance in securing the data desired. Without their aid it would have been impossible to have prepared the statements in their present form.

As already indicated many difficulties were met with in the preparation of the statements. These could all be removed by the proper kind of an accounting system. No central set of books for the business of the county as a whole is to be found, and such books as there are, are kept on the single entry basis. The county treasurer has a cash book, a duplicate of which is kept in the office of the county clerk. This, and a register of the county warrants kept in the county clerk's office, constitute the most comprehensive records, but they are by no means satisfactory for the purpose of presenting in a complete manner the financial business of the county. Each officer keeps a number of records and accounts which relate directly to the work of his office, but these are nowhere brought together to show their relation.

There is a lack of uniformity with respect to the fiscal year. The fiscal year for the board of supervisors begins Sept. 1, and ends Aug. 31. The fiscal year for the county officers begins Dec. 1 and ends Nov. 30. The fees and commissions collected by the officers from June 1 to Dec. 1, however do not appear in the treasurer's statement for that year. This is due to the fact that the excess fees for that period are not paid to the treasurer until after December 1st, and accordingly appear in the statement for the year following. They should be included in the receipts of the treasurer for the same period in which they are received by the officers. In the statements prepared, the fees and commissions of the county officers collected from Dec. 1, 1911, to Dec. 1, 1912, have been used instead of the fees and commissions collected from June 1, 1911, to June 1, 1912, which are the ones that appear in the treasurer's statement for the year ending Nov. 30, 1912. Matters would be much simplified if the fiscal year of the county board were the same as that of the county officers, and if the receipts of fees and commissions were paid to the treasurer within the period in which they are received.

A comprehensive financial statement for the county should include certain items which under the present system of accounts and reports are omitted. In recording the taxes received, the commissions for collections are deducted and the net tax entered as a receipt. These commissions are expenses and should properly been entered under the expenditures, in which event the gross tax collected should be entered under the receipts. Only in this way will it be possible to show the cost of taxation and collection.

In the case of fees and commissions, the salaries and office expenses of the officers are deducted and only the excess fees and commissions are reported under the receipts. There is no attempt at a classification of fees and commissions with respect to the source from which they are derived. Fees and commissions collected from the county do not represent additional revenue, whereas those collected from other public authorities and from individuals do. A financial statement should show the fees and commissions received by the different officers divided into three classes. The gross fees should be entered under the receipts and salaries and office expenses of the different officers should be recorded as expenditures. Since the fees and commissions collected from the county do not represent additional revenue for the county they should be deducted from the total receipts in order to ascertain the net county revenue. It is a very difficult matter under the present conditions to secure the information necessary for such a classification of fees and commissions. In addition to dividing the fees and commissions into the three classes suggested they should also be classified with respect to the services for which they were allowed.

There are certain county funds which at present are not included in any statement of county finances, but which should be so included. The registered bond tax fund, although administered by the State Auditor, is distinctly a county receipt and expenditure. The receipts for the institute fund of the county superintendent of schools represent fees paid by individuals for the services rendered by that official, and the disbursements of this fund are properly to be considered county expenditures.

All funds received by county officials in the transaction of their official duties should be included in a statement of county finances. The county treasurer in his capacity as county collector receives all State taxes collected within the county. He also collects all the delinquent taxes for local public authorities. The county clerk receives some funds for the State, as, for example, hunters' licenses. These should accordingly all be entered in a comprehensive statement of the receipts and expenditures of the county officers.

The expenditures for the county under the present system of accounting are based on the warrants cancelled during the year. According to this method the expenditures belonging to any one year are not accurately set off from those of the year preceding and the year following. The warrants authorized during the year constitute the expenditures for that year whether these are cancelled the same year or not. In the accompanying statements the expenditures have been based upon the warrants authorized during the year in so far as the present system of records and accounts made it possible to carry out this plan.

In order to prepare a statement which will show the expenses connected with the different departments of county administration it is necessary that the expenditures be properly analyzed and classified. This is not done under present conditions. The only book in which all the expenditures are recorded is the treasurer's cash book and the classification of expenditures in this book is entirely unsatisfactory. All county warrants authorized by the county board are entered in a register of county warrants which is kept in the county clerk's office. The classification of expenditures in this book does not aim at the ascertainment of the cost of the various functions of county government and it is only by referring to the original bills that an analysis of expenditures can be made which will serve that purpose. The filing systems in use make this a very difficult matter, and there are many respects in which these could be improved. There are also expenditures in addition to those authorized by the county board; and the register of county warrants, therefore, does not contain a complete statement of the expenditures of the county.

The salaries and office expenses of the different county officers, as stated above, are not recorded as expenditures but are deducted by the officers from the fees and commissions collected by them. Some of the county officers perform duties in connection with several departments of county administration. The county clerk in addition to his general duties as county clerk serves as clerk of the county board and as clerk of the county court. He also prepares the tax books for the collectors. His salary and office expenses accordingly should be distributed among these different departments. The county treasurer serves as county treasurer, as county collector, and as supervisor of assessments. The sheriff's duties are distributed among the different courts and he is also custodian of prisoners. Much difficulty was experienced in the distribution of the salaries and office expenses of these officers among the different departments as there is no suitable basis available. In preparing the accompanying statements it was assumed that the fees and commissions received by the officers in connection with the performance of their various duties constituted the most accurate basis available at present, and the salary and office expenses of each officer accordingly were distributed among the different departments on the basis of the proportion which the fees and commissions received for the duties in connection with that department bore to the total fees and commissions collected by the officer. The time devoted by each officer to his various duties would constitute a more accurate basis for the distribution of his salary and office expenses. In Sangamon County the law provides that $1,000 of the salary of the county treasurer and $2,200 of his office expenses be charged to his duties as supervisor of assessments. In Piatt County $500 is to be so charged.

Some additional difficulty was experienced in Piatt County, due to the fact that in the small counties some of the offices are merged. The county clerk combines the duties of county clerk and probate clerk, and the circuit clerk is also county recorder.

In ascertaining the expenditures for the different courts in Piatt County a few items were found in which it was impossible to distinguish between the county court and the probate court, since these two courts are conducted by the same officials. It was found that of the fees received by the county clerk as clerk of the county court and as clerk of the probate court approximately one-third were for services in connection with the county court and two-thirds were for services in connection with the probate court. That ratio was accordingly used in distributing the salary of the judge and the other expenses in which no distinction had been made. The basis is not satisfactory but it was considered to be the best available.

In Sangamon County the poor farm receipts are reported by the treasurer in one sum. In Piatt County the superintendent of the poor farm does not turn over his receipts to the county treasurer but instead pays out the money directly for farm expenses. Only the expenses of the poor farm in excess of these receipts are paid by county warrants. In neither county is there an analysis of receipts and it is impossible to know whether they represent actual income from farm operation or whether they represent sales of farm equipment. There is also no classification of the expenditures for the poor farm. An accounting system installed on the farm would furnish such information and much additional information which would be of value in the management of the farm.

At present no attempt is made to keep separate the expenditures for permanent improvements and the expenditures for current expense. It is essential to a sound financial policy that this distinction be made, and in the accompanying statements the expenditures for permanent improvements are shown separately.

There is no ledger among any of the county books, consequently no accounts which definitely represent the assets and liabilities of the county. The county possesses both real estate and buildings but no accounts are kept for the same. Under these conditions an official upon taking up the duties of his office may not know for what property he is assuming responsibility nor can he be relieved of this responsibility in a proper manner when he gives up the office to his successor.

There are no accounts which provide for a comparison between appropriations for particular purposes and the expenditures for these same purposes. At present there is no effective check upon the work of the different officers which would prevent the misappropriation of funds.

The advantages to the county of an accounting system which will make possible the publishing of statements similar to the accompanying are obvious. Such an accounting system would furnish the county officers and the county boards with information which would make possible the introduction of economies and the elimination of wastes and inefficiencies in the administration of county business. In addition to revealing the exact cost of operation of each department of the county the accounting system should provide for the ascertainment of unit costs. As an illustration of this an attempt was made in Sangamon County to ascertain the cost of preparing a tax schedule in Capital Township. The following figures were secured:

Average cost per schedule of making and publishing assessment....	$ 0 52
Cost of placing each schedule on the tax books (transcribing and extending)	14
Total cost of preparing a tax schedule.....	$ 0 66
Average cost of collecting a tax schedule.....	33

Total average cost of preparing and collecting a tax schedule....$ 0 99

At the normal rate of taxation in Capital Township (e. g. 5 per cent on the taxable value in 1911) the direct expenses for making and collecting tax schedules would more than equal the taxes paid for property assessed at less than $20 taxable value or $60 "full value."

Uniform reports from each county in the State would furnish statistical data of much value. Comparisons of the cost of carrying on the different phases of county business could be made and these would result both in a saving to the taxpayer and in a more economical and efficient expenditure of the money received by the county.

In addition the statement would be of much interest to the public and would furnish the taxpayers with information which would lead to a more intelligent interest on their part in the affairs of county government.

REPORT ON THE FINANCES OF THE TOWNS, ROAD DISTRICTS AND SCHOOLS IN SANGAMON COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

(By O. R. MARTIN, University of Illinois.)

An examination was made of the accounts and records of each town and road district in Sangamon County for the purpose of presenting in the form of a statement the financial administration of these local government units.

The accounts and records of these bodies are kept in a very unsatisfactory manner, and much difficulty was experienced in securing the data necessary for such a statement. Usually there was only a cash book and the entries in this were difficult to understand. In some instances no dates were recorded. Many mistakes in the extension of figures were found in the reports received. These were corrected and consequently the balances reported in the statement will vary in some instances from the balances shown in the individual reports. Only in a few cases were there vouchers to support the entries in the books. Under the receipts frequently the only explanation was the name of the person from whom the money was received. Presumably this was the local tax collector, but it was not so stated.

Only the net taxes are recorded as receipts, the collectors' commissions having been deducted. This makes it difficult to determine the cost of the collection of taxes. The present system of tax collection is inefficient and expensive, but attention is not directed to that fact if the collectors' commissions do not appear in the accounts or in the published statements. They should be recorded as expenses. From the county collector's books it was possible to ascertain the amount of the town collectors' commissions for 1912, and these are shown herewith in order to call attention to that phase of local government administration.

NOTE.—The county clerk's fees for extending the state and county tax are paid by a county warrant authorized by the Board of Supervisors. These are not shown in the above statement.

COMMISSIONS RECEIVED BY THE COUNTY COLLECTOR FROM LOCAL PUBLIC AUTHORITIES FOR THE COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT LOCAL TAXES IN 1912.

School tax.....	$3,948 76
Town tax.....	262 58
Dog tax.....	5 64
Road and bridge tax.....	448 41
District road tax.....	14 20
Park tax.....	797 20
Corporation tax.....	1,151 33
Special assessments.....	416 69
Total.....	$7,044 81

The commissions paid by the local government bodies to the town collectors amounted to $11,957.72 in 1912. In addition, they paid to the county collector for the collection of delinquent taxes commissions amounting to $7,044.81, and to the county clerk for extending taxes, fees amounting to $6,510.62. The total amount paid by local government bodies for the extension and collection of their taxes in 1912 was $25,513.15.

The expenditures were very unsatisfactorily recorded. There was no attempt at a classification of expenses, and in many cases the meagreness of the information made a classification almost impossible.

In the case of the expenditures of the highway commissioners it was particularly troublesome to distinguish between expenditures for permanent road improvement and the expenditures for mere upkeep of roads. The importance of this distinction is obvious, but in no instance had the items been separated in the highway commissioners' accounts.

The expensiveness of the present system of roads is demonstrated by the fact that of the $75,811.32 expended for roads, 73.63 per cent ($55,821.52) was for current expense, and only 26.37 per cent ($19,969.80) was for permanent improvement. The highway commissioners receive their compensation from township funds. For the year under consideration this amounted to $5,594.17, so that the total expenditure for roads amounted to $81,405.49.

The chief item of expense in township administration is assessment. The accompanying statement shows that over 65 per cent of the expenditures were for that purpose. Excluding Capital Township, nearly 30 per cent of the expenditures was for assessment. The year for which the statement was drawn up was the year in which the assessment of real estate was made, so that the expense is somewhat larger than the average. An additional item of expense in connection with the assessment in Capital township was the installment of a new system for assessing real estate.

As noted above, the highway commissioners receive their compensation from township funds and this forms another item of importance under the expenditures, amounting to over 16 per cent of the total in the year under consideration.

No report was secured from Maxwell Township and only the highway commissioners' report was secured from Woodside Township. The figures for Capital Township, which coincides with the city of Springfield, were separated from the other townships because the conditions obtaining there are necessarily different. There are no highway commissioners in Capital Township.

There is urgent need for improvement in the keeping of the accounts and records of local government bodies. Statements showing a proper classification of the receipts and expenditures would furnish information of much value and interest to the public. They would make possible a careful study of local government administration which would bring about a saving to the tax payer. In this connection uniform reports would be exceedingly valuable. Better accounts would make impossible any misappropriation of funds and would lead to a more efficient expenditure of public money.

SCHOOL FINANCES.

In marked contrast with the unsatisfactory condition of town and highway accounts may be noted the following summary of the finances for the school townships and school districts for the year 1911-12. These statistics are from the report of the county superintendent of schools, on file in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The detailed reports from each school township and school district are made to the county superintendent.

It will be noted that there is a classification of both receipts and expenditures under significant headings, prescribed by the State Superintendent and followed by each local school treasurer in the State. Receipts from taxes, from the sale of property and bonds and from other sources are distinguished. In the expenditures, administrative expenses, the cost of instruction, other charges for operation and maintenance and auxiliary services are shown separately, with appropriate sub-divisions; while capital outlays are clearly distinguished from current expenses, interest and the repayment of loans.

Besides the data shown in this summary, the school reports contain further statements as to the value of assets and outstanding liabilities, and statistics as to the number of schools, teachers, pupils and other data relating to schools, which are summarized in the reports of the State Superintendent.

What has been done by the school districts should be also possible for the other units of local government in the State, such as the towns and counties.

A BILL

FOR AN ACT TO ESTABLISH UNIFORM SYSTEMS OF ACCOUNTING AND REPORTING IN COUNTY AND OTHER LOCAL OFFICES.

STATE EXAMINER OF ACCOUNTS.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly: There shall be appointed by the Governor, as soon after Dec. 1, 1913, as may be practicable, a State Examiner of Accounts, who shall be a person well versed in public accounting. He shall receive an annual salary of four thousand ($4,000) dollars per annum. The State Examiner shall appoint such assistant examiners, clerks and other assistants as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act. No person shall be appointed as State Examiner or Assistant Examiner who is an officer, deputy, employee, or surety on the bonds of any county officer. The State Examiner shall be provided with suitable quarters in the State Capitol, and with all necessary supplies.

BONDS.

§ 2. The State Examiner of Accounts shall furnish a bond for the faithful performance of his duties, in the sum of five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be approved by the Governor; and each assistant examiner shall furnish a bond in the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars to be approved by the State Examiner.

UNIFORM SYSTEM OF COUNTY ACCOUNTS.

§ 3. The State Examiner of Accounts shall formulate and prescribe uniform systems of bookkeeping and accounting, which shall be installed in the offices of all county clerks, clerks of courts, recorders of deeds, sheriffs, treasurers, State's attorneys, county superintendents of schools, coroners, county auditors and all other county officers.

Such systems of accounts shall provide for forms showing all sources of income, the amounts due and received from each source, the amounts expended for each purpose and all receipts, vouchers and other documents required to be kept which may be necessary to prove the validity of every transaction. Separate appropriations, based on detailed estimates, shall be made for each office, institution and undertaking, by the board of supervisors or board of county commissioners of each county; and separate accounts shall be kept for each appropriation, showing separately the payments for salaries, for other personal services and for supplies and distinguishing payments for ordinary expenses from payments for construction works and other extraordinary purposes. Provision shall also be made for balance sheets showing assets and liabilities.

No system of uniform accounting or any book, record or form that may hereafter be adopted shall be copyrighted.

No system of uniform accounting shall be prescribed by the State Examiner of Accounts prior to April 1, 1916.

DUTIES OF COUNTY OFFICERS.

§ 4. From and after Dec. 1, 1916, it shall be the duty of every county officer to keep all accounts of his office in accordance with the system prescribed by the State Examiner; and to make annual financial reports to the State Examiner in accordance with the forms and methods prescribed.

EXAMINATION AND AUDIT.

§ 5. The State Examiner of Accounts shall have power and it shall be his duty, personally or by his assistants, to examine, at least once each year, the accounts and financial affairs of every county office; and at the end of each fiscal year to audit the books, records and accounts of each county officer. On every such examination, inquiry shall be made, whether the laws of the State, the requirements of the State Examiner (when it is the duty of such county officer to keep his accounts in accordance with the requirements of the State Examiner) and the rules and regulations of the county board have been complied with; and into the methods and accuracy of the accounts and reports and the financial condition and resources of the county. The State Examiner and authorized assistant examiners shall have authority to enter any county office, to inspect any books, papers or documents contained therein and to compel the production of any books papers or documents necessary for making such examination or audit. They shall have authority to issue subpoenas and compel the attendance of any officer, deputy employee or other person whose testimony may be required; and may administer oaths and require the testimony of witnesses under oath.

REPORTS AND STATISTICS.

§ 6. A full report of each examination and audit of county accounts shall be submitted to the board of supervisors or board of county commissioners of the county, and to the State Examiner of Accounts. Such reports shall show the condition of the books, records and accounts of each office and shall include a financial statement of all collections, receipts and payments, classified by sources of income and purposes of expenditure, and of all moneys due to or by the county or any county officer and of all other county assets and liabilities. Such reports shall be published with the proceedings of the county board. The substance of the financial statements shall also be published by the State Examiner of Accounts in an annual report on comparative county statistics to be issued by the State as a public document, and submitted to the Governor for transmittal to the General Assembly.

OFFENSES AND PENALTIES.

§ 7. Any county officer, deputy or employee who shall refuse or neglect to perform any duty prescribed by this Act, or shall refuse to permit the State Examiner to inspect the books, papers and accounts of the office, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred ($100) dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Any witness duly subpoenaed by the State Examiner or an authorized assistant examiner who refuses to appear, to produce books, documents or papers, to make oath or affirmation or to testify shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred ($100) dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court.

The State Examiner or an assistant examiner in charge of an examination shall promptly report any offense arising under this Act to the county board, and also to the State's Attorney, who shall promptly institute proceedings against the officer, employee, or witness concerned. On refusal or neglect of the State's attorney to take action, the State Examiner shall report the facts to the Attorney General, who shall thereupon institute such proceedings as the facts of the case may require.

APPROVAL AND RELEASE OF OFFICIAL BONDS.

§ 8. Every bond given by a county officer or employee, from whom a bond may be required, shall be examined and approved as to its form and the sufficiency of its securities, by the State Examiner of Accounts, or a duly authorized assistant examiner. Upon the expiration of such a bonded officer's term of office or employee's term of service, or upon his resignation, discharge or death, the accounts of such officer or employee shall be examined and audited by or under the direction of the State Examiner of Accounts; and if found correct a certified report to this effect shall be filed with the county clerk.

After the expiration of two years from the date of filing such report, no suit or proceeding shall be brought against such officer or the sureties on his bond for any moneys received or disbursed by him in his official capacity during his term of office: Provided, if when the cause of action accrues against a person, he is out of the State, the action may be commenced within the time herein limited, after his coming into or return to the State; and if, after the cause of action accrues, he departs from and resides out of the State, the time of his absence is no part of the time limited for the commencement of this action. But the foregoing provisions of this section shall not apply to any case, when, at the time the cause of action accrued or shall accrue, neither the party against nor in favor of whom the same accrued, were or are residents of the State. Provided, also, if the person entitled to bring an action is, at the time the cause of action accrued, within the age of twenty-one years, or if a female, within the age of eighteen years, or insane, or imprisoned on a criminal charge, he or she may bring the action within two years after the disability is removed. The limitation of the right to bring suit or proceeding above prescribed shall include and apply to suits and proceedings brought by or on behalf of the State and by all other public corporations as well as to suits and proceedings brought by other corporations and persons.

OTHER LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

§ 9. Upon the request of any city council, village trustees, city or village commissioners, board of town auditors, school trustees, school directors, board of education or other municipal corporation, it shall be the duty of the State Examiner to formulate and install uniform systems of accounting for such municipalities, and to examine and audit the accounts of such municipalities as provided hereinbefore for county accounts. In any municipality where such uniform systems of accounting have been installed, the State Examiner and assistant examiners shall have the same powers as in the case of county accounts; and the local officials shall be subject to the same duties and obligations in regard to such accounts, examinations and audits as are herein imposed on county officers.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL NO. 414.

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend House Bill No. 414 in Senate by inserting after the word "amend" in the first line of the title of the printed bill, the words and figures "section 2 of," and by striking out all after the word "June" in the last line of the title of the printed bill and inserting in lieu thereof, the figures and words "10, 1911, in force July 1, 1911."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend House Bill No. 414 in Senate by striking out all after the enacting clause and by inserting in lieu thereof, the following: "That section 2 of 'An Act in relation to the acquisition, control, maintenance, improvements and protection of State parks, and making an appropriation to carry into effect the provisions of this Act,' approved June 10, 1911, in force July 1, 1911, be amended so that section 2 shall read as follows:

Sec. 2. The Illinois Park Commission shall have power—

1. To have the care, charge, control, supervision and management of all public parks heretofore acquired by the State under the provisions of this Act, or which may hereafter, be acquired.

2. To make such rules and regulations for the use, care and administration of State parks as may be necessary to carry into effect the powers hereby expressly granted and enforce the same.

3. To lay out and ornament any State park and govern and manage the same.

4. To lay out, construct and maintain all proper roads, walks, bridle paths, bridges in any State park.

5. To permit the use of State parks by campers and pleasure parties under such restrictions, rules and regulations as said commission may deem necessary.

6. To employ such custodians, keepers, clerks, assistants, laborers and subordinates as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this Act.

7. To lease any lands or premises situated within the limits of any State park which, in the opinion of said commission, can be leased without detriment to such park.

8. To purchase, or acquire, for and in the name of the State of Illinois, title to such tracts of land which the General Assembly may from time to time authorize to be acquired as and for State parks, and in case the Illinois Park Commission cannot acquire title to any land necessary for such public parks at a reasonable price in the opinion of said commission, authority for the purchase of which appropriations for the payment of the same having been made by the General Assembly, then the said commission is hereby vested with power, in the name of the people of the State of Illinois, to obtain title to such land, or to any part or parcel thereof, by condemnation obtain the eminent domain laws of this State: Provided, that all negotiations and legal proceedings provided for by this Act shall be under the direct supervision of the Attorney General of this State.

9. To investigate and report to the Governor, on or before the first day of January next preceding the regular session of the General Assembly, regarding any proposed park, and in such report shall make recommendations respecting other regions in Illinois desirable for State park purposes, either on account of their historical interest or their natural beauty.

The question being, "Shall the report of, and the amendments reported from, said committee be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

The question then being, "Shall the bill be ordered to a third reading and the amendments printed?" it was decided in the affirmative.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

The foregoing message from the House of Representatives was taken up for consideration.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor the Senate refused to recede from their amendments to the bill.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, a Committee of Conference, consisting of seven, on the part of the Senate to meet a like committee from the House of Representatives were ordered appointed to consider the differences of the two Houses in regard to the amendments to the bill.

The Executive Committee through the President of the Senate announced the following as the Committee on the part of the Senate: Messrs. Hay, Magill, Hurburgh, Barr, Gorman, Hearn, O'Connor.

On motion of Mr. Hay, House message on Senate Bill No. 274, a bill for "An Act to establish a joint legislative commission and to define the powers and duties thereof,"

The pending question being, "Shall the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of the following amendments to the bill?"

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 274 by striking out all after the word "commission" in line 3 of section 1 of the printed bill, and insert in lieu thereof, the following: "composed of the Governor, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore of the Senate, the chairmen of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and House, the chairmen of the Committees on Judiciary of the Senate and House, four other Senators and four other members of the House of Representatives. The Governor shall be ex officio chairman of said commission.

Sec. 2. Immediately after the passage and approval of this Act, and thereafter at the beginning of each regular session of the General Assembly, the Governor shall designate four Senators and four members of the House of Representatives as members of said commission.

Sec. 3. The Governor shall serve as a member of the commission during the term of office for which he shall have been elected, and the members from either House, including those serving on said commission by virtue of being chairmen of committees of either House, or as Speaker of the House of Representatives or President pro tempore of the Senate, shall serve until the convening of the next General Assembly after their appointment.

Sec. 4. The commission shall meet during the regular and special sessions of the General Assembly, and during the intervals between the regular sessions, and at such times and places as it may determine. The members of the commission shall receive no compensation for their services as members thereof, but shall be allowed their actual and necessary expenses, incurred in the performance of their official duties, out of any money appropriated for the use of the commission.

Sec. 5. The commission shall appoint a secretary, who shall devote his entire time to the duties of his office, and shall follow no other gainful profession, occupation or employment. The commission shall also appoint such other officers, agents and employees as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, and shall fix the compensation of each of its appointees: Provided, the salary of the secretary shall be fixed at a sum not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) per annum.

Sec. 6. The commission shall have power, when requested by the Governor, the General Assembly, or either House thereof:

(a) To examine and report upon the operation of laws of this and other states and countries.

(b) To investigate the expenditure of any appropriation made by the General Assembly.

(c) To prepare drafts of bills.

Sec. 7. It shall be the duty of said commission.

(a) To establish in the State Capitol a legislative reference bureau which shall be open daily, excepting Sundays and legal holidays, in which shall be collected and kept in such manner as may make the same readily accessible, such laws, reports, books, periodicals, documents, catalogues, check lists, digests, summaries of the laws of other states upon current legislation and such other printed or written matter as may aid the members of the General Assembly in the performance of their official duties.

The Legislative and Reference Bureau shall collect, catalogue, classify, index, completely digest, topically index, check list, and summarize all bills, memorials, resolutions and orders, as well as substitutes and amendments and changes, if any, introduced in each branch of the General Assembly, as soon as practicable after the same shall have been printed, and shall furnish copies of the digest, indexed and topically indexed, to each member of the General Assembly on Monday of each week during the session of the General Assembly.

The said Legislative Reference Bureau shall afford to any member of the General Assembly upon his request such legal assistance and information as may be practicable in the preparation of bills, memorials, resolutions and orders and amendments, alterations, changes thereto, and revisions and substitutes thereof, proposed to be introduced into the General Assembly by such member.

(b) To cause to be prepared, printed and distributed for the use of the members of the General Assembly, before the convening of the regular session of the General Assembly, a detailed budget of the appropriations which the officers of the several departments of the State government report to it are required for their several departments for the biennium for which appropriations are to be made by the next General Assembly, together with a comparative statement of the sums appropriated by the preceding General Assembly for the same purposes.

(c) To investigate and report upon such matters as it may have been directed so to do by the Governor, by the General Assembly or either House thereof.

(d) To keep a full and correct record of its proceedings and of all investigations conducted by it, to afford public access to the record of its proceedings and investigations and to report the same or parts thereof to the General Assembly at its convening.

(e) To furnish to either House of the General Assembly, upon request of such House, any file or record in the possession of said commission, or a copy thereof.

Sec. 8. Every department of the State government or officers thereof when so requested by said commission, shall cooperate with said commission in any inquiry being conducted by said commission.

Sec. 9. The officers of the several departments of the State government shall make duplicate reports by the first day of November next preceding the convening of the regular session of the General Assembly of the appropriations which are required for their several departments for the biennium for which appropriations are to be made by such General Assembly. One of the said duplicate reports shall be filed with the Governor and the other with the secretary of the commission.

Sec. 10. The Secretary of State shall provide said commission with suitable offices in the State Capitol convenient to the place of meeting of the General Assembly, and shall further provide said commission with the necessary furniture, stationery, and supplies.

Sec. 11. The board of commissioners for the management of the State Library shall cooperate with the said commission and shall make the facilities of said library accessible so far as practicable, for the use of said commission, and are hereby authorized to loan to said commission any books, periodicals, documents, reports or other printed or written matter belonging to said library.

Sec. 12. All proper expenses incurred by said commission shall be paid out of the appropriations made for its use upon itemized vouchers drawn by the secretary and approved by the Governor.

Mr. Madigan moved that the Senate do not concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of the amendments.

Mr. Hay moved, as a substitute for Mr. Madigan's motion, that the Senate do concur.

Mr. Madigan moved that the substitute motion lie on the table, and the yeas and nays being demanded, it was decided in the affirmative by the following vote: Yeas, 33; nays, 7.

On motion of Mr. Hurburgh, it was ordered that all Senate bills on the order of third reading, except Senate Bill No. 208, be laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Hurburgh, it was ordered that the following bills and resolutions on the order of special orders, be laid on the table, to wit: Senate Bill No. 651, Senate Bill No. 619, Senate Bill No. 637, Senate Bill No. 512, and Senate Joint Resolution No. 50.

On motion of Mr. Hurburgh, it was ordered that the following numbered resolutions on the order of consideration of resolutions, be laid on the table: Senate Resolutions No. 51, No. 53, No. 62, No. 64 and Senate Joint Resolution No. 38.

Mr. Jones moved that the Senate proceed to the order of consideration of resolutions, in order to allow him to call up the following:

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 72.

Resolved, That House Bill No. 854, in Senate, be and the same hereby is recalled from the Committee on Elections and placed on the order of First Reading.

Mr. Ettelson raised the point of order that the resolution was out of order because the rules did not warrant the recall of a bill from a committee, and upon that point of order, the President of the Senate made the following ruling:

The Chair, answering the point of order raised by the gentleman from Cook, Mr. Ettelson, holds:

The resolution offered by the gentleman from Cook, Mr. Jones, raises the question of the right of the Senate to withdraw a bill from committee to which it has been referred. While mention is made of a resolution to recall under rule thirty-nine there is no rule that expressly provides for the recalling of a bill from committee nor any rule definitely stating the means to be employed for such an action nor the vote required to carry such action into effect.

In Mr. Hinds' excellent work on Precedents in the National Congress, Speaker Reid is reported as ruling that a resolution to withdraw a bill from committee is not in order but the conditions in the case referred to do not appear to the Chair to be parallel to the conditions in this body.

The Chair is of the opinion that it is not only the fundamental reason underlying all parliamentary law but also the spirit of the rules under which this body acts that the majority of all Senators elected shall at all times have the control of all bills and resolutions legally and regularly presented to the body under the rules, and that the wishes of this majority of all Senators elected is not to be curtailed merely because a bill has been referred to committee, unless the rules of the Senate expressly specify otherwise.

The Chair is of the opinion that inasmuch as a majority of the members of this body suffice to pass any bill, that that same majority has the unquestioned right to control the disposition of the measure at any stage after its introduction to its final passage. To hold otherwise would be to give the minority a greater power at certain times than that exercised by a majority, and this clearly must be against all rules of fair play and against the underlying spirit of the rules conveying to the majority of all Senators elected the right of rule.

The Chair has held on previous occasions that under the rules laid down in Cushing's Parliamentary Law, no bill of the same substance may be twice introduced without the suspension of the rules, which requires a two-thirds vote. The Chair at the time this ruling was rendered stated that the application of this rule did not vest the power of rule in the minority, inasmuch as any member of this body interested in a bill withheld by committee had his remedy in a resolution to withdraw from committee and the Chair informally stated that this resolution might be sustained by a majority vote of Senators elected.

The Chair now makes the ruling that a resolution to withdraw from committee is in order and that such resolution does not necessitate a two-thirds vote but may be sustained by a majority vote of Senators elected. That is, that the withdrawal of a bill from committee cannot equitably require a greater vote than that required for its final passage. And to rule that the resolution withdrawing a bill from committee could be sustained by a vote less than required for the final passage of the bill would be to establish a very dangerous precedent and to encourage the calling up of such a resolution in the absence of a full Senate and at such a time and such manner as really to defeat the theory of majority rule upon which the Chair believes it is the desire of this body to act.

The question then being, "Shall the order of consideration of resolutions be taken up?" and the yeas and nays being called, it was decided in the affirmative by the following vote: Yeas, 25; nays, 24.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has acceded to the request of the Senate for a Committee of Conference to consider the differences between the two Houses in regard to the Senate amendments to a bill of the following title, to wit:

HOUSE BILL No. 895.

A bill for "An Act to provide for the ordinary and contingent expenses of the State government until the expiration of the fiscal quarter after the adjournment of the next regular session of the General Assembly."

I am further directed to inform the Senate that the Speaker of the House has appointed as such committee on the part of the House, Messrs. Shanahan, Rapp, Smejkal, McLaughlin, Dudgeon, Mitchell and Hunt.

Action taken by the House, June 18, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

On motion of Mr. Glackin, House Bill No. 907, a bill for "An Act to provide for the regulation of public utilities,"

Was taken up and read at large a second time.

Mr. Piercy offered the following amendment to the bill:

Amend House Bill No. 907 in Senate, by inserting after section 80 on page 66 of the printed bill the following:

ARTICLE VI.

LOCAL UTILITIES.

Sec. 81. POWERS OF CITIES.] Each city shall have power and authority, subject to the provisions of this article:

(1) To prescribe terms and conditions, subject to the provisions of existing law, upon which any public utility may be permitted to occupy the streets, highways or other public property within such city; but no city may by ordinance, franchise, license, permit, or otherwise, contract with any public utility so as to divest itself of or limit its power of regulating any such public utility, or so as to divest itself of any right or power to acquire, own or operate any public utility which may now or hereafter be authorized by law.

(2) To regulate the quality, adequacy and safety of any service, product or commodity rendered or furnished within such city by any public utility, except railroads which do a general freight and passenger service, now commonly known as steam railroads, but not excepting elevated, interurban or street railroads or other common carriers; and to acquire any such public utility to make such additions and extensions to its plant, equipment and property within said city as shall be reasonable and necessary in the interest of the public.

(3) To determine and prescribe just and reasonable rates or other charges for any service, product or commodity rendered or furnished within such city by any public utility, and to prevent unjust and unreasonable discriminations in rates or other charges and in services within such city by any such public utility, except railroads which do a general freight and passenger service, now commonly known as steam railroads and excepting also interurban railroads, but not excepting elevated and street railroads or other common carriers: Provided, however, that the term "Interurban railroads" as here used shall not mean or include any elevated or street railroads which operate mainly or primarily within a city but which also operates any track or tracks extension or extensions of such railroad beyond the corporate limits of such city.

(4) To examine such public utilities and keep informed as to their general condition, the manner and method of conducting their business, and their compliance with the provisions of law, with the requirements of their charters, franchises, licenses or permits, and with any orders issued under the provisions of this Act.

(5) To adopt reasonable and proper rules and regulations relative to the exercise of its powers, and to regulate the mode and manner of all investigations and hearings, and to alter and amend the same: Provided, that such power and authority of any city over the rates or other charges, and services of any public utility for the transportation of persons or property or the transmission of messages shall extend only to the control of such transportation and transmission between points in the same city.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to limit or restrict the powers granted to cities by this article, nor to extend the jurisdiction of the State public utilities commission over such terms and conditions, additions and extensions, quality, adequacy and safety of service, and over such rates or other charges, or discriminations in rates or other charges, and in services of public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of cities, except as provided in this article; and nothing in this Act shall be construed to require a public utility operating or proposing to operate mainly or primarily within the limits of a city to secure a certificate of convenience and necessity from the State public utilities commission before beginning the construction of any new plant, equipment or other property or facility within such city; but in all other respects such public utilities shall be subject to the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 82. UTILITIES TO COMPLY WITH REQUESTS AND OBEY ORDERS OF CITIES.] Every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall furnish to the city all information required by it to carry into effect the provisions of this Act, and shall make specific answers to all questions submitted by the city council or by an authorized agent of the city, and cause to be properly filled out and verified any blanks received from the city or from an authorized agent of the city, with directions to fill the same, so as to answer fully and correctly each question therein propounded.

Whenever required by any city council or by any authorized agent of the city, every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the city, shall deliver to the city council or to such authorized agent of the city, any or all maps, profiles, contracts, reports, documents, books, accounts, papers and records in its possession, or in any way relating to its property or affecting its business within such city, and inventories of its property in such form as the city may direct, or verified copies of any or all of the same.

Every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall obey and comply with each and every requirement of every order, decision, direction, rule or regulation, made or prescribed by the city in any way relating to its business as a public utility, and shall do everything necessary or proper to secure compliance with and observance of every such order, decision, direction, rule or regulation by all of its officers, agents and employees.

Sec. 83. OTHER THAN PUBLIC UTILITY BUSINESS.] In case any public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city is engaged in carrying on any business other than that of a public utility, the city council or an authorized agent of the city may examine and inspect the books, accounts, papers and records of such other business, in so far as may be necessary to exercise the power and jurisdiction of the city over such public utility. The city shall have power to inquire as to and determine the proper proportion of earnings, debts and expenses, fairly or justly to be awarded or borne by the ownership, operation management or control of such public utility as distinguished from such other business, in so far as may be necessary to exercise its power and jurisdiction over such public utility.

Sec. 84. COPIES OF REPORTS.] Every public utility operating mainly or primarily within a city shall file with the city copies of all reports made by such public utility to the State Public Utility Commission. The city shall have authority to require any such public utility to file monthly reports of earnings and expenses of such public utility and to file other periodicals or special, or both periodical and special reports concerning any matter about which the city is authorized by law to keep itself informed. All reports shall be under oath.

When any report is erroneous or defective, or appears to the city council, or an authorized agent of the city to be erroneous or defective, the city council or such agent of the city may notify the public utility to amend its report within thirty (30) days, and before or after the termination of such period the city council or such agent of the city may examine the officers, agents or employees, and books, records, accounts, vouchers, plant, equipment and property of such public utility and correct such items in the report as upon such examination the city council or agent of the city may find defective or erroneous.

Any public utility which fails to make and file any report called for by the city council or an authorized officer of the city within the time specified; or to make specific answer to any question propounded by the city council or such agent of the city within thirty (30) days from the time it is lawfully required to do so, or within such further time, not to exceed ninety (90) days, as may, in its discretion, be allowed by the city, shall forfeit one hundred dollars ($100) for each and every day it may be so in default.

Any person who wilfully makes any false return or report to the city council or an authorized agent of the city, and any person who aids or abets such person, shall, upon conviction, be subject to imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year or to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars ($1,000), or both, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 85. NOTICE TO CITY ON APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF SECURITIES.] Whenever any public utility operating or proposing to operate, mainly or primarily within a city shall make application to the State Public Utilities Commission for the approval of any issue, purchase or acquisition of stocks, stock certificates, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness, or for the approval of the capitalization of any merger or consolidation of such public utilities, a notice of such application shall be given to the city by the State Public Utilities Commission, and the city shall receive notice and be entitled to appear and to present evidence at the hearing held by the State Public Utilities Commission on any such application.

Sec. 86. INTERCORPORATE RELATIONS.] Unless the consent and approval of the city is first obtained:

(a) No two or more public utilities, one of which operates or proposes to operate mainly or primarily within such city, may enter into contracts with each other that will enable such public utilities to operate their lines or plants in connection with each other.

(b) No public utility may purchase, lease or in any other manner acquire control, direct or indirect, over the franchises, licenses, permits, plant, equipment, business, or other property of any other public utility operating or proposing to operate mainly or primarily within such city.

(c) No public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the city may assign, transfer, lease, mortgage, sell, or otherwise dispose of or encumber the whole or any part of its franchises, licenses, permits, plant, equipment, business or other property within such city, or make any contract or agreement with reference to or affecting any such franchise, license or permit; but this shall not be construed to prevent the sale, lease, assignment or transfer of any tangible personal property, which is not necessary or useful, in the performance of its duties to the public.

(d) No public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the city may by any means, direct or indirect, merge or consolidate its franchises, licenses, permits, plant, equipment, business or property within such city with that of any other public utility.

Such consent and approval shall not be construed to revive or validate any lapsed or invalid franchise, license, permit or right, or to enlarge or add to the powers and privileges contained in the grant of any franchise, license, permit or right, or to waive any forfeiture.

Any transaction referred to in this section requiring the consent and approval of the city, made without such consent and approval, shall be void.

Sec. 87. VALUATION.] Each city shall have power to ascertain the value of the property of every public utility subject to its jurisdiction, and every fact which may or does have any bearing on such value. In making such valuation, the city may avail itself of any information, books, documents or records in the possession of any office, department or board of the State or of any subdivision thereof. Each city shall have power to make revaluations from time to time and also to ascertain the value of all new construction, extensions and additions to the property of every such public utility.

Sec. 88. SCHEDULES OF RATES—COPIES OF CONTRACTS—REPORTS OF ACCIDENTS.] Every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall publish, post and file with the city copies of all schedules of rates or other charges, commodities, products or service furnished or rendered within such city, as nearly as may be in accordance with the provisions of sections 33 and 34 of this Act. Every such public utility shall file with the city copies of all contracts, agreements or arrangements with other public utilities in relation to any service, product or commodity rendered or furnished within said city.

Every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall promptly file with the city a report of every accident to or on its plant, equipment or other property affecting its service within the city which results in loss of life or injury to any person or is of such a nature as to endanger the safety, health or property of any person: Provided, that no such report filed with the city shall be admitted in evidence in any action for damage based on or arising out of the loss of life, or injury to person or property, in this section referred to.

Copies of all official documents and orders filed or deposited with the city and certified by the city clerk or other authorized agent of the city to be true copies of the originals, shall be evidence in like manner as the originals.

Sec. 89. JOINT RATES—TRANSFERS.] Whenever a city, after a hearing, shall find that the rates or other charges, or classifications in force over two or more public utilities subject to its jurisdiction are unjust, unreasonable or excessive, or that no satisfactory through route or joint rate or other charge, or classification exists, and that the public convenience and necessity demand the establishment of a through route or joint rate, the city may order such public utilities to establish such through route, or may fix a joint rate or other charge, or classification which will be just and reasonable, and the terms and conditions under which such through route or joint rate shall be operated.

Whenever a city, after a hearing, shall find that the rules, regulations and practices of any common carrier subject to its jurisdiction, as to the use of transfer tickets for the transportation of persons over two or more lines of such carrier on payment of a single fare, are unjust and unreasonable, the city shall have power to determine and prescribe just and reasonable regulations for the issuance and use of such transfer tickets, and may, in its discretion, prescribe the number of successive transfer tickets to be given to a passenger paying a single fare, and provide for the prompt use and place of use by each passenger of such transfer tickets issued for a single fare for a continuous trip over the lines of such common carrier.

No public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall, without the consent of the city, charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for a lesser commodity, product or service than for a greater commodity, product or service of like character.

Sec. 90. TRACK CONNECTIONS.] Whenever a city shall find, after a hearing made upon complaint or upon its own motion, that the public convenience and necessity would be subserved by having track connections made between any two or more railroads or street railroads subject to the jurisdiction of the city, the city shall have authority to order any such railroads or street railroads of the same gauge to make physical connections at any and all crossings, and at all points where a railroad or street railroad subject to the jurisdiction of the city shall begin or terminate at or near any other or street railroad, so that the cars of any such railroad or street railroad company may be speedily transferred from one railroad or street railroad to another, and shall have power to order whether the expense thereof shall be borne jointly or otherwise.

Sec. 91. STANDARDS OF SERVICE—INSPECTIONS.] Each city shall have power to ascertain, determine and fix for each kind of public utility suitable and convenient standard commercial units of service, product or commodity, and adequate and serviceable standards for the measurement of quantity, quality, pressure, initial voltage or other condition pertaining to the performing of its service or the furnishing of its product or commodity by any public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the city: Provided, that such standards shall not be inconsistent with the standards determined by the State Public Utilities Commission.

Each city shall also have power to prescribe reasonable regulations for examining, measuring and testing such service, product or commodity, and to provide for the inspection of the manner in which each public utility subject to its jurisdiction conforms to the reasonable regulations provided by the city for examining, measuring and testing its service, product or commodity; and the city may supplement such inspection by examining, measuring and testing the service, product or commodity of any such public utility.

Each city may provide for testing any appliance for examining, measuring or testing any service, product or commodity, and may fix and establish reasonable fees for testing such appliances, and may make regulations as to the payment of such fees.

Any officer, agent or employee of any city, duly authorized by the city, shall have power to enter upon any premises occupied by any public utility for the purpose of making the examinations and tests provided in this article, and to set up on such premises any apparatus and appliances and occupy reasonable space therefor.

Sec. 92. CITIES RIGHT TO APPEAR BEFORE STATE COMMISSION IN STEAM RAILROAD CASES.] Any city is authorized and empowered to appear as a complainant or to make application before the State Public Utilities Commission for an inquiry, investigation or hearing relating to the rates or other charges, or service within such city, on railroads doing a general freight and passenger service now commonly known as steam railroads, or to any other matter within the jurisdiction of the State Public Utilities Commission relating to such railroads; and in case of any hearing by or before the State Public Utilities Commission on any matter relating to the rates or other charges or service, within any city, on such railroads, the city shall receive notice and shall be entitled to appear and present evidence relating to the subject matter of such hearing.

Sec. 93. COMPLAINTS AND INVESTIGATIONS.] On complaint to the city by any public utility furnishing services, products or commodities within the city, or by any person or corporation of anything done or omitted to be done in violation of this Act or of any order or regulation made under the authority thereof, the city council, or an authorized agent of the city, shall cause a statement of the complaint to be forwarded to the public utility complained of, which shall be called on to satisfy the complaint or to answer the same in writing within a reasonable time, to be specified by the city council or such agent of the city. The city council shall provide for the investigation of such complaints in all cases where there shall appear to be reasonable ground for such investigation.

Sec. 94. WITNESSES—IMMUNITY—INSPECTION OF BOOKS, ACCOUNTS AND PHYSICAL PROPERTY.] In the exercise of its powers over public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the city, any city council or any officer of the city authorized by ordinance or resolution, shall have authority to issue subpoenas and compel the attendance of witnesses, to administer oaths or affirmations, and to inspect and require the production of the books, papers, accounts, documents, and to enter and inspect the plant, equipment and other property, of any such public utility. Information so obtained shall not be admitted in evidence or used in any proceedings except in proceedings provided for in this Act. A subpoena issued as aforesaid shall be served in the same manner as a subpoena issued out of a court of record.

The deposition of witnesses residing within or without the State may be taken in the manner prescribed by law for like depositions in civil actions in the courts of this State.

Fees for the service of subpoenas and for the attendance of witnesses shall be the same as in the circuit court, and shall be paid by the city, if the subpoena is issued at the instance of the city, and by the public utility if issued at the instance of the public utility.

No person shall be excused from testifying or from producing any papers, books, accounts or documents in any investigation or inquiry or upon any hearing ordered by any city, when ordered to do so by the city council, or by an authorized officer of the city, upon the ground that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture. But no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, before the city council or such officer of the city: Provided, that such immunity shall extend only to a natural person, who, in obedience to a subpoena, gives testimony under oath or produces evidence, documentary or otherwise, under oath. No person so testifying shall be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying.

Any witness duly subpoenaed under this section, who shall refuse or neglect to appear, to produce books, papers, accounts, or documents, to make oath or affirmation, or to testify; or any officer, agent or employee of a public utility under the jurisdiction of the city who shall refuse to permit the inspection of the books, papers, accounts, documents, or records, or the plant, equipment or other property of such public utility, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not less than one hundred dollars ($100) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Any circuit court of this State, or any court of concurrent jurisdiction, or any judge thereof, either in term time or vacation, upon application of any city council, or of any authorized officer of the city, may, in his discretion, compel the attendance of witnesses, the production of books, papers, accounts and documents, and the giving of testimony before such city council, or officer of the city, by an attachment for contempt, or otherwise, in the same manner as the production of evidence may be compelled before said court.

Sec. 95. JOINT JURISDICTION.] Whenever any complaint or case arising under this Act shall relate to rates or other charges or services which are in part under the jurisdiction of the State Public Utilities Commission, and in part under the jurisdiction of one or more cities, a joint inquiry, investigation or hearing shall be undertaken, by one or more authorized agents of the State Public Utilities Commission and the city or cities concerned. A report of such joint inquiry, investigation or hearing shall be made to the State Public Utilities Commission and to the city or cities concerned; and in such cases an order, decision, rule or regulation may be issued jointly by the State Public Utilities Commission and the city or cities concerned. In any such case, the proceedings may be instituted by or before the State Public Utilities Commission or any city concerned, and the entry and service of preliminary orders may be made by such commission or city.

Any city or village, by ordinance or resolution of the city council or board of trustees, may apply to the State Public Utilities Commission and to the city council of any adjoining city for a joint inquiry, investigation or hearing relating to any existing or proposed through or joint service or to any product or commodity of any public utility or public utilities operating in such municipalities, or as to the rates or other charges for such service, product or commodity; and the State Public Utilities Commission and any such cities are authorized to provide for such joint inquiry, investigation or hearing, and to enter a joint order, decision, rule or regulation, in the same manner and form as in cases of joint jurisdiction hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 96. CITY ORDINANCES PRIMA FACIE REASONABLE—COURT PROCEEDINGS.] Any ordinance of city council passed after an investigation or hearing by the council or by an authorized agent of the city, establishing rates or other charges or regulations as to additions or extensions, or as to the quantity, quality or safety of service, product or commodity within the limits of the city for any public utility shall be prima facie reasonable; and no rates or other charges or regulations so established shall be restrained except by the circuit court or other court of concurrent jurisdiction of the county in which the city, or the greater part thereof, is located, after notice to the city and a hearing.

Proceedings to contest the lawfulness or reasonableness of such rates or other charges or regulations may be instituted in the circuit court or other court of concurrent jurisdiction of the county in which the city, or the greater part thereof, is located, on application made not more than thirty days after the passage of such ordinance. Appeals from the order or judgment of the circuit court or other court in such cases may be made directly to the Supreme Court by either party to the action within sixty days after service of a copy of the order or judgment of said court. Such proceedings in any court shall have priority in hearing and determination over all other civil proceedings pending before such court, except proceedings brought under sections 68 and 69 of this Act, and election contests.

Sec. 97. PENALTIES.] Any public utility under the jurisdiction of a city or any corporation which shall violate or fail to comply with any provisions of this article or with any ordinance, resolution, order or requirement of a city council, or of an authorized agent of the city, made or issued under authority of this Act, in a case in which a penalty is not otherwise provided for in this Act, shall, upon conviction, be subject to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars ($500), nor more than two thousand dollars ($2,000) for each and every offense.

Any person who, either individually or acting as an officer, agent or employee of a public utility, or of a corporation other than a public utility, violates or fails to comply with any provision of this article or with any ordinance, resolution, order or requirement of a city council, or of an authorized agent of the city, made or issued under authority of this Act, in a case in which a penalty is not otherwise provided for in this Act, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), or by imprisonment in a county jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Every violation of any such provision, ordinance, resolution, order or requirement, or any part or portion thereof, by any corporation or person, is a separate and distinct offense, and in case of a continuing violation each day's continuance thereof shall be and be deemed to be a separate and distinct offense.

All penalties under this article shall be cumulative of each other, and suit for the recovery of one penalty shall not be a bar to or affect the recovery of any other penalty or be a bar to any criminal prosecution against any public utility, or any officer, director, agent or employee thereof, or any other corporation or person.

Sec. 98.. ACTIONS TO RECOVER PENALTIES.] All actions to recover fines and penalties under this article shall be brought in the name of the city under whose jurisdiction the cause of action arose, and the amount recovered shall be paid into the city treasury to the credit of the general fund.

Sec. 99. APPLICATION BY CITY TO PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION.] Any city may by order or resolution of the city council apply to the State Public Utilities Commission for any information or data necessary or useful in the exercise of its powers over public utilities within the city, for the assistance of experts and other agents of the commission in the investigation of a public utility by the city, or for an investigation by the commission as to the rates or other charges or the quality, adequacy or safety of service or product furnished by any public utility within said city. Upon such application, it shall be the duty of the commission to furnish such information or data, or the assistance of experts and other agents, or to conduct the investigation, as the case may be, within a reasonable time, not to exceed six months after receipt of such application; and for the purpose of securing such information or data or conducting such investigation, the commission shall be vested with all the powers and such public utility shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities as in the case of public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the commission.

Sec. 100. REVIEW BY COMMISSION ON AGREEMENT.] Any public utility being dissatisfied with any ordinance, resolution or order of a city council or any officer or agent thereof, may, by agreement with the city, in lieu of proceedings in the courts, apply for a final and conclusive review of the action of the city before the State Public Utilities Commission. Such application shall be made within the time for commencing proceedings in the courts, shall set forth the action of the city and the grounds on which it is contested, and shall be accompanied by a certified copy of the agreement on the part of the city to the review by the said commission. Upon such application it shall be the duty of the said commission to review the action of the city; and for the purpose of such review the commission shall be vested with all the powers and such public utility shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities as in the case of public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the commission. On such review the commission shall make such determination as seems to it just and reasonable in view of all the facts in the case; and the decision and order of the commission in such cases shall be final and conclusive and not subject to review in any court whatever.

Sec. 101. GENERAL POWERS AND DUTIES—SAVING CLAUSE.] To the extent and in so far as may be necessary and appropriate to enable the city fully and completely to exercise the powers and perform the duties imposed by this article, every city shall have all the authority and jurisdiction provided for the State Public Utilities Commission, and all public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of cities shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities imposed by this Act.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to limit or restrict the powers of cities to pass ordinances for the protection of the public health, safety, comfort and general welfare, or governing the regulation, control or occupation of streets, highways and public property within the city.

Sec. 102. REFERENDUM IN CITIES OF LESS THAN 20,000.] No city of less than 20,000 population by the last preceding United States census shall proceed to exercise the additional powers conferred on cities by this article unless and until an ordinance providing for the adoption of this article shall have been passed by the city council and submitted to a vote of the electors of such city at a general, municipal or special election, and have been approved by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon. Until such an ordinance has been adopted and approved by the electors of such city, the State Public Utilities Commission shall be vested with all the powers and jurisdiction conferred by this Act as to all public utilities within such city, and all public utilities within such city shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities as in the case of other public utilities under the jurisdiction of said State commission.

Sec. 103. SURRENDER AND RESUMPTION OF MUNICIPAL POWERS.] Any city may, by ordinance, adopted in accordance with the provisions of this article, surrender any of the powers herein conferred upon it over the service or products, or over rates or other charges of any public utility or utilities within the limits of said city. On such surrender of any of its powers by any city, such city shall cease to exercise any such power over said public utility service or product, or rates or other charges, until and unless such power has been resumed by said city as provided by this article; and the State Public Utilities Commission shall be vested with all the jurisdiction, powers and duties as to such public utility service, product, rates or other charges, and such public utility shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities as in the case of other public utilities under the jurisdiction of said State commission.

Such ordinance shall be and remain in force, and the jurisdiction, powers and duties of the commission and the duties, obligations and liabilities of such public utility or utilities shall continue for a period of not less than three years, and thereafter until such time as an ordinance shall be adopted by said city, in accordance with the provisions of this article, resuming its powers over such public utility or utilities. On the adoption of such resumption ordinance, the jurisdiction, powers and duties of the commission over such public utility service, product, or rates and other charges, and the duties, obligations and liabilities of such public utility or utilities resulting therefrom shall cease; and the city shall exercise the jurisdiction, powers and duties in regard to such utility or utilities, as if no ordinance to surrender its powers had been passed.

Sec. 104. INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.] Whenever any ordinance for the surrender or resumption of municipal powers over the service or products or over rates or other charges of public utilities has been passed by the city council, its operation shall be suspended for a period of thirty days; and if during said thirty days a petition signed by the electors of the city equal in number to at least ten per centum of the entire vote cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding general municipal election at which a mayor was elected, protesting against the passage of said ordinance, be filed with the city clerk, then such ordinance shall be submitted at a general or special election within ninety days after the filing of said petition, and shall not go into effect or become operative unless approved by a majority of the qualified electors of such city voting thereon. If no such petition is filed within thirty days, such ordinance shall be deemed adopted and in full force and effect.

A proposed ordinance for the surrender or resumption of municipal powers over the service or products or over rates and other charges of public utilities, under the provisions of this article, may be submitted to the city council by petition filed with the city clerk and signed by the electors of the city equal in number to at least ten per centum of the entire vote cast for mayor at the last general municipal election at which a mayor was elected. If such proposed ordinance is not passed by the city council within forty days after the filing of the petition therefor, the council shall submit said ordinance at a general or special election held within ninety days after the filing of such petition.

Sec. 105. PETITIONS.] (a) Petitions of protest against such ordinances passed by the city council shall be substantially in the following form:

To the Clerk of the City of.....:

We, the undersigned qualified electors of the city of....., protest against the passage of the ordinance to surrender (or resume) the powers of the city over [here state the powers sought to be surrendered (or resumed) by ordinance] within said city.

Name	House Number (if any)	Street	Date of signing
.....

(b) Petitions proposing for passage or submission an ordinance to surrender or resume the powers of the city over public utilities shall be substantially in the following form:

To the Clerk of the city of.....

We, the undersigned qualified electors of the city of....., propose the following ordinance, to surrender (or resume) the powers of the city over [here state the powers sought to be surrendered (or resumed), followed by a draft in full of the proposed ordinance.]

Name	House Number (if any)	Street	Date of signing

(c) Such petition shall consist of sheets having such form printed or written at the top thereof and shall be signed by qualified electors of such city in their own proper person only, and opposite the signatures of each petitioner shall be written by such person his residence address (stating the street and number if there be such) and the date of signing the same. No signature shall be valid or be counted in considering such petition unless these requirements are complied with.

At the bottom of each sheet shall be added a statement, signed by a resident of the city, in which the signers thereof reside, with his residence address as aforesaid, stating that the signatures on the sheet were signed in his presence, on the dates set opposite the respective names, and that the same are genuine and to the best of his knowledge and belief the persons so signing were at the time of signing said sheet qualified electors of such city, and that their respective residences are correctly stated as set forth on such sheet; and in cities in which the voters are or may be required to be registered, that they were at the time of signing such petition duly registered voters.

Such statement shall be sworn to before an officer residing in the county in which such city is located, who is qualified to administer oaths therein. Such petition, so verified, or a copy thereof duly certified by the proper persons, shall be prima facie evidence that the signatures, statement of residence, and dates upon such are genuine and true.

(d) Such sheets shall be fastened together in one document, filed as a whole, and when filed shall not be withdrawn or added to or altered in any manner by any person. No signature shall be revoked except by a revocation filed in writing with the clerk with whom the petition is required to be filed and before the filing of such petition. Upon request of any person, the clerk shall furnish a certified copy of such petition and names thereon, upon the payment by such persons to the clerk of a fee of one dollar for each 100 names thereon.

(e) Whoever, in making the sworn statement above prescribed, shall knowingly, wilfully and corruptly swear falsely shall be deemed guilty of perjury and on conviction thereof shall be punished accordingly. Whoever forges the signature of any person upon any petition or statement, or residence address, street or number or date of signing, shall be deemed guilty of forgery and on conviction thereof punished accordingly.

(f) All objections to such petition shall be filed with the city clerk with whom such petition is filed, within five days after the filing of the same. Within ten days after the filing of such petition, the said clerk shall examine the petition and ascertain whether it is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, and shall certify as to the sufficiency or insufficiency of the petition.

Any person dissatisfied with the determination of the city clerk as to the sufficiency or insufficiency of such petition may, within five days thereafter, apply to the county court or the circuit court of the county in which such city or the greater part thereof is situated, or to any judge of such courts in vacation, for a summary proceeding to review the determination of the city clerk.

Authority and jurisdiction are hereby conferred on such court or judge to conduct such summary proceeding, to be held not less than five nor more than ten days after application is made. The court or judge shall ascertain and declare by a decree as in chancery to be entered of record in the proper court, the sufficiency or insufficiency of such petition; and the decree of such court or judge shall become immediately effective, and no repeal or writ of error shall in any manner stay or prevent the immediate operation of such decree. The clerk of the court shall, immediately upon such decree being entered, transmit to the city clerk with whom the petition was originally filed a certified copy of the decree and order of the court or judge.

Sec. 106. ELECTIONS.] (a) If the petition is held to be sufficient, the city council shall forthwith order and fix the date for the election at which such ordinance shall be submitted, unless in case of a petition proposing an ordinance to surrender or resume any power of the city over public utilities, the council shall pass the proposed ordinance within forty days from the date such petition was filed with the city clerk.

Such ordinance shall be submitted at the next election held in such city, if one be held within ninety days after such petition has been filed; and if no election is held within said ninety days, the council shall order a special election within said ninety days, at which such ordinance shall be submitted: Provided, however, there shall not be more than one special election in any period of six months for such purposes alone.

Notices of such election shall be the same, and such election shall be conducted, returned and the result thereof declared, in all respects as a general municipal election.

(b) At such election, the proposition shall be submitted on a distinct and separate ballot, which shall contain these words: "Shall the ordinance (stating the nature of the proposed ordinance) be adopted?"; and shall otherwise comply with section 16 and the amendments thereto, of an Act entitled, "An Act to provide for the printing and distribution of ballots at public expense, and for the nomination of candidates for public office, to regulate the manner of holding elections, and to enforce the secrecy of the ballot," approved June 22, 1891, in force July 1, 1891.

Any number of proposed ordinances may be voted upon at the same election, in accordance with the provisions of this section; and two or more proposed ordinances may be submitted separately on the same ballot.

(c) If a majority of the qualified electors voting on any such ordinance shall vote in favor thereof, said ordinance shall be deemed adopted and shall be in full force and effect.

HOUSE MESSAGES.

A message from the House, by Mr. Hill, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has refused to recede from their amendments to a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 274.

A bill for "An Act to establish a Joint Legislative Commission, and to define the powers and duties thereof."

I am further directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives requests a Committee of Conference, to consist of five members from each House, to consider the differences of the two Houses in regard to the amendments to the bill.

The Speaker of the House has appointed as such committee on the part of the House: Messrs. Karch, Clyne, Igoe, Hutchinson and Hull.

Action taken by the House, June 18, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

On motion of Mr. Hay, the foregoing message from the House of Representatives, was taken up for consideration, and on his motion the Senate acceded to the request for a Committee of Conference to consist of five members from each House to consider the differences of the two Houses in regard to the amendments to the bill.

The President of the Senate announced that the Executive Committee had appointed as members of the Senate on the Conference Committee above provided for: Messrs. Ettelson, Barr, Cleary, Gorman and Hay.

A message from the House, by Mr. Hill, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the adoption of their amendments to a bill of the following title, to wit:

HOUSE BILL No. 416.

A bill for "An Act in relation to the municipal court of the city of Chicago."

Which amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate by striking from the title to said bill the words "the city of" where they appear immediately before the word "Chicago" in said title, and by striking out the same words "the city of" in both places where they appear in section 89 on page 84 of said bill as printed, between lines 5 and 6 of said bill as printed, so that said matter between lines 5 and 6 shall read as follows:

For consenting to the Act entitled, "An Act in relation to the municipal court of Chicago."
Against consenting to the Act entitled, "An Act in relation to the municipal court of Chicago."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate by striking from section 36 of the first line thereof of the bill as printed, and the words "in this section" in the second line thereof, and inserting in lieu thereof, the following, to wit:

"If the plaintiff, his agent or attorney shall file in any attachment, replevin, distress for rent or forcible detainer suit an affidavit stating" and by inserting after the word "him" in line 4 of said section 36 of the bill as printed, the following, to wit: "and also stating the place of residence of the defendant, if known, and if not known, that upon diligent inquiry the affiant has not been able to ascertain the same."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate by inserting after section 48 on page 35 of said bill as printed, a section to be known as section 48a, as follows:

Sec. 48a. Whenever any writ of execution or attachment issued out of any court of record or any distress warrant shall be levied upon personal property within the city of Chicago, proceedings for the trial of the right of property therein may be instituted by the officer having such writ of execution or attachment in his possession, by the plaintiff in any such writ of execution, attachment or distress warrant, or by any person having any interest in said property, other than the defendant in such writ, or by such defendant when he claims that the property is exempt from execution, attachment or distress for rent, by virtue of the exemption laws of this State. The plaintiff in any such writ and the officer having the same in his possession, a claimant of ownership and lien holder or other person claiming under the same title, may join as plaintiffs in such proceedings, if they so desire. Said proceedings shall be instituted by the filing in the municipal court of a præcipe and statement of claim describing the property claimed and setting forth the names of all parties having any interest in or claim to said property, including the plaintiff in said writ and the officer having the same in his possession, all of whom shall be parties defendant to such cause if they be not joined as plaintiffs, and if there be persons interested in said property whose names are unknown, they shall be made parties defendant to said suit by the description of unknown owners of said property. If such proceedings be instituted by the plaintiff in said writ or the officer having the same in his possession, said statement of claim shall further state that the plaintiff has reasonable doubt as to the ownership of the property levied upon, or as to such officer's or other person's right to seize such property by virtue of said writ. Said statement of claim shall also state the places of residence of all defendants, if known, and if not known, that upon diligent inquiry the person that makes affidavit to said statement of claim has not been able to ascertain the same. Said statement of claim shall be verified by the affidavit of plaintiff, his agent or attorney. Upon the filing of such præcipe and statement of claim the clerk of said court shall issue a summons for service upon such defendants whose places of residence are stated in said statement of claim to be in the city of Chicago, which summons shall describe the property claimed and shall be made returnable within the same time and served upon the defendants in the same manner as in other cases, or if, in the opinion of the court, the emergency of the case requires it, and the interests of the parties will not be prejudiced, the court may order the parties to appear before the court for trial within such shorter time and upon such reasonable personal notice as to the court shall appear in accordance with justice. Unknown owners, defendants beyond the limits of the city of Chicago, and defendants whose places of residence cannot be ascertained, shall be given such notice of said proceedings as shall be ordered by the court. No pleadings shall be required on the part of the defendant. The proceedings in such case shall be conducted as emergency proceedings and shall be the same, as near as may be, as in cases of replevin, excepting that no bond shall be required of the plaintiff, nor shall there be any delivery of property to him in any case until after final judgment; but if said property be in the hands of the plaintiff as officer, by virtue of a levy thereon, the same shall be retained by him until final judgment. But the court may order said property to be sold by virtue of said writ if said property be perishable or the retaining of the same until final judgment would be unduly expensive to any of the parties to the cause, and in such case the proceeds of such sale shall abide the result of the court's judgment. Upon the trial the rights of all the parties shall be determined and judgment shall be rendered accordingly, awarding the possession of the property according to the right. The court may compel the delivery of said property pursuant to such judgment by proceedings in contempt of court against any party before the court refusing to comply with the judgment thereof, or execution may be awarded for said property. The judgment in such case shall be a complete indemnity to such officer in selling or restoring such property. In case said cause be removed to a court of review the officer having such writ shall retain the property, unless the party claiming the same shall give bond with sufficient surety, to be approved by a judge of the municipal court, payable to the People of the State of Illinois, for the use of any party interested, for the delivery of such property, pursuant to the judgment of the court that shall finally pass upon said matter. The costs of said proceedings shall be taxed by the court according to the equities of the case.

AMENDMENT No. 4.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate by striking out all of section 52a (described as section 32a on page 39 of the bill as printed) and inserting in lieu thereof a section to be known as section 52a as follows:

Sec. 52a. Whenever any person having an established residence or place of business within the city of Chicago shall be arrested in the city of Chicago for a violation within said city of any law in this State, or any ordinance of the city of Chicago, or of any board of public park commissioners whose territory is situated in whole or in part within said city, and the only offense charged or to be brought against said person shall be one growing out of the improper use of any motor or other vehicle, or animal attached to any vehicle, on any of the streets, boulevards or alleys within said city, if the person so arrested shall thereupon exhibit for inspection to the officer making such arrest his certificate of registration, or license to operate such vehicle, or in case he has no such certificate of registration, or chauffeur's or other license, he shall give his name and address and the name and address of the owner of such vehicle or animal, if the person so arrested is not the owner, the officer shall thereupon inspect the number plates or vehicle tax plates, or other means of identification submitted by the owner or driver of such vehicle and shall also take the name and address of the owner and driver of such vehicle, making proper note thereof, as well as of the number, if any, of the vehicle, and such officer shall thereupon give to the person so arrested (provided such person has an established residence or place of business within said city of Chicago), a written notice to be signed by such officer notifying said person arrested that a complaint or information for said offense will be filed against him in the municipal court of Chicago, and that said officer will have said complaint or information set for hearing before a certain branch of said court in the district where said arrest is made and where cases of like character are heard, naming the branch court and the hour and day of such hearing (which shall be at the hour of opening of court on the next succeeding day after said arrest), and said officer shall, after the giving of said notice, release said person from custody and shall file a complaint or information in said court for said offense. Said court shall in such case take jurisdiction of said cause without the issuing of any warrant or capias against the defendant in such complaint or information. No warrant or capias shall issue against said defendant unless said defendant shall fail or refuse to appear in court at the time set for hearing. And in case said defendant shall fail or refuse to so appear, warrant, capias or summons shall issue against said defendant according to law. The officer making such complaint shall state under oath, in said complaint or information, the facts as to the giving of said notice, stating the time and place when said defendant was notified to appear as aforesaid: Provided, this section shall not apply to any case of an arrest growing out of the driving of any such motor or other vehicle or animal attached thereto whereby any person is killed or injured.

AMENDMENT No. 5.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate on page 40 of the bill as printed by striking from line 7 on said page the number "53" and inserting in lieu thereof the number "51."

AMENDMENT No. 6.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate on page 46 of the bill as printed by striking from line 19 on said page the word "entry" and substitute in lieu thereof the word "rendition."

AMENDMENT No. 7.

Amend House Bill No. 416 in Senate by inserting after the words "Municipal Court" in line 3 of section 81 of the bill as printed, the following:

"The expense of dieting prisoners in the custody of the bailiff shall be paid out of the city treasury of the city of Chicago, upon the certificate of the bailiff. The bailiff shall convey all persons convicted by the municipal court to the places of confinement specified in the judgments of the court, and for so doing shall receive such fees from the State as compensation therefor as is now fixed and designated for sheriffs in counties of the third class, which compensation, less the actual expense of conveying said convicts, shall be turned over by the bailiff to the city of Chicago."

Concurred in by the House June 18, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

A message from the House, by Mr. Hill, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the adoption of their amendments to a bill of the following title, to wit:

HOUSE BILL No. 388.

A bill for "An Act to provide for and regulate the publication and distribution of the decisions of the appellate courts of this State, to provide for a reporter thereof, and to fix his compensation."

Which amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend House Bill No. 388 in Senate by striking out all that part of the title following the word "State" and by inserting in lieu thereof, the following: "and to make them official."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend House Bill No. 388 in Senate by striking out in section 1 in lines 3 and 4, the words "Appellate Court Reports of Illinois" and by inserting in lieu thereof, the following: "the Illinois Appellate Court Reports."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Amend House Bill No. 388 in Senate by striking out all after section 1 and inserting in lieu thereof, the following:

Sec. 2. "The series of reports herein provided for shall be the official reports of said courts, and may be published by any person, partnership, company or corporation which shall have and maintain an office and place of business in the State of Illinois, and which shall comply with the provisions of this Act, and any person, partnership, company or corporation so complying with the provisions of this Act and publishing the reports under the terms thereof shall be known as an official publisher. Any person, partnership, company or corporation desiring to receive the benefits of this Act shall file with the Secretary of State a good and sufficient bond to be approved by him in the sum of not less than fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) as liquidated damages payable to the people of the State of Illinois, conditioned for the faithful performance of the provisions of this Act in the publication of such reports under the conditions and under the terms hereof, and if any person, partnership, company or corporation receiving any of the benefits of this Act shall fail or refuse to give bond as required or when given to keep the same in full force and effect, or shall fail or refuse to comply with the provisions of this Act in other respects, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State upon the request of any appellate court of this State to notify the Attorney General, who shall at once bring suit on the bond of said publisher against him and his sureties and prosecute the same to judgment and final execution."

Sec. 3. The clerks of the appellate courts shall promptly furnish to any person, company or corporation desiring the same, within ten days from the date of the expiration of the time for a rehearing, the opinion of the judges of such appellate courts at a price not to exceed twenty-five cents per page: Provided, that, however, the clerks of such courts shall furnish, within ten days after the period for such rehearing has expired, to any official publisher as herein defined, the opinions of the judges of the appellate courts, without cost, mailing the same within such period of ten days to the office or place of business designated by such publisher in a written request, filed with the appellate court clerk; and it shall be the duty of any such official publisher so furnished said opinions without cost to receive all said opinions unpublished at the time this Act goes into effect and which may be decided thereafter so long as said opinions are received under the terms of this Act and to publish the same within a period of not more than ninety days after the receipt of corrected proof from judges and after a sufficient number of opinions to constitute a volume shall have been delivered to such publisher.

Sec. 4. The clerk of the appellate courts shall also furnish to any official publisher all abstracts, briefs and other papers filed in their respective offices and which are or may be necessary for the purpose of preparing the reports within the same time and upon the same terms as herein provided for the opinions, which shall be returned to such clerk by the publisher receiving same upon the publication of the volume containing the opinion in such matter.

Sec. 5. Every final decision of each appellate court shall be reduced to writing by the court, and it shall be the duty of the court to designate which of such written decisions shall be published in full and which published by including an adequate abstract of such written decisions, but if any appellate court of this State shall fail to so designate within ten days from the date of expiration of the time for rehearing, then such decisions shall be published only in condensed form or by abstract: Provided, that should any appellate court fail to so designate then any such decisions may be published in full by any official publisher, if the total number of volumes of appellate court reports published or to be published in any calendar year shall not exceed six volumes.

Sec. 6. Any official publisher shall carefully prepare and cause to be printed in connection with each decision so ordered to be published a full syllabus of the points decided by said decisions and shall also prepare and cause to be printed in each volume a full alphabetical index of the cases therein reported, preliminary announcement of similar character and extent to those now included in the reports known as Illinois appellate court reports and a full and complete topical index of all points of law covered by decisions therein reported.

Sec. 7. Each volume of reports to be hereafter published shall contain not less than seven hundred pages and shall be of the same general character as the volumes of reports heretofore known as the Illinois Appellate Court Reports, the paper upon which the reports to be printed shall be clear white paper, supersized and calendared, not less than fifty pounds to the ream, size 24x38 inches and binding shall be of standard law sheep or buckram without blemish or patches and the boards used in binding shall be good binders boards, and shall be similar in size and appearance to volumes of this series heretofore published.

Sec. 8. It shall be the duty of any publisher receiving the benefits of this Act to publish continuously under the terms thereof volumes of said reports in accordance with the terms of this Act and to make stereotype or electrotype plate of each and every volume of said Illinois Appellate Court Reports, and if at any time for a period of one year any publisher shall fail so to do the copyright and stereotype or electrotype plates made for volumes published under the provisions of this Act shall be and become the property of the State of Illinois upon payment to the said publisher of the cost thereof to be determined by any appellate court of this State and, upon the determination thereof it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to certify said account to the Auditor of Public Accounts, whereupon the same shall become payable out of the State treasury and it shall be the duty of said publisher to assign said copyright and deliver the plates of said volumes to the Secretary of State for the use of the State of Illinois. Said publisher shall thereupon cease to have any interest in or control over said copyright or plates. The Secretary of State shall thereupon cause such number of copies to be bound and printed at the expense of the State, as may, from time to time, be needed to supply the demand and shall sell the same at a price not to exceed one dollar and fifty cents per volume, accounting to the State for the proceeds. Such books, as printed and bound by the Secretary of State, shall be of the same quality as those heretofore published under the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 9. Any publisher receiving the benefits of this Act shall sell to residents of this State the current volumes of said report published under the provisions of this Act, the first volume of which shall contain the decisions filed subsequent to July 1, 1913, at a price not to exceed one dollar and fifty cents per volume, not including transportation charges. Any publisher so receiving the benefits of this Act shall sell to residents of this State any such volumes published under the provisions of this Act at a price of one dollar and fifty cents per volume at any time thereafter: Provided, all the volumes so published under the provisions of this Act up to and including the then current volume are purchased. Any such publisher shall also sell to residents of this State single back volumes or broken sets commencing with the first volume published under the provisions of this Act, at a price not to exceed two dollars per volume, not including transportation charges.

Sec. 10. Any publisher taking advantage of this Act, who shall be a publisher of or who shall have published any volumes of the Illinois appellate court reports, or the decisions of the appellate courts other than the volumes published under the terms and conditions of this Act, in addition to furnishing the current volumes at the price and under the terms herein provided, shall furnish such other volumes to the residents of this State in complete sets at a price not to exceed two dollars per volume, or for single back volumes or broken sets not to exceed two dollars and fifty cents per volume, not including transportation charges.

Sec. 11. Upon publication of each volume of said reports, the Secretary of State shall secure from any official publisher for free distribution by him as follows, viz: five copies to the Library of Congress, one copy to the President of the United States, one copy to each state and territorial library, one copy to each judge of the Supreme Court of this State, one copy to each judge of the circuit courts of this State, one copy to the judge of the superior court of Cook County, one copy to each judge of the county courts of this State, one copy to each judge of the city courts of this State, one copy to each municipal court judge in the city of Chicago, one copy to each State officer required to reside at the seat of government, five copies to be deposited in the library of the Supreme Court and one copy shall be deposited in the State Library. The Secretary of State shall also be authorized to purchase as aforesaid single volumes to replace lost or destroyed volumes in the State or Supreme Court Library. For the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions the Secretary of State is hereby authorized and required to purchase a sufficient number of copies of said official Illinois appellate court reports and of each and every volume from time to time as the same may be hereafter published at a price not to exceed one dollar and fifty cents per volume for the purposes provided as aforesaid. Said books shall be paid for when certified by the Secretary of State upon warrant of the Auditor of Public Accounts.

Concurred in by the House, June 18, 1913.

In any such city having a population of less than 200,000 any person whose name does not appear on the registry books who is, or shall, at or before the primary, become a primary elector of the precinct in which he desires to vote, shall be entitled to vote at such primary by filing, or causing to be filed, with the board of election commissioners, twenty days prior to a primary, an affidavit, or affirmation, specifying the facts, showing that on the date of such primary he will be a legally qualified primary elector in the precinct in which he desires to vote.

"Such affidavit, or affirmation, for registration, shall state the name of the applicant, the place and date of his nativity, the term of his residence at his then present address, in the precinct, county, State and United States, the fact of his naturalization, if the applicant is a naturalized citizen, specifying the court, if known, or, if not known, the city in which the court was held where such citizen was naturalized, and the residence, when last registered, if the applicant was previously registered. It shall be the duty of the board of election commissioners to prepare proper forms of such affidavit, or affirmation.

"Upon the filing of such affidavit, or affirmation, the Board of Election Commissioners shall place the name of such primary electors, in the original registration books for the proper precinct, specifying the precinct from which he is transferred, if previously registered in another precinct, and shall also make a minute opposite his name in the original registration books of the precinct from which he has removed, showing the precinct to which his name is transferred, or, as the case may be, shall add the name of such primary elector in the original registration books for the proper precinct and the reason of the registration thereof.

"At least five days prior to the date of the primary, the Board of Election Commissioners shall cause to be posted at each polling place in each precinct, in a book substantially in the form now used for "verification lists" under the general election laws of this State, the name and address of each primary elector who has been registered for the primary by having filed an affidavit, or affirmation, as above set forth.

"In any such city having a population of 200,000 or more, the said registration books shall be revised three weeks preceding such primary under the direction of such Board of Election Commissioners in the same manner as is now provided by law for immediate registration in cities having boards of election commissioners."

AMENDMENT No. 9.

Amend House Bill No. 834 in the Senate by striking out in line 21 of the printed bill all following the word "elections" and all of line 22 and adding in lieu thereof, the following: Provided, further, that whenever in any city, village, incorporated town or township coextensive with such city, village, or incorporated town, having a population of less than two hundred thousand, ten per cent of the legal voters voting at the last preceding election shall petition the judge of the county court of the county in which such city, village or incorporated town is located to submit to a vote of the electors of such city, village, incorporated town or township the proposition that all nominations of candidates for offices for such city, village, incorporated town or township shall be made by petition of the legal voters of such cities, villages, incorporated towns, or township, an order shall be entered of record in such court accordingly, submitting such proposition to a vote of the voters of such city, village, incorporated town, or township, at the next general or special election, and if a majority of the voters voting on said specific proposition consent thereto, then and in that event nominations of party candidates by petition of the voters shall become operative at all succeeding city, village, incorporated town or township elections therein held, as the case may be, and thereafter the laws of this State regulating nominations of independent city, village, incorporated town or township officers by petition shall, as nearly as may be, govern the forms and procedure of such nominations.

"A separate ballot to be used at any such election in voting shall be substantially in the following form:

"For adopting the plan of nomination by petition of candidates for city (village or incorporated town) offices.

"Against adopting the plan of nomination by petition of candidates for city (village, incorporated town) or township offices."

"The judge of the county court shall give at least sixty days' notice of such election by publishing such notice in one or more newspapers published within the county for at least five times, the first publication to be at least sixty days before the day of election, and the court shall enter an order directing the county clerk to prepare the necessary blanks as are required under the laws of the State of Illinois, regarding the conduct of elections generally: Provided, that in all cities having boards of election commissioners, such elections shall be subject to, and under the control and supervision of such board of election commissioners.

"If at any time after the adoption of any city, village incorporated town or township of the plan of nomination of candidates by petition for city, village, incorporated town or township offices, as herein provided, ten per cent of the legal voters of such city, village, incorporated town or township voting at the last preceding election shall petition the judge of the county court of the county in which such city, village, incorporated town or township is located, to submit to a vote of the electors of such city, village, incorporated town or township the proposition that all nominations of candidates for offices for such city, village, incorporated town or township shall be made under and pursuant to the primary election laws, in effect for the nomination of candidates in primary elections, and for discontinuing the plan of nominating by petition, an order shall be entered of record in such court accordingly, submitting such proposition to a vote of the voters of such city, village, incorporated town or township at the next general or special election, and if a majority of the voters voting on said specific proposition consent thereto, then and in that event nominations of party candidates pursuant to the primary election law shall become operative at all succeeding city, village, incorporated town or township elections therein held, as the case may be, and thereafter the laws of the State regulating nominations of candidates by primaries as defined by the laws of this State, shall apply to and govern the forms and procedure of such nominations.

"A separate ballot, to be used at any election in voting, shall be substantially in the following form:

"For discontinuing the plan of nomination of candidates for city (village, incorporated town or township offices) by petition.

"Against discontinuing the plan of nomination of candidates for city (village, incorporated town or township) by petition.

"The judges of the county court shall give at least sixty days' notice of such election by publishing such notice in one or more newspapers published within the county for at least five times, the first publication to be at least sixty days before the day of election, and the court shall enter an order directing the county clerk to prepare the necessary blanks for the use of the judges of election and such other blanks as are required under the laws of the State of Illinois, regarding the conduct of elections generally: Provided, that in all cities having boards of election commissioners, such elections shall be subject to and under the control and supervision of such board of election commissioners."

Mr. Chamberlin offered the following amendment to the bill, which was adopted:

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message was received, read, and, under the rules, was laid over for one day.

A message from the Governor, by William L. Sullivan, Secretary to the Governor:

Mr. President—I am directed by the Governor to lay before the Senate the following communication:

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SPRINGFIELD, June 19, 1913.

To the Honorable, the Senate:

I have the honor hereby to nominate and appoint the following:

D. J. Normoyle, Chicago, Cook County, member of the State Board of Arbitration vice Charles Piez, resigned.

W. O. Edwards, Danville, Public Administrator for Vermilion County vice H. Ernest Hutton, resigned.

And I respectfully ask your concurrence therein.

Yours respectfully,

E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

REPORTS FROM STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr. Tossey made the following report, which was read and ordered spread upon the Journal:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO VISIT PENAL AND REFORMATORY INSTITUTIONS.

June 19, 1913.

To Honorable Barratt O'Hara, President and Gentlemen of the Senate:

Your committee to visit Penal and Reformatory Institutions respectfully report as follows:

We have made as careful an examination as could be made in the short time allotted to us.

CHESTER.

Here we found the prison in good condition and the process of tearing down the hills and putting them in condition for farming purposes being carried on in an admirable manner. Although the new warden, Honorable W. V. Choisser had been in office less than a month, everything seemed to be working smoothly and the prisoners well satisfied with the change.

ST. CHARLES.

At St. Charles the School for Indigent Boys is being conducted in an exceptional manner under the present superintendent, Colonel C. B. Adams. The boys are well clothed, well housed and well fed and all seemed to be perfectly satisfied. The school teaches all branches up to the eighth grade and in addition to this they have a vocational system of training that in our judgment is not equalled by many schools of the State. When a boy is turned out of school here he is able to make his own living in the world because of his training in some trade or vocation.

GENEVA.

The committee had very little time at this place, but the committee is constrained to believe from what little we learned that their rules are a little harsh. However, we believe that the schools are conducted in an admirable manner and that their course in domestic science is especially worthy of commendation.

JOLIET.

Here are many different industries and all appear to be working satisfactorily. Although the new warden, Honorable Edmund M. Allen, has been installed less than a month he has made some new rules which give eminent satisfaction to the prisoners and we believe that they will prove beneficial to the institution. Warden Allen is very popular with the prisoners and we heard only words of praise concerning him.

PONTIAC.

At Pontiac the reformatory, under the management of Superintendent Honorable R. A. Russell, had made great progress within the past two years. The method of instruction in the various trades we think is entitled to special mention, as well as commendation. The moral training which the boys receive under the present management must be of unusual benefit to them. We were shown through this institution by Superintendent Russell who pointed out the need of new buildings and repairs. We would recommend that their requests be acceded to, especially in the construction of a new laundry.

Your committee desires to express its appreciation and to extend its thanks to the various superintendents, wardens and numerous other officials who were so thoughtful and courteous in lending their assistance to the work of the committee.

Respectfully yours,

(Signed) F. JEFF TOSSEY, Chairman;
F. C. CAMPBELL.Committee.

At 5:45 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Gray, the Senate took a recess until 9:00 o'clock p. m.

9:00 O'CLOCK P. M.

Senate reconvened.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

Mr. Canaday offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 73.

Resolved, That in consideration of special services rendered, that all employees of the Senate who were on duty on or before January 22, 1913, be allowed pay from and including January 8, 1913. And that Miller Carson, a janitor, be paid from and including March 1, 1913.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Canaday, the rules were suspended and the foregoing resolution was taken up for immediate consideration and on his motion was referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Mr. O'Connor offered the following resolution, which under the rules, was laid over for one day:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 53.

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That there shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Illinois for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the General Assembly, a proposition to amend the Constitution of the State of Illinois as follows:

Resolved, That section two (2) of Article fourteen (XIV) of the Constitution of the State of Illinois be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 2. Amendments to this Constitution may be proposed in either House of the General Assembly, and if the same shall be voted for by two-thirds of all the members elected to each of the two Houses, such proposed amendments, together with the yeas and nays of each House thereon, shall be entered in full on their respective journals; and said amendments shall be submitted to the electors of this State for adoption or rejection, at the next election of members of the General Assembly, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. The proposed amendments shall be published in full at least three months preceding the election, and if a majority of the electors voting at said election shall vote for the proposed amendments, they shall become a part of this Constitution. But the General Assembly shall have no power to propose amendments to more than three articles of this Constitution at the same session, nor to the same articles oftener than once in four years.

Mr. Brady offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 74.

WHEREAS, Ferroll McCullom and Benjamin H. Lucas, cloak-room attendants on the Democratic and Republican sides, respectively, of the Senate, have been in active service and attendance in and about their duties since the opening of the session, on, to wit: January 8, 1913; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the President of the Senate be empowered to place their names on the payroll at the usual per diem, to wit: $3.00 per day, their pay to begin at the beginning of the session on January 8, 1913.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Brady, the rules were suspended and the foregoing resolution was taken up for immediate consideration and on his motion was referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Mr. Brady offered the following resolution, which, under the rules, was laid on the table for one day:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 75.

Resolved, That the Secretary of State be and he is hereby authorized, subsequent to sine die adjournment, to remove the glass partitions on either side of the Senate Chamber to the end that proper ventilation of said Chamber may be provided, and substitute rail in place of such partitions, similar to those in the House of Representatives.

Mr. Dailey offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 76.

WHEREAS, Jacob Teinowitz, is page in Senate, and appointment has been fully confirmed; and,

WHEREAS, No compensation is fixed by law for such page, and he has been doing committee work, as well as acting as such page; therefore, be it

Resolved. That said page be allowed a compensation of $3.00 per diem, from January 8, 1913, to the present adjournment, less amount already paid him.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Dailey, the rules were suspended and the resolution was taken up for immediate consideration and on his motion was referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 607.

A bill for "An Act making an appropriation to the village of Naples, Ill., to widen, raise, strengthen, improve and repair the levees at said village of Naples."

Together with the following amendments in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate to wit:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend Senate Bill No. 607 by striking out the title of the bill and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"For an Act making an appropriation to the Rivers and Lakes Commission of Illinois, for the purpose of widening, raising, strengthening, improving, repairing, building and constructing levees in or around the village of Naples, Scott County in the State of Illinois."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 607 by striking out sections 1 and 2 and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly: That there is hereby appropriated to the Rivers and Lakes Commission of the State of Illinois the sum of three thousand dollars ($3,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary to widen, raise, strengthen, improve, repair, build or construct, as the case may be, the levees at said village of Naples, county of Scott, for the purpose of furnishing protection from floods and overflows of the Illinois River: Provided, that this appropriation is made on the express condition that the village of Naples shall appropriate a like amount and expend the same for the purposes herein named.

Sec. 2. The money hereby appropriated shall be expended by the said Rivers and Lakes Commission of Illinois, as near as may be in conformity with, and in furtherance of general plans and specifications, which have now or hereafter may be adopted for widening, raising, strengthening, improving, repairing, building or constructing the levees, as the case may be, at said village of Naples, named in section 1 of this Act, and for the respective sums.

Sec. 3. The Auditor of Public Accounts is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrant from time to time upon the State Treasurer for the moneys herein appropriated, upon proper vouchers certified by the Rivers and Lakes Commission of Illinois, and approved by the Governor of Illinois."

Passed the House, as amended, June 18, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

On motion of Mr. Hearn, the foregoing message was taken up for consideration, and the question being, "Shall the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of their amendments to the bill?" and the yeas and nays being called, it was decided in the affirmative by the following vote: Yeas, 40.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 54.

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That there shall be submitted to the electors of this State for adoption or rejection at the next election of the members of the General Assembly a proposition to amend Article XIV of the Constitution of this State by striking out sections 1 and 2 of said article and substituting therefor sections 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, reading as follows:

SECTION 1. Whenever a majority of the members of each House of the General Assembly shall, by a vote entered upon the journals thereof, concur that a convention is necessary to revise, alter or amend the Constitution the question shall be submitted to the electors at the next general election. If a majority voting on the proposition vote for a convention the General Assembly shall, at the next session thereafter provide for a convention to consist of double the number of members of the Senate to be elected in the same manner, at the same place and in the same districts. The General Assembly shall, in the act calling the convention, designate the day, hour and place of its meeting, fix the pay of its members and officers and provide for the payment of the same, together with the expenses necessarily incurred by the convention in the performance of its duties. Before proceeding the members shall take an oath to support the constitution of the United States and of the State of Illinois and to faithfully discharge their duties as members of the convention. The qualifications of members shall be the same as that of members of the Senate and vacancies occurring shall be filled in the manner provided for filling vacancies in the General Assembly. Said convention shall meet within three months after such election and prepare such revision, alteration of amendments of the Constitution as shall be deemed necessary, which shall be submitted to the electors for their ratification or rejection at an election appointed by the convention for that purpose, not less than three or more than six months after the adjournment thereof; and if approved by a majority of electors voting on the proposition such revision, alteration or amendments shall take effect.

Sec. 2. Amendments to this Constitution may be proposed in either House of the General Assembly and if the same shall be voted for by a majority of all members elected to each of the two Houses such proposed amendments, together with the yeas and nays of each House thereon, shall be entered in full on their respective Journals and said amendments shall be submitted in such manner as may be prescribed by law to the electors of the State for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the General Assembly, except when the Legislature by a two-thirds vote of each House, shall order a special election for that purpose. If at such special election an amendment be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition it shall become a part of this Constitution.

Sec. 3. Amendments to this Constitution may also be proposed by petition signed by not less than one hundred thousand electors of the State and filed with the Secretary of State not less than four months before the next election of members of the General Assembly. The signatures on each sheet of such petition shall be verified by the circulator of said sheet, and the genuineness and sufficiency of such signatures shall be conclusively evidenced by such verification, provided the sufficiency of the petition as to other matters may be passed upon as hereinafter provided. Each amendment proposed by petition must be by a separate petition, and all such petitions shall have printed across the top thereof, the following: "Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Illinois Proposed by Initiative Petition to be Submitted Directly to the Electors." No amendment to the Constitution may be initiated by petition unless a resolution for such amendment shall have been introduced either in the Senate or House of Representatives in open session by a member thereof during the session of the last preceding General Assembly. Said petition must contain the full text of the such resolution, but such text may, at the option of the petitioners, be that of the resolution either as originally introduced or as proposed to be changed by any amendment offered to such resolution in either the Senate or House of Representatives during the same session of the Legislature. All resolutions for constitutional amendments, and all amendments offered to such resolutions, shall, together with the name of the member offering the same, be entered at large upon the Journal of that branch of the General Assembly in which they originate. Upon the filing of such petition the Secretary of State shall submit the proposed amendment therein set forth in such manner as may be prescribed by law, to the electors at the next election of members of the General Assembly, and any such proposed amendment as shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition shall become a part of this Constitution.

The Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State shall constitute a board to pass upon the sufficiency of each petition. Said board shall pass upon each petition within forty-five days after said petition is filed and when approved by them its sufficiency shall not be questioned by any court. A finding of the board that a petition is not sufficient may be reviewed upon a petition for mandamus filed in the Supreme Court within thirty days after such finding. Should the board fail to act on any petition such petition shall be presumed to be sufficient and the Secretary of State shall proceed as though the board had found the petition or petitions sufficient.

Sec. 4. The Secretary of State shall cause to be printed a publicity pamphlet containing a full text of all proposed measures to be submitted to a vote of the electors under the provisions of sections 1, 2 and 3 of this article, together with arguments for and against each such measure by the proponents and opponents thereof, not exceeding five hundred words for each, and shall mail said pamphlet to each voter at least thirty days before the election, and the persons to prepare and present such arguments shall, until otherwise provided by law, be selected by the presiding officer of the Senate. In case more than one proposed amendment is to be submitted at one time the Secretary of State shall give to each such proposed amendment a consecutive number to be used uniformly in the description thereof in such pamphlet and on the ballot, and the proposed amendment, or amendments, must appear on a separate ballot from that used for the election of officials. The said publicity pamphlet shall also contain, in addition to the publication of the proposed measures and arguments as provided above, the full text of any measure, together with arguments for and against, as provided above, any other measure or measures, submitted to the people at the polls. The General Assembly shall make the necessary appropriation to defray the expenses incurred by this section, and further legislation may be passed to facilitate the operation of this provision.

Sec. 5. This Constitution shall not be amended or exchanged, or replaced by a new Constitution, in any manner other than in this article provided, and no article of this Constitution may be amended more than once in any four years.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Piercy, the rules were suspended and the resolution was taken up for immediate consideration, and on his motion was referred to the Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the adoption of their amendments to a bill of the following title, to wit:

HOUSE BILL No. 414.

A bill for "An Act to amend an Act entitled, 'An Act in relation to the acquisition, control, maintenance, improvements and protection of State parks and making an appropriation to carry into effect the provisions of this Act,'"

Which amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend House Bill No. 414 in Senate by inserting after the word "amend" in the first line of the title of the printed bill the words and figures "section 2 of," and by striking out all after the word "June" in the last line of the title of the printed bill and inserting in lieu thereof the figures and words "10, 1911, in force July 1, 1911."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend House Bill No. 414 in Senate by striking out all after the enacting clause and by inserting in lieu thereof the following: "That section 2 of 'An Act in relation to the acquisition, control, maintenance, improvements and protection of State parks, and making an appropriation to carry into effect the provisions of this Act,' approved June 10, 1911, in force July 1, 1911, be amended so that section 2 shall read as follows:

Sec. 2. The Illinois Park Commission shall have power:

1. To have the care, charge, control, supervision and management of all public parks heretofore acquired by the State under the provisions of this Act, or which may hereafter be acquired.

2. To make such rules and regulations for the use, care and administration of State parks as may be necessary to carry into effect the powers hereby expressly granted and enforce the same.

3. To lay out and ornament any State park and govern and manage the same.

4. To lay out, construct and maintain all proper roads, walks, bridle paths, bridges in any State park.

5. To permit the use of State parks by campers and pleasure parties under such restrictions, rules and regulations as said commission may deem necessary.

6. To employ such custodians, keepers, clerks, assistants, laborers and subordinates as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this Act.

7. To lease any lands or premises situated within the limits of any State park which, in the opinion of said commission, can be leased without detriment to such park.

8. To purchase, or acquire, for and in the name of the State of Illinois, title to such tracts of land which the General Assembly may from time to time authorize to be acquired as and for State parks, and in case the Illinois Park Commission cannot acquire title to any land necessary for such public parks at a reasonable price in the opinion of said commission, authority for the purchase of which appropriations for the payment of the same having been made by the General Assembly, then the said commission is hereby vested with power, in the name of the People of the State of Illinois, to obtain title to such land, or to any part or parcel thereof, by condemnation under the eminent domain laws of this State: Provided, that all negotiations and legal proceedings provided for by this Act shall be under the direct supervision of the Attorney General of this State.

9. To investigate and report to the Governor, on or before the first day of January next preceding the regular session of the General Assembly, regarding any proposed park, and in such report shall make recommendations respecting other regions in Illinois desirable for State park purposes, either on account of their historical interest or their natural beauty.

Concurred in by the House June 20, 1913.

REPORTS FROM STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr. Waage made the following report:

To the President and Members of the Senate of the Forty-eighth General Assembly:

Your committee appointed under Senate Resolution No. 44, to investigate the subject of unclaimed deposits of money, beg, respectively, to report as follows:

Your committee held various and sundry meetings in the city of Chicago, and by subpoena brought before it officials of all the leading banks of Chicago doing business under the laws of the State, and interrogated them fully as to the subject matter contained in the resolution.

The committee decided to limit the inquiry to funds and deposits, which has remained in the banks, and where there had been no addition made thereto by a deposit of money or a chose or choses in action, or lessened by a withdrawal of any portion thereof, for a period of seven years or more.

The bank officials responded readily to the demands of the committee and furnished partial statements of such balances.

Based upon the investigation made, it would appear that one bank alone has about $1,000,000.00 of funds where no transaction has taken place for a period of seven years, and that the total amount of such balances in all of the banks in the State under State jurisdiction would aggregate many million dollars.

The accounts designated as unclaimed balances and in which no transaction had taken place, dated back all the way from seven up to more than forty years.

It is only fair to state, however, that while the bank ledgers showed the accounts inactive, upon further inquiry, it appeared that in many instances the claimant or depositor was known to the bank officials and was an active customer of the bank in other departments than the one in which the aforementioned account was kept, and the committee is, therefore, unable by any process of reasoning to arrive at any definite conclusion as to what percentage of these funds are actually alive or dead.

The committee is of the opinion, however, that large sums of money are remaining in the bank depositories of the State of Illinois that are now and will, at all times, remain there unclaimed by the depositors or their heirs or legal representatives.

Legislation upon the subject of unclaimed deposit has been enacted in some of the states of the union and in the Dominion of Canada. In the Dominion of Canada a law is in force requiring banks to make a report to the Minister of Finance, of dividends, unclaimed balances and drafts of the bills of exchange remaining unpaid in the chartered banks in respect to which no transactions have taken place or upon which no interest has been paid for five years and upwards; whereupon a report is issued, in book form, by the Minister of Finance giving the names and last known addresses of the depositors, together with the amounts of the balances.

Your committee would further report that they gave some attention to the subject of Safety Deposit Companies and found that moneys and valuables were and are frequently left in the vaults of such depositories without being subsequently claimed.

Upon such investigation as the committee has been able to make relative to the subject matter, your committee would respectively recommend that the next General Assembly enact adequate legislation dealing with the subject of unclaimed funds and deposits remaining in banks and other depositories, and moneys or valuables remaining in Safety Deposit Companies, and in that connection, would recommend that where no transactions have taken place with reference to the deposit of moneys for a period of five or seven years, that the depositories be required to make reports, from time to time, to the Auditor of Public Accounts, giving the names and last known addresses of depositors together with the amounts remaining unclaimed, and that the Auditor thereupon issue reports, from time to time, containing the facts stated in such reports; and in addition thereto, where no claimant shall appear for such funds for a period of time, after the publication of such reports, said banks or depositories be required to pay the unclaimed deposits over to the State Treasurer to be held and disposed of in such manner as by legislation shall be directed.

The committee deem it fair to state that there was practically unanimity of opinion among the bank officials examined, that funds that were altogether unclaimed, shall, never at any time, become and remain the absolute property of the depository.

Respectfully submitted,

CONSIDERATION OF HOUSE MESSAGES.

The following message was taken up for consideration:

A message from the House by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 395.

A bill for "An Act to enable adjoining drainage districts to connect their ditches, drains, levees, or other works, and to provide for the apportionment of the cost of the construction, operation and maintenance of the work of a drainage district where lands in an adjoining district are benefited thereby, and to repeal an Act therein named."

Together with the following amendments in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 395 in the House, in the printed bill, by inserting after the period after the word "hearing" in line No. 9 of section 4, the following:

"Also, at least 7 days before the time fixed for said hearing, the said clerk of said court shall mail, postage prepaid, to each one of the property owners in said drainage districts, a notice of the time, place and general purpose of said hearing: Provided, that where the land owners are unknown or their address cannot upon diligent inquiry be found, then the service herein by posting and publication shall be sufficient service."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Amend Senate Bill No. 395, in the House, in the printed bill by inserting after the word "posted" in line 11 of section 4, the following: "And the said notice mailed, postage prepaid, to each of said property owners."

AMENDMENT No. 4.

Amend Senate Bill No. 395 in the printed bill, in the House, by adding in line 7 of section 5 after the word "maintainence," the following:

"Provided, nothing contained herein shall in any way be construed to prevent or interfere with the right of said drainage districts, or either of same, or any one or more of the interested land owners in either of said districts, from having the decision or judgment of said court reviewed, either upon appeal or writ of error precisely in the same way and under the same rules of law and practice as now appertain to other matters in law or chancery."

Passed the House, as amended, June 19, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

The pending question being, "Shall the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of the amendments to the bill?" (which amendments have been printed by the House and copies furnished the Senate), and the yeas and nays being called, the Senate concurred by the following vote: Yeas, 33.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

House message on Senate Bill No. 22, a bill for "An Act relating to hotels, inns and public lodging houses in cities, villages and incorporated towns in the State of Illinois, having a population of not more than one hundred thousand inhabitants, creating the office of State hotel inspector, and providing penalties for the violation thereof,"

Was taken up for consideration.

The pending question being, "Shall the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of the following amendments to the bill?" (which amendments have been printed by the House and copies furnished the Senate):

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend Senate Bill No. 22, by striking out in the title thereof, all after the word "Illinois," in the second line.

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 22, by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting in lieu thereof, the following: "Every building or structure kept, used or maintained as, or advertised as, or held out to the public to be an inn, hotel or public lodging house or place where sleeping accommodations are furnished for hire to transient guests, whether with or without meals in which ten (10) or more rooms are used for the accommodation of guests shall, for the purpose of this Act, be defined to be a hotel and whenever the word hotel shall occur in this Act it shall be construed to mean every such structure as is described in this section.

Sec. 2. All beds for the accommodation of guests in any hotel shall be provided with a sufficient supply of clean bedding and with clean sheets, each of which shall be at least eighty-one inches wide and ninety-nine inches long. All beds shall be provided with clean sheets as often as the same shall be assigned to different persons.

Sec. 3. Each and every hotel having a public washroom shall keep therein at all times a sufficient supply of individual clean towels in a place in sight of, and easy of access to guests. Also, at least two clean towels in each room, each day.

Sec. 4. Whenever any room in any hotel shall have been occupied by any person having a contagious or infectious disease, the said room shall be thoroughly fumigated and all bedding therein thoroughly disinfected before said room shall be occupied by any other person, but in any event, such room shall not be let to any person for at least forty-eight hours after such fumigation or disinfection.

Sec. 5. Every hotel shall be well drained, constructed and plumbed, according to sanitary rules to be established by the State Board of Health and shall be kept clean and in a sanitary condition and free from effluvia arising from any sewer, drain, privy or other source within the control of the owner, manager, agent or other person in charge; and shall be provided with water closets or privies properly screened for the separate use of males and females, which water closets or privies shall be disinfected as often as may be necessary to keep them, at all times, in a sanitary condition.

Sec. 6. Every owner, manager, agent or person in charge of a hotel, who shall fail to comply with any of the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00), nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00), or shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than ten days, nor more than three months, or both, and every day that such hotel is carried on in violation of this Act, shall constitute a separate offense.

Sec. 7. The State Board of Health shall cause to be printed and shall forward to each hotel, inn and public lodging house coming under the provisions of this Act, a sufficient number of copies of this Act, so as to enable the management of the said hotel, inn or public lodging house to post one notice in a conspicuous place in each room used for lodging purposes, and the said management shall cause the said notices so sent to be posted as provided for in this section.

Sec. 8. All Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

And the yeas and nays being called, it was decided by the following vote: Yeas, 38.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

Andrus,	Cornwell,	Hay,	Keller,	Olson,

On motion of Mr. Juul, the following message was taken up for consideration:

A message from the House by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 32.

A bill for "An Act to provide for the creation and management of forest preserve districts and repealing certain Acts therein named."

Together with the following amendments in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend section 1 of Senate Bill No. 32 in the House by striking out all after the word "assembly" in line 2 of section 1 in the printed bill and substituting therefor the following:

That whenever any area of contiguous territory lying wholly within one county contains one or more natural forests or parts thereof and one or more cities, towns or villages, such territory may be incorporated as a forest preserve district in the following manner, to wit:

Any five hundred legal voters residing within the limits of such proposed district may petition a circuit judge of the county in which such proposed district lies, to cause the question to be submitted to the legal voters of such proposed district whether or not it shall be organized as a forest preserve district under this Act, such petition shall be addressed to the circuit judge or judges of the county in which such proposed forest preserve district is situated and shall contain a definite description of the territory intended to be embraced in such district, and the name of such district. Upon the filing of such petition in the office of the clerk of the circuit court of the county in which such territory is situated, it shall be the duty of such circuit judge, to whom such petition is assigned, to fix a day and hour for the public consideration thereof, which shall not be less than fifteen days after the filing of such petition. Such circuit judge shall cause a notice of the time and place of such public consideration to be published three successive days in some newspaper having a general circulation in the territory proposed to be placed in such district. The date of the last publication of such notice shall not be less than five days prior to the time set for such public hearing. At the time and place fixed for such public hearing said circuit judge shall sit and hear any person owning property in such proposed district who desires to be heard, and if said circuit judge shall find that all of the provisions of this Act have been complied with, he shall cause to be entered upon the records of the circuit court of such county, an order fixing and defining the boundaries and the name of such proposed district in accordance with the prayer of the petition. In the event that any other petition or petitions for the organization of a forest preserve district or districts in the same county shall be filed under this Act before the time fixed for the public hearing of the first petition, said circuit judge shall postpone the public consideration of the first petition so that the hearing of all said petitions shall be set for the same day and hour. In any county where there are two or more judges sitting at the time of filing such first petitions the clerk of said circuit court shall cause all petitions filed subsequent to said first petition to be assigned to the judge to whom said first petition is assigned so that all such petitions may be heard by the same judge.

Should two or more petitions be filed under this Act and come on for hearing at the same time and it shall be found by said circuit judge that any of the territory embraced in any one of said petitions is included in or contiguous with the territory embraced in any other petition or petitions, said circuit judge may include all of the territory described in such petitions in one district and shall fix the name proposed in the petition first filed as the name for said district. After the entry of the order fixing and defining the boundaries and the name of such proposed district, it shall be the duty of said circuit judge to order to be submitted to the legal voters of such proposed district at any special or general election held therein, the question of the organization of such proposed district and he shall give notice thereof by causing ten notices of such election to be posted in public places within such proposed district, and one notice thereof to be published at least five days prior to the date of such submission in some newspaper having a general circulation in the proposed district. Said notices shall contain a definite description of the territory intended to be embraced in such district, and the name of such district.

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend section 2 of Senate Bill No. 32 in the House so as to read as follows:

Sec. 2. The ballots to be used at such election shall be substantially in the following form:

"Shall there be organized a forest preserve district in accordance with the order of the judge of the circuit court of.....county, under the date of the.....day of....., 191..., to be known as (insert here the name of the proposed district as entered in the order of the judge of the circuit court) and described as follows: Insert description of proposed district as entered in the order of the judge of the circuit court)."	Yes
	No

The returns of such election in each of the proposed districts shall be made to the clerk of the circuit court of such county and shall be canvassed by him and he shall cause a statement of the result of such election in each district to be entered upon the records of the circuit court of such county, and if a majority of the votes cast in any district upon such question is found to be in favor of the organization of such forest preserve district, such forest preserve district shall thenceforth be deemed an organized forest preserve district under this Act.

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Amend Senate Bill No. 32 in the House by adding after the word "please" in line 24 of section 3 of the printed bill the following:

In case the boundaries of any such district are co-extensive with the boundaries of any county, city, village, incorporated town or sanitary district, the corporate authorities of such county, city, village, incorporated town or sanitary district shall have and exercise the powers and privileges and perform the duties and functions of the commissioners provided for herein and in such case no commissioners shall be appointed for such district. Such corporate authorities shall act without any other pay than that already provided by law.

AMENDMENT No. 4.

Amend Senate Bill No. 32 in the House, section 3 of the printed bill, in line 7, after the word "within," by striking out the words "sixty days" and inserting the words "ninety days and not sooner than sixty days."

Passed the House, as amended, June 19, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

And the question being, "Shall the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of their amendments to the bill?" (which amendments have been printed by the House and copies thereof furnished the Senate), and the yeas and nays being called, it was decided in the affirmative by the following vote: Yeas, 35.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

Andrus,	Cleary,	Glackin,	Johnson,	O'Connor,

On motion of Mr. Maclean, the following message was taken up for consideration:

A message from the House by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 283.

A bill for "An Act to amend section 1 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to prevent the preparation, manufacture, packing, storing or distributing of food intended for sale, or sale of food, under insanitary, unhealthful or unclean conditions or surroundings, to create a sanitary inspection, to declare that such conditions shall constitute a nuisance and to provide for the enforcement thereof,' approved June 5, 1911, and in force July 1, 1911, and by adding thereto an additional section to be known as section 9a."

Together with the following amendments in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend Senate Bill No. 283, in the House, by striking out all of section 1, after the word "distributed" in line 20 of the printed bill and in lieu thereof, inserting the following: "Provided, however, that all restaurants and bakeries maintained in any railway depot, for the purpose of furnishing and providing meals and food for the traveling public, shall be subject only to all such rules and regulations regarding lighting, draining, plumbing and ventilation and sanitary health conditions, as may be prescribed by the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of the State of Illinois, and such commission is hereby authorized and empowered to prescribe all such necessary rules and regulations, and regulate such restaurants and bakeries."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend Senate Bill No. 283, by striking out "section 9a."
Passed the House, as amended June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

On motion of Mr. Clark, the following message was taken up for consideration:

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 575.

A bill for "An Act for county road system of building streets, roads and boulevards, in cities, towns and villages, in the State of Illinois."

Together with the following amendments in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

In the title, strike out the words "cities, towns and villages in the State of Illinois," and insert in lieu thereof the words "counties of 500,000 population or more."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

Upon a majority vote of the members of the county board of counties with a population of 500,000 or more, said county board may adopt the county road system. On adoption of the county road system, the said county board of such county shall appoint three county road commissioners, one for a term of two years, one for a term of three years and one for a term of four years.

Sec. 2. Any person appointed county road commissioner shall, within ten days after being notified in writing, by the clerk of such county, of his appointment, take and subscribe a constitutional oath of office and file the same with said clerk.

Sec. 3. Each and every county road commissioner shall be required to execute and give official bond in such amount as the county board may determine. The expense of securing such bond, if any, to be paid by the county.

Sec. 4. The terms of office of the commissioners appointed under this Act shall commence immediately upon the filing of such oath of office.

Sec. 5. No member of the county board shall be eligible to the office of county road commissioner, and such office shall not be held by the same person at the same time.

Sec. 6. In case a vacancy shall occur in the office of the county road commissioner, the county board may appoint a commissioner to fill such vacancy. Each commissioner shall hold his office until his successor is appointed and qualified.

The county board shall fix the compensation of such commissioners.

Sec. 7. A majority of the members of the board of county road commissioners shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but a less number may adjourn from time to time. The board may adopt such rules and regulations for calling and holding meetings and for the transaction of business as they may deem best. They shall annually appoint one of their number chairman to hold during the pleasure of the board. Such board shall be known as the "board of county road commissioners of the county of" and by that name, may sue and be sued. Process may be served on the chairman or clerk of the board. The clerk of the county board shall be clerk of the board of county road commissioners and shall keep records and accounts of the board and preserve its files in the manner directed by the board.

Sec. 8. No member of the board of county road commissioners shall directly or indirectly, either personally or as a member of a firm or stockholder in any corporation, be interested as contractor or employee, in any contract entered into or work carried on by or for such board or in property purchased or sold by or for such board: Provided, however, that this section shall not be construed to prevent purchase of land for a road from a member of the board.

Sec. 9. Said board of commissioners may employ such superintendents, engineers, servants and laborers and purchase such machinery, tools and appliances and material as shall be needed in their work.

Sec. 10. Such board of county road commissioners may lay out such new roads within the county as they may deem necessary. Such roads shall not be less than forty feet in width. No township or village road can be taken over by the county road commissioners without the consent of the authorities of such village or township.

Sec. 11. Said board may also change the width or the location or straighten the line of any road over which they take jurisdiction. If, in laying out, widening, changing, or straightening of any road, it shall become necessary to take private property, the said board shall cause a survey of such proposed road to be made, together with an accurate description of the land required therefor. Thereupon they shall endeavor to agree with each owner, resident of said county, for the purpose of a right of way over his land, included within such description. If they are able to agree with the owner thereof, they may purchase the same, and pay therefor out of the funds under their control, and such lands shall then be conveyed to the county for the use and purpose of a road.

Sec. 12. Whenever said board shall be unable to agree with any person interested in any parcel of such land, or such person shall be unknown or a non-resident of the county, or a minor, or an insane or incompetent person, the board may present to the circuit court or probate court of the county a petition, describing the proposed road and each parcel of land necessary therefor which they have been unable to acquire, giving the name of each person interested in each parcel so far as known and praying for the appointment of three commissioners to determine the necessity of such proposed road, the necessity of taking each parcel therefor, and to appraise the damages to be paid as compensation for such taking of each parcel for road purposes. The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for any minor, insane or incompetent person interested in the proceedings. The guardian shall be a resident of the county. Upon the filing of the petition, the court shall make an order fixing a day for the hearing on such petition, which shall not be less than three weeks thereafter. Such order shall recite the names of the persons mentioned in the petition, the description of each parcel of land, and state the purpose of petition. Such order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks in some newspaper published and circulated in the county as near as any to the land in question, to be designated by the court, and notices thereof shall be served on each person named in the petition interested in the land who resides within the county, and upon each such guardian, at least ten days before the day of hearing. Such service may be made personally or by leaving at the place of residence of the person to be served. Proof of publication and service may be made by affidavit of such person or persons having knowledge of the facts. Such proof shall be filed with the court on the day of the hearing, and thereupon the court shall have jurisdiction of the subject matter involved in the proceedings and of the parties interested therein.

Sec. 13. On the day of hearing, the court shall hear the parties and appoint three disinterested persons commissioners, herein called court commissioners, whose duty it shall be to determine the necessity of such proposed road and the necessity for taking each such parcel of land described in the petition therefor, and if they shall decide that it is necessary, then to appraise the damages to be paid as compensation for the taking of each such parcel of land. The court commissioners shall be sworn to faithfully discharge their duty. The court shall fix the time and place for the first meeting of such court commissioners, and require their attendance; it may also authorize the court commissioners to adjourn their meetings from time to time not later than to a day to be named, and shall fix the time for filing the report of such court commissioners.

Sec. 14. The court commissioners shall meet at the time and place ordered by the court. If all do not appear, a less number may adjourn to a time certain, but no adjournment shall be made to a day later than the time allowed by the court. Such adjournment shall be publicly announced. The court or clerk thereof may issue writs of subpoena to compel the attendance of witnesses before the court or before the said court commissioners. Either one of such court commissioners may administer oaths to witnesses. The court commissioners, at the time fixed by the court or at the time fixed by adjournment shall view the premises described in the petition and hear the proofs and allegations of the parties, and render their decision in the premises. They shall report such decision in writing, signed by them or a majority of them, at the time fixed for that purpose. If their decision is that the road is unnecessary or that any part of the land described in the petition is unnecessary to be taken therefor, no further proceedings for the establishment of such road shall be taken for one year thereafter; if the decision is that the proposed road is necessary, and that such lands are necessary to be taken thereof, they shall appraise the damages to be paid as compensation to each person interested for each such parcel of land.

Sec. 15. The court may, at the time of the filing of the report, or at such other time to which it may adjourn the proceedings on cause shown, set aside the report and refer it back to such court commissioners or appoint other commissioners to retry the questions involved, whereupon such proceedings shall be held as are hereinbefore provided for. The court may permit the amendment of any petition, affidavit, order, report or proceedings filed or had in the premises in such manner as shall be just and proper; it may fill any vacancy that shall occur among the court commissioners; it may permit a defective proceeding to be set aside and other proceedings in compliance with the law to be had in place thereof; it may adjourn such proceedings or any part thereof from time to time, and may make all such reports in the premises as may be just and proper to further and accomplish the purpose thereof.

Sec. 16. After the court shall confirm the report of the court commissioners, it shall enter an order authorizing the board of county road commissioners to pay over the several sums awarded for damages, and the board shall pay the same accordingly. Such payment shall be made in money to the several persons entitled thereto, and if refused, or if there be no person properly authorized to receive same, it shall be deposited as directed by the court. Upon filing proof of payment or deposit as ordered, the court shall prepare a certificate under its seal, signed by the judge, reciting briefly the proceedings that have been had, giving the names of the parties interested, describing the lands taken for such road, the award of damages therefor and the payment or deposit of the money, and deliver the same to the board of county road commissioners, and thereupon the title to such land shall be deemed vested in the county to be used for road purposes only. Such certificate shall be recorded in the book of deeds, in the office of the register of deeds. Such certificate, certification or the record thereof or a certified copy of such record, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts recited therein, and of title to such lands in the county and of the right of the board of county road commissioners to construct and maintain a road thereon. The court shall fix the compensation of the court commissioners, not to exceed three dollars per day and determine the amount of necessary expenses incurred in connection with such proceedings which shall be paid by the county road commissioners.

Sec. 17. Any road heretofore laid out, or any part thereof, shall become a county road if the board of county road commissioners shall at any time so determine and in passing through, or on the line between townships and incorporated villages, and streets or parts of streets of such villages may be adopted as a county road, with consent of the proper authorities of such village or villages. The vote of the county road commissioners in respect to such determination shall be taken by yeas and nays, and shall be entered at large on the records of said county road commissioners. Notice of such determination shall be forthwith given by the clerk to the highway commissioner of each township and the highway authorities of each village in which said road or any part thereof is situated, and published in some newspaper printed and circulated in the county, once in each week for three successive weeks. Proof of such service and publication may be made by affidavit or record, shall be prima facie evidence of its contents. After service and publication of such notice, the board of county road commissioners shall have sole and exclusive jurisdiction and control of such road so embraced within such determination, and the township or municipality within which same is situated shall be relieved from all responsibility therefor. Immediately after laying out or taking control of a road, said board shall give the same a name by which it shall afterwards be known in their proceedings. The board of county road commissioners of any county which has adopted the county road system, are hereby authorized and empowered to, at any time, abandon and discontinue any county road, or any part thereof, by a majority vote of the county road commissioners in respect to such abandonment and discontinuance, shall be taken and entered and notice thereof given, in the same manner as required in this action, in cases where roads are adopted. After proceedings to discontinue and abandon have been had, the jurisdiction and control of such road shall revert to the ownership or municipality within which same is situated, which prior to the time of its adoption as a county road had jurisdiction and control thereof, and the county shall be relieved from the responsibility therefor.

Sec. 18. Said board of county road commissioners shall have authority to grade, drain, gravel or macadamize any road under their control, or to place thereof any other form of improvement which in their judgment may be best and may extend and enlarge such improvements; they shall have authority to construct bridges and culverts on the line of such road, and to repair and maintain the said roads, bridges, and culverts; they shall have all the authority in respect to such roads, bridges and culverts which is vested in highway officers in townships. Said board of county road commissioners may maintain in their own name an action for any injury to any county road or any part of the whole width thereof, as laid out and established, or any part of the improvement thereon. All moneys recovered in such action shall be paid to the county treasurer and be credited to the county road fund. In all cases involving the expenditure of an amount greater than five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the building, rebuilding or repairing of roads or bridges, the board of county road commissioners shall advertise for sealed proposals for such work. The board shall have the right to reject any and all bids, and may do the work by day labor, purchasing the necessary tools and material and employing labor therefor: Provided, however, in case the board shall decide to do the work by day labor the plans and specifications, together with all bids received thereon, and the reason in writing for not letting the job by contract, shall be filed in the office of the county commissioners.

Sec. 19. On or before the first day of December of each year the board of county road commissioners shall make a report to the county board of the road improvements, which they contemplate carrying on the following year, specifying and itemizing the roads and parts of roads which they propose to improve, stating in said report the probable cost of improving each of said roads.

Sec. 20. The county board shall pass upon said report and by a majority vote they can adopt or reject all or part of said report, and substitute other roads to be improved other than those specified in said report by the county road commissioners.

Sec. 21. The county board shall appropriate at their annual meeting each year such sum or sums as they may deem necessary for building roads. In counties of 500,000 population or more, such sum or sums shall not be less, however, than $125,000. Such money shall be paid out only on the order of the county road commissioners and said orders shall pass through the hands of the road and bridge committee, and be countersigned by the chairman of said committee and also through the hands of the finance committee, as all other bills do, in accordance with the rules of said county boards.

Sec. 22. The board of county road commissioners shall have the power to assist townships or villages in building roads, other than county roads, by the loaning of machinery and otherwise, by any equitable arrangement they may make between themselves and the township or village officials, said arrangement to be in the form of a contract or written agreement, to be approved by the road and bridge committee.

Sec. 23. It is hereby made the duty of the county to keep in reasonable repair so that they shall be reasonably safe and convenient for public travel, all county roads, bridges and culverts that are within their jurisdiction, and under their care and control, and which are open to public travel. The provisions of law shall apply to the county, respecting the liability of townships, villages, cities and corporations for damages for injuries resulting in the performance of the same duty, respecting roads under their control. Service shall be made upon the chairman of the county board or the clerk of the county made defendant therein, which shall be named in the process as the county of.....and any judgment obtained thereon against the county shall be audited and paid, as are other claims against such county.

Sec. 24. An accurate account shall be kept under the direction of the board of county road commissioners of all moneys disbursed by it, and a final statement thereof, together with a complete statement in detail of all work done, the right of way required and the road constructed by said board shall be made to the county board at their annual meeting each year.

Sec. 25. The board of county road commissioners shall have no authority to contract indebtedness for repairing or building county roads in excess of money appropriated or available for that purpose, nor shall they have authority to contract for or build any road or piece of road not authorized by the county board under another provision of this Act.

Sec. 26. The board of county road commissioners or county board are authorized to accept absolute or conditional donations to the county funds to be used in the construction of county roads and said funds so donated shall be held as a separate fund to be used only in accordance with the terms upon which the donation was made and the same when the terms of the donation permit shall be held to be the same as if raised by taxation and appropriated by the county for the purpose of building roads on which the county pays whole or part the cost thereof.

Sec. 27. Wherever the term "county board" is used herein it shall refer to and be defined as the board of county commissioners or board of supervisors, as the case may be.

Sec. 28. The provisions of this Act shall apply to the construction of such roads only that connect with or are a continuation of State aid roads.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, the following message from the House of Representatives was taken up for consideration:

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has adopted the following preamble and joint resolution, in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 40.

WHEREAS, The Forty-seventh General Assembly of the State of Illinois adopted an Act providing for a State Park Commission, and

WHEREAS, Upon the taking effect of said Act the then Governor of this State, Hon. Chas. S. Deneen, appointed the members of the first commission, one of whom was the late Rev. D. L. Crowe, of Kewanee, Illinois, and

WHEREAS, The said Rev. D. L. Crowe, upon his appointment to said commission gave much of his time, energy and ability toward carrying out the duties imposed upon said commission and toward the securing of and the establishment of the first State park owned by the State of Illinois at Starved Rock, and

WHEREAS, Upon the establishment of the said Starved Rock State Park and the completion of his duties as a State Park Commissioner, his health having become impaired, he left for Europe seeking improvement, but by reason of his arduous duties on said commission and his delaying the proposed trip until the object of the State Park Act was consummated, he failed to recover his health and died in the city of Rome, Italy, on the 30th day of August, A. D. 1912, and

WHEREAS, His brother, Rev. John Crowe, of Jacksonville, Illinois, has a handsomely framed and enlarged picture of the late Rev. D. L. Crowe which he offers to present to the State of Illinois, and

WHEREAS, It is the sense of the Forty-eighth General Assembly that on account of the great services rendered this State by the late Rev. D. L. Crowe as a member of the State Park Commission, and by reason of his standing as a citizen and clergyman, this kind offer should be accepted and that the most appropriate place to keep such picture is in the Administration building, at Starved Rock State Park; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring therein, That the kind offer made of the picture of the late Rev. D. L. Crowe be accepted, and that the State Park Commission is hereby directed to accept said picture and to keep and preserve it in a suitable place in the Administration building at Starved Rock State Park; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House of Representatives certify a copy of this resolution to the Secretary of the said State Park Commission.

Adopted by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

The pending question being, "Shall the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of the Resolution?" it was decided in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Jones, the following message from the House of Representatives was taken up for consideration:

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has refused to concur with the Senate in the adoption of their amendment to a bill of the following title, to wit:

HOUSE BILL No. 152.

A bill for "An Act to amend section 1 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to amend sections 1 and 2 of an Act entitled, "An Act to regulate and limit the hours of employment of females in any mechanical establishment or factory or laundry in order to safeguard the health of such employees; to provide for its enforcement and a penalty for its violation; approved June 15, 1909, in force July 1, 1909; and to add an additional section thereto to be known as section 5, and to amend the title of said Act."'

Which amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend section 1 by striking out the word "eight" in lines 15 and 17 thereof, and insert in lieu thereof the word "ten."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend section 1 by inserting after the word "day" in lines 16 and 18 the following: "or more than fifty-four hours in any one week."

Non-concurred in by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

Mr. Jones moved that the Senate recede from its amendments to the bill, and the yeas and nays being called, the vote resulted as follows: Yeas, 21; Nays, 20.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

Campbell,	Curtis,	Hay,	Juul,	O'Connor,
Canaday,	Ettelson,	Hurburgh,	Keller,	Shaw,
Carroll,	Gorman,	Hurley,	Madigan,	Tossey,
Cleary,	Harris,	Jones,	Magill,	Woodard,
Cornwell,

Yeas—21.

The following voted in the negative: Messrs.

Andrus,	Clark,	Gray,	Landee,	Olson,
Dailey,	Compton,	Haase,	Lundberg,	Stewart,
Brady,	Denver,	Hamilton,	Maclean,	Waage,
Broderick,	Franklin,	Johnson,	Meeker,	Womack,

Nays—20.

Before the President of the Senate announced the result of the foregoing vote, Mr. Waage raised the point of order that under the Constitution, it required a majority of all the Senators elected to recede from the amendments.

The President of the Senate announced that his decision on the point of order would be held in abeyance until he could consult the Attorney General, and thereupon the Senate proceeded to the consideration of

Ordered that the title be as aforesaid, and that the Secretary inform the House of Representatives thereof.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has acceded to the request of the Senate for a Committee of Conference to consider the differences between the two Houses in regard to the Senate amendments to a bill of the following title, to wit:

HOUSE BILL No. 834.

A bill for "An Act to amend sections one (1), four (4), six (6), eight (8), nine (9), ten (10), twenty-seven (27), twenty-eight (28), twenty-nine (29), thirty (30), thirty-one (31), thirty-five (35), forty-three (43), fifty-one (51), fifty-three (53), fifty-six (56), fifty-seven (57), fifty-eight (58), and sixty-two (62) of an Act entitled, 'An Act to provide for the holding of primary elections by political parties,' approved March 9, 1910, in force July 1, 1910; as amended by an Act approved May 27, 1912, in force July 1, 1912; and as amended by an Act approved and in force March 30, 1912."

I am further directed to inform the Senate that the Speaker of the House has appointed as such committee on the part of the House: Messrs. H. A. Shephard, R. E. Wilson, Butts, Burns and Medill McCormick.

Action taken by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

Mr. Magill made the following report, which has been printed:

Your Conference Committee on House Bill No. 834 would respectfully recommend as follows:

First—That the House concur in the Senate amendments numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 10.

Second—That Senate Amendment No. 9 be adopted by both House and Senate with the following amendments:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

In line 5 of Senate Amendment No. 9 as printed, strike out the words "having a population of less than two hundred thousand."

AMENDMENT No. 2.

In line 25 of Senate Amendment No. 9, as printed, insert after the word "town," within the parenthesis, the words "or township."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

In line 62 of Senate Amendment No. 9, as printed, insert after the word "township" and without the parenthesis, the word "offices," and in line 60, place the parenthesis between the word "township" and the word "offices."

AMENDMENT No. 4.

Amend Senate Amendment No. 9 by adding at the end of said amendment the following: The words "township officers" or "township offices" whenever used in this Act shall be construed to include supervisors and assistant supervisors.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

H. S. MAGILL, JR.,
JOHN M. CHAMBERLIN,
LOGAN HAY,
AL. F. GORMAN,
W. DUFF PIERCY,

Committee on Behalf of the Senate.

JOHN S. BURNS,

Adopted by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

Mr. Ettelson made the following report, which has been printed:

To the Honorable President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives:

We, the undersigned, a Committee of Conference, appointed to consider the differences between the two houses in relation to the House amendment to Senate Bill No. 274, entitled, "An Act to establish a Joint Legislative Commission," and to define the powers and duties thereof, beg leave to report that we recommend the following as the action to be taken by the Senate and House of Representatives, respectfully:

First—We recommend that the House recede from all its amendments to said Senate Bill No. 274.

Second—We further recommend that the Senate and House adopt amendments to the said bill as the same passed the Senate, as follows: First, by striking out the word "Commission" where it appears in the title of the bill, and substituting in lieu thereof the words "Reference Bureau." Second. Further amend Senate Bill No. 274 as it passed the Senate by striking out all of said bill after the word "Legislative" in line 3 of said printed bill, and inserting in lieu of said part so stricken out the following: "Reference Bureau composed of the Governor, the Chairman of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and of the House, the Chairman of the Committees on Judiciary of the Senate and of the House. The Governor shall be ex officio Chairman of said Reference Bureau.

Sec. 2. The Governor shall serve as a member of said Reference Bureau during the term of office for which he shall have been elected, and those members serving on said Reference Bureau by virtue of being chairman of committees of either House shall serve until the convening of the next General Assembly after their appointment.

Sec. 3. The said Reference Bureau shall meet during the regular and special sessions of the General Assembly and during the intervals between the regular sessions and at such times and places as it may determine. The members of the Bureau shall receive no compensation for their services as members thereof, but shall be allowed their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their official duties out of any money appropriated for the use of the said Reference Bureau.

Sec. 4. The said Reference Bureau shall appoint a secretary, who shall devote his entire time to the duties of his office and shall follow no other gainful profession, occupation or employment. The Reference Bureau shall also appoint such other officers, agents and employees as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, and shall fix the compensation of each of its appointees: Provided, the salary of the secretary be fixed at a sum not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000) per annum.

Sec. 5. It shall be the duty of said Reference Bureau: a. To establish in the State Capitol a Reference Bureau, which shall be open daily, excepting Sundays and legal holidays, in which shall be collected and kept, in such manner as may make the same readily accessible, such laws, reports, books, periodicals, documents, catalogues, check-lists, digests, summaries of the laws of other states upon current legislation, and such other printed or written matter as may aid the members of the General Assembly in the performance of their official duties:

b. The Reference Bureau shall collect, catalogue, classify, index, completely digest, topically index, check-list and summarize all bills, memorials, resolutions and orders, as well as substitutes and amendments and changes, if any, introduced in each branch of the General Assembly, as soon as practicable after the same shall have been printed, and shall furnish copies of the digest indexed and topically indexed to each member of the General Assembly on Monday of each week during the session of the General Assembly:

c. The said Reference Bureau shall afford to any member of the General Assembly, upon his request, such legal assistance and information as may be practicable in the preparation of bills, memorials, resolutions, orders and amendments, alterations, changes thereto, and revisions and substitutes thereof, proposed to be introduced into the General Assembly by said member:

d. To cause to be prepared, printed and distributed for the use of the members of the General Assembly, a detailed budget of the appropriations which the officers of the several departments of the State Government report to it are required for their several departments for the biennium for which appropriations are to be made by the next General Assembly, together with a comparative statement of the sums appropriated by the preceding General Assembly for the same purposes.

Sec. 6. The officers of the several departments of the State Government shall make duplicate reports by the first day of November next preceding the convening of the regular session of the General Assembly of the appropriations which are required for their several departments for the biennium for which appropriations are to be made by such General Assembly. One of said duplicate reports shall be filed with the Governor, and the other with the secretary of said Reference Bureau.

Sec. 7. The Secretary of State shall provide said Reference Bureau with suitable offices in the State Capitol, convenient to the place of meeting of the General Assembly, and shall further provide said Reference Bureau with the necessary furniture, stationery and supplies.

Sec. 8. The Board of Commissioners for the management of the State Library shall coöperate with the said Reference Bureau and shall make the facilities of said library accessible, so far as practicable, for the use of said Reference Bureau, and are hereby authorized to loan to said Reference Bureau any books, periodicals, documents, reports or other printed or written matter belonging to said library.

Sec. 9. All proper expenses incurred by said Reference Bureau shall be paid out of the appropriations made for its use upon itemized vouchers, drawn by the secretary and approved by the Governor.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has adopted the following Conference Committee report:

We, the undersigned, a Committee of Conference, appointed to consider the differences between the two Houses in relation to the House Amendment to Senate Bill No. 274, entitled, "An Act to establish a Joint Legislative Commission and to define the powers and duties thereof," beg leave to report that we recommend the following as the action to be taken by the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively:

First—We recommend that the House recede from all its amendments to said Senate Bill No. 274.

Second—We further recommend that the Senate and House adopt amendments to the said bill as the same passed the Senate, as follows: First, by striking out the word "Commission" where it appears in the title of the bill, and substituting in lieu thereof the words "Reference Bureau." Second, further amend Senate Bill No. 274 as it passed the Senate by striking out all of said bill after the word "Legislative" in line 3 of said printed bill, and inserting in lieu of said part so stricken out the following: "Reference Bureau composed of the Governor, the chairman of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and of the House, the chairman of the Committees on Judiciary of the Senate and of the House. The Governor shall be ex officio chairman of said Reference Bureau.

Sec. 2. The Governor shall serve as a member of said Reference Bureau during the term of office for which he shall have been elected, and those members serving on said Reference Bureau by virtue of being chairmen of committees of either House shall serve until the convening of the next General Assembly after their appointment.

Sec. 3. The said Reference Bureau shall meet during the regular and special sessions of the General Assembly and during the intervals between the regular sessions, and at such times and places as it may determine. The members of the bureau shall receive no compensation for their services as members thereof, but shall be allowed their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their official duties out of any money appropriated for the use of the said Reference Bureau.

Sec. 4. The said Reference Bureau shall appoint a secretary, who shall devote his entire time to the duties of his office and shall follow no other gainful profession, occupation or employment. The Reference Bureau shall also appoint such other officers, agents and employees as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, and shall fix the compensation of each of its appointees: Provided, the salary of the secretary be fixed at a sum not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000) per annum.

Sec. 5. It shall be the duty of said Reference Bureau: (a) To establish in the State Capitol a Reference Bureau, which shall be open daily, excepting Sundays and legal holidays, in which shall be collected and kept, in such manner as may make the same readily accessible, such laws, reports, books, periodicals, documents, catalogues, check lists, digests, summaries of the laws of other states upon current legislation, and such other printed or written matter as may aid the members of the General Assembly in the performance of their official duties;

(b) The Reference Bureau shall collect, catalogue, classify, index, completely digest, topically index, check list and summarize all bills, memorials, resolutions and orders, as well as substitutes and amendments and changes, if any, introduced in each branch of the General Assembly, as soon as practicable after the same shall have been printed, and shall furnish copies of the digest indexed and topically indexed to each member of the General Assembly on Monday of each week during the session of the General Assembly;

(c) The said Reference Bureau shall afford to any member of the General Assembly, upon his request, such legal assistance and information as may be practicable in the preparation of bills, memorials, resolutions, orders and amendments, alterations, changes thereto, and revisions and substitutes thereof, proposed to be introduced into the General Assembly by said member;

(d) To cause to be prepared, printed and distributed for the use of the members of the General Assembly, a detailed budget of the appropriations which the officers of the several departments of the State Government report to it are required for their several departments for the biennium for which appropriations are to be made by the next General Assembly, together with a comparative statement of the sums appropriated by the preceding General Assembly for the same purposes.

Sec. 6. The officers of the several departments of the State Government shall make duplicate reports by the first day of November next preceding the convening of the regular session of the General Assembly of the appropriations which are required for their several departments for the biennium for which appropriations are to be made by such General Assembly. One of said duplicate reports shall be filed with the Governor, and the other with the secretary of said Reference Bureau.

Sec. 7. The Secretary of State shall provide said Reference Bureau with suitable offices in the State Capitol, convenient to the place of meeting of the General Assembly, and shall further provide said Reference Bureau with the necessary furniture, stationery and supplies.

Sec. 8. The Board of Commissioners for the management of the State Library shall coöperate with the said Reference Bureau and shall make the facilities of said library accessible, so far as practicable, for the use of said Reference Bureau, and are hereby authorized to loan to said Reference Bureau any books, periodicals, documents, reports or other printed or written matter belonging to said library.

Sec. 9. All proper expenses incurred by said Reference Bureau shall be paid out of the appropriations made for its use upon itemized vouchers, drawn by the secretary and approved by the Governor.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Clerk of the House.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has refused to concur with the Senate in the adoption of their amendments to a bill of the following title, to wit:

HOUSE BILL No. 907.

A bill for "An Act to provide for the regulation of public utilities."
Which amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT No. 1.

Amend House Bill No. 907, in Senate, by inserting after section 80, on page 66 of the printed bill, the following article:

ARTICLE VI.

LOCAL UTILITIES.

Sec. 81. POWERS OF CITIES.] Each city shall have power and authority, subject to the provisions of this article:

(1) To prescribe terms and conditions, subject to the provisions of existing law, upon which any public utility may be permitted to occupy the streets, highways or other public property within such city; but no city may by ordinance, franchise, license, permit, or otherwise, contract with any public utility so as to divest itself of or limit its power of regulating any such public utility, or so as to divest itself of any right or power to acquire, own or operate any public utility which may now or hereafter be authorized by law;

(2) To regulate the quality, adequacy and safety of any service, product or commodity rendered or furnished within such city by any public utility, except railroads which do a general freight and passenger service, now commonly known as steam railroads, but not excepting elevated, interurban or street railroads or other common carriers; and to require any such public utility to make such additions and extensions to its plant, equipment and property within said city as shall be reasonable and necessary in the interest of the public;

(3) To determine and prescribe just and reasonable rates or other charges for any service, product or commodity rendered or furnished within such city by any public utility, and to prevent unjust and unreasonable discriminations in rates or other charges and in services within such city by any such public utility, except railroads which do a general freight and passenger service, now commonly known as steam railroads and excepting also interurban railroads, but not excepting elevated and street railroads or other common carriers: Provided, however, that the term "interurban railroads" as here used shall not mean or include any elevated or street railroads which operate mainly or primarily within a city, but which also operates any track or tracks, extension or extensions of such railroad beyond the corporate limits of such city.

(4) To examine such public utilities and keep informed as to their general condition, the manner and method of conducting their business, and their compliance with the provisions of law, with the requirements of their charters, franchises, licenses or permits, and with any orders issued under the provisions of this Act.

(5) To adopt reasonable and proper rules and regulations relative to the exercise of its powers, and to regulate the mode and manner of all investigations and hearings, and to alter and amend the same.

Provided, that such power and authority of any city over the rates or other charges, and services of any public utility for the transportation of persons or property or the transmission of messages shall extend only to the control of such transportation and transmission between points in the same city.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to limit or restrict the powers granted to cities by this article, nor to extend the jurisdiction of the State public utilities commission over such terms and conditions, additions and extensions, quality, adequacy and safety of service, and over such rates or other charges, or discriminations in rates or other charges, and in services of public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of cities, except as provided in this article; and nothing in this Act shall be construed to require a public utility operating or proposing to operate mainly or primarily within the limits of a city to secure a certificate of convenience and necessity from the State public utilities commission before beginning the construction of any new plant, equipment or other property or facility within such city; but in all other respects such public utilities shall be subject to the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 82. UTILITIES TO COMPLY WITH REQUESTS AND OBEY ORDERS OF CITIES.] Every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall furnish to the city all information required by it to carry into effect the provisions of this Act, and shall make specific answers to all questions submitted by the city council or by an authorized agent of the city, and cause to be properly filled out and verified any blanks received from the city or from an authorized agent of the city, with directions to fill the same, so as to answer fully and correctly each question therein propounded.

Whenever required by any city council or by any authorized agent of the city, every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the city, shall deliver to the city council or to such authorized agent of the city, any or all maps, profiles, contracts, reports, documents, books, accounts, papers and records in its possession, or in any way relating to its property or affecting its business within such city, and inventories of its property in such form as the city may direct, or verified copies of any or all of the same.

Every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall obey and comply with each and every requirement of every order, decision, direction, rule or regulation, made or prescribed by the city in any way relating to its business as a public utility, and shall do everything necessary or proper to secure compliance with and observance of every such order, decision, direction, rule or regulation by all of its officers, agents and employees.

Sec. 83. OTHER THAN PUBLIC UTILITY BUSINESS.] In case any public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city is engaged in carrying on any business other than that of a public utility, the city council or an authorized agent of the city may examine and inspect the books, accounts, papers and records of such other business, in so far as may be necessary to exercise the power and jurisdiction of the city over such public utility. The city shall have power to inquire as to and determine the proper proportion of earnings, debts and expenses, fairly or justly to be awarded or borne by the ownership, operation, management or control of such public utility as distinguished from such other business, in so far as may be necessary to exercise its power and jurisdiction over such public utility.

Sec. 84. COPIES OF REPORTS.] Every public utility operating mainly or primarily within a city shall file with the city copies of all reports made by such public utility to the State Public Utilities Commission. The city shall have authority to require any such public utility to file monthly reports of earnings and expenses of such public utility and to file other periodical or special, or both periodical and special reports concerning any matter about which the city is authorized by law to keep itself informed. All reports shall be under oath.

When any report is erroneous or defective, or appears to the city council, or an authorized agent of the city to be erroneous or defective, the city council or such agent of the city may notify the public utility to amend its report within thirty (30) days, and before or after the termination of such period the city council or such agent of the city may examine the officers, agents or employees, and books, records, accounts, vouchers, plant, equipment and property of such public utility and correct such items in the report as upon such examination the city council or agent of the city may find defective or erroneous.

Any public utility which fails to make and file any report called for by the city council or an authorized officer of the city within the time specified; or to make specific answer to any question propounded by the city council or such agent of the city within thirty (30) days from the time it is lawfully required to do so, or within such further time, not to exceed ninety (90) days, as may, in its discretion, be allowed by the city, shall forfeit one hundred dollars ($100) for each and every day it may be so in default.

Any person who wilfully makes any false return or report to the city council or an authorized agent of the city, and any person who aids or abets such person, shall, upon conviction, be subject to imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year or to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars ($1,000), or both, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 85. NOTICE TO CITY ON APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF SECURITIES.] Whenever any public utility operating or proposing to operate, mainly or primarily within a city shall make application to the State Public Utilities Commission for the approval of any issue, purchase or acquisition of stocks, stock certificates, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness, or for the approval of the capitalization of any merger or consolidation of such public utilities, a notice of such application shall be given to the city by the State Public Utilities Commission, and the city shall receive notice and be entitled to appear and to present evidence at the hearing held by the State Public Utilities Commission on any such application.

Sec. 86. INTERCORPORATE RELATIONS.] Unless the consent and approval of the city is first obtained:

(a) No two or more public utilities, one of which operates or proposes to operate mainly or primarily within such city, may enter into contracts with each other that will enable such public utilities to operate their lines or plants in connection with each other;

(b) No public utility may purchase, lease or in any other manner acquire control, direct or indirect, over the franchises, licenses, permits, plant, equipment, business, or other property of any other public utility operating or proposing to operate mainly or primarily within such city;

(c) No public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the city may assign, transfer, lease, mortgage, sell, or otherwise dispose of or encumber the whole or any part of its franchises, licenses, permits, plant, equipment, business or other property within such city, or make any contract or agreement with reference to or affecting any such franchise, license or permit; but this shall not be construed to prevent the sale, lease, assignment or transfer of any tangible personal property, which is not necessary or useful, in the performance of its duties to the public;

(d) No public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the city may by any means, direct or indirect, merge or consolidate its franchises, licenses, permits, plant, equipment, business or property within such city with that of any other public utility.

Such consent and approval shall not be construed to revive or validate any lapsed or invalid franchise, license, permit or right, or to enlarge or add to the powers and privileges contained in the grant of any franchise, license, permit or right, or to waive any forfeiture.

Any transaction referred to in this section requiring the consent and approval of the city, made without such consent and approval, shall be void.

Sec. 87. VALUATION.] Each city shall have power to ascertain the value of the property of every public utility subject to its jurisdiction, and every fact which may or does have any bearing on such value. In making such valuation, the city may avail itself of any information, books, documents or records in the possession of any office, department or board of the State or of any subdivision thereof. Each city shall have power to make revaluations from time to time and also to ascertain the value of all new construction, extensions and additions to the property of every such public utility.

SEC. 88. SCHEDULES OF RATES—COPIES OF CONTRACTS—REPORTS OF ACCIDENTS.] Every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall publish, post and file with the city copies of all schedules of rates or other charges, commodities, products or service furnished or rendered within such city, as nearly as may be in accordance with the provisions of sections 33 and 34 of this Act. Every such public utility shall file with the city copies of all contracts, agreements or arrangements with other public utilities in relation to any service, product or commodity rendered or furnished within said city.

Every public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall promptly file with the city a report of every accident to or on its plant, equipment or other property affecting its service within the city which results in loss of life or injury to any person or is of such a nature as to endanger the safety, health or property of any person: Provided, that no such report filed with the city shall be admitted in evidence in any action for damage based on or arising out of the loss of life, or injury to person or property, in this section referred to.

Copies of all official documents and orders filed or deposited with the city and certified by the city clerk or other authorized agent of the city to be true copies of the originals, shall be evidence in like manner as the originals.

Sec. 89. JOINT RATES—TRANSFERS.] Whenever a city, after a hearing, shall find that the rates or other charges, or classifications in force over two or more public utilities subject to its jurisdiction are unjust, unreasonable or excessive, or that no satisfactory through route or joint rate or other charge, or classification exists, and that the public convenience and necessity demand the establishment of a through route or joint rate, the city may order such public utilities to establish such through route, or may fix a joint rate or other charge, or classification which will be just and reasonable, and the terms and conditions under which such through route or joint rate shall be operated.

Whenever a city, after a hearing, shall find that the rules, regulations and practices of any common carrier subject to its jurisdiction, as to the use of transfer tickets for the transportation of persons over two or more lines of such carrier on payment of a single fare, are unjust and unreasonable, the city shall have power to determine and prescribe just and reasonable regulations for the issuance and use of such transfer tickets, and may, in its discretion, prescribe the number of successive transfer tickets to be given to a passenger paying a single fare, and provide for the prompt use and place of use by each passenger of such transfer tickets issued for a single fare for a continuous trip over the lines of such common carrier.

No public utility subject to the jurisdiction of a city shall, without the consent of the city, charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for a lesser commodity, product or service than for a greater commodity, product or service of like character.

Sec. 90. TRACK CONNECTIONS.] Whenever a city shall find, after a hearing made upon complaint or upon its own motion, that the public convenience and necessity would be subserved by having track connections made between any two or more railroads or street railroads subject to the jurisdiction of the city, the city shall have authority to order any such railroads or street railroads of the same gauge to make physical connections at any and all crossings, and at all points where a railroad or street railroad subject to the jurisdiction of the city shall begin or terminate at or near any other railroad or street railroad, so that the cars of any such railroad or street railroad company may be speedily transferred from one railroad or street railroad to another, and shall have power to order whether the expense thereof shall be borne jointly or otherwise.

Sec. 91. STANDARDS OF SERVICE—INSPECTIONS.] Each city shall have power to ascertain, determine and fix for each kind of public utility suitable and convenient standard commercial units of service, product of commodity, and adequate and serviceable standards for the measurement of quantity, quality, pressure, initial voltage or other condition pertaining to the performing of its service or the furnishing of its product or commodity by any public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the city: Provided, that such standards shall not be inconsistent with the standards determined by the State Public Utilities Commission.

Each city shall also have power to prescribe reasonable regulations for examining, measuring and testing such service, product or commodity, and to provide for the inspection of the manner in which each public utility subject to its jurisdiction conforms to the reasonable regulations provided by the city for examining, measuring and testing its service, product or commodity; and the city may supplement such inspection by examining, measuring and testing the service, product or commodity of any such public utility.

Each city may provide for testing any appliance for examining, measuring or testing any service, product or commodity, and may fix and establish reasonable fees for testing such appliances, and may make regulations as to the payment of such fees.

Any officer, agent or employee of any city, duly authorized by the city, shall have power to enter upon any premises occupied by any public utility for the purpose of making the examinations and tests provided in this article, and to set up on such premises any apparatus and appliances and occupy reasonable space therefor.

Sec. 92. CITIES RIGHT TO APPEAR BEFORE STATE COMMISSION IN STEAM RAILROAD CASES.] Any city is authorized and empowered to appear as a complainant or to make application before the State Public Utilities Commission for an inquiry, investigation or hearing relating to the rates or other charges, or service within such city, on railroads doing a general freight and passenger service now commonly known as steam railroads, or to any other matter within the jurisdiction of the State Public Utilities Commission relating to such railroads; and in case of any hearing by or before the State Public Utilities Commission on any matter relating to the rates or other charges or service, within any city, on such railroads, the city shall receive notice and shall be entitled to appear and present evidence relating to the subject matter of such hearing.

Sec. 93. COMPLAINTS AND INVESTIGATIONS.] On complaint to the city by any public utility furnishing services, products or commodities within the city, or by any person or corporation of anything done or omitted to be done in violation of this Act or of any order or regulation made under the authority thereof, the city council, or an authorized agent of the city, shall cause a statement of the complaint to be forwarded to the public utility complained of, which shall be called on to satisfy the complaint or to answer the same in writing within a reasonable time, to be specified by the city council or such agent of the city. The city council shall provide for the investigation of such complaints in all cases where there shall appear to be reasonable ground for such investigation.

Sec. 94. WITNESSES—IMMUNITY—INSPECTION OF BOOKS, ACCOUNTS AND PHYSICAL PROPERTY.] In the exercise of its powers over public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the city, any city council or any officer of the city authorized by ordinance or resolution, shall have authority to issue subpoenas and compel the attendance of witnesses, to administer oaths or affirmations, and to inspect and require the production of the books, papers, accounts, documents, and to enter and inspect the plant, equipment and other property, of any such public utility. Information so obtained shall not be admitted in evidence or used in any proceedings except in proceedings provided for in this Act. A subpoena issued as aforesaid shall be served in the same manner as a subpoena issued out of a court of record.

The deposition of witnesses residing within or without the State may be taken in the manner prescribed by law for like depositions in civil actions in the courts of this State.

Fees for the service of subpoenas and for the attendance of witnesses shall be the same as in the circuit court, and shall be paid by the city, if the subpœna is issued at the instance of the city, and by the public utility if issued at the instance of the public utility.

No person shall be excused from testifying or from producing any papers, books, accounts or documents in any investigation or inquiry or upon any hearing ordered by any city, when ordered to do so by the city council, or by an authorized officer of the city, upon the ground that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture. But no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, before the city council or such officer of the city: Provided, that such immunity shall extend only to a natural person, who, in obedience to a subpœna, gives testimony under oath or produces evidence, documentary or otherwise, under oath. No person so testifying shall be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying.

Any witness duly subpœnaed under this section, who shall refuse or neglect to appear, to produce books, papers, accounts, or documents, to make oath or affirmation, or to testify; or any officer, agent or employee of a public utility under the jurisdiction of the city who shall refuse to permit the inspection of the books, papers, accounts, documents, or records, or the plant, equipment or other property of such public utility, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not less than one hundred dollars ($100) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Any circuit court of this State, or any court of concurrent jurisdiction, or any judge thereof, either in term time or vacation, upon application of any city council, or of any authorized officer of the city, may, in his discretion, compel the attendance of witnesses, the production of books, papers, accounts and documents, and the giving of testimony before such city council, or officer of the city, by an attachment for contempt, or otherwise, in the same manner as the production of evidence may be compelled before said court.

Sec. 95. JOINT JURISDICTION.] Whenever any complaint or case arising under this Act shall relate to rates or other charges or services which are in part under the jurisdiction of the State Public Utilities Commission, and in part under the jurisdiction of one or more cities, a joint inquiry, investigation or hearing shall be undertaken, by one or more authorized agents of the State Public Utilities Commission and the city or cities concerned. A report of such joint inquiry, investigation or hearing shall be made to the State Public Utilities Commission and to the city or cities concerned; and in such cases an order, decision, rule or regulation may be issued jointly by the State Public Utilities Commission and the city or cities concerned. In any such case, the proceedings may be instituted by or before the State Public Utilities Commission or any city concerned, and the entry and service of preliminary orders may be made by such commission or city.

Any city or village, by ordinance or resolution of the city council or board of trustees, may apply to the State Public Utilities Commission and to the city council of any adjoining city for a joint inquiry, investigation or hearing relating to any existing or proposed through or joint service or to any product or commodity of any public utility or public utilities operating in such municipalities, or as to the rates or other charges for such service, product or commodity of any public utility or public utilities operating in such municipalities, or as to the rates or other charges for such service, product or commodity; and the State Public Utilities Commission and any such cities are authorized to provide for such joint inquiry, investigation or hearing, and to enter a joint order, decision, rule or regulation, in the same manner and form as in cases of joint jurisdiction hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 96. CITY ORDINANCES PRIMA FACIE REASONABLE—COURT PROCEEDINGS.] Any ordinance of city council passed after an investigation or hearing by the council or by an authorized agent of the city, establishing rates or other charges or regulations as to additions or extensions, or as to the quantity, quality or safety of service, product or commodity within the limits of the city for any public utility shall be prima facie reasonable; and no rates or other charges or regulations so established shall be restrained except by the circuit court or other court of concurrent jurisdiction of the county in which the city, or the greater part thereof, is located, after notice to the city and a hearing.

Proceedings to contest the lawfulness or reasonableness of such rates or other charges or regulations may be instituted in the circuit court or other court of concurrent jurisdiction of the county in which the city, or the greater part thereof, is located, on application made not more than thirty days after the passage of such ordinance. Appeals from the order or judgment of the circuit court or other court in such cases may be made directly to the Supreme Court by either party to the action within sixty days after service of a copy of the order or judgment of said court. Such proceedings in any court shall have priority in hearing and determination over all other civil proceedings pending before such court, except proceedings brought under sections 68 and 69 of this Act, and election contests.

Sec. 97. PENALTIES.] Any public utility under the jurisdiction of a city or any corporation which shall violate or fail to comply with any provision of this article or with any ordinance, resolution, order or requirement of a city council, or of an authorized agent of the city, made or issued under authority of this Act, in a case in which a penalty is not otherwise provided for in this Act, shall, upon conviction, be subject to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars ($500), nor more than two thousand dollars ($2,000), for each and every offense.

Any person who, either individually or acting as an officer, agent or employee of a public utility, or of a corporation other than a public utility, violates or fails to comply with any provision of this article or with any ordinance, resolution, order or requirement of a city council, or of an authorized agent of the city, made or issued under authority of this Act, in a case in which a penalty is not otherwise provided for in this Act, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), or by imprisonment in a county jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Every violation of any such provision, ordinance, resolution, order or requirement, or any part or portion thereof, by any corporation or person, is a separate and distinct offense, and in case of a continuing violation each day's continuance thereof shall be and be deemed to be a separate and distinct offense.

All penalties under this article shall be cumulative of each other, and suit for the recovery of one penalty shall not be a bar to or affect the recovery of any other penalty or be a bar to any criminal prosecution against any public utility, or any officer, director, agent or employee thereof or any other corporation or person.

Sec. 98. ACTIONS TO RECOVER PENALTIES.] All actions to recover fines and penalties under this article shall be brought in the name of the city under whose jurisdiction the cause of action arose, and the amount recovered shall be paid into the city treasury to the credit of the general fund.

Sec. 99. APPLICATION BY CITY TO PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION.] Any city may by order or resolution of the city council apply to the State Public Utilities Commission for any information or data necessary or useful in the exercise of its powers over public utilities within the city, for the assistance of experts and other agents of the commission in the investigation of a public utility by the city, or for an investigation by the commission as to the rates or other charges or the quality, adequacy or safety of service or product furnished by any public utility within said city. Upon such application, it shall be the duty of the commission to furnish such information or data, or the assistance of experts and other agents, or to conduct the investigation, as the case may be, within a reasonable time, not to exceed six months after receipt of such application; and for the purpose of securing such information or data or conducting such investigation, the commission shall be vested with all the powers and such public utility shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities as in the case of public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the commission.

Sec. 100. REVIEW BY COMMISSION ON AGREEMENT.] Any public utility being dissatisfied with any ordinance, resolution or order of a city council or any officer or agent thereof, may, by agreement with the city, in lieu of proceedings in the courts, apply for a final and conclusive review of the action of the city before the State Public Utilities Commission. Such application shall be made within the time for commencing proceedings in the courts, shall set forth the action of the city and the grounds on which it is contested, and shall be accompanied by a certified copy of the agreement on the part of the city to the review by the said commission. Upon such application it shall be the duty of the said commission to review the action of the city; and for the purposes of such review the commission shall be vested with all the powers and such public utility shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities as in the case of public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the commission. On such review the commission shall make such determination as seems to it just and reasonable in view of all the facts in the case; and the decision and order of the commission in such cases shall be final and conclusive and not subject to review in any court whatever.

Sec. 101. GENERAL POWERS AND DUTIES—SAVING CLAUSE.] To the extent and in so far as may be necessary and appropriate to enable the city fully and completely to exercise the powers and perform the duties imposed by this article, every city shall have all the authority and jurisdiction provided for the State Public Utilities Commission, and all public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of cities shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities imposed by this Act.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to limit or restrict the powers of cities to pass ordinances for the protection of the public health, safety, comfort and general welfare, or governing the regulation, control or occupation of streets, highways and public property within the city.

Sec. 102. REFERENDUM IN CITIES OF LESS THAN 20,000.] No city of less than 20,000 population by the last preceding United States census shall proceed to exercise the additional powers conferred on cities by this article unless and until an ordinance providing for the adoption of this article shall have been passed by the city council and submitted to a vote of the electors of such city at a general, municipal or special election, and have been approved by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon. Until such an ordinance has been adopted and approved by the electors of such city, the State Public Utilities Commission shall be vested with all the powers and jurisdiction conferred by this Act as to all public utilities within such city, and all public utilities within such city shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities as in the case of other public utilities under the jurisdiction of said State commission.

Sec. 103. SURRENDER AND RESUMPTION OF MUNICIPAL POWERS.] Any city may, by ordinance, adopted in accordance with the provisions of this article, surrender any of the powers herein conferred upon it over the service or products, or over rates or other charges of any public utility or utilities within the limits of said city. On such surrender of any of its powers by any city, such city shall cease to exercise any such power over said public utility service or product, or rates or other charges, until and unless such power has been resumed by said city as provided by this article; and the State Public Utilities Commission shall be vested with all the jurisdiction, powers and duties as to such public utility service, product, rates or other charges, and such public utility shall be subject to all the duties, obligations and liabilities as in the case of other public utilities under the jurisdiction of said State commission.

Such ordinance shall be and remain in force, and the jurisdiction, powers and duties of the commission and the duties, obligations and liabilities of such public utility or utilities shall continue for a period of not less than three years, and thereafter until such time as an ordinance shall be adopted by said city, in accordance with the provisions of this article, resuming its powers over such public utility or utilities. On the adoption of such resumption ordinance, the jurisdiction, powers and duties of the commission over such public utility service, product, or rates and other charges, and the duties, obligations and liabilities of such public utility or utilities resulting therefrom shall cease; and the city shall exercise the jurisdiction, powers and duties in regard to such utility or utilities, as if no ordinance to surrender its powers had been passed.

Sec. 104. INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.] Whenever any ordinance for the surrender or resumption of municipal powers over the service or products or over rates or other charges of public utilities has been passed by the city council, its operation shall be suspended for a period of thirty days; and if during said thirty days a petition signed by the electors of the city equal in number to at least ten per centum of the entire vote cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding general municipal election at which a mayor was elected, protesting against the passage of said ordinance, be filed with the city clerk, then such ordinance shall be submitted at a general or special election within ninety days after the filing of said petition, and shall not go into effect or become operative unless approved by a majority of the qualified electors of such city voting thereon. If no such petition is filed within thirty days, such ordinance shall be deemed adopted and in full force and effect.

A proposed ordinance for the surrender or resumption of municipal powers over the service or products or over rates and other charges of public utilities, under the provisions of this article, may be submitted to the city council by petition filed with the city clerk and signed by the electors of the city equal in number to at least ten per centum of the entire vote cast for mayor at the last general municipal election at which a mayor was elected. If such proposed ordinance is not passed by the city council within forty days after the filing of the petition therefor, the council shall submit said ordinance at a general or special election held within ninety days after the filing of such petition.

Sec. 105. PETITIONS.] (a) Petitions of protest against such ordinances passed by the city council shall be substantially in the following form:
To the Clerk of the City of.....:

We, the undersigned qualified electors of the city of....., protest against the passage of the ordinance to surrender (or resume) the powers of the city over [here state the powers sought to be surrendered (or resumed) by ordinance] within said city.

Name	House Number (if any)	Street	Date of Signing
.....

(b) Petitions proposing for passage or submission an ordinance to surrender or resume the powers of the city over public utilities shall be substantially in the following form:

To the Clerk of the City of.....:

We, the undersigned qualified electors of the city of....., propose the following ordinance, to surrender (or resume) the powers of the city over [here state the powers sought to be surrendered (or resumed), followed by a draft in full of the proposed ordinance]:

Name	House Number (if any)	Street	Date of Signing

(c) Such petitions shall consist of sheets having such form printed or written at the top thereof and shall be signed by qualified electors of such city in their own proper person only, and opposite the signatures of each petitioner shall be written by such person his residence address (stating the street and number if there be such) and the date of signing the same. No signature shall be valid or be counted in considering such petition unless these requirements are complied with.

At the bottom of each sheet shall be added a statement, signed by a resident of the city, in which the signers thereof reside, with his residence address as aforesaid, stating that the signatures on the sheet were signed in his presence, on the dates set opposite the respective names, and that the same are genuine and to the best of his knowledge and belief the persons so signing were at the time of signing said sheet qualified electors of such city, and that their respective residences are correctly stated as set forth on such sheet; and in cities in which the voters are or may be required to be registered, that they were at the time of signing such petition duly registered voters.

Such statement shall be sworn to before an officer residing in the county in which such city is located, who is qualified to administer oaths therein. Such petition, so verified, or a copy thereof duly certified by the proper persons, shall be prima facie evidence that the signatures, statement of residence, and dates upon such are genuine and true.

(d) Such sheets shall be fastened together in one document, filed as a whole, and when filed shall not be withdrawn or added to or altered in any manner by any person. No signatures shall be revoked except by a revocation filed in writing with the clerk with whom the petition is required to be filed and before the filing of such petition. Upon request of any person, the clerk shall furnish a certified copy of such petition and names thereon, upon the payment by such person to the clerk of a fee of one dollar for each 100 names thereon.

(e) Whoever, in making the sworn statement above prescribed, shall knowingly, wilfully and corruptly swear falsely shall be deemed guilty of perjury and on conviction thereof shall be punished accordingly. Whoever forges the signature of any person upon any petition or statement, or residence address, street or number or date of signing, shall be deemed guilty of forgery and on conviction thereof punished accordingly.

(f) All objections to such petition shall be filed with the city clerk with whom such petition is filed, within five days after the filing of the same. Within ten days after the filing of such petition, the said clerk shall examine the petition and ascertain whether it is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, and shall certify as to the sufficiency or insufficiency of the petition.

Any person dissatisfied with the determination of the city clerk as to the sufficiency or insufficiency of such petition may, within five days thereafter, apply to the county court or the circuit court of the county in which such city or the greater part thereof is situated, or to any judge of such courts in vacation, for a summary proceeding to review the determination of the city clerk.

Authority and jurisdiction are hereby conferred on such court or judge to conduct such summary proceeding, to be held not less than five nor more than ten days after application is made. The court or judge shall ascertain and declare by a decree as in chancery to be entered of record in the proper court, the sufficiency or insufficiency of such petition; and the decree of such court or judge shall become immediately effective, and no appeal or writ of error shall in any manner stay or prevent the immediate operation of such decree. The clerk of the court shall, immediately upon such decree being entered, transmit to the city clerk with whom the petition was originally filed a certified copy of the decree and order of the court or judge.

Sec. 106. ELECTIONS.] (a) If the petition is held to be sufficient, the city council shall forthwith order and fix the date for the election at which such ordinance shall be submitted, unless in case of a petition proposing an ordinance to surrender or resume any power of the city over public utilities, the council shall pass the proposed ordinance within forty days from the date such petition was filed with the city clerk.

Such ordinance shall be submitted at the next election held in such city, if one be held within ninety days after such petition has been filed; and if no election is held within said ninety days, the council shall order a special election within said ninety days, at which such ordinance shall be submitted: Provided, however, there shall not be more than one special election in any period of six months for such purposes alone.

Notices of such election shall be the same, and such election shall be conducted, returned and the result thereof declared, in all respects as a general municipal election.

(b) At such election, the proposition shall be submitted on a distinct and separate ballot, which shall contain these words: "Shall the ordinance (stating the nature of the proposed ordinance) be adopted?"; and shall otherwise comply with section 16 and the amendments thereto, of an Act entitled, "An Act to provide for the printing and distribution of ballots at public expense, and for the nomination of candidates for public office, to regulate the manner of holding elections, and to enforce the secrecy of the ballot," approved June 22, 1891, in force July 1, 1891.

Any number of proposed ordinances may be voted upon at the same election, in accordance with the provisions of this section; and two or more proposed ordinances may be submitted separately on the same ballot.

(c) If a majority of the qualified electors voting on any such ordinance shall vote in favor thereof, said ordinance shall be deemed adopted and shall be in full force and effect.

AMENDMENT No. 2.

Amend House Bill No. 907 in the Senate by striking out, in line 18 of section 107, the words "November 1st, 1913," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "February 1st, 1914."

AMENDMENT No. 3.

Amend House Bill No. 907 in the Senate by striking out sections 20 to 26, inclusive, and section 31, and by renumbering the remaining sections accordingly.

AMENDMENT No. 4.

Amend House Bill No. 907 in the Senate by changing Article VI to read Article VII, and renumbering the sections to correspond with the sections already adopted.

Non-concurred in by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

On motion of Mr. Dailey, the foregoing message from the House of Representatives was taken up for consideration.

Mr. Dailey moved that the Senate recede from its amendments to the bill, and after debate, on motion of Mr. Gray, the previous question was ordered.

Mr. Hurburgh offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 77.

Resolved, That the use of Senate Chamber or any of the rooms connected therewith shall not be granted, when the Legislature is not in session, for any purpose without the approval and consent of the Senate. And, be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate shall be allowed the use of his office until the meeting of the Forty-ninth General Assembly, and he is requested to answer and respond to all requests made upon him for any information.

By unanimous consent, the foregoing resolution was taken up for immediate consideration, and on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, was adopted.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Mr. Waage rose to a question of personal privilege and upon being recognized, made the following statement:

"Mr. President, and Gentlemen of the Senate—For many years past and during my term as a member of this Honorable Body, I have been an ardent advocate of the principle of the initiative and referendum, and you will all accord me, whether in committee or upon the floor of the Senate, I have consistently spoken and voted in favor of this great principle. Unfortunately for me, I was unavoidably prevented from being present in the Senate upon the day the vote was taken upon the resolution to submit an amendment to the Constitution upon the proposition of the initiative and referendum, and by unanimous consent of the Senate I now ask leave to have the Journal show that had I been here present upon the day of this vote upon the initiative and referendum resolution, I would have voted "aye" upon the proposition."

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the passage of bills of the following titles, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 633.

A bill for "An Act to amend an Act entitled, 'An Act concerning local improvements,' approved June 14, 1897, in force July 1, 1897, as amended by subsequent Acts."

SENATE BILL No. 272.

A bill for "An Act to create the 'Kaskaskia Island Sanitary and Levee District,' to comprise the Island of Kaskaskia in Randolph County, and to provide for the construction, reparation and protection of drains, ditches and levees for sanitary and agricultural purposes therein, and to punish anyone impairing any of the work done by the said district."

SENATE BILL No. 534.

A bill for "An Act to amend section 1 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to establish and regulate the maximum rate of charges for transportation of passengers by corporations or companies operating or controlling railroads in part or in whole in this State, and to provide penalties for the violation of the provisions thereof, and repealing all Acts and parts of Acts in conflict herewith,' approved May 27, 1907, in force July 1, 1907."

SENATE BILL No. 359.

A bill for "An Act to amend section 2 of an Act entitled, 'An Act relating to the civil service in park systems,' approved June 10, 1911, in force July 1, 1911."

SENATE BILL No. 673.

A bill for "An Act to amend section ninety-eight (98) of an Act entitled, 'An Act to extend the jurisdiction of county courts and to provide for the practice thereof to fix the time for holding the same, and to repeal an Act therein named,' approved March 26, 1874, in force July 1, 1874, as amended by an Act approved June 18, 1891."

Passed the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the adoption of their amendment to a bill of the following title, to wit:

HOUSE BILL No. 442.

A bill for "An Act to fix the compensation of the Clerk of the Supreme Court and to provide for the payment of the fees of his office into the State treasury."

Which amendment is as follows:

Amend House Bill No. 442, by striking out of line 6, section 1 of the original bill the words and figures, to wit: "ten thousand dollars ($10,000)" and inserting in lieu thereof the words and figures "seventy-five hundred dollars ($7,500)."

Concurred in by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has adopted the following resolution:

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 117.

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House inform the Senate that the House is ready to adjourn as soon as all bills are enrolled and laid before the Governor, and to inquire if the Senate has anything further to communicate to the House.

Adopted by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

Mr. Glackin filed the following protest:

"We hereby protest against the action taken by the Senate in receding from Senate amendments to House Bill No. 907 as the time of adjournment fixed by the joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives had passed, as indicated by the Senate clock, which showed the time to be 1:15 o'clock a. m., June 21, 1913, at the time such action was taken."

[Signed] EDMUND J. GLACKIN, Senator 17th Dist.

[Signed] KENT E. KELLER, Senator 44th Dist.

Mr. Forst moved that the vote whereby House Bill No. 241 failed to pass be reconsidered.

At 2:00 o'clock a. m., on motion of Mr. Piercy, the Senate took a recess until called to order by the President of the Senate.

4:25 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate called to order.

The following message from the House of Representatives was taken up for consideration:

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the passage of a bill of the following title, to wit:

SENATE BILL No. 355.

A bill for "An Act to provide for the certification of teachers."

Together with the following amendments, in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

Amend Senate Bill No. 355, in House, by inserting after the word "city" in line nine, section 1 of the printed bill, the following: Provided, that nothing in this Act relating to county teachers' certificates shall be applicable to counties having a population of five hundred thousand or over."

Passed the House, as amended, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

The question then being, "Shall the Senate concur with the House of Representatives in the adoption of the amendment to the bill (which amendment has been printed by the House and copies furnished the Senate)?" and the yeas and nays being called, it was decided in the affirmative by the following vote: Yeas, 34.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTION.

Mr. Hurburgh offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 78.

Resolved, That the service of the following officers and employees be dispensed with after June 21, 1913:

All policemen.

Superintendent of ventilation.

Law secretary.

Senate messenger.

All floor janitors.

Cloak room janitors.

All pages.

All committee clerks, except the Budget Clerk of the Committee on Appropriations.

All Senate stenographers, except the one assigned to the Enrolling and Engrossing Department and the one assigned to the President Pro Tempore of the Senate.

Resolved, That as authorized by law, that twenty days extra time, after the sine die adjournment, be allowed to the Secretary of the Senate, First Assistant Secretary of the Senate, the Secretary's stenographers, and the Enrolling and Engrossing Clerk of the Senate, at the same per diem now allowed them by law and the Auditor is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrants therefor upon the filing with him of a certified copy of this resolution.

Resolved, further,

First—That Catherine McCarthy, stenographer, who has been performing duties in the Engrossing and Enrolling Department, be placed on the pay roll from May 1st, to June 30th, inclusive, at $1.00 extra per day.

Second—That Miller Carson be placed on the pay roll as janitor from March 1st to June 20th, inclusive.

Third—To George W. Scott, for extra services as elevator attendant, at night, $25.00.

Fourth—That Ferroll McCollum and Benjamin H. Lucas be paid the sum of $50.00 each for extra services during the session.

Fifth—That Thomas Dolan, telephone messenger for the Senate, from January 8th to June 20th, inclusive, be paid the sum of $1.50 per day, being the same amount as paid by the House of Representatives, he having received no pay whatever, from the Senate.

Sixth—To each page of the Senate, $10.00 extra for night service.

Seventh—To Ben Savage, President of the Senate's janitor, $3.00 per day from January 8th to June 30th, inclusive, less the amount already received by him.

Eighth—To Charles Schuppe for services rendered the Joint Committee on Appropriations at night, on the Omnibus Bill, $100.00.

Ninth—To H. L. Williamson, Printer Expert, for extra night work, the sum of $100.00.

Tenth—To A. R. Livingston, stenographic and type writer work for Secretary of Senate and on Digest, $50.00.

By unanimous consent, the foregoing resolution was taken up for immediate resolution [consideration]. Mr. Dailey offered the following amendment to the resolution, which was adopted:

Strike from the first resolution the words "Senate messenger."

The question then being, "Shall the resolution as amended be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative unanimously.

On motion of Mr. Magill a committee of three was ordered appointed to wait upon the Governor and ascertain whether he had any further communication to make to the Senate.

The committee immediately retired and in a few minutes reported that the Governor instructed them to notify the Senate that he had no further communication to make and that he desired to extend to each member of the Senate his best wishes.

The President of the Senate, upon behalf of the Executive Committee, made the following announcement:

"The Executive Committee have selected as members of the committee on the part of the Senate provided for by Senate Joint Resolution No. 52: Messrs. Barr, Meeker, Franklin, Hurley and Dailey."

Senator Piercy having resigned from the Committee to Arrange for the Illinois Centennial, Senator Kent E. Keller was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Senator Magill was also appointed a member of the same committee, vice Senator Maclean, resigned.

Members of the committee provided for by House Joint Resolution No. 23: Messrs. Canaday, Shaw, Campbell, Landee, Chamberlin and Barr.

The committee provided for by House Joint Resolution No. 36: Messrs. Womack, Johnson, Maclean, Denvir and Clark.

The committee provided for by Senate Joint Resolution No. 22: Messrs. Piercy, Manny, Hurburgh and Hay.

Mr. Keller offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 79.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Senate are hereby extended to our esteemed Post Mistress, Mrs. Adele H. Smith, and her worthy assistant, Miss Gladys Womack, for so generously remembering us with such beautiful carnations this day. And we further express to them our most cordial appreciation for their many other courtesies so kindly extended us throughout this entire session.

Mr. Clark offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 80.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate are hereby extended to its stenographers for the faithful and intelligent service rendered by them.

Mr. Chamberlin offered the following resolution, which was lost:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 81.

WHEREAS, Jacob Teinowitz, a page, has been doing committee work as well as acting as such page; therefore be it

Resolved, That said page be allowed a compensation of $3.00 per diem, from January 8, 1913, to the present adjournment, less amount already paid him.

On motion of Mr. Keller the thanks of the Senate were extended to the President of the Senate, the President Pro Tempore, the Secretary of the Senate and his assistants, and to all the other officers and employees for the manner in which they have discharged the duties of their offices.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the adoption of the following preamble and joint resolution, to wit:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 19.

WHEREAS, For many years past, the Illinois and Michigan Canal, from Lockport, Illinois, to Chicago, Illinois, has been used but very little, and in its present condition is of no commercial value to the people of the State of Illinois; and

WHEREAS, On account of the shallow water in the canal it has become a public nuisance, and a menace to the health of the people in the vicinity of the canal; and

WHEREAS, Locks could be built at Lockport, Illinois, connecting the Illinois and Michigan Canal with the Sanitary District Canal; and

WHEREAS, The canal could be filled in at very little cost, if any, to the State of Illinois, and a State road could be built thereon two hundred and forty (240) feet in width and thirty-five (35) miles long; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate and the House of Representatives concurring therein, That the Governor of the State of Illinois and three citizens to be appointed by the Governor to act in conjunction with the Illinois and Michigan Canal Commissioners, and the Trustees of the Sanitary District, to investigate the feasibility of locking the Illinois and Michigan Canal with the Sanitary District Canal, at Lockport, Illinois; the filling in of the canal from Lockport, Illinois, to Chicago, Illinois, and also the drafting of a bill to be presented to Congress authorizing the State of Illinois to fill in the canal from Lockport, Illinois, to Chicago, Illinois, and using the same for a public highway; and that the committee be authorized to employ such assistance as is necessary; and shall report to the Forty-ninth General Assembly, and make such recommendations as they deem advisable.

Concurred in by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

A message from the House, by Mr. Eden, Assistant Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has concurred with the Senate in the adoption of the following preamble and joint resolution, to wit:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 52.

WHEREAS, The Sanitary District of Chicago, in the construction of its channel erected retaining walls at and near and in the vicinity of the city of Lockport, and the city of Joliet, in Will County; and

WHEREAS, Some of the walls thus constructed bear and exhibit marked evidences of weakness; and

WHEREAS, There is contained within said walls, a large volume of water, which, if liberated by the giving way of the walls, would undoubtedly result in the destruction of life and property in and about the cities of Joliet and Lockport; and

WHEREAS, The Sanitary District of Chicago, in the construction of the channel erected retaining walls at and near and in the vicinity of Lockport and city of Joliet, in Will County; and

WHEREAS, Some of the walls thus constructed exhibit marked evidences of weakness; and

WHEREAS, In the construction of said channel the course of the Chicago River was changed so that flood waters that formerly went to Lake Michigan through the Chicago River are now sent down the DesPlaines River through said city of Joliet, which said flood waters together with the waters from the main channel of said Sanitary District increases greatly the flow of water in DesPlaines River through said city of Joliet; and

WHEREAS, Eminent engineers have given warning that there is an impending danger which menaces the safety of life and property in said city; and

WHEREAS, Because of the recent floods in the various parts of the country, and in the State of Illinois, the people of the vicinities herein mentioned, have become very much exercised and alarmed on account of the obvious dangers from the breaking of any of said retaining walls; and

WHEREAS, A preliminary investigation has been made by a committee of Senators, who made a tentative report in respect to the subject matter herein contained; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That a committee of five Senators and five members of the House of Representatives, be appointed from the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, of the State of Illinois, to investigate the condition of the said retaining walls, and the probable dangers from said flood waters and report their findings to the General Assembly with all convenient speed; and, be it further

Resolved, That such committee shall have the power to administer oaths, take evidence, subpoena witnesses and compel them to testify, compel the production of books, papers and documents, and to do any and all other lawful acts to carry out the foregoing purposes; and, be it further

Resolved, That said committee may appoint and employ such engineers and other assistants in the premises as it may deem necessary; and, be it further

Resolved, That such expenses connected with this investigation as shall be necessary, shall be certified to by the chairman of said committee, and shall be payable out of the fund for committee expenses, or out of an appropriation to be made therefor.

Concurred in by the House, June 20, 1913.

B. H. McCANN,
Clerk of the House.

At 4:40 o'clock a. m., on motion of Mr. Waage, the Senate adjourned and the President of the Senate declared that the Senate stood adjourned until Monday, June 30, at 12:00 o'clock M.

MONDAY, JUNE 30, 1913, 12:00 O'CLOCK M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate, presiding.

The President of the Senate announced that he had examined the Journal of Friday, June 20, 1913, and found no corrections or changes to be made, and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered the Journal would be ordered to stand approved.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES.

The following messages were received, read and ordered spread on the Journal of the Senate for today:

A message from the Governor, by William L. Sullivan, Secretary to the Governor:

Mr. President—I am directed by the Governor to lay before the Senate the following communications:

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
SPRINGFIELD, June 28, 1913.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the General Assembly of Illinois:

I hereby veto and return herewith, without my approval, Senate Bill No. 304, for the reasons set forth in the opinion of the Attorney General, a copy of which is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

Respectfully submitted,
E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.
SPRINGFIELD, June 28, 1913.

Senate Bill No. 304—Park Consolidation Bill.

His Excellency, Edward F. Dunne, Governor, Springfield, Ill.:

SIR—You have transmitted to me Senate Bill No. 304, the same being a bill for "An Act to consolidate in the government of the city of Chicago the powers and functions now vested in the towns and park districts and other local authorities having jurisdiction within the territory of said city, to provide for the assumption by the city of Chicago of the debts and liabilities of such towns, park districts and corporate authorities, to make additional provisions concerning parks and to provide revenue for said city," with a request for an opinion as to its form and constitutionality.

This bill is divided into seven articles, designated respectively, "Consolidation," "Revenue," "Indebtedness," "Parks," "The Public Library," "The Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium," "General Provisions" and "Submission of Act to Popular Vote."

Article I, entitled "Consolidation," provides in substance that all powers not specifically abrogated by the Act, which are now vested in the city, township, park and other legal governments and authorities, having jurisdiction confined to or within the territory of the city of Chicago, or any part thereof, shall be consolidated in the municipal government of the city of Chicago. It also provides for a like consolidation, with the city of Chicago, of any municipal corporation wholly within the boundaries of territory hereafter annexed to the city.

Article II, entitled "Revenue," regulates the levy, by the city council of the city of Chicago, of taxes for corporate purposes, including general city, park, library and municipal tuberculosis sanitarium purposes, to meet the requirements of the annual appropriation bill for each year.

Article III, entitled "Indebtedness," limits the amount of the indebtedness which the city may contract for municipal, educational and school building purposes.

Article IV, entitled "Parks," deals with parks, provides for the appointment of park commissioners, defines their powers and duties, as well as the powers of the city council with respect to parks.

Article V, entitled "The Public Library," deals with the public library of the city of Chicago, its management and appropriations, tax levies and bond issues therefor.

Article VI, entitled "The Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium," deals with the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium of the city of Chicago, provides for its management and for appropriations, tax levies and bond issues.

Article VII, entitled "General Provisions," purports to limit the operation of general laws of the General Assembly relating to municipal affairs, so that they may not be treated as applicable to the city of Chicago in the absence of an express declaration to that effect, and it contains some other general provisions.

Article VIII, entitled "Submission of Act to Popular Vote," provides a method by which the Act may be submitted to the legal voters of the city of Chicago for adoption. It provides two methods for such submission. One is, by an ordinance of the city council, directing the question to be submitted, and the other is by petition signed by at least 5 per cent of the legal voters of the city. It also provides that if at any election at which the question has been submitted, the Act fails to be adopted, it may be re-submitted if such re-submission is directed by an ordinance of the city council or demanded by a petition of 10 per cent of the legal voters of the city.

The validity of the bill depends upon the determination of several questions.

The first question is, whether the bill violates that provision of Article XIII of section 4 of the Constitution which provides that:

"No Act hereafter passed shall embrace more than one subject, and that shall be expressed in the title."

Whether this be so, depends upon whether the consolidation in the government of the city of Chicago of the powers and functions now vested in the towns and park districts and other local authorities, having jurisdiction within the territory of the city, and the providing of revenue for the city, constitute two distinct subjects, and if so, whether both these subjects are dealt with in the body of the Act.

After a careful consideration of this question, it seems to me to be one of such doubt and difficulty that I would hesitate to express an opinion that the Act should be condemned as obnoxious to the constitutional provision in question and inasmuch as I am clearly of the opinion that the Act is invalid upon the ground hereinafter stated, I do not deem it necessary to pass definitely upon the question.

The second question is whether that provision of the Act is valid which provides that, in case of the submission of the question of the adoption of the Act to the legal voters of Chicago, "if a majority of those electors voting thereon shall vote for the adoption of this Act it shall thereby and thereupon be adopted and be in force in the city of Chicago."

Section 34 of Article IV declares that:

"The General Assembly shall have power, subject to the conditions and limitations hereinafter contained to pass any law (local, special or general) providing a scheme or charter of local municipal government for the territory now or hereafter embraced within the limits of the city of Chicago."

And after specifying what may be provided for in any law so passed, it declares that:

"No law based upon this amendment to the Constitution, affecting the municipal government of the city of Chicago, shall take effect until such law shall be consented to by a majority of the legal voters of said city voting on the question at any election, general, municipal or special; and no local or special law based upon this amendment affecting specially any part of the city of Chicago shall take effect until consented to by a majority of the legal voters of such part of said city voting on the question at any election, general, municipal or special."

It is a matter of common knowledge, of which the courts will take judicial notice, that the park districts in the city of Chicago are not severally co-extensive with the limits of the city of Chicago. There are, for instance, the West Chicago Park District, the Lincoln Park District, and the South Park District. The question whether these districts shall be consolidated is one which is of especial concern to the people of the several districts. Thus, the Act, if adopted, would be one "affecting specially" that part of the city of Chicago lying within the South Park District, it would be one "affecting specially" that part of the city of Chicago lying within the Lincoln Park District, and it would be one "affecting specially" that part of the city of Chicago lying within the West Park District.

As will be seen, the above quoted provision of the Act is so framed as to make the Act effective if it receives the votes of the majority of the electors voting thereon of the entire city, although it may not receive the votes of a majority of the electors voting thereon of the Lincoln Park District, or of the West Park District, or of the South Park District.

This, in my opinion, is manifestly fatal to the validity of the bill. I am, therefore, of the opinion the bill is unconstitutional.

On the other hand it has been urged that it is unnecessary that the Act specify that it is only to take effect when consented to by a majority of the electors of each district "specially affected" voting on the question and a majority of the electors of the entire city voting thereon, but that, whether it is so consented to, may be determined by a canvass of the votes cast in each district "specially affected."

It has been suggested to me by the representatives of the city of Chicago, that the Act should be submitted to a vote of the people of the city of Chicago and that the question of its constitutionality should be left to be determined by the Supreme Court. This, however, is hardly a rule of policy for this department to adopt; my sole duty is to express my opinion as to the validity of the Act.

Senate Bill No. 304 is herewith returned.

Very respectfully,

[Signed] P. J. LUCEY.

SPRINGFIELD, June 28, 1913.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the General Assembly of Illinois:

I hereby veto and return herewith without my approval, Senate Bill 498, being "An Act to amend section 1 of an Act concerning corporations, etc.," for the following reasons:

While purporting to be an Act to amend section 1 of an Act entitled, "An Act concerning corporations," approved April 18, 1872, the sole object attained by this bill is to permit corporations under the Act concerning corporations, to be incorporated for the purpose of doing a real estate brokerage business.

This is accomplished by striking out in section 1 from the addition comprising corporations, the words "real estate brokerage."

It is true that in the proposed bill there is a proviso which recites, "that no corporation formed or organized under this Act shall have the right, power, or authority to own, acquire, or hold as owner, or hold either directly or indirectly in any manner, any real estate in this State or any interest therein, except as may be permitted by other sections in this Act."

In section 5 of the present law, which it purports to amend, corporations are permitted "to own, possess, and enjoy so much real estate and personal estate as may be necessary for the transaction of their business, and may sell and dispose of same when not required by the uses of the corporation."

This Act if permitted to become a law, would thus enable corporations to be organized under the general corporation Act for the purpose of buying and selling real estate.

The policy of this State for forty years and upwards has been opposed to the granting of such rights to corporations.

Whether the policy is a wise one or an unwise one, the Legislature may itself determine, but, if the policy must be changed, it should be by an Act which clearly and openly grants this right in plain and unmistakable language.

I veto this bill because the power thus given is done in covert and hidden language.

Respectfully submitted,

E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.
SPRINGFIELD, June 27, 1913.

To His Excellency, Edward F. Dunne, Governor of the State of Illinois, Springfield, Illinois:

SIR—You have transmitted to me Senate Bill No. 575, with the request that I give you an opinion as to its form and constitutionality.

The bill is entitled:

"An Act for county road system of building streets, roads and boulevards, in counties of 500,000 population or more."

The bill consists of twenty-eight sections and in form would seem to be unobjectionable.

I am of the opinion, however, that the bill is not free from constitutional objection.

Section 1 of the bill provides that by a majority vote of the members of the county board, in counties with a population of 500,000 or more, the county board may adopt the county road system and appoint three county road commissioners.

Section 10 empowers such board of road commissioners to lay out new roads within the county as they may deem necessary.

Section 11, among other things, authorizes such board to change the width or location or straighten the line of any road over which they take jurisdiction, and provides that if it shall become necessary to take private property, the board shall cause a survey of such proposed road, together with an accurate description of the land required, and provides that the board shall endeavor to agree with the owner for a right of way over the land.

Section 12 provides that when the board is unable to agree with the person interested in such land, or such person is unknown, a non-resident of the county, a minor, insane or incompetent, such board may present to the circuit or probate court of the county a petition, describing such road and each parcel of land which they were unable to acquire, giving the names of the persons interested in such lands, asking for the appointment of three commissioners to determine the necessity of such road, the necessity of taking the lands and to appraise the damages to be paid as compensation for such taking.

Said section further provides for an order of court fixing a day for a hearing on such petition and service of process, etc.

Section 13 provides for a hearing on such petition, and authorizes the court to appoint three disinterested persons as commissioners, designated court commissioners, to determine the necessity of such proposed road, the necessity of taking the land described in the petition and to appraise the damages to be paid as compensation for the land described in the petition.

Section 14 vests such court commissioners with the power of determining whether the taking of the land is necessary and authorizes such commissioners to appraise the damages to be assessed as compensation to each person interested in such land, which decision of the commissioners is to be reported to the court in writing.

Section 15 provides, among other things, that the court may set aside such report and refer it back to the commission, or appoint other commissioners to retry the questions involved.

Section 16 provides that on a confirmation of the report of the commissioners, by the court, the court shall enter an order authorizing the board of county road commissioners to pay the several sums awarded for damages and in case of refusal to accept payment, or in case there is no person authorized to receive payment, that the amounts shall be deposited as directed by the court. And further provides that upon the filing of proof of payment or deposit, the court shall prepare a certificate under seal, reciting briefly the proceedings had, and deliver the same to the board of county road commissioners, and thereupon the title to such land shall be deemed vested in the county to be used for road purposes only.

The bill, in effect, authorized the taking of private property for public use without just compensation, ascertained in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

I am of the opinion that the bill violates the plain provisions of section 13 of article 2 of the Constitution.

Senate Bill 575 is herewith returned.

Very respectfully,

[Signed] P. J. LUCEY,
Attorney General.

To the Honorable, the Senate:

I hereby veto and return herewith without my approval, Senate Bill No. 471, for the reason set forth in the opinion of the Attorney General, a copy of which is attached hereto, and made a part hereof.

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.
SPRINGFIELD, June 27, 1913.

Senate Bill No. 471.

His Excellency, Edward F. Dunne, Governor, Springfield, Ill.:

SIR—I herewith return Senate Bill No. 471, being "An Act to amend section 10 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to regulate the civil service of the State of Illinois,' approved May 11, 1905, in force July 1, 1905, as amended by Act approved June 10, 1911, in force July 1, 1911."

This Act amends the section which it purports to amend, by adding the soldiers and marines of the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection, to the soldiers of the war of 1861-1862-1863-1864-1865, being the class of persons who were preferred for civil appointments by the section 10 amended, over and above all other citizens possessing the necessary qualifications to hold office, provided they are found to possess the business capacity necessary for the proper discharge of the duties of the office, and by adding to the said section amended, a requirement that the preferred class above mentioned shall have been honorably discharged from the service of the United States in such wars. The section as it was before this amendment, and as it remains, amended, arbitrarily requires that such preferred class of citizens shall be placed first or at the head of the eligible list, irrespective of whether or not their qualifications are equal or superior to the qualifications of other qualified citizens. It does not include the soldiers and marines of other wars, and is, in my opinion, class legislation, and repugnant to clause 23 of paragraph 22 of Article IV of the Constitution, which provides that:

"The General Assembly shall not pass any local or special law * * * granting to any corporation, association or individual, any special or exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever."

The wording of this Act, as amended, exempts such persons as are by it preferred, from any physical test, which may be provided for others possessing equal qualifications by the other sections of this law, and thereby grants to this preferred class of persons, qualified to hold office or employment, a special privilege or exemption from a burden imposed on others equal or superior in qualifications. It places this preferred class arbitrarily at the head of the eligible list, without requiring that their qualifications shall be equal or superior to other eligibles by examinations, thereby granting to this class of persons another special privilege and immunity not granted to all qualified citizens alike.

I am mindful of the fact that other states, which have constitutions providing for special civil service laws, and not containing the provision above quoted, as the same is written in the Constitution of Illinois, have held laws giving preference to soldiers and sailors, to be valid, but, in these states, where such preference is given, where the statute did not require equal or superior qualifications on the part of such preferred persons, they have been held invalid. See People v. Saratoga Springs, 54 Hun. (N. Y.), 16; Matter of Keymer, 89 Hun. (N. Y.), 219.

These opinions were rendered under a constitution authorizing a preference to veterans, in the civil service. See Article V, paragraph 9, of the New York constitution. Brown v. Russell, 166 Mass., 14; Matter of Sweeley, 12 Misc. Rep. (N. Y. Sup. Ct.), 174, affirmed in 146 N. Y., 401.

In the Massachusetts case above cited, the court declares the right to obtain office to be a privilege, and holds that a statute which absolutely gives to veterans privileges distinct from the community, in obtaining public office, unconstitutional. See Am. & Eng. Law, Vol. VI, pp. 93-94, and notes thereto.

So far as I have been able to find, our Supreme Court has never directly passed upon the question here involved, but, in the case of People v. Loeffler, 175 Ill., 585, the court in substance hold that the right to an office is a privilege of citizenship, and, at the bottom of page 607 and top of page 608, the court say:

"It is a mistake to suppose that every citizen has the right to hold office. It is only every citizen having the proper qualifications for the office, who has the right to hold such office."

This section of the State Civil Service Law, as by this Act amended, and as the same previously existed, does not only discriminate between other qualified citizens and citizens who have been honorably discharged from the military and naval service, but goes one step farther, and discriminates, in particularity, between qualified citizens who have been honorably discharged from the military or naval service in different wars, and also those so discharged who have been in no war.

For these reasons, and until the Supreme Court of this State holds differently, I am of the opinion that this Act, and the section which it amends, are not in compliance with the Constitution, and are invalid.

I do not approve of this bill as to its constitutionality.

There is another objection to the bill as to its form:

The enacting clause purports to amend an independent Act approved May 11, 1905, in force July 1, 1911, and is entirely out of harmony with the title of the Act, and if this error is aided by reference to the title, it cannot aid the substantive provisions of the Act.

Very respectfully,

[Signed] P. J. LUCEY,
Attorney General.

STATE OF ILLINOIS.

SPRINGFIELD, June 28, 1913.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the General Assembly of Illinois:

I return herewith, without my approval, Senate Bill No. 558, being "An Act to amend section 1 of an Act entitled, 'An Act to regulate and limit the hours of employment of females, etc.'"

I am constrained to veto the same on the ground that this bill contains a proviso exempting from the provisions of the working women's ten hour law, women employed in harvesting, canning, curing or drying of any variety of perishable fruit or vegetables during the period of harvesting of said fruit or vegetables, which would probably make the law so discriminating in its character as to render it unconstitutional, as heretofore decided in the case of the People v. Butler Street Foundry and Iron Company, 201 Ill.

This bill would also permit an individual day's work by a female of 15, 18 or 20 hours, which is against the tendency of modern legislation.

Respectfully submitted,
E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

STATE OF ILLINOIS.

SPRINGFIELD, June 28, 1913.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the General Assembly of Illinois:

I herewith return without my approval, Senate Bill No. 677.

This seeks to make an appropriation of $17,500.00 for conducting an investigation by a special committee of the Senate and House of Representatives, appointed under Senate Joint Resolution No. 52, of the entire subject matter of floods in the valley of the DesPlaines River at and near the vicinity of the cities of Joliet and Lockport, including the walls, dams, levees and structures of the Sanitary District of Chicago and others along the DesPlaines River, together with the means of prevention of such floods, and for the inspection by said committee of plans, methods and work which may be undertaken to cure defects or remedy conditions.

I do not believe the situation is sufficiently urgent to warrant the expenditure of the above amount and the bill is accordingly vetoed.

Respectfully submitted,
E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

STATE OF ILLINOIS.
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
SPRINGFIELD, June 28, 1913.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the General Assembly of Illinois:

I return herewith without my approval Senate Bill No. 610.

The bill contains an appropriation of $280.00 to Bailey D. Dawson for services performed by him as one of the assistant clerks of the House of Representatives of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly.

It is 28 years ago since the Thirty-fourth General Assembly was in session.

I do not regard it as being in the public interest to approve a bill which allows a claim for services so far in the past. If there is any merit in the claim, it should have been presented many years ago. No information has been presented to me which would warrant me in permitting this bill to become a law, and the same is accordingly vetoed.

Respectfully submitted,

E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the General Assembly of Illinois:

I return herewith, without my approval, Senate Bill No. 330, being "An Act to prevent the sweeping of railroad cars and taking or removing therefrom any grain or flaxseed contained therein."

I am constrained to veto the same for the reason that I believe the provisions of the present Criminal Code sufficiently cover this subject.

Respectfully submitted,

E. F. DUNNE,

To the Honorable, the Senate of the General Assembly of Illinois:

I return to you herewith, without my approval, Senate Bill No. 283, being "An Act to amend an Act entitled, 'An Act to prevent the preparation, manufacture, packing or distributing of food for sale,' etc."

I veto this bill on the ground that it deprives partially all the cities and villages of the State of the right of police power in relation to the preparation and distribution of food, and that it is an unwarranted interference with the police powers of the cities.

Respectfully submitted,

E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the General Assembly of Illinois:

I return you herewith Senate Bill 694, being "An Act making appropriations for the five State Normal Schools of Illinois."

I withhold my approval of the following items therein appropriated:

From the appropriation for the Illinois State Normal University at Normal, Illinois, item in section 3: "For Woman's dormitory and furnishings, $100,000."

From the appropriation for the Western Illinois Normal School at Macomb, Illinois, item in section 6: "For the erection and completion of a training school at the Western Illinois State Normal School, at Macomb, the sum of $100,000."

Respectfully submitted,

E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

On motion of Mr. Clark, it was ordered that sufficient number of the Journal of today's session be printed to furnish each member of the Senate with at least fifteen copies.

On motion of Mr. Canaday, the thanks of the Senate were extended to Mrs. Logan Hay, wife of Senator Hay, for her kindness in furnishing to the members of the Senate, Friday night, June 13, 1913, a delicious lunch.

The following communication was read and ordered spread upon the Journal:

SPRINGFIELD, June 30, 1913.

Hon. Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor of Illinois:

DEAR SIR—This is to certify that all bills which have come to the Enrolling and Engrossing Department of the Senate, Forty-eighth General Assembly, have been properly enrolled and presented to the proper officers for signature, and that no bills are now in my possession.

Respectfully yours,

FRED W. RINCK,

Enrolling and Engrossing Clerk of the Senate.

On motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Journal for today's session was ordered to stand approved.

At 12:50 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Clark, the Senate adjourned and the President of the Senate announced that the Senate stood adjourned sine die.
